Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10648 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from Mrs M Joblin, 10648 Ashbury ave, N E Cleveland Ohio

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1.00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps should be together and are useless. Money sent in letters is most generally detected and at the owner's risk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

When you receive your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution" and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has been received in bold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to present an inviting work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in sufficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Safe in His Hand.

Whate'er the future,
God hath for me,
Shadow or sunshine
As pleaseth Thee;
It dark my pathway,
Thorny and rough,
God is my Father—
That is enough.

Oh, how He careth,
All through the way
Leading me onward
Gently each day;
He will not give me
Aught that is ill,
Though it be sorrow,
Working His will

Bright shine the promise,
Said not in vain,
Jesus is coming—
Coming again:
That hour I know not—
His time is best,
So I am waiting,
Calmly at rest.

I am unworthy,
Jesus is worthy,
Here I repose:
So I go treading
Through this lone land
Leaving my future
Safe in His hand.

Thanksgiving Services.

The Church of God, at Salem, Ohio, gathered at their meeting house and thoroughly enjoyed the service of Thanksgiving. There were special greetings, and suitable Scriptural quotations sent from loved ones.

From Brother and Sister Juergensen: "Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him."

Beloved in the Lord: The Lord has been merciful unto us and has still spared us, even until this day. We are not permitted to be with you this year to see you face to face, but in the spirit of love we are sending you our Christian greetings and love, to all who are this day assembled in the presence of the Lord to delight themselves in thanksgiving and prayer to God, the Author and Giver of all good and perfect gifts. We wish to unite with you by letter in this thanksgiving service, that we may publish with the voice of thanksgiving and tell of all thy wondrous works, O Lord. Thou hast been merciful unto us, O Lord, and hast called us through the glad tidings of the soon coming kingdom to be a peculiar people, and to serve thee, and thee alone. But dear Father, hasten that glad day that we may see our Lord and Savior face to face, and be made like him. Blessed is the people that know the joyful sound; they shall walk, O Lord, in the light of thy countenance; in thy name shall they rejoice all the day, and in thy righteousness shall they be exalted. Blessed be the Lord forever and ever, Amen and amen.

From Brother and Sister Moore, of Cleveland: Dear brothers and sisters at Salem, Our hearts will be with you in your exercises in giving praise and thanksgiving to God that we are preserved through another year. Praise his name. Come Lord Jesus. Read for us Psalm xci.

From Brother and Sister D C and Nancy B. Robison: To those of like precious faith—Dearly beloved in the Lord. We are reminded that your Thanksgiving services are drawing near. We desire to extend to the "little flock" at Salem our Christian greetings. Our thanksgiving extends to our Heavenly Father with you for all the blessings that we have been made recipients of during the past year. Truly our blessings have been beyond our most earnest expectations. During all our trials we have been strengthened, and have been protected from all harm. We have been delivered from the present evil world. In all our labors the Lord has been our wisdom and our strength. "Are not his ministering spirits sent forth to minister for them who shall be heirs of salvation?" Truly they are. "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity. It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard; that ran down to the skirts of his garments; as the dew of Hermon and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion; for there the Lord commanded the blessing, even life forevermore." Our prayer is that you may be preserved blameless unto the coming of the Lord.

From Brother and Sister J C. and Ora Thompson: Just a word about Thanksgiving. There are none who live that have not something to be thankful for, and how much more those of the Abrahamic faith, who have been brought out of darkness into the marvelous light of the truth. We extend Christian love and greetings to all of like precious faith. Read 2 Thessalonians ii. and especially emphasize verses 13-14.

From Sister Esther Richardson: I think you have the ideal way of spending Thanksgiving day. It adds joy to the occasion when you can thus be together joined in faith and praise. [illegible] will this of you all, a [illegible] there.

Sister Barber read Psalm xxvi. and verse 7 reads: "That I may publish with the voice of thanksgiving, and tell of all thy wondrous works."

Sister Crawford read Psalm c. verse 4 is quoted, "Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise; be thankful unto him and bless his name."

Sister Farmer read from Psalm civ. Praise ye the Lord. O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good, for his mercy endureth forever.

Sister Esther Burton: Let us come before his presence with thanksgiving and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms, Psalm xcv.

Sister Buckman: But thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ, 1 Cor xv. 57 58.

Sister Ella Knowles: Thine O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty; for all that is in the heavens and in the earth is thine. Thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all, 1 Chronicles xxix. 11-13.

Sister Mary Knowles: Bless the Lord O my soul, and all that is within me, bless his holy name. Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits, Psalm ciii. 1-5.

Sister McCave: O give thanks unto the Lord: call upon his name, make known his deeds among the people, Psalm cv.

Sister Townsend: For every creature of God is good, and nothing to be refused, if it be received with thanksgiving: for it is sanctified by the word of God and prayer, 1 Timothy iv. 4 5.

Sister Morron: For the Lord shall comfort Zion; he will comfort all her waste places, and he will make her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of the Lord; joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving, and the voice of melody, Isaiah li. 3.

Sister Neill: For what thanks can we render again for you, for all the joy wherewith we joy for your sake before our God, 1 Thessalonians iii. 6-9.

Sister Annie Burton: Know ye that the Lord he is God; it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture, Psalm c.

Sister Ida Buckman: Whither the tribes go up, the tribes of the Lord, unto the testimony of Israel, to give thanks unto the name of the Lord, Psalm cxxii.

Brother Buckman: For all things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might through the thanksgiving of many, redound to the glory of God, 2 Corinthians iv. 15.

Brother Townsend: Offer unto God thanksgiving, and pay thy vows unto the Most High, Psalm l. 14-15.

Brother Morron: O come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord our Maker. For he is our God, and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. Psalm xcv.

Brother Pottorf: O come, let us sing unto the Lord; let us make a joyful noise to the Rock of our salvation, Psalm xcv. 1-7.

There is pleasure in adding selections by Sunday School scholars.

Della Farmer: Be careful for nothing but in everything by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving let your requests be known unto God, Philippians iv. 6

Ethel Neill: O praise the Lord, all ye nations: praise him all ye people. For his merciful kindness is great toward us, and the truth of the Lord endureth forever. Praise ye the Lord, Psa. cxvii.

Ruel Wright: Reading of an excellent poem full of proper thanksgiving expressions, The first public thanksgiving of the early settlers. The poem was well read. Ruel has from his first introduction to the Sunday School, shown a decided interest. May he follow on to know and obey the [illegible] Buckmans [illegible] righteous, and gladness [illegible] upright in heart, Psalm xcvii. 11.

Sister Stump from Alliance arrived at the close of the services, but was with us all day. We dined together at the home of Sister McCave. "The hours flew by on winged feet." The time was spent talking of things religiously and socially—past, present and future. Leave taking began after 8 p. m. by those who live some miles from Salem. The last good night was said about 7 p m. All much enjoyed the day.

P NEILL.

Christian experience is a battle and a march. Every battle should result in victory, and every march should be an advance. Our Leader never sounds a retreat. When the difficulties seem to be the greatest, then his command is, Go forward. There is much territory yet to be entered, and the time is short. This message is for the world. Let every one obey the instruction of the Great Commander; Go forward.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 20.

[illegible] Willard must have returned from his visit to Petrolia, Titusville and Allegheny City before the month of July was over, as he went the first and spent two weeks with his sons, and a few days with Bro. Conley and wife. Sister Conley did not accompany him, but came the 4th of September, bringing with her a young lady friend. Mrs. Lyman Willard arrived about three days later, and Bro. Conley still further on. "All were joyfully welcomed, but the reception of Bro Conley like the reception of Titus was the joy of them all."

He had become an equal partner in a large manufacturing house in Pittsburg—the former senior partner having been drowned in a railroad disaster some six or more months previous to the time of which I am writing, and Bro. Conley, being main clerk, and understanding all the details of the business, could better settle it than any one else, he was therefore promoted. All the financial burden fell upon him; it was a responsible position but this godly brother commended all to divine guidance, working, waiting and watching for Jesus' coming time; his head not at all turned by the change in his affairs. All these dear guests with others who gathered with them around the Communion table on September 14th, were in full sympathy with Brother and Sister Willard in their view of future glory as revealed by the prophets, believing that the dispensation in which God shall gather in one all things in Christ "is even near,"—when Satan "will be bound and the stone-power increase, and fill the whole earth;" "when the increase of Christ's kingdom and peace, there shall be no end."

Brother Willard had found Lyman with a large practice in his hands, but Pelson had failed in oil-well speculation, oil having sunk to 75 cts per barrel.

Brother and Sister Conley left for Philadelphia about the 15th, and near the last of October, father and I arrived at Haddonfield.

We left the train as the silver stars
Came out in the blue of the evening sky
While a golden flush from the sunset-bars
Was lingering still on the oaks afar,
And clamoring crows in the dusk went by.
Then dreamily walking the streets adown
'Neath the ancient trees of an old, old town,
We went beyond till our footsteps came
To the grassy mound of the Quaker dead;
To a sweep of fields and a lovely lane,
Where sounded the milk-maid's low refrain.
Then hastening on with a hopeful tread,
Till the cedars seemed but a dusky heap,
And the song was hushed and the Firdusi-up
Tower there with its rambling porch around
The prayer-made Bethel, at last was found,
The prophet's chamber upon its wall,
The pilgrim's staff at its door laid down,
And the orphaned child from the far-off town,
With ear bent low to the Savior's call;
And clasped in arms that my childhood knew,
And drawn to a seat by the blazing grate,
I seemed to be living my youth anew,
A grown up child with its wreath of blue,
Kind voices blending the ends of fate!
And heart asore from the wounds of death
Still at its lay breath
[illegible] touch of the hands of [illegible] balm from above.
[illegible] the read as a mother reads
[illegible] sore pain and its hottest needs;
And while she held in her own my hand,
And told "the story" of Judean land,
A brighter light on my path was thrown,
And truths were learned that I never had known.

"The past was passed and my feet must [illegible]
In the forward course till the crown was won.
Our [illegible] behind us, we leave undone
What might ourselves and the wide world bless."
So I [illegible] my eyes from the grave away,
To the glorious light of a coming day
With Rachel, mourning her slain no more
Shall [illegible] them all on the new-earth shore,
Another fair, young child that I saw not born,
And [illegible] smile on my mother's face,
I look, now as beyond the bier
In the golden light of another sphere
With death is gone and the serpent's trace
In no more in a world of grace;
And [illegible] and sing till the dawn be come,
And [illegible] stand in the Father's name."

The [illegible] rambling verses, entitled—"A Memory"—tell the story of my welcome, and the course that accorded father with just as pleasant and joyous. "Do not look backward, look forward. Do not look down at the grave; look beyond the grave to the coming glory," was the lesson Auntie Willard gave me, and I remember it unto this day.

I have never grieved over my lost ones as I had grieved before, but seem to see them as if already in the land of light and joy as indeed they will be when Jesus comes. Father took me East, because grief over the death of my mother and only child, had so worn on my health that he feared for my life. I could have had no better medicine, and was soon my own bright self again.

We found the home-circle at Auntie Willard's composed of themselves, Brother and Sister Edis, Harry—the stray boy,—Gussie—a young girl from Trenton, and little Lizzie, Sister Bussler's grand-daughter.

What are the most important words? 2 Tim. iv. 2. .

What are the saddest words? 2 Tim. iv. 4.

When will Paul get his reward? 2 Tim. iv. 8.

Lesson 12, December 19. Review.

Golden Text. "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." 1 Tim. iv. 7.

The questions submitted are for those who need them. Some may have questions of their own. However, it should be the work of the Reviewers to have all questions directly—or nearly on the lesson subject.

What have we—Teachers—learned from the eleven lessons? Have we examined ourselves to see if we believe and teach the things for which Paul was persecuted? Are we, from the religious world, suffering religious and social ostracism—the cold shoulder? Have we—with these grand lessons in hand—been guilty of teaching—Heaven at death as a reward of being good? Have we a good name—in the world—for morality, industry and honesty? 1 Tim. iii. 7. Are we suffering some persecution because we believe "the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ?" Are we suffering some persecution because we live godly in Christ Jesus? 2 Tim. iii 12.

There is no better instruction than reviewing ourselves scripturally. If we are not almost avoided religiously, and much avoided socially, we may be sure we are not believing the Word of God to salvation.

Next Lesson. Birth of Christ. Matt. ii. 1-12.

P. NEILL.

Obituary.

Died at her home near Argos, Ind. November 24, 1909, Mary Elizabeth Boyce, wife of Marion Boyce.

Mary Elizabeth Lehman was born January 7, 1857, in Miami County, Ohio, and November 27, 1883 became the wife of Marion Boyce of Marshall County, Indiana. Three children were born to this union, Minnie May dying in infancy, Goldie Pearl now 19, and Loretta 17 years of age.

At the age of sixteen Sister Boyce became obedient to the gospel, and was immersed into the name of the Anointed One by the writer. This blessed union made with Christ made in the days of her youth, was faithfully cherished until death. The firm belief of those who knew her best is that she now is asleep in Jesus. Yes,

Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep.

To the husband deprived of a loving faithful and devoted wife, and to the daughters who best know the value of a kind Christian mother, the writer would most kindly say, Seek with intense earnestness for the life to come, and when the Life Giver shall return to bless the faithful ones with eternal life and a share in the fadeless glory of God's coming kingdom, you may also share with the dear mother whose life we now trust is hid with Christ in God, but will be brought at the coming of Christ, who solved the mighty problem of future life by showing the path of life that leads out of the "deep dark valley" of death into the dazzling brightness of immortal life.

The funeral services were held in West Union Church, Miami County, Ohio, a large building in sight of the former home of Sister Boyce, where a great number heard with deep attention God's answer to the question—"Can the dead live again?" The writer earnestly hopes that the hearers may profit by the lesson.

EXAMINE Your account, and give us a renewal of subscription if you can do so.

Circumstances of late have added somewhat to our expenses, and we do really need what is due us right now. This ought to be enough to say, and we will not add more to it, but trust that by thus calling your attention to the matter, all who know that their time has expired, will send in renewals at once, and so relieve our necessities.

We thank you for the favor.

Read the call for Christmas Love Feast letters. We are receiving some already. Write yours now, so as to be in time. Every one, young or old, are urged to bear testimony to the goodness of God through this medium.

We give most of our space to correspondents this week, as they seem to need it. We get to articles as fast as we can, as space is necessarily limited. We try to avoid a sameness, and give variety as far as possible to please all with something in each issue.

The suggestion has been made that we have a Christmas Love Feast this year. We favor the plan, and will gladly hold space for each one to give expression of their hope and a word of cheer for the waiting faithful ones. Write short letters, telling of your service in the Master's vineyard, and of your expectations and heart-longings. Send in as soon as you can, so we will have opportunity to arrange in proper shape. Every one, from the oldest to the youngest, all are invited to take part in the letter writing—to attend this "Christmas Love Feast."

"The Real Issue"

Editor Restitution:

In your issue of November 17, I find this heading, as a basis of controversy between Brothers Moyer and Huggins. With no desire to enter the arena of their controversy about the "Judgment," nevertheless being now eighty-three past, and having with my little capacity, studied the Scriptures for forty-eight years, having thereby formed a "creed" in my own mind touching the matter, which I desire with your permission to present for the consideration especially of these worthy and highly esteemed brethren, only asking of them that they halt a moment and point out the errors in my creed, as there seems no vital difference between them. I am not yet too old, or too bigoted to learn.

Basis of my creed—Harmonious testimony of the Scriptures—"To every purpose there is time and judgment," Eccl. viii. 5, 6. Judgment is not alone executive ("the final separation of the righteous and wicked") but is a legal term, related to law. In all cases there is—

1. Trial.
2. Decision and sentence of court.
3. Execution of sentence.

Adam placed under law, time for trial, condemned, sentenced, afterward sentence executed—went back to dust. The "old world" had trial 120 years, hearing the law of the righteousness preached by Noah, but corrupted their way. Sentence "I will destroy them." Execution—the flood came, Noah and family saved, passed into the next dispensation; men multiplied, covenant with Abram made as evidence to him that he should inherit the promise "Know of a surety that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land not theirs, and shall serve them..... that nation whom they shall serve will I judge," Genesis xv.

Moses and Aaron as God's mouthpiece, was sent working wondrous miracles to make known the power of God, yet they refused to obey. Then said God, "I will execute judgment. I am the Lord," Exodus xii. 12. The first born of man and beast in all the land were slain, so here also was trial before sentence, and sentence before execution.

Israel departed, journied for forty years in the wilderness "to humble humble them, and prove them whether they would keep the commandments or not," Deuteronomy viii. 2. Those that rebelled, their carcasses fell in the wilderness. Why? Because of unbelief, Hebrews iii. 17-19. Thus again trial preceding execution of penalty. Those of them entering the promised land were placed under law, with life and blessing or cursing and death set before them according to their obedience or disobedience. If disobedient as a nation, "I will deliver them to be removed to all the kingdoms of the earth; for a curse, astonishment and hissing among all the nations. Jeremiah xxix. 18. They became forgetful of God, disobedient, persecuted and killed the prophets sent unto them.

In due time the Messiah of the prophets came, preached unto them during the lapse of dispensations; finally saying "How often would I have gathered your children together..... and ye would not. Behold your house is left unto you desolate." Matthew xxiii. 37 38. "They shall be led away captive into all nations.....until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled," Luke xxi. 24 Thus again trial first, condemnation and sentence second, and third execution of sentence.

These citations of judgments are given only to establish the fact that God's judgments always involve trial before execution of sentence. These are not eternal judgments. The eternal is involved only in the law of the spirit of life in the Christ Jesus, in the new covenant, established, ratified by his own blood, Hebrews viii. 6; ix 18 The old was type, shadow of things to come. "The law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope did," Hebrews vii. 19. This epistle to the Hebrew brethren, was to confirm, establish them in the new, therefore throughout from beginning to end, but a contrast, showing type and fulfillment. "Seeing then that we (himself also a Hebrew) have a great High Priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession," Hebrews iv 14. "Called of God an High Priest... and being made perfect (through suffering) became the author of eternal salvation to all them that obey him," v. 9 10

Under the old priesthood "the law having a shadow of good things to come.....could not with the sacrifices they offered year by year, make the comers thereunto perfect.....But in those sacrifices there is a remembrance of sins every year," v. 1-3. In the type, shadow, remembrance, the high priest entered the holy of holies, with the blood of animals, bearing the names of the children of Israel in the breastplate of judgment.....as a memorial continually before the Lord (Exodus xxviii. 29) as a type, which was a figure for the time then present (ix. 9) with its divers washings (baptisms, Diaglott) Hebrews ix. 10. Laying on of hands, "Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the bullock, Exodus xxix 10, also the ram to be slain, v. 15, also the typical, eternal judgment as foreshown by the high priest, bearing their names before the Lord in judgment. Hence in Hebrews vi. 1, 2, Therefore (wherefore?) because ye have need that one teach you again the first principles of the oracles of God, v. 12, given by the dispensation of angels, Acts vii. 53. Therefore, leaving the principles (of the gospel? O no!) of the doctrine of Christ—margin, the word of the beginning of Christ (as foreshown in type) let us go on to perfection, (how?) not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, baptisms, laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment, as taught in type by the works, now dead, since the antitype came.

How any one at all acquainted with the context, should think and teach that the leaving of the principles here enjoined, relates to the gospel, as taught by Christ and apostles; is beyond my comprehension. Still more so to apply the eternal judgment, therein named, to 2 Corinthians v. 10. Eternal judgment not named therein. True the saints belonging to Christ all appear before his judgment seat,—when? at his return to Zion—Jerusalem, his judgment seat, Isaiah xxiv. 25; ii. 1-4; Micah iv.

For what do they appear there? Surely not to receive eternal life, as they had all received that previously, at the sounding of the last trump, in a moment, the twinkling of an eye, 1 Corinthians xv. 52. The Lord himself shall descend.....with the trump of God. The dead in Christ (only those abiding in him) rise first, then the living saints with them caught up together to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall they ever be with the Lord, 1 Thessalonians iv. No separation after that. They are righteous, the elect of God, called to his kingdom and glory, 1 Thessalonians ii. 12. Have made their calling and election sure, 2 Peter i. 10.

For what then do they appear before his judgment seat? Because the King has now come—to fulfil Isaiah xxxii. 1, a King shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rue in judgment. Also the day appointed has come, Acts xvii. 31, He hath appointed a day (1000 years) in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained.

Those appearing there are to reign in judgment with him; have power given them over the nations, Rev. ii. 26 Know ye not that the saints shall judge the world? 1 Corinthians vi. 2. Hence the answer for what they appear, 2 Corinthians v. 10—That every one may receive the things done in (mortal) body, according to that he hath done. Their native place and power in the kingdom, to be given according to their past deeds which determines their relative places for place and power to be given—not a word as to their everlasting judgment.

But some one will say "Every one of us shall give an account of himself to God," Romans xiv. 12. True—every one renders an account, according to his deeds, by the recordskept thereof. It is written again Matthew xii 36, "That every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment. If this were a verbal statement by each, how long think you would it take? It would require a long time for me, could I recall all the idle words spoken. But, he shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, nor reprove after the hearing of his ears, Isaiah xi.3. All things are open before him.

But the "Real Issue"—the Eternal Judgment. Gentile times are nearing the close, calling out a people for his name, (Acts xv.) who constitute his "Church—House of God," 1 Timothy iii. 15, with whom judgment has already commenced as trial, "For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God," 1 Peter iv. 17. "Think it not strange concerning the fiery trial, which is to try you," verse 12.

The trial ends. Becomes the sacrifice time, unto salvation to them that look for him, Hebrews ix. 28. ..... such that are his, calls it forth, crowns them with eternal life. Their judgment ends. First, trial for life, faithful unto death; then executive, crown of life eternal, from which there is no appeal, no after separation—which is "eternal judgment" to them, both living and dead. They have part in the first resurrection on whom the second death hath no power; they live and reign with him a 1000 years. But the rest of the dead live not again until the 1000 years are finished, Revelation xx.

Then the reign—times of restitution (Acts iii) begins. "The knowledge of the Lord covers the earth as the waters cover the sea," Isaiah xi. 9 Jerusalem a quiet habitation that shall not be taken down, Isaiah xxviii. 20. The law shall go forth of Zion and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem, Micah iv. 2. An highway shall be there. .....the way of holiness——the wayfaring men, though fools shall not err therein, Isaiah xxxv. 8. But it shall come to pass that every soul that will not hear that prophet shall be destroyed from among the people, Acts iii. 23. Then there shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man that hath not filled his days; for the child shall die an hundred years old, but the sinner being an hundred years old shall be accursed, Isaiah lxv. 20.

Their probation, judgment now ended, the executive judgment of the little season beyond the 1000 years' reign. When the dead stand before God, and the books were opened, and another book is opened, that is the book of life, and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books according to their works, and the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hades (grave, margin) gave up the dead which were in them, and they were judged every man according to their works, and death and the grave were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death, and whosoever was not found written in the book of life, was cast into the lake of fire, Revelation xx. 12 15. Death reigned until death, the last enemy is destroyed, 1 Corinthians xv. ..... execution of judgment.

Thus entire harmony throughout as to judgment, it seems to me. If wrong show me my error. Not that I think that a full and complete knowledge as to judgment is required in order to eternal salvation, but the more knowledge obtained the less doubt—and thereby the more strength to overcome.

Your Brother striving to endure the trial.

D T. Halstead

Please Explain.

The following request was sent to us by a gentleman whom we met two years ago in Troy, Ohio. Our meeting lasted nearly three weeks and he attended every meeting but one.

I would like Bro. D C. Robison to explain Dan xii 2; John v 28. 29; Acts xxiv 15; Rev xx 5. 6 and Phil i 23 I cannot believe your soul sleeping doctrine. Yours truly.

Simon Mikkelb.

The above is a very modest request, with the conclusion that "I cannot believe your soul sleeping doctrine." It is strange that intelligent men cannot believe the plain teaching of the Scriptures, that the dead sleep. Paul says 1 Cor xv 18 that if Christ be not risen they that SLEEP in Christ are perished. This embraced all who had fallen asleep from righteous Abel down to the second coming of the Christ. In his comments on this text John Wesley says, "They have lost their life and being altogether." Could the ancient worthies have lived if Christ had not risen? Certainly not. Please note that Paul in this chapter first proved by Scripture that Christ had risen and then he proved the same by more than 500 witnesses. He then proves that the resurrection of righteous believers depends upon the resurrection of Christ. If the dead are conscious in the death state why argue that a resurrection and life depends upon the resurrection of Christ. It is illogical.

So we begin our article with an indisputable proposition, viz: That the future life is obtained only through Christ. I wish to call your attention to the need of a resurrection from the death state. Through Adam's transgression death was introduced. Death does not mean a conscious existence but the extinction of life. Solomon says, "the dead know not anything." David says, The day that man's breath goeth forth his thoughts perish, Psal cxlvi 4. Eccl ix 5; Psa cxlvi 4. Let me permit me to ask, What would have become of the race after transgression if Jehovah had have made no further provision? If the SEED of the woman had not have been promised the race would have perished in the dust like all other beasts. See Eccl iii 18, 19. 20. Did not Jesus speak of Lazarus as SLEEPING? Our friend sleepeth. I go that I may awake him out of his sleep. Then said Jesus unto them plainly, Lazarus is DEAD). Does not Jesus here teach that sleep and death are equal? Let our friend take his concordance and note how many times the word sleep is used when a death occurs. You may not believe this "soul sleeping doctrine" but it is plainly taught in God's Word. The Scriptures to which you allude in Daniel, John and Acts all speak of a resurrection of two classes. Daniel says, Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth (not in heaven) shall awake, some to everlasting life and some to shame and everlasting contempt. In John we read that, Marvel not at this; for the hour is coming, in which all that are in THE GRAVES shall hear his voice and shall come forth; (from the graves and not heaven) they that have done good to the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil to the resurrection of condemnation or punishment.

The apostle speaks of the resurrection of the DEAD, both of the just and the unjust. In these three Scriptures we find the same thought that the two classes are raised.

We hope that our friend will accept the testimony that we have given that the resurrection affects the dead who have fallen asleep and are in their graves. Their resurrection does not take place until the last day. John xi 24 says, Martha saith unto him, I know that he shall RISE again (not come from heaven) in the resurrection at the LAST DAY. In proof of this see 1 Cor xv 50 to 52; 1 Thes iv 16 to 18. There is not one plain Scriptural testimony in proof of the conscious state of the dead. This doctrine depends wholly upon the immortality of the soul. This destroys the doctrine of life only through Christ. It sets aside the resurrection from the death state. It substitutes the doctrine of going to heaven which makes void the doctrine of a future JUDGMENT DAY. It is of heathen origin

We are asked to explain Rev xx 5, 6. You will note that John saw thrones and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them; and I saw the souls (persons) of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus and for the Word of God, and which had not worshiped the beast neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads or in their hands, and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. This Scripture locates this event in the thousand year period after the resurrection of those who are Christ's. They had been dead but now they lived and reigned with Christ. When Christ comes with all his holy angels with him THEN shall he sit upon the throne of his glory. Matt xxv 31. In verse 5 he speaks of another class who will not be raised until the thousand years are finished. Among this class will be found those who have done evil. They are raised to condemnation.

In verse 6 John speaks of those who had a part in the first resurrection. First Christ, then they that are Christ's at HIS COMING. 1 Cor xv 23 On such the second death hath no power, but they shall be priests of God and Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years. These put on immortality at the coming of Christ. The period or age here spoken of is the great judgment day. See 2 Peter iii we are asked to explain Phil i 23. which reads thus, For I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart and be with Christ; which is far better. This text is given to prove that Paul's desire was that at death he might depart and be with Christ. Paul's desire was for the coming of Christ. I here give the Diaglott translation of this text. "I am indeed hard pressed by two things; I have an earnest desire for the returning and being with Christ since it is very much to be preferred." To analyze, the loosing again or the returning being what Paul earnestly desired. The word analusie occurs in Luke xii 36 and is rendered return. But you like men waiting for their master when he will return. Paul seemed to be in a strait between two things, life or death. If he lived he would magnify the name of Christ. If he died it would be gain to Christ. Yet his desire was neither of these but the coming of Christ. Paul believed that Christ would come again and would reward his servants at that time. Luke xix 12 to 28. Rev xxii 12. Please read the above Scriptures. Note Paul's own testimony. 2 Tim iv 7, 8. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith Henceforth (from this time) there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but to all them also that love his APPEARING. Paul's desire in this text was for the appearing of Christ. 1 Thes i 10. To wait for his Son from heaven whom he raised from the dead. Again we read Phil iii 20, 21. Our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for our Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ; who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body. We have shown by the writings of Paul that his desire was that Christ should return and crown him with immortality. Peter adds his testimony by saying, When the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.

In conclusion let me admonish my friend in the language of Paul, To study to show thyself approved unto of God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the WORD OF TRUTH. 2 Tim ii 15.

D. C. Robison.

Notes From a Wondering Evangelist.

Editor Restitution:

On Monday, November 8, I boarded the train for Mont Belview, Texas, where I arrived safe and sound, after riding nearly 1800 miles and driving over 16 miles over bad roads. We expected to hold our meetings in a building used jointly for school and church, but after we had gotten all ready, and our charts (menagerie, as Sister Harsch says) all placed, we were informed by one of the directors we could not hold meetings there—that the agreement about the church was for only the organized churches in Texas, so as we were a "Norther" we had no right there.

Poor old Brother Hipsher was very much surprised. I told him I would speak in no house where there were any objections offered; so I took down my charts, and awaited developments.

Brother Hipsher then went to see his grandson who is a member of the Methodist Church, and through his influence we got permission to use the Methodist Church. The pastor came for his regular appointment on Sunday, and insisted that I preach for him, which I did, on the subject of "Holiness." He was much pleased, and made the people a good talk, in which he said he was glad to have the opportunity to turn over his pulpit to that kind of preaching. But it got too strong for some of the bloodless ones, and they preferred to stay away; the majority, however come through, and were pleased. The last night the church was filled to overflowing, and many stood both inside and outside the building

When we first went there, every night when we got to the Church there would be five to ten young men sitting upon the steps smoking pipes and cigarettes, showing no more reverence for the house dedicated for worship, than for a saloon, or any other building. Before we had been long this disappeared, and the men who had no respect for themselves, went back of the church to smoke.

The people there are good people. It had never been brought to them that there was any thing wrong in smoking and drinking, and a fellow from Iowa would not wonder people drank whiskey in Texas after he had taken a few drinks of that water down there. They feel like the Dutchman did, who was traveling to California, and came to one of the hot springs on the plains He took a cup and dipped a cup full, took one swallow, and exclaimed "Shake, Shake, drive on quick, hell is only half a mile from here."

The treatment accorded us by the young people especially, was gratifying. They took right hold and did their best, the boys helping every night with the singing. I baptized five into the all saving Name.

Brother Hipsher, now ninety-one years of age, has lived to see his daughter, the last one, obedient to the Faith.

I left there last Monday for Blackwell, Oklahoma, where I am now holding a series of meetings. I find much prejudice here, resulting from the abuse of the sects by our ministers. It seems so strange to me, that we who boast so much of "the Faith," "like precious Faith," and all such expressions common among us as a people, should bring forth this kind of fruit. Jesus says by their fruits ye shall know them; and also says by this ye shall know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for another. Are we showing forth the fruit of love by abusing other people? It does not look that way to me. The people in Texas where I was never heard our doctrine before.

We expect to go to Conway Springs Kansas next, then across Missouri to Illinois and Indiana, but may change our route if any of our brethren between or near these points want any meetings. Address me for the next two weeks at Conway Springs, Kan.

Yours in the Faith,

O. J. Allaird,
"The Wondering Evangelist."

Excerpts.

not, Jesus Christ is not risen; and if Jesus Christ is not risen, your faith is vain." He takes his stand then on the fact that there are dead men who arise from the dead. That has happened. In Paul's view Jesus is not the only risen one, and he did not rise simply because he is the Son of God, the Messiah; he arose because there are dead who rise, Jesus among others, and like others. A general resurrection was expected. It was a widely held Pharisic doctrine, and Paul was a Pharisee.

Renan says: "Belief in the immortality of the soul which under the influence of Greek philosophy has become a Christian dogma, allows us a very easy way to deprive death of its meaning, since the dissolution of the body is thus the deliverance of the soul, set free henceforth from the burden that weighed upon its true life. But this view making man a compound of two substances was not intelligible to the Jew. The kingdom of God, or the kingdom of the Spirit, was to the Jewish mind a complete transformation of the world and an annihilation of death."

Fry's translation of Job xvii 13-16 is: "When I would hope, sheol is my home. In darkness I spread my bed, I say to corruption; Thou art my Father, my mother; and my sister is the worm. Ah, where is that which I long for, who can see it? Into the depth of sheol will my hope descend, then we are together below in the dust." And Isa xxvi 19: "As drought and heat consume the snow waters, so do the wicked glide into sheol. And the worm shall feed sweetly upon them."

Eternal Life.—Acrostic.

Evil doers shall be cut off.
Thy word have I hid in my heart.
Exceeding great and precious promises
Rejoice ever more.
No good thing will He withhold from them that love Him.
All kings of the earth shall praise Thee
Let the saints be joyful in glory.

Love ye the Lord, all ye His saints.
In Him put I my trust.
Faith without works is dead.
Even so, come Lord Jesus.

Two Questions.

Brother Huggins:

In answer to Bro. Geo. Francis's [illegible] RESTITUTION of Oct. 27th, [illegible] I think you got the symbols badly mixed. I cannot see how any one can represent both the Little Horn of Dan vii and the two horned Beast of Rev xiii 11. What was the mission of the Little Horn, and what mission does John assign to the two horned Beast? By contrasting the two, I think you will certainly see that your position is untenable.

One more thing I wish to speak of before I close. I am a candidate for baptism, and desire to ask this question: What qualifications are necessary to legally fit an individual to perform the ordinance of baptism? I am isolated here to some extent and will appreciate a helping hand. Yours in hope of eternal life.—Joe Tucker.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Our Brother's difficulty in interpreting the Apocalyptic Beast is all caused by presuming that there exists a "contrast" between Daniel's visions and John's. So long as this contrast is in the mind, you will not be able to understand Revelations. For while Daniel reclined upon his bed and dreamed, John stood upon the sand of the sea and saw things in vision bearing such strong resemblances to Daniel's revelations, that the reader is at once impressed with the identity of their statements. It was stormy in Daniel's visions; "the four winds of the heaven strove", he says. In Rev xiii John says: "I stood". John's standing is equivalent to Daniel's storminess of situation. Our Brother lives in Fullerton, Cal. As his State is bounded on the west by the Pacific Ocean, we presume he has stood upon the seashore. The first time we were permitted to look upon the ocean was at Long Beach, Cal.; and while we had never supposed that the ocean was as still as a pond, we were surprised to see how the waters "strove"—how noisome and restless they were in an ocean that is so peaceful and placid that it is called "Pacific". The roar of the waters is incessant. If the sea was quiescent as a pond, to stand upon its beach would be to experience the silence and solitude of a Kansas prairie. Such a standing would be symbolical of times of tranquility and peace. No political ecclesiastical organization, such as John saw come up from the sea and land, could ascend to a position of power in halcyon days undisturbed by storms of war and conquest. So as John "stood" on the ocean beach, the roaring of the waters at his feet implies that he was situated like Daniel when he had his visions—a spectator of the storm. or [illegible] "contreatiug" the two pro[illegible]om.

[illegible] Tucker [illegible] not see how the Little Horn of Daniel can be the two horned Beast of Revelations is because he ignores the different phases of the Roman dominion. Daniel's Fourth Beast commences its career with the foundation of Rome, B. C. 753, and does not finish it until after the advent of Christ. During this long time it is the same beast, but it changes, has phases. As the moon, for instance, has different phases, called new, half, gibbous, full, etc., yet is the same moon through all of its changes, so Daniel's Fourth Beast has its phases and changes, but remains the same "dreadful and terrible" Beast through all its constitutional manifestations. To fully appreciate this one must have more than a smattering knowledge of Roman history and a compendious grasp of the truth in all its recondite details.

All agree that Daniel's and John's ten horns represent the same European powers. Daniel says that "while he was considering these horns, there came up among them another Little Horn". From John we derive the same intelligence; for while he was looking at the ten horned Beast, he saw "another beast come up out of the earth". The only marked diversity between Daniel and John is, that what John styles "another beast", speaking like a Dragon, Daniel designates a "Little Horn". This difference between the two prophets in words is very instructive. A horn represents a Dynasty—a succession of potentates. The two horns there represent the Dynasty of the Medes and of the Persians; and for two years, both of them contempory in the same Beast. Now John's description of the Beast shows that the dominion of the earth has two contemporary Dynasties, both of which are Dragonic. Both prophets are showing the same things, only in a different way and by the use of different language. That the Little Horn is imperial, ruled by emperors, is shown by saying the power should subdue three of the ten horns that had existence before him. As it ruled three conquered kingdoms besides its own, it was a dominion under the two contemporary successions of potentates; the Little Horn represented the succession of secular emperors; the Eyes and Mouth represented the succession of pontifical emperors, known as "popes". Notice there are no independent eyes and mouth for each horn. If there had been eyes and mouth for each horn, there would have been a pope for each kingdom; ten contemporary popes as well as ten contemporary kings. One pope was deemed sufficient for the whole ecclesiastical requirements of the beast, both of the earth and the sea. One pope, one emperor, seven independent, and three vassal kingdoms, south and west of the Rhine and Danube, represented by John's two beasts, is the politico-ecclesiastical and Apocalyptical constitution of modern Europe.

Returning to Rev xiii 11 we notice that the Beast there described is likened to a lamb, that is, its two horns are, yet it spake like as a dragon. Christ is "the Lamb" of God; here then, is a wicked power pretending to all humility and meekness of the Lamb of God; yet when it speaks it "speaks like a dragon". Quoting from "Rome in the 19th century," Dr. Keith says: "There is a peculiar sort of blessing given to two lambs on Jan 21, at the church of St. Agnes without the walls; from the sainted fleeces of which are manufactured, I believe, by the hand of nuns, two holy mantles called palls, which the pope presents to the Archbishops as his principal shepherd". Now it is a remarkable historical fact that this is just the kind of a dominion Charlemagne founded in the eighth, and beginning of the ninth centuries. This was the time of the Roman Bishops, as the eleventh and twelfth centuries were the time of the popes. The position of Charlemange was military, civil and ecclesiastical. He was head of both the church and the state. Hallam says: "The sovereign who maintained with the greatest vigor his ecclesiastical supremacy was Charlemange. Most of the capitularies of his reign relate to the discipline of the church. Some of his relations are such as men of high church principles would, even in modern times, deem infringements of spiritual independence". Though outwardly he appeared like a lamb, inwardly he was a wolf. His Dragonic speech is apparent in his arrogating to himself a legislative power over the church which he did not have in temporal affairs. We forbid the reading of any books in the church except the canonical ones, and ordered that no saints should be honored, whom [illegible] whole church did not acknowledge. [illegible] Head of the church be p[illegible] His mandates were not passed by a synod of Bishops but enjoined upon the church solely by the authority of Charlemagne.

As to Brother Tucker's other question, we have nothing to say. We have not been able to find where the Bible requires any "qualifications" in a person before he can "legally" immerse people. If any of our readers know of any such Scripture, we will be greatly indebted to them if they will send us a short article which will exhibit the evidence. Paul calls baptism a "planting" and a "burial" in Rom vi. We think it is a matter of small moment who plants the corn, provided the grain is sound. Who digs a grave is not worth discussing; the important matter is not who plants the corn, or who digs the grave; but the kind of corn to be planted, the kind of person to be buried. The Bible is very explicit on the "qualifications" of a person before he can be "legally" baptized; and we humbly exhort our brother to let Revelations alone for awhile; also the character of one who is to baptize, and devote his attention to the fundamental truths of the kingdom and name of Christ, and to the requirements God has revealed that he must meet before he can be legally baptized. Wishing him God-speed in this direction, we now bid him a happy good by.

Brother Whitford's Response. Number 3.

Now in your issue of Sept. 22, I adduced a large number of testimonies showing that a belief in a household judgment seat, where would stand the quick and the dead of the covenant related of all generations was essential to a full knowledge and acceptance of the gospel. One proof I gave was the sheep and goat separation of Matt. xxv. In an editorial you denounced such use of the language descriptive of that scene as putting a premium on immorality and lawlessness. Your point was well taken if we are justified in "handling the Word of God deceitfully" to the extent of using it for a scarecrow to repress crime and impress criminals. That is the very thing which this last great falling away and apostasy have been doing for centuries—making better citizens of some men than they would have been and church members of some when they would not have been; but I, dear Editor, have not so learned Christ. The inner circle has use for this household judgment seat application, while the ecclesiastical world has stumbled over its meaning. Some years ago I was calling the attention of a retired Episcopal minister to the lack of knowledge and faith in the promises of God. He at once quoted this judgment seat scene as a proof of his belief that it is not so much what men believe as what they do and do not do that saves them. Strip the language of Jesus here of household application and you have him teaching salvation by good works without a word said about faith and baptism. Fail to confine words of his, recorded in the 5th chapter of John to the covenant related of all generations and you have him teaching universal resurrection—Russellism.

Doubtless, you, dear Editor have had your own troubles with Russell followers. They are an excellent people from a natural standpoint and they study their Bibles assiduously, but they set their teeth against the scriptural conception of God's purpose and have substituted Editor Russell's. It is so much broader and wider and deeper and comprehensive and all-including don't you know. And yet, you dear Editor Huggins, would not call them brethren, and why not? Because you are suspicious of their being of them who love God in the Abba Father sense, who are called according to his purpose. Rom viii. 15 17, 28. The case of Russell believers was suggested to my mind by reference to the "all that are in the graves" of John v. 28, but I have given them extended notice because I believe that in the column of modern Bible students, they have fallen in quite closely behind Church of God and Christadelphian believers. But must we not draw the line on them in brotherly recognition? Is it admissible to be indulgent with them, and thereby encourage them to continue in their error and gospel nullification by expansion? Ascending a little higher in the scale to that contingent of cold intellectualist believers who are more addicted to debate than to prayer—may we not find one of them even, who has set his face against one, two or three items of the gospel of Christ as it has been revealed [illegible] to faith, Rom. [illegible] with us if we allow that man to [illegible] till he sees his errors and squares himself with the Father and with the Son and with his brethren of the Holy Spirit by becoming in fellowship with them? If we do less than this do we not become partakers of that man's evil deeds? 2 John x. Now when we know that these words of the Master recorded in Matt. xxv. and John v limits the scope of judicial procedure and resurrection to the covenant related, why are we not willing to admit that Dan. xii 2, is bounded by the same restriction and that all other references to resurrection and judgment, including those dictated by the spirit to Paul and Peter which I cited in your Sept. 22, issue and then when we come to really have the inner circle interpretation of all Scripture on these two points how easy it is to read between the lines of them all "mortal emergence, return to the dust for some, transformation of nature to others."

Dear Editor Huggins, if you and your [illegible] were would come to the point of admission, at all hazards, that this may be, we would all come together on the three propositions submitted. Do you not believe that the Bible—[illegible] Scripture—from Moses to John "is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, throughly furnished unto all good works," and don't [illegible] take that expression "all good works" as meaning morality and respectability. Known unto God are all his works from the foundation of the world—his eternal purpose and the manner of its execution.

Is it not a fact that God gave it as a lamp to the feet and a light to the pathway, not to the world, but to Israel after the flesh and Israel after the spirit—all who are identified with his purpose either in its development or else in consummation—in some cases in both. When therefore it asserts "The just shall live (in the age) by [illegible] are only those who are justified in the Abrahamic covenant. When it declares that "Jesus tasted death for every man" it means every man whether Jew or Gentile by natural birth who will believe in the now fully revealed gospel of Israel hope, and those who through all generations have believed in it as far as it had been revealed—from faith to faith. When it speaks of some waking out of sleeping in dust it means the faithful and unfaithful of those who have taken on vows of service to God in view of what he hath promised to them that love him; and when it speaks of the judgment-seat of Christ in its judicial activities when he comes to make up his jewels it means only those who have made a covenant with him by sacrifice, Psa. iv. 5, during all the generation that his purpose has been in course of development and fulfillment.

With these thoughts and suggestions dear Editor, I must close this lengthy epistle on a subject so vital.

Sincerely,

GEO. A. WHITFORD.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

We believe as strongly as Brother Whitford that the judgment is an essential part of the gospel. When you [illegible] limit judgment to the "inner circle" however, we deny your restricted theory and demand proof. Instead of giving proof from God's Word to establish your views, you become greatly concerned about what a superannuated Episcopalian minister told you "some years ago" to the effect that Matt. xxv. exalted good works at the expense of faith. If the limited judgment of the household of faith is not adhered to you think that "universal resurrection-Russellism" is sure to triumph! Since you are so much exercised over what Russellites and emeritus preachers think, maybe I had better tell you what Dr. John Thomas, the founder of your sect, and Robert Roberts, its recognized leader for years, thought about your "inner circle" judgment. In a work called Anastasis, Dr. Thomas says that he has met some who claimed that if they were not baptized they would not be subject to judgment; such "reasoning," says the great John Thomas, "is simply the deceitfulness of sin." That is what the founder of the Christadelphian body thought of Brother Whitford's "covenant related" argument. When the Dr. died he left his work in the hands of Brother Roberts, of Birmingham, England. What Mecca is to the Mohammedans, and Rome to the Catholics, [illegible] to the Christadelphi[illegible] Andrew, of [illegible] Birmingham rule, [illegible] the influence of his wife, invented the "inner circle" judgment theory espoused and now advocated by Brother Whitford. Brother Roberts at once issued a "bull;" Andrew was [illegible]raised; Thomas Williams, of Chica[illegible] amalgamated with Andrew, and G[illegible]. A. Whitford joined the Insurrectionist. However wrong we may think a man is, we cannot help admiring a Catholic if he is a good Catholic, a Baptist, if he is a good Baptist, a Christadelphian, if he makes a good Christadelphian. But when a man [illegible] Brother Whitford comes forward [illegible] an exponent of Christadelphian[illegible], divides lowships and disowns them, it is only representative of a fighting, quarreling faction of the body, he commits an anomaly which [illegible] gives a poignant rebuke.

Brother Whitford complains because we said in an editorial that limiting the judgment to the "inner circle" of the church gave an opportunity for the exercise of immoral tendencies. "It is a scarecrow to repress crime and impress criminals. That is the very thing which this last great falling away and apostacy have been doing for centuries—making better citizens of some men than they would have been, and church members of some when they would not have been." We regret to say it, but our Brother is very much like a chameleon—he can change his color instantly. He also partakes of rubber tendencies—he can expand at one time and take Baptists into his brotherhood; at another time he contracts so that you can hardly see him as he sits enthroned within the "inner circle." Judgment outside the household of faith is to him a "scarecrow;" but in his first letter to us he represented the judgment for the apostle Paul, who died with inspired words of assurance upon his lips, as a "time of terrible suspense." With him it is just the right thing to do to "repress" and "impress criminals" with the horrors of the judgment, if they are among the "covenant related:" but the moment you hint to outsiders the idea of judgment, he howls, "scarecrow!" The apostacy by the use of this "scarecrow" has "repressed" and "impressed criminals" to such an extent that they have made "better citizens out of some" and "church members out of others." Well, my dear sir, that is more than your theory has done! If they were not taught the truth, and if they were not saved, it is at least a present blessing to make "better citizens" out of them; and if some are induced to become church members who otherwise would not have been members, they are presently benefitted by a "scarecrow;" and benefitted, Brother Whitford, to an extent you cannot pretend to benefit them by your dangerous soft soap doctrine. That your "inner circle" judgment theory has immoral tendencies is clearly apparent when you say to those who are "covenant related:" Now God has a time of judgment for you—"a time of terrible suspense"—an awful scarecrow: you had better behave yourselves. Then turning to those within the inner circle you preach this gospel to them: You are excluded from all its blessings and its curses. There is for you no judgment whatever, no danger. If you are honest and good-hearted enough to be baptized and come into this "inner circle" from which you are excluded, you will be liable to such judgment, such a "time of terrible suspense," that I tremble for you; but if you are so abominably mean, so full of everlasting deviltry that you will defy God and his laws, persistently do so, and never obey him at all, why, you shall go "scot free!!!" You do not preach right things to the people; you speak "smooth things, prophecy deceits" Isa. xxx. 10; and when the people ask you, "What is the burden of the Lord" Jer. xxiii. 33, you lovingly assure them that there is no "burden," no "scarecrow." Thus assured by one of the false prophets from within the "inner circle" that there are no liabilities to judgment, the people commit all kinds of abominations without shame, and as a true prophet expresses it, neither can they "blush" Jer. vi. 15; while Geo. A. Whitford reverberates the false gospel of ancient times, "Peace, peace, when there is no peace." Jer. vi. 14. Oh, Brother Whitford, "Editor Huggins" would not stand in your shoes now, and hereafter face in judgment the Judge of all the earth with such a lie in his mouth, for ten thousand worlds like this! God says in Ezek. xviii. 4, that "all souls are mine;" and that the soul that "sinneth it shall die." The penalty of God's law is plain, and he has intended a terrible punishment upon a man who presumes to preach "smooth things" to sinners while they impenitently "treasure up wrath" for themselves against the day of wrath. Rom. ii. 5. Of those who say that there is no judgment for sinners, no "burden," no "scarecrow;" of them he says: "When I say to the wicked, Thou shalt surely die; and thou givest him not warning, nor speakest to warn the wicked from his wicked way, to save his life, the same wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand." Ezek. iii. 18. As you point blank refuse to "warn" the wicked (for from your standpoint there is nothing to warn them about,) and sneeringly refer to God's judgments as only a "scarecrow" to frighten them into submission, we have to tell you upon the authority of God's infallible Word, that you are responsible for every soul which dies unwarned—that the blood of every one will be required at your hand! Talk of being afraid of the Judgment, let Geo. A. Whitford be afraid! We have no fear about the apostle Paul in the judgment, although Brother Whitford has grave apprehensions about him; for he "kept back nothing that was profitable," Acts xx. 20; and having declared "all the counsel of God," he could say, "I am pure from the blood of all men." (Vs 27, 26.)

Now the fear of the Lord is "profitable" to "impress" sinners; it is declared to be a motive God uses to induce them to "depart from evil," Prov. xiv. 16, and "from the snares of death" (v. 27.) Jude speaks out positively and says some are "saved with fear." V. 23. Paul then could not preach "all the counsel of God" and omit to preach the fear of the Lord. "We must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ," says the apostle. 2 Cor. v. 10. As if anticipating that Brother Whitford would say that by "we" the judgment is limited to the "inner circle," he adds that the judgment extends to other "men," and that "knowing the terror of the Lord" he "persuaded" them to change their lives. V. 11. No doubt Brother Whitford thinks Paul made a stupendous blunder when he preached the "terrors of the Lord" to "men." When standing before Felix, a man on the outside of the "inner circle," we have an illustration of how the apostle "persuaded men;" how he pictured to them the "terrors" of the judgment; how, according to the man Geo. A. Whitford, he presented his "scarecrow" to "impress" Felix! In the midst of his sermon, "as he reasoned of righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come, Felix trembled" (terrified, says the R. V.) Acts xxiv. 25. Let our Brother complain all he pleases about "scarecrow;" we shall stick close to Paul's doctrine of judgment, and to his manner and method of presenting it.

Our Brother makes no other points worthy of notice. He says if we would only admit the "inner circle interpretation of all Scripture," it would be "easy to read between the lines of them all, Mortal Emergence, return to the dust for some, transformation of nature for other," etc. The reader will see from this statement how Brother Whitford has come to have his present views, and how he expects us to be convinced that his views are scriptural, namely, by "reading between the lines!" This statement reveals just why we differ: we read the lines, believe only what we find in the lines; Brother Whitford "reads between the lines," and believes what he imagines is between the lines. We have given up all hope of him giving up what he imagines is "between the lines" for what is plainly revealed in the lines; and have only made our strictures on his voluminous article in the hope that some of our readers would profit by reading our criticisms and be strengthened, edified, and confirmed in the faith of the gospel by them. That this result may be realized under the blessing of God is my prayer.

Excerpts.

Dear Brother Huggins:

If you will publish them on your page, I will send you extracts from many sources that may be of interest to your readers. The following one is from the works of Edmond Staffer, Professor in the faculty of Protestant Theology of the University of Paris. Under "Resurrection and Soul" he says:

"Let us study more closely the testimony of Saint Paul. Like all the Jews, he believed in the possibility of a resurrection. The Jews did not clearly hold the doctrine of the immortality of the soul, according to which death is deliverance from the body, which fetters the spiritual part of our being; without which the spirit can live, and indeed, without which it is more happily circumstanced. The Jews understood little or nothing of this doctrine according to which man is composed of two more or less inimical substances. In their view the world was to be transformed, the death of the body done away with, and the kingdom of God set up. Saint Paul had been brought up in these ideas. He not only admitted a future resurrection, but believed that partial or individual resurrections took place now and again. He found it in no sense incredible that God should raise the dead. Thus belief in the resurrection of a dead man met in his mind (and for that matter, in the mind of any one of his time) no such objection as it would everywhere meet at the present day. It was a miracle, but at that period miracles occurred every day.

Saint Paul wrote "If the dead rise

CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

Thousands and thousands of books will be purchased and given to friends as Christmas presents this year. Other thousands of subscriptions to magazines and periodicals will be given. Most of them will be of a nature that please for the moment, but which have but little of actual worth in them. After a few days most of these books will have been read and then laid away to be kept in memory of the giver, and yet of no more real value than so many little blocks of wood.

The present that is of most value is the one that is capable of doing the most good. After such a book is once read, it has done all the good it can possibly do, and what little it did do was of a fleeting nature. A gift that will keep before your friend the whole year through a fond remembrance and at the same time render lasting service for good, is something that will show them the way of life eternal. Something that will show them the way of salvation.

Can you find anything better than THE RESTITUTION to present to your friend? Think of this and consider well what you are giving. You cannot purchase a single book that will contain the variety of information that a year's subscription to THE RESTITUTION will afford. Figure over the amount of reading and see how many "dollar books" it would take to give what our paper will give in a year. You have surely some relative, friend or neighbor, who would be aided by such a present. Try it a year for them.

Our rate to new names is but One Dollar for the first year to enable all to thoroughly test it. Perhaps you friend is not yet interested in the question of his salvation—something during the year may attract his attention, and by your little gift be started on the way to acceptance of the gospel. Perhaps your friend has thought many times that some day he would seek God, but has put it off from one time to another. Suppose by your gift to him this year he should read just what would decide for him, would you not be thankful you had given him THE RESTITUTION this year?

When sending your subscription put in an extra dollar with your friend's name, and thus try to have him go with you into the kingdom of God—a star in your crown to lay at the Savior's feet.

When purchasing a book or other present for a friend, your are often puzzled to know what to buy. You want to give a "good" book of course, and not being familiar with the authors, etc. you are undecided. You can make no mistake by sending him THE RESTITUTION. Try it this year.

Brethren of the Household of Faith in Michigan, Greeting:

At the Annual Conference in 1908, a committee was appointed to recommend a plan of raising more funds for the purpose of furthering evangelistic work in the state of Michigan. Their report has been published in these columns from time to time, and a great many of the brethren have responded nobly, and much additional [illegible] has been accomplished.

During the month of October we had some excellent help from Brother S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, with the result that eight dear ones were added to our number, and we have a promise from him that he will return and give Michigan some additional work during the winter, and we trust the brethren who have delayed sending in whatever they intended giving for this work will kindly respond with promptness, for on this depends how long we can keep Brother Lindsay at work. If we could send our offerings quarterly, it would no doubt be easier than to send the whole amount at once, and that would give us more to use during the year. We cannot afford to let this opportunity pass, so will expect the brethren to respond promptly. Forward offerings to A. K. Richardson, R F D 5, Hastings, Michigan, or the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette Street, Grand Rapids Michigan. We thank you in advance.

Yours in the service of the King.

Christmas Notice.

The Chicago Bereans wish to notify their friends that they will again take up this year their Christmas work of distributing dinners to the widowed and the fatherless. Those who joined with us last year in the work, were blessed in the giving, and many expressed a desire to help another time. If any one wishes to send Christmas brightness into the little lives, please send your contribution to Miss Gertrude Ellis, 3013 Washington Blv'd. Chicago, Illinois, if sent before Dec. 15. If sent after that date please mail to Lelia E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario Street, Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois. We are also dressing dolls for a Jewish mission. Those who desire to bring gladness untold into some little heart, send a dressed doll to the last address.

Signed:—

COMMITTEE

Home Department Visitor.

Dear Ones in Christ:

The Christmas time will soon be here and we will be repeating again the old sweet story. We will read the angel's glad message "Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be unto all people." We will think of another angel's message—"This same Jesus shall so come again in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

Have the years of watching and waiting for this same Jesus been long? Yes, very many years have passed, the pages of history tell the long sad story of how the saints of God have suffered and died, because they too had a message to tell. The blessed promise, "I will come again," has been an anchor of hope, in time of trial and in times of gladness. How we rejoice when some hear and obey the gospel message; and again sorrow fills our hearts as many turn away and follow the path that leads to destruction.

What will be our message to the world at Christmas time of 1909? The Home Department Visitor of 1908 will tell the same glad tidings. Will you not send it to some neighbor or friend? Send ten cents for a copy and see if you do not want to invest one dollar for Visitors. All money received except enough to pay postage, is placed to the credit of the Home Department fund in the Savings department of the Illinois Title and Trust bank of Champaign, Illinois. As soon as a sufficient fund is accumulated I will publish another issue of the Visitor. This fund draws interest until withdrawn for the purpose of publishing the Visitor. So whenever you send ten cents for a copy of the Visitor you add eight cents to this fund. If you wish to add anything to this fund send to the undersigned at 1009 South Wright street, Champaign, Illinois.

HARRIET E BOICE.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Christmas and New Year Gifts.

The best gift to make is that which will do the recipient the most good. The gift that may lead such an one to receive the Pearl of Great Price, will certainly be the most profitable gift made. Between now and January 15 1910, I will sell the Pine Woods Bible Class, Student's Text Book, Cunningly Devised Fables of Russellism, and the Bible Study of Hades, all four when taken together, for $1.75. Address me at 625 N. Willow Avenue, Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois.

W. H. WILSON.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months, make a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured the VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 303 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you do so now? We thank you for favor.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D.C Roblee's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one [illegible] them to you post paid.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Co[illegible] will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10900 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to all that office for the coming year.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wines. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wines is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1 00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application. Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time at a greatly reduced price, placing it within reach of all who wish this valuable addition to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wines wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wines as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wines, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10648 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It shows how this change [illegible] who made it. [illegible] each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—
A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher
—FOR THE—
CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION
240 WEST ADAMS STREET.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

One Year $1 50. Six Months 75 Cents
Three Months 40 Cents.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and we guess, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

What Does It Matter?

It matters little where I was born,
Or whether my parents were rich or poor;
Whether they shrank at the cold world's scorn,
Or walked in the pride of wealth secure.
But whether I live an honest man,
And hold my integrity firm in my clutch;
I tell you, brother, plain as I am,
It matters much!

It matters little how long I stay
In a world of sorrow, sin, and care;
Whether in youth I am call'd away,
Or live till my locks are hoar.
But whether I do the best I can
To soften the weight of adversity's torch
On the faded cheek of my fellow man,
It matters much.

It matters little where be my grave,
Or on the land or on the sea,
By parlor hearth or beach stormy wave!
It matters little or nought to me
But whether the angel of Death comes down
And mark my brow with his ring touch,
As one that shall wear the victor's crown,
It matters much!

Paul and his Last Letter. No. 1.

Paul, the great apostle to the nations, is a prisoner for the last time. This is his second imprisonment at Rome, the seat of the great Cæsars. Some think that this imprisonment to which he so pathetically alludes in the last chapter of his last letter was the only one to which he was subjected at Rome. There are sufficient reasons for believing that he is a prisoner here the second time; that the first time he was at the bar of the Roman court he was liberated, which made it possible for him to make his contemplated preaching tour into Spain, Rom xv 24, 28, which tour, doubtless was extended to Glastonbury as stated by an old historian; so Britain heard the gospel from the man "abundant in labors, and in stripes above measure." A passage from Clement, a disciple mentioned in Phil iv 3, who was afterward bishop of Rome, corroborates the above statement. Clement, writing from Rome to Corinth, expressly asserts that "Paul preached the gospel in the east and in the west; that he had instructed the whole world (i. e. the Roman empire which was commonly so called) in righteousness." This in a Roman author could mean nothing short of Spain, and in fact nothing short of Britain, in the light of history, inasmuch as a portion of Britain conquered by Julius Cæsar was still at this time under Roman rule. So Paul fulfilled his original intention (Rom xv 24, 28) of visiting Spain, and so was acquitted, and liberated from his first confinement, which was the result of his appeal from the provincial court of Festus to the supreme court of Cæsar. Acts xxv 11.

The next piece of evidence we possess on this subject is contained in the canon of the New Testament compiled by an unknown Christian about the year A. D. 170, which is known as Muratori's Canon. In this document it is said, "In the Acts of the Apostles that Luke relates to Theophilus events of which he was an eye-witness, as also, in a separate place (viz Luke xxii 31 23), he evidently declares the martyrdom of Peter but omits the journey of Paul from Rome to Spain, this means that the apostle made the journey as he stated to the Roman brethren he would, but Luke omitted to record it." Luke's history of Paul's labors and suffering ends with him still a prisoner at Rome; but hesitates that the apostle "dwelt two whole years in his own hired house and received all that came unto him," which means by fair inference that two years was the term of his imprisonment at this time, but he is silent as to how it terminated, whether by acquittal and liberation, or by execution of the penalty which in his case, if the Emperor had been influenced by the apostle's accusers, the Jews, was death. Those who contend for but one imprisonment of Paul at Rome affirm that if acquittal and liberty was granted by Nero, Luke as a faithful historian would have mentioned so important a termination of his case. I may logically offset this statement with the statement that if he had been executed Luke surely would have mentioned this. More likely this than the other. So the advocates of but one imprisonment gain nothing by their assertion. Luke chose at the dictation of the Holy Spirit to drop Paul's personal history at the point where he did, leaving us to account for his silence on so important a matter as best we can. It was left for Paul to give a brief sketch of what we may confidently affirm was his second imprisonment at Rome. While Paul nowhere in his epistles written later than the date of his appeal to Cæsar mentions the result of his trial as an accomplished fact he does give us to understand while yet awaiting the decision of his case that he was confident of a favorable termination. Phil i 19 25 The word "salvation" in verse 19 means deliverance and is so rendered in the Diaglott. Verse 25 reads, "And having this confidence, I know that I shall abide and continue with you all for your furtherance and joy of faith." With Paul the issue of his pending trial was a foregone conclusion. The fact of his deliverance at this time must be taken into consideration in explaining this controverted passage in the Philipian letter.

I may add as corroberative proof of what has already been adduced in favor of the apostle's acquittal on his first trial, the language of Eusebius: "After defending himself successfully, it is currently reported that the apostle again went forth to proclaim the gospel, and afterward came to Rome a second time and was martyred under Nero."

Chrisostom mentions it as an undoubted historical fact that "Paul after his residence in Rome departed to Spain." Jerome bears testimony to the same fact, saying "Paul was dismissed by Nero that he might preach Christ's gospel in the West."

These writers lived in the early centuries succeeding apostolic times, and no doubt had access to sources of information lost to later generations. The fact is, all proof is on this side. So we find Paul in bonds for the last time awaiting a second hearing of his case, and confident that the decision would be against him. Facing martyrdom, he writes this second letter to Timothy, under conditions that make his last words doubly pathetic. I never read the last chapter of this letter without emotions of pity that so useful a life, one so abundant in labors and self-sacrifices, must end by the violence of wicked men; but his life thus ending gives to his parting words a meaning and power that a peaceful death among friends could not impart; furnishing to after generations of faithful adherents to truth an illustrious example of the triumph of faith, affording to fellow martyrs an inspiration to die, as he died in full assurance of a crown at the coming of the Lord.

This letter, though addressed to Timothy, belongs to the Church of God as a precious legacy, made all the more precious by being the last words of the great apostle to the nations. That he wrote a later letter than this in these uncomfortable prison quarters, may well be doubted. That he spoke in defense of the truth subsequent to the date of this letter there is good and sufficient reasons to believe. Acquitted on the first charge when all men forsook him, he is awaiting trial on the second charge. There was no attorney employed to defend him; he made his own plea, refuting as he had done before the provincial courts, the false accusations of his enemies. The proof that he plead his own case is found in verse 16. "At my first answer no man stood with me." The first charge may have been that made by Nero himself involving Christians in Rome in the crime of setting the city on fire. The city was fired the year after his liberation from his first imprisonment; and he was, therefore, far from Rome at the time of the conflagration that laid nearly half of the city in ruins. Yet, we can easily believe that a leader of so abhorred a sect would be subjected to severe punishment.

Whatever was the charge in the first stage of his trial, the issue was favorable, and he "was delivered out of the mouth of the lion." Men through fear, though Christian by profession, stood not with him in this first stage of his trial. There was one who did not abandon him, "The Lord stood with me," he writes, "and strengthened me, that by me the preaching might be fully known."

Preaching the gospel in the court room of the basilica to thousands of curious spectators, there to witness the trials of noted prisoners, is just what Paul did at his own trial at his first hearing, and just what he would do at his next hearing "that all the Gentiles" assembled there, "might hear." The charges against him involved the leading truths of the gospel, the proclamation of which had already shaken the faith of thousands of adherents of the many gods represented in the Pantheon, and along with the decline of Paganism, we may be sure the emperor's high priesthood was in danger of being rejected by the masses.

The Upward Look.

"It is of no use to tell me to look forward," said one in great trouble the other day to a friend. "The worst of my trouble, I know, lies ahead. To look back upon the past, before this shadow came, simply adds to my agony. I can only sit in the darkness and shut my eyes to everything, and bear as best I may."

"There is always one way left," said the friend, gently. "When we cannot look forward nor backward, we can look upward. I have been in every whit as hard a place as you, and I sat a long while in the darkness before finding the way out. Try the upward look—it is meant for just such sorrows as this, which seem to shut in the soul inexorably. If we look up, we never look in vain."

Our Sins and How to Get Rid of Them.

What is sin? Transgression of God's law. Where did sin originate? In the garden of Eden. Who transgressed God's law? Adam and Eve. What caused them to sin? The devil. How? By telling them a flattering lie, Gen. iii. 4 5.

Does that make all of Adam's decendants sinners? Yes. Behold, all souls are mine; the soul that sinneth, it (Heb. ul) shall die, Ezekiel xviii. 4. Wherefore, as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men. Why? for that all have sinned, Romans v 12. Then we are all sinners because we are the sons of Adam. Can a sinner be saved and remain a son of Adam? No. Then how can he be saved? By becoming a son of God. How can he become a son of God? God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him. He that hath the Son hath life; he that hath not the Son of God hath not life. He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life; and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life, John iii. 36.

All in Adam die. All in Christ are made alive, 1 Corinthians xv. 22 For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. The just shall live by faith. Then we find we become sons of God by faith in his promises. God's Son said, Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel; he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, he that believeth not shall be damned. Then if we have faith, and believe that gospel, and obey by being baptized, that act makes us the sons of God. By that we are born again, and bury our sins which we have through Adam. As many as are led by the spirit of God, they are the sons of God.

Christ's disciples were worried over the future, and asked, Lord are there few that be saved? The answer was, strive to enter in at the strait gate, for many I say unto you will seek to enter in, and shall not be able. Why? Because of their unbelief, or belief in a false gospel. Is there such a thing as being in earnest, sincere, and having faith in a false doctrine? There is. Christ said, this people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoreth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me: but in vain they do worship me. Why? Because they they teach the commandments of men.

Paul declares that he who teaches a gospel different from the one that he taught, shall be accursed; and also, the gospel was the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; but the score or more of church creeds do not agree with Paul's gospel. Jesus says, Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind, and they shall both fall into the ditch, Matt. xv. 14. Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing. All such teach a gospel of their own, and get many followers, but belong to the class of whom Christ will say, Depart from me; I know you not.

We can never get rid of our sins by believing a perverted gospel, for a belief and baptism in a false gospel will bring condemnation and not salvation. Calling on God to pardon our sins, when we are contending for a perverted gospel, is mockery. But when one is made to see his error, and thanks God for it, and searches the Scriptures daily, like the Bereans in Thessalonica, then there is hope that he may get rid of his sins. Wherefore if ye be dead with Christ, from the world, why are ye subject to ordinances. Touch not, taste not, handle not; which are all to perish with the using, after the commandments and doctrines of men.

Again, Paul in writing to Titus and commanding who to appoint as a bishop, says among other things, he must hold fast the faithful word as he hath been taught, that he may be able by sound doctrine both to exhort and to convince the gainsayers; not giving heed to Jewish fables and commandments of men, that turn from the truth.

Then there is a sin one may commit that there is no forgiveness for, Heb. vi. 4 6; x. 26-27; Matthew xii. 32. Do please avoid the unpardonable sin; accept God's plan of salvation, and have your sins blotted out when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord, and he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you, whom the heavens must receive until the times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began.

Yours in hope,

E. W. KNAPP.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 21.

Little Lizzie was three years old. Amie Whiting had brought her down from the city when she returned from helping Sister Bussier take care of her daughter Mary. Lizzie, was Mary's child. I do not recall Mary's married name. Amie had trained Lizzie to be very quiet and polite.

How strangely we drift apart in this changing world! You all remember Brother S. G. Clark's story? He was the man who when told that he "would starve if he preached that soul sleeping doctrine," said "starve then!" Well, Mr. Wince thinks that Brother and Sister Bussier were Brother Clark's converts and that he baptized them. He often talked of the Bussiers, and said that Sister Bussier was so kind that she would go round in her carriage and gather up the poor and take them to meeting.

Brother Bussier once started the publication of a paper with flaming headlines, that was in the form of a magazine, and was intended to be a first class prophetic Expounder. But not receiving adequate support he had to let it die, as so many other needful works of its class have died, leaving men to sleep and "the enemy"—through his agents, the priests of Rome, to "sow tares" that will by and by bring forth a fearful harvest of blood and tears.

It was a time of great financial trouble when father and I were East. The wharves were so deserted in Philadelphia that it seemed like Sunday. Thousands were out of employment there, and hundreds of thousands in other cities; among these, 20,000 working girls in the city of New York alone. Mary Bussier's husband could get no work. Their rent was $14.00 per month. Brother Bussier was dead and Sister Bussier was without means to get anything, save as the friends of God supplied her wants. Surely such straits as these test ones faith in God, and yet Sister Bussier with her daughter sick nigh unto death, stood the test and "the floods did not overflow." She trusted as did Habakuk, rejoicing in the Lord and he did not "turn her away empty," nor "suffer her foot to be moved." No fear, no trouble, can shake the heart of the true child of God. He is calm amid the storm; he has a hiding place, a sure refuge whereunto to flee, and an Omnipotent arm, on which to lean for the supply of all his needs. Why should he doubt?

Brother and Sister Willard's home had ever been a Bethel to me, but never had I so felt that the presence of the Lord was brooding over every inmate of that dwelling as I did when I arose from bed the morning after my arrival, and descending to the sitting-room, took my seat, as the dear, old Bibles were passed around and joined with the rest in reading two verses as my turn came, until the chapter was read, and when a song of hope or praise had been sung, united with the rest in prayer, and the same feeling came over me in the evening as we gathered fresh and bright, to repeat the morning exercises, slightly changed in form.

Harry and Gussie were pretty singers and could take part with the rest as well as grown people. Little Lizzie, could'nt make much of an out singing yet she tried in her innocent way to do what she could, and all then joined in saying the Lord's Prayer with Auntie Willard.

Brother and Sister Edis were English people, and put their h's where they ought not to be in their singing. We liked them very much, and the children too. Gussie was a pretty girl, and Harry a bright-faced, handsome boy, but not very reliable. If Brother Willard set him to painting, he piled the paint on thick so as to get rid of it as soon as possible; if he had to rub the horse's leg with kerosene, he would rub it on everything else too, and end up by pouring the remainder into some little cans, and then would try on the saddle on the horse to see how it fitted. He would leave the gate open and the cows would run off, and then he would go the wrong way to find them, and sometimes would go out to milk at four o'clock Such things annoy an aged person. Do your work right boys. "There is only one way, and that is the right way." Gussie, was faithful in doing whatever she was set to do, whether sweeping, washing dishes or preparing vegetables for the daily meals. One day little Lizzie stood up before father and said, "Listen now," and sang two lines of some dear old hymn, and then said, "Is'nt that pretty?"

"In prayer their hands are folden,
They lisp 'Our Father' too.
They sing of streets so golden,
And child-loud's duty do."

Amie Whiting had left a week before we reached Haddonfield. She was going south to teach. She would have been a fine looking girl if it had not been for her near-sightedness; indeed she was any way, judging from her picture. Ella Burton was handsomer still, and wrote home in a frank, warm hearted, easy style, her sentences sparkling with quiet humor.

After the morning's work was done and we had settled down for a good visit together, I took up pen and paper and wrote

THE LORD IS THERE.

A holy Presence broods around,
Sweet Peace fills all the air,
And happy, happy is the house,
Because the Lord is there.

He watches it through all the day,
The night-time knows his care,
No fear of danger or of loss,
Because the Lord is there.

And many a wanderer comes
Their faith and hope to share,
And gladly gives himself to God
Because the Lord is there.

The pilgrim passes on his way,
To find relief from care.
And little ones learn holy trust
Because the Lord is there.

O ever thus may God's rich grace
Keep this dear dwelling fair,
And many more be led to say
We found the Lord was there.

Report of Work.

Brother G. Eldred Marsh, of Oregon, Illinois, conducted a series of meetings at the Salem Church, near Marshall, Illinois, November 14-26.

For more than a week rain fell almost every day. This put the roads in such a bad condition that good attendance was impossible though some came for miles through mud and rain, and when the weather improved the house was filled with people, whose interest in the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, was shown by the excellent attention they gave, and we feel sure that many whose minds have been thus directed to the loving sacrifice made for all, have been influenced for good, and that they will some time enjoy with us the hope of eternal life in his glorious kingdom.

LETITIA MURPHY.

There are just a few things we would much rather give than receive and chiefest among them is advice. It is always better to preserve the happy medium. For instance, we should want a thing bad enough to work for it, but not bad enough to steal it.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LVIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, DECEMBER 15, 1909. NUMBER 47.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous; and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

EXAMINE Your account, and give us a renewal of subscription if you can do so.

Circumstances of late have added somewhat to our expenses, and we do really need what is due us right now. This ought to be enough to say, and we will not add more to it, but trust that by thus calling your attention to the matter, all who know that their time has expired, will send in renewals at once, and so relieve our necessities.

We thank you for the favor.

Our next issue will be dated Dec. 22, and will be the fourth issue for this month, and will complete the 1909 volume.

Next issue will contain the Love Feast letters. We have a number on hand now, and hope to have others here in time.

Read the call for Christmas Love Feast letters. We are receiving some already. Write yours now, so as to be in time. Every one, young or old, are urged to bear testimony to the goodness of God through this medium.

One day last week while Mr. Daniel Machel was driving his team across the railroad west of this city, his wagon was struck by a train, and he was severely injured. Mr. Machel is the husband of our Sister Dora Machel who many who have visited here will remember as Sister Dora Dickson. At last report Mr Machel was improving.

Word reached us of the death last Friday of Sister Jane Railsback, wife of our beloved Brother Robert Railsback, who died some years ago. For many years they lived at Argos, In I., where Brother Railsback was a prominent merchant. After his death Sister Railsback moved to Indianapolis, where she died. We trust we shall be furnished with further particulars later.

On last Friday night occurred the death of Mrs. Lydia Rightly at the home of her daughter, Sister F. M. McCrory, in this City. Mrs Rightly was one of the oldest residents of Plymouth, being in her 90th year. She was the only remaining charter member of the United Brethren Church in Marshall County, and the funeral was held at that Church on Sunday afternoon, conducted by the pastor, Mr. Yager.

Brethren Huggins wishes to omit "Ebenezer" next week for the Love Feast letters. We hope he will favor us with a short letter for that issue, and that we may also hear from several others of the Cleveland Church, as well as other parts of Ohio. Should like to have a word from Brother and Sister Woodward, and all others who would like to bear testimony to the goodness of God. Brother and Sister Wince, we name you out also. Just a few words, please, from each one.

"All the brethren of Ohio are mourning the sudden death of Brother P. Neill, of Salem, which occurred December 12. Particulars later."

Brother Huggins sends the above telling of the sudden death of Brother P. Neill. Yes, "all the brethren of Ohio are mourning," and not alone they, but the entire Brotherhood throughout the length and breadth of the land will be shocked beyond measure at the sorrowful news. We await particulars with anxiety. Not an hour before the word reached us we had the "proof" of his Sunday School lesson notes before us. We feel under a weight that depresses, and we wonder What next! Our heart goes out in sympathy to dear Sister Neill in this so sad an hour. Words are said to be signs of ideas, but O, how feeble are words to express all that our hearts prompt of sympathy and love at this time. We can but assure her that our hearts are full of grief and sorrow for her sad bereavement. Our loss, keenly as we feel it, is as nothing to the desolation of her very being. Dear Sister, for all the years that you have walked and labored hand in hand with Brother Neill, the enemy of all living has ever held over you the shadow of this hour. At any moment death was liable to cause this separation. The monster has done his utmost for your beloved. The present hour must be passed, but only this once. Beyond, when the Sun of Righteousness arises on the glad morning, you will be again clasped in the arms of him you loved, and O joy beyond measure! you will not again be severed. Death will have been vanquished, his power gone with you forever. Victory does not belong to death, for Jesus Christ, our Savior has now gotten the victory, and through him it will soon be yours. Look up, Sister Neill. Almost you can see the gleams of coming day. Listen! The rumbling of His chariot wheels will soon reach your ear. Oh, trust in God—His arm will not fail.

Later:—Brother P. L. Morron, of Salem, Ohio, writes: "Brother Peter Neill was taken sick with inflamation of the heart, on Thursday, and died Sunday at 2:35 p. m. Interment will take place at Cleveland, with services in Salem, before the body is taken to Cleveland."

The Bereans Column.

Dear Bereans:

We are commanded to exhort one another, and so much the more as we see the day approaching. The signs of the times indicate that the coming of the Lord draweth nigh, and we must remember that a race begun is not a race well run. The light we have, however, does not do away with the necessity of "taking heed to ourselves, lest our hearts be overcharged with the cares of this life so that day come upon us unawares, for as a snare shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth." Luke xxi 34, 35. We must have our lamps trimmed and burning, ready to enter into the marriage supper of the Lamb, and to exhort those with whom we come in contact to cast not away their confidence, which hath great recompense of reward. Heb x 35. But to be sober and hope unto the end for grace that is to be brought unto us at the revelation of Jesus Christ. When we think of the hope set before us in the gospel, the hope of soon seeing Jesus come to establish God's glorious kingdom on the earth, when the sleeping saints shall be called to a glorious resurrection from the dead, and those that are alive shall be changed from mortal to immortality. It would seem that we would hardly need to be exhorted to watch, but alas, although the spirit is willing the flesh is weak. There is a constant warfare going on between the flesh and the spirit, providing we are endeavoring to live after the spirit, "for the flesh lusteth against the spirit, and the spirit against the flesh; and these are contrary the one to the other, so that ye cannot do the things that ye would." Gal v 17. "Now the works of the flesh are adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulation, wrath strife, seditions, heresies, envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings and such like" are to be overcome, for they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God. Gal v 19, 20, 21. "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance." So keep in mind the teachings of the spirit and be guided by them is life and peace. Oh! Bereans, let us be willing to sacrifice anything for the truth, and put forth every effort to make ourselves ready to be presented before the throne.

Kathryn Townsend.

Charity.

Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness, considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted." From this verse we take up one phase of charity; charity towards our weaker brethren. Let us not condemn too harshly those who stumble and fall or those who continue in sin. For one of the greatest commandments, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thy self." Then let us go to this erring one, and with love, try to find out the trials and temptations they bear and "Judge not according to the appearance but judge righteous judgment." Let us not shun them and say as did Cain, "Am I my brother's keeper," or think they are past all help, "For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged. No person was so blackened by sin that Christ would not help and forgive them. Nor need we fear that the world will condemn us even as those we are trying to help, are condemned for, "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." And, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven." Then, dear Bereans, "Let us not, therefore, judge one another any more, but judge this rather, that no man put a stumbling block, or an occasion to fall; in his brother's way.

Mabel Eaton.

Heart Purity.

Dear Bereans:

Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God. Matt v 8. This is a question we must all ask ourselves, "Have we a pure heart?" God knows our heart and cannot be deceived. It is the pure in heart that will see the King in his glory and beauty. "And the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into patient waiting for Christ." 2 Thes iii 5.

"Let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water." Heb x 22. "If we confess and forsake our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive his our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." 1 Jno i 7 9. "And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure" 1 Jno iii 3. The pure in heart alone, find sweet, sweet rest in God. Keep yourselves pure in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life.

Your Sister in Christ.

Mary Goekler.

The Lawgiver's Question.

We find in the time when our Savior was on earth, as recorded in the tenth chapter of Luke commencing at the 25th verse to 37th inclusive, a lawyer standing up and tempting our Savior by asking him what he should do to inherit eternal life. What was the answer he received? He said unto him, "What is written in the law? How readest thou?" And he answering said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself. And he said unto him, "Thou hast answered right, this do, and thou shalt live." But he, willing to justify himself, said unto Jesus, "And who is my neighbor?" Jesus answering said, "A certain rich man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho and fell among thieves which stripped him of his clothes and wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead. And by chance there came down a certain priest that way; and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side. Likewise a Levite, when he was at the place, came and looked on him and passed by on the other side.

But a certain Samaritan as he journeyed, came where he was and saw him. He had compassion on him and went to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, and set him on his own beast and brought him to an inn and took care of him. And on the morrow when he departed, he took out two pence and gave them to the host, and said unto him, "Take care of him, and whatsoever thou spendest more, when I come again I will repay thee." Which now of these three thinkest thou was neighbor unto him that fell among thieves?" And he said, 'He that showed mercy on him." Then said Jesus, "Go and do thou likewise." Oh, dear Bereans, let us strive each day to do as the good Samaritan did, doing to the stranger, not asking ourselves, "Is he my friend? Did he ever do me a kind favor?" For of such we receive no reward. "And if ye do good to them which do good to you, what thanks have you. Sinners also do even the same. But love ye your enemies and do good, and lend, hoping nothing again, and your reward shall be great, and ye shall be the children of the highest, for he is kind unto the unthankful and to the evil." Luke vi 33 and 34. So let us do good to those that despise us although it is very humiliating. For the Savior tells us in Matt xvii 4, "Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven. Let us all live that we may receive an eternal inheritance as a reward, is the prayer of your Sister in Christ.

Mrs. H. A. Gesin.

Dear Bereans:

Shall we know the time of Christ's second coming? Read Mark xiii 32. But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father. 35th verse, Watch ye, therefore; for ye know not when the master of the house cometh, at even or at midnight, or at the cockcrowing, or in the morning.

Some who believe in the second coming of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ seem to care more about knowing when he will come, than about getting themselves ready for his return. They spend much time trying to figure out the exact date and very often feel hurt when their ideas are denied. There certainly is no reading which will enable us to fix the exact time of his return. Christ's words in the above prove there can be no absolute certainty regarding his return "Of that day and hour knoweth no one not even the angels of heaven, neither the Son, but the Father." And what I say unto you, I say unto all, Watch.

Lily Lindsay.

"O how love I thy law! it is my meditation all the day. How sweet are thy words unto my taste! Yea, sweeter than honey to my mouth! Thy statutes have been my songs in the house of my pilgrimage." It was the Psalmist who said this. And why did he love God's Word so? Because it is pure. "Thy Word is very pure; therefore thy servant loveth it." What did he do with it? He hid it in his heart, "Thy Word have I hid in my heart, that I might not sin against thee." He promised to obey God's commandments and to praise him every day. "I have inclined my heart to perform thy statutes, always even unto the end. Seven times a day do I praise thee." What did the Word do for him? It quickened him and gave him understanding. "I will never forget thy precepts; for with them thou has quickened me. Through thy precepts I get understanding; therefore I hate every false way." It showed him the ways of righteousness and guided him therein. "Thy Word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path." It enabled him all through life to defeat his adversaries Through it, he was promised a home in the Lord's house for ever. When we know what the Word did for the Psalmist, we do not wonder why he made God's statutes his song in the house of his pilgrimage, and delighted in the law of the Lord, in which he meditated day and night.

Dear Bereans, let us place God's Word in our hearts, love it, meditate in it and sing with a grace in our hearts to the Lord. And it will do for us what it did for the Psalmist.

Lesson for Sunday, Dec. 26.

The Birth of Christ. Matt. ii. 1-12.

Golden Text. "And thou shalt call his name Jesus; for he shall save his people from their sins." Matt. i. 21.

The birth of Christ is one of the most important, or most important event in the history of the world up to this time. The learned religious writer and commentator seldom goes further than to record Christ as Jesus the Savior. That he has saved and is saving people now. At death he takes them to heaven where they sit round his throne forever. Even if that was true—but it is not—it would be but a very small portion of the scope and magnitude of the work covered by and included in the words, The Lord Jesus Christ. Let us just glance at some of the prophecies concerning him. In Gen. iii. 15, "It shall bruise thy head." The IT here is Christ. He will—in due time—crush the sin power, and rid the earth of every vestige of sin and sinners, Psa. xxxvii. 35, 36. Only by the power of the Almighty can this be done, and that power has been conferred only on Christ. Matt. xxviii.18. Thousands and thousands of people have thought and still think, believe and teach that this power is given to "the Church." In Gen. xxii. 17, 18. The Lord said to Abraham "Thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies, and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." Here again is the positive requirement for Almighty power; and is promised only to Christ, Psa. cx 2. The kingdom of David, 2 Sam. vii. 12 16—correctly, the kingdom of God—was promised to Christ. Because of wickedness the kingdom was overturned but again promised to Christ when he comes, Ezek. xxi. 25-27. The kingdom of Christ will not be confined to Israel and Palestine. Daniel had a vision of Christ and his kingdom, Dan. vii. 13, 14. His kingdom shall neither pass away nor be destroyed, but it will destroy all other kingdoms, Dan. ii 44. Only Christ in the kingdom of God can accomplish all these astonishing wonders, and the grand result will be as recorded in Psa. lxxii.

The Scriptures are full of Christ and his kingdom, power, glory, honor and blessing. From the four Scriptures referred to what an amazing review we get of the tremendous work there is for Christ when he comes with ten thousand of his saints, Jude 14, 15.

Was it any wonder that God moved Isaiah to prophesy of the wonderful and powerful Christ? Of his birth, and his names, of his peaceful government, of occupying the throne of David, and establishing the kingdom with justice and righteousness. Isa. ix. 6, 7. Was there ever in the history of the world a time when such a kingdom was more needed than now? When nations, calling themselves "Christian" are arming to the teeth, both by land and sea, preparing for battle with each other. Verily it needs Christ to come—and break them with a rod of iron, to dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel, Psa. ii. 9. It is sad indeed to write such things about the nations, but it is indeed good news to know that the corrupt kingdoms of men will be followed by one wherein dwelleth righteousness. 2 Per. iii. 13.

We can now much better understand why the prophets so gladly, so rapturously foretold the birth of Christ. "But thou Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be Ruler in Israel," Micah v. 2.

When we see how much yet depends on Christ, and the pressing, and distressing need there is for his coming again, it gives us abounding joy to read the words in which the angel of the Lord announced his birth, "I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Savior, which is Christ the Lord." The angel was accompanied on this important, and memorable occasion by a multitude of the heavenly host, and as soon as the angel had finished his message, they broke out in a grand song, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men." Luke ii. 9-14. At present the nations do not give glory to God. There is no assured peace on earth, and only a few have good will toward men. The Christ, and him only can bring about this most desirable condition. When he comes in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. Matt. xxiv. 30.

Lesson Text.

1, Where was Jesus born? Micah v. 2. In whose day? Who came from the East?

2, Who did they inquire for? What had they seen? What did they come to do?

3, What was Herod, and all Jerusalem troubled about?

4, What did Herod do?

5, What was written by the prophet? What prophet?

6, Who came out of Judah? Who shall be rule?

7, What did Herod do?

8, What did he say to them?

9, What did they see?

10, What happened when they saw the star?

11, What did they see? What did they do? What did they give? Who did they give it to?

12, Did they go back to Herod? Why not? What is the very next thing that Christ will do?

Evangelist Report.

November Report Nebraska State Evangelist.

Left Omaha November 8, and stopped at Blair over night, where a few gathered at Brother Newell's and sang songs and talked of things pertaining to our duty as a Church.

Tuesday we left for Grand Island, arriving at two in the afternoon, and was conducted to the hospitable home of Brother James Williamson, where we made our home. Began our meetings Wednesday evening at the home of Brother Williamson. After a couple of evenings it stormed so we missed two days, after which the meetings were continued until the 19th. On Saturday the 20th, we went to St. Paul, Nebraska, and stayed over Sunday. Preached Saturday night and held three meetings Sunday. On Sunday we set the Church in order with Brother Robinson Elder, Brother George Welsh as Deacon, Sister Keeney Deaconess, and Sister Sullivan Secretary and Treasurer. The Church has now set to work with renewed vigor.

We returned to Grand Island Monday, and met in the evening at Brother Oscar Williamson's, and after preaching to them took their pledges for the work. We set the Church in order with a membership of eleven, with Brother James Williamson as Elder, Sister Ola Crouch Secretary and Treasurer, and Sister Williamson Deaconess. They are now holding regular meetings.

We left Grand Island Tuesday the 23d, for Moorefield, arriving Wednesday forenoon, and commenced meeting the same evening in their new Church with nearly a full house. The crowd so increased that on Sunday night some stood on the outside. The interest there is good. One man remarked that he was coming the next evening if the mud was two feet deep, and he had come six miles in the rain the evening the remark was made. We expect to remain here over next Sunday.

Sermons: Grand Island 10, St. Paul 4, Moorefield 7, Total 21.

Baptisms since Conference 3.

Expenses: Fare Benson & return .10 Omaha to Blair .45, Blair to Fremont .50, Fremont to Grand Island $2.16, Grand Island to St. Paul & return .85 Stamps 50, Grand Island to Hastings .50 Hastings to Moorefield $2 36, Lodging and breakfast .75. Total- $8.10.

Money received: Brother Farley St. Paul $1.00, Sister Watson Grand Island $1.00, Total $2.00.

Notice to Indiana Churches.

At the Annual Conference held at Rensselaer, September 30 to October 3, 1909, resolutions were adopted recommending that the various Churches throughout the State hold their annual Church meetings at one and the same time, namely, on the first Tuesday in January of each year; at which time each Church would elect Elders, Deacons, Secretary and Treasurer, to hold office for one year. Also where there is Church property, that three (3) Trustees be elected, who shall have custody of said property. That they be elected for the term of one, two and three years respectively. To make election of Trustees legal, a notice should be posted on the Church door, and in two public places in the neighborhood of the Church. The names of the Trustees should be recorded in the County records, and should be furnished by the Secretary of the Church to the County Recorder, giving date of their election. This should be kept in the Church records also. If this is done, each year thereafter, and the name of the newly elected trustee is kept on the Church record, giving the name of the Trustee he superceded, your Church property will be safe.

I suggest that the meeting for the election of officers be held at 7:30 p. m., unless otherwise arranged by the Church. The names of each person elected, and the office each is to fill, should be sent to the State Secretary, Mrs. Lydia Railsback, 321 S. Fellows St. South Bend, Indiana. I urge that each Church pay attention to this notice, and that the present Elder or Elders make a call for the meeting in due time.

J. H. Willey,
Pres. Indiana Conference.

Brother Underwood,

I finished my contract with the Iowa brethren, and started to Phoenix, Arizona, November 28, and reached my destination December 2, after having spent the fall in constant labor in visiting and addressing the churches. My thin features destroyed all possibility of proving that I was in perfect health; so I made no effort to lay claim to what I could not demonstrate.

The Iowa brethren were able to prove that they had been taught the liberality of benevolence in the school of Christ. I can say thankfully that neither my time nor purse was robbed and that I am not only willing but anxious to spend all the time that may be granted to me in teaching the essentials of the "good news."

Address me Tempe, Arizona.

"Ebenezer" will be omitted from the Christmas issue to make room for the Love Feast.

This week we print the contents of our book. Our readers can see the diversified subjects written upon, and can decide intelligently whether he cares for such a book. If there are others you would like to have explained in it, send them to me at once, as there is only little room left to be filled.

The Bible.

A DECLARATION OF ITS FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES, WITH EXPLANATIONS OF MANY DIFFICULT TEXTS.

The above is the title page of a book the EDITOR proposes to publish as soon as enough subscriptions are received to pay the printer. The subject matter of the book as now prepared consists of explanations of more than one hundred and seventy six subjects; and to these will be added other subjects readers may send us while the book is being gotten ready for the press.

The primary design of the book is to teach plainly the truth. Selections from our writings in THE RESTITUTION, especially from the "Question Box," have been carefully made, and thoroughly revised. The only book ever published by our Church which formulates the fundamental principles of the gospel in propositions, and then explains all difficult texts, introducing every conceivable Bible subject—a variety most pleasing to the reader.

The price will not be less than 25 cents, and not more than $1 00. Do not send money now, but send us your pledges, and when we have received enough pledges to pay the printer, we will go to press, and will announce when our pledged subscribers can remit the money. In sending us pledges to take one or a number of books, be sure and give your correct address.

Sunday Morning Address.

"Wherein God, willing more abundantly to shew unto the heirs of promise the immutability of his counsel, confirmed it by an oath, that by two immutable things in which it was impossible for God to lie, we might have a strong consolation who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us."

Such are the words of the writer of the epistle to the Hebrews, when speaking of the promises made to to Abraham. They are used as an exhortation to help the brethren keep in the way of life. He had endeavored to show them the fearful consequences of falling away from God's favor—it would be impossible to renew them to repentance. But immediately he changes the picture and says, "We are persuaded better things of you, and things that accompany salvation, though we thus speak; for God is not unrighteous to forget your labor of love, which ye have shewed towards his name, and we desire that every one of you do shew the same diligence to the full assurance of faith." Here we are to note the comparison, "God is not unrighteous," therefore we ought to shew the same diligence through the assurance of hope unto the end. "For when God made promise unto Abraham, because he could swear by no greater, he swore by himself." What a basis for our faith to rest upon! The oath-bound promises of the Eternal One! When God made the promise to Abraham that he would give him the land of Canaan for a possession, it was a conditional promise. Abraham was to be tried—as all the people of God must be—before any lasting good could be bestowed on him.

In the 22nd chapter of Genesis, we have the record of Abraham's trial of faith. He was told to take Isaac, whom he loved, and go to Mount, and offer him there for a burnt offering. Abraham faithfully complied with all the details made known to him; when the angel of the Lord called unto him out of heaven, saying, "Lay not thy hand upon the lad, neither do thou any harm unto him: for now I know that thou fearest God, seeing thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only son from me." "And the angel of the Lord called unto Abraham out of heaven the second time, and said, By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done this thing, and hath not withheld thine only son, that in blessing, I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand which is upon the sea-shore; and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies." "And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; because thou hast obeyed my voice." All conditions are now fulfilled in the Abrahamic Covenant, and God has pledged by his own eternal existence that the things which he has promised to Abraham, shall be accomplished.

Here, brethren, beloved, that every time we meet around the table of the Lord we meet to remember him who came to confirm the promises made unto the fathers, so says the apostle Paul. Rom. xv. 11. What assurance we have then that God will accomplish his purpose. By himself hath he sworn that his will shall be performed; and more abundant assurance; he has sent his Son to confirm his promise. To confirm is to make firm, to settle, to render fixed; but more than that, it is to satisfy, which means to bring into force.

Now the promise was that Abraham's seed, whom Paul in the third of Galatians says is Christ, should possess the gates of his enemies. The greatest enemy that stands between Abraham and us and the inheritance of the promise, is death. Death must be removed before the promise can be fulfilled. It was Christ's work to destroy him that hath the power of death. This he did through a flesh and blood nature, which had in it the influence of sin. This he overcame by reliance upon divine aid, by his obedience he became the covenant victim whose death was necessary to ratify the covenant made with Abraham, and so the words of the 13th chapter of Hebrews come to us like a heavenly benediction: "Now the God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus Christ, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant, make you perfect in every good work to do his will, working in you that which is well pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ."

As we review these wonderful testimonies again and contemplate the Word of Jesus on the night of his betrayal when he instituted this ordinance that we might remember him, "This is my body," "this is my blood of the new covenant," the covenant about to become effective through his death, do not our hearts swell with love and gratitude for the blessed privilege of remembering him who has done so much for us? That he might sanctify the people with his own blood, Jesus suffered without the gate. By him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is the fruit of our lips giving thanks to his name.

Oh what joy surrounds this table to those who spiritually partake of these emblems. To them God's faithful of old are brought to view. The present is made joyous by the blessing we derive by our relation to Christ. Condemnation removed; sins forgiven; exalted from creation in Adam to sonship along with Christ. The future is made bright and glorious by the blessed hope of seeing Jesus and being made like unto him, an association with the faithful and chosen ones who shall be made strong after the power of an endless life.

W. S TOMLINSON.

Discipline and Good Judgment

Dear Brother Huggins:

I have just read Brother Almus Adams' reply to Brother Eychaner in THE RESTITUTION of November 17. With your permission I would like to express my approval of his fearless stand for the faith once delivered to the saints. I, like Brother Adams, have found how hard it is to contend with the religious "liberty" idea. I am often told that I am too narrow when I plead for the things most certainly believed among us. I also find that we are a Church only in name. We have a form but deny the power. We have Elders and Deacons, but who ever credits them with authority. If an Elder was conscientious and tried to do his duty, he would very soon be told to attend to his own business, and not interfere with their "religious liberty."

I once attended a conference of the Churches of God and listened to the sermons of the different preaching brethren. No two of them preached the same doctrine. Have seen the same Conference commission them to go out and teach this confusion. But God is not the Author of confusion.

What we need is men and women who will come out on the Lord's side, and will present a solid battle front to the enemy; a Church united in its faith, in doctrine, and in practice.

It is said that asses in their wild state when they see an enemy approaching will turn their heads in and their heels out, and thus ward off the foe. But we reverse the operation: We turn our heads out and our heels in and kick one another. Let us use as good judgment as the ass at least, brethren.

Yours for the Truth,
N. D. TITCHENAL.

A Critique.

Brother Huggins:

In THE RESTITUTION of November 17, there appears in "Ebenezer" an article from the pen of Brother Adams of Nebraska, on "That Discipline." Permit me to state as a sufficient answer to that article, for almost fifty years I have stood for a definite gospel faith, and purity in life, as necessary to a future inheritance in the kingdom of God, and that is my position now. Those who know me, and have heard my preaching all these years know, that I never advocated looseness in faith or morals.

The article makes a false issue, and thus misrepresents me. It endeavors to show that I do not want Church discipline. My former article refers to the effort being made to put the power into the hands of a Committee or a Church Conference Board to say what a man's faith and morals shall be. There is a very great difference between having the liberty to study the Bible for myself, and having a committee to study it for me, and say what I must believe. I object to having any Committee or Conference Board to sit in judgment on my faith. The article directs suspicion to myself as standing for looseness in character and faith, which does me great injustice.

In the "Year Book" to which reference is made, it is distinctly stated that "We take the Bible as our standard of faith and conduct," which is a very different thing from having a Conference Board or an appointed Committee to decide what a person's faith shall be, or "draft" articles on moral conduct.

If the Church members in Nebraska are as bad as represented in that article, is it not time that an effort be made by those who believe it, to reform them, or as James says: "Let him know that he which converteth a sinner from the error of his ways, shall save a soul from death, and hide a multitude of sins." It is my opinion that this course will result in more unity than forcing them to accept the "discipline" made by any appointed Committee.

Yours for unity and truth,
A. J. EYCHANER.

A MODEL CONVERSION.

"Brethren, if any of you do err from the truth, and one convert him, let him know that he which converteth a sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins." James vi. 19, 20.

The word "conversion," like many other words in common use, is but imperfectly understood. The Greek word from which it is derived is "epistrepho." The corresponding Latin word is "conversio," from which came the French and English word "conversion." Webster defines it as "The act of turning or changing from one state or condition to another, or the state of being changed.....a spiritual and moral change attending a change of belief with conviction; a change of heart, a change from the service of the world to the service of God, a change of the ruling disposition of the soul, involving a transformation of the outward life."

Conversion, therefore, is a mental, moral, and spiritual change of belief, principles, perceptions and character. It a change of mind—and more. It is a change of moral principles—and more. It is a change of intellectual perceptions; but more than all these it is a complete change in the soul's conception of and spiritual relationship to God. A literal translation of the Greek word "epistrepho" is "turning toward." Conversion in a Bible sense would therefore be a turning from error to truth, from sin to righteousness, from the world to God.

Conversion is an act of the individual, not an act of God, as is so frequently stated. Regeneration, however, is accomplished by God. It is the implanting of the "words of eternal life" in the heart and mind of the individual by which a new and spiritual life is started or generated that will have its final fruition in a resurrection to immortality. Conversion is the active manifestation by the individual of the new life that has commenced as a result of the implanted Word. Regeneration is an act of God.

"For we ourselves also were sometimes foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful, and hating one another. But after that the kindness and love of God our Savior toward man appeared. Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and the renewing of the Holy Spirit; which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Savior; that being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life." Titus iii. 3 7.

"Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God.....Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." John iii. 3 5.

The Greek word gennao, here translated "born" covers the entire process from the implanting of the words of life to the actual spiritual birth in the resurrection. It is sometimes restricted in its application to the reception of the word by the individual. Again it is applied to the resurrection birth into the new life of immortality. In the present instance, however, we have reason to believe that it is used in its restricted sense, and applies only to the implanting of the word, while it implies the actual birth that is to follow in the future.

Sanctification, cleansing, purification, and regeneration are accomplished by the "washing of the water by the word," Ephesians v. 26. "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth.....being born again not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth forever.... ...and this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you," 1 Peter i. 22 23, 25.

To be converted then, one must first be "convicted of sin", that is, he made to realize that he is a sinner in the sight of God, and to feel the need of repentance and pardon. The warning cry of John the Baptist and of Jesus—"The kingdom of heaven is at hand"—was always preceded by "REPENT!" Sorrow for sin must precede conversion. "Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sin may be blotted out." Acts iii 19.

The glad tidings concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ must first be heard calling men to repentance, faith, conversion. "For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher?.....So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God." Rom x 13-14, 17.

"Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart; (convicted or convinced of sin), and said unto Peter and the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do? Then Peter said unto them, REPENT and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Acts ii 37-38.

Again, To be converted one must first hear the Word of the gospel; second, believe; third, obey in baptism; fourth, arise to enter upon a new life of divine service. Eph iii 8 4, 11-23.

In the experience of Paul, as recorded in the ninth chapter of Acts, we have an example of a model conversion. "And as he journeyed he came near Damascus," where, in his zeal as a Pharisee, he hoped to win the favor of God by binding and casting into prison the followers of the Nazarene: "And suddenly there shined round about him a light from heaven; and he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And he said, Who art thou, Lord? And the Lord said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest, it is hard for thee to kick against the pricks. And he trembling and astonished said, Lord, what will thou have me to do? And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do." Acts ix 3-6.

Paul was convinced of sin, he repented, and he yielded to what was required of him by way of obedience. The Lord told him at once to "Arise", and continue to Damascus where he would be fully instructed. There was something, then, that he must be taught. It was not, however, necessary to instruct him in the first principles of the gospel. First, because in order to successfully combat it he must have been well informed as to its provisions and doctrines. And second, he was soon to receive the Holy Spirit which would "guide him into all truth". The only thing that was required of him was to acknowledge Jesus as the Messiah.

The conversion of Paul consisted in hearing and believing the gospel, repentance and baptism followed by a life of self-sacrificing service. He observed and successfully complied with every condition of salvation. He was CONVERTED in harmony with the requirements of God and the commandments of Jesus, and knowing this was able to say at the close of his eventful and fruitful life: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." 2 Tim iv 7-8.

G. ELDRED MARSH.

The Bright Side.

Cheerfulness can become a habit, and habits sometimes help us over hard places. A cheerful heart seeth cheerful things. A lady and gentleman were in a lumber yard situated by a dirty, foul-smelling river.

The lady said: "How good the pine boards smell!" "Pine boards!" exclaimed the gentleman. "Just smell this foul river!" "No, thank you," the lady replied, "I prefer to smell the pine boards."

And she was right. If she, or we, can carry this principle through our entire living, we shall have the cheerful voice and cheerful face. There is in some houses an unconscious atmosphere of domestic and social cheer which brightens everybody. Wealth cannot give it nor can poverty take it away.—Miss Muloch.

Excellent Counsel.

It is a foolish girl who marries a man to reform him. Sweethearts reform very few men, and wives still fewer. The girl who expects to change the nature of a pig by marrying one, will get some sad lessons in logology, if she persists in carrying out her ideas. The drunkard who is all smiles and considerate as a sweetheart, and who invests a large part of his salary in cloves, etc., will get brutally and hopelessly drunk as a husband, and lie out all night at the back door of a down-town saloon. The best sort of man for a girl to marry is a man who has never needed to be reformed at all, but who has always been straight and upright in his life.—Baptist Standard.

Opportunities come to all people. All have had opportunities, all have opportunities. Present time is the opportune time: that is, it is the right time to do the right thing. Every opportunity should be improved. Some are worth more than others, but all are worth so much that we can not afford to allow any to go unimproved.—M. E. Emmerson.

Editor Restitution:

Find inclosed Express Money Order to renew my subscription to THE RESTITUTION, a little late, but could not help it very well. I would not be without it in my home. It is a welcome friend.

Yours Respectfully,
R. V. GARDINER.

THE suggestion has been made that we have a Christmas Love Feast this year. We favor the plan, and will gladly hold space for each one to give expression of their hope and a word of cheer for the waiting faithful ones. Write short letters, telling of your service in the Master's vineyard, and of your expectations and heart-longings. Send in as soon as you can, so we will have opportunity to arrange in proper shape. Every one, from the oldest to the youngest, all are invited to take part in this letter writing—to attend this "Christmas Love Feast."

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yea do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, as I await each mail from your home with anxiety.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

Thousands and thousands of books will be purchased and given to friends as Christmas presents this year. Other thousands of subscriptions to magazines and periodicals will be given. Most of them will be of a nature that please for the moment, but which have but little of actual worth in them. After a few days most of these books will have been read and then laid away to be kept in memory of the giver, and yet of no more real value than so many little blocks of wood.

The present that is of most value is the one that is capable of doing the most good. After such a book is once read, it has done all the good it can possibly do, and what little it did do was of a fleeting nature. A gift that will keep before your friend the whole year through a fond remembrance and at the same time render lasting service for good, is something that will show them the way of life eternal. Something that will show them the way of salvation.

Can you find anything better than THE RESTITUTION to present to your friend? Think of this and consider well what you are giving. You cannot purchase a single book that will contain the variety of information that a year's subscription to THE RESTITUTION will afford. Figure over the amount of reading and see how many "dollar books" it would take to give what our paper will give in a year. You have surely some relative, friend or neighbor, who would be aided by such a present. Try it a year for them.

Our rate to new names is but One Dollar for the first year to enable all to thoroughly test it. Perhaps you friend is not yet interested in the question of his salvation—some thing during the year may attract his attention, and by your little gift he started on the way to acceptance of the gospel. Perhaps your friend has thought many times that some day he would seek God, but has put it off from one time to another. Suppose by your gift to him this year he should read just what would decide for him, would you not be thankful you had given him THE RESTITUTION this year?

When sending your subscription put in an extra dollar with your friend's name, and thus try to have him go with you into the kingdom of God—a star in your crown to lay at the Savior's feet.

When purchasing a book or other present for a friend, you are often puzzled to know what to buy. You want to give a "good" book of course, and not being familiar with the authors, etc. you are undecided. You can make no mistake by sending him THE RESTITUTION. Try it this year.

Brethren of the Household of Faith in Michigan, Greeting.

At the Annual Conference in 1908, a committee was appointed to recommend a plan of raising more funds for the purpose of furthering evangelistic work in the state of Michigan. Their report has been published in these columns from time to time, and a great many of the brethren have responded nobly, and much additional work has been accomplished.

During the month of October we had some excellent help from Brother S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, with the result that eight dear ones were added to our number, and we have a promise from him that he will return and give Michigan some additional work during the winter, and we trust the brethren who have delayed sending in whatever they intended giving for this work will kindly respond with promptness, for on this depends how long we can keep Brother Lindsay at work. If we could send our offerings quarterly, it would no doubt be easier than to send the whole amount at once, and that would give us more to use during the year. We cannot afford to let this opportunity pass, so will expect the brethren to respond promptly. Forward offerings to A. K. Richardson, R F D 5, Hastings, Michigan, or the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette Street, Grand Rapids, Michigan. We thank you in advance.

Yours in the service of the King.

Christmas Notice.

The Chicago Bereans wish to notify their friends that they will again take up this year their Christmas work of distributing dinners to the widowed and the fatherless. Those who joined with us last year in the work, were blessed in the giving, and many expressed a desire to help another time. If any one wishes to send Christmas brightness into the little lives, please send your contribution to Miss Gertrude Ellis, 3013 Washington Blv'd. Chicago, Illinois, if sent before Dec. 15. If sent after that date please mail to Leila E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario Street, Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois. We are also dressing dolls for a Jewish mission. Those who desire to bring gladness untold into some little heart, send a dressed doll to the last address.

Signed:—

COMMITTEE

Home Department Visitor.

Dear Ones in Christ:

The Christmas time will soon be here and we will be repeating again the old sweet story. We will read the angel's glad message "Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be unto all people." We will think of another angel's message—"This same Jesus shall so come again in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

Have the years of watching and waiting for this same Jesus been long? Yes, very many years have passed, the pages of history tell the long sad story of how the saints of God have suffered and died, because they too had a message to tell. The blessed promise, "I will come again," has been an anchor of hope, in time of trial and in times of gladness. How we rejoice when some hear and obey the gospel message; and again sorrow fills our hearts as many turn away and follow the path that leads to destruction.

What will be our message to the world at Christmas time of 1909? The Home Department Visitor of 1908 will tell the same glad tidings. Will you not send it to some neighbor or friend? Send ten cents for a copy and see if you do not want to invest one dollar for Visitors. All money received except enough to pay postage, is placed to the credit of the Home Department fund in the Savings department of the Illinois Title and Trust bank of Champaign, Illinois. As soon as a sufficient fund is accumulated I will publish another issue of the Visitor. This fund draws interest until withdrawn for the purpose of publishing the Visitor. So whenever you send ten cents for a copy of the Visitor you add eight cents to this fund. If you wish to add anything to this fund send to the undersigned at 1009 South Wright street, Champaign, Illinois.

HARRIET E. BUCK.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Christmas and New Year Gifts.

The best gift to make is that which will do the recipient the most good. The gift that may lead such an one to receive the Pearl of Great Price, will certainly be the most profitable gift made. Between now and January 15 1910, I will sell the Pine Woods Bible Class, Student's Text Book, Cunningly Devised Fables of Russellism, and the Bible Study of Hades, all four when taken together, for $1 75. Address me at 625 N. Willow Avenue, Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois.

W. H. WILSON.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th Vanburen Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 303 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D.C Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

THE article on "Salvation. What is It?" which appeared in our Issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects." and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy; or 12 for $1 00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from Mrs M Joblin, 10648 Ashbury ave, N E Cleveland Ohio

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of an ill-natured clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and sends it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both have a good laugh. Not stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the first issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—do not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be sprained to hold it, adds a few it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has been hard at work to produce his finished work, has neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in sufficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Everywhere there's Christmas Tonight.

Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!
Christmas in lands of fir-tree and pine,
Christmas in lands of the palm-tree and vine;
Christmas where snow-peaks stand solemn and white,
Christmas where cornfields lie sunny and bright;
Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!

Christmas where children are hopeful and gay,
Christmas where old men are patient and gray;
Christmas where peace, like a dove in its flight
Broods o'er brave men in the thick of the fight;
Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!

For the Christ-child who comes is the Master of all.
No palace too great and no cottage too small;
The angels who welcome Him sing from the height,
"In the city of David a King in His might."
Everywhere, everywhere, Christ-mas tonight!

Then let every heart keep its Christmas within Christ's pity for sorrow, Christ's love for sin,
Christ's hope for the weakest, Christ's courage for right,
Christ's cheer of the darkness, Christ's love of the light:
Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!

So the stars in the midnight which compass us round
Shall see a strange glory, and hear a sweet sound,
And cry "Lord! the earth is aflame with the light,
O sons of the morning, rejoice at the sight."
Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!

Christmas Love Feast.

Dear Brethren and Sisters, of like precious Faith, Greeting:

I am one of the isolated. I have none of the faith here, so I am very lonesome. No one seems to want to hear of the near coming of the King, in fact all the bundles that are bound up in their especial creed don't want to hear of the coming of the Lord.

Some time ago one of the Methodist ministers called on me. The first question he put to me was, to what church I belonged to? I told him I belonged to the Body of the Anointed One. After a few questions he wanted to get down and pray for me, but I would not submit to him as his prayers were no better than the prophets of Baal, as his God was either asleep or afraid. He said he was full of the Holy Ghost religion. You may judge how he felt by the time he left me. He stayed about two hours and I tried to convince him of his error.

Dear Brothers and Sister, fight manfully the battle of faith; for the time is near when they wont endure sound doctrine. I love to hear of you all through our paper, it and my Bible are my only comfort in this life, because I am fully persuaded if I live faithfully. I like Paul will receive a crown when the Lord comes to reward his own.

Your Brother, waiting for the kingdom.

DAVID RENNER

Dear Brothers and Sisters, of like precious Faith, Greeting:

How my mind runs back to the time when I could meet with you in meetings; but now I am old and isolated from all of you, and since my dear husband died I am one alone here in the faith; but I am still looking and praying for the coming of Jesus. Oh, hail, the coming blessed day and our beloved Bridegroom is my prayer every day.

Hoping to meet all of you in the kingdom, when Jesus comes, I am your Sister, in Christ.

A. G. WINCHESTER

To the Dear Ones, Greeting:

I will say to one and all, that I am stronger in the faith than ever before. I would like to be with you at this hour to hear and rejoice with you; but as I can't be there in person I will be there in spirit or mind. I want to thank those contributors for sending me the good, old paper, as I am too poor to pay for it, and can't hardly get along without it.

I will just say that I am poor in this world's goods, but rich in faith, hoping to meet you all in that Sweet Bye and Bye, on Canaan's shore where there will be no more parting forever. I am seventy-four years old.

Your Brother, In Christ.

THE RESURRECTION.

"I am the resurrection and the life." John xi. 25.

Dear Friends:

I hope that you and I will be in the next world. Let us be ready for that world. Just get ready now, all of you. If we tarry we will miss that beautiful home. I want all of my dear ones there. I am ready for my Lord to come any time, the sooner he comes the happier I shall be. I hope it wont be long.

Your Brother in the Lord

ORA WORLEY.

Dear Brother Underwood:

I see by THE RESTITUTION of Nov. 24th, that you favor a Christmas Love Feast through the paper, and all are invited to take part. I am sure that it pleases me better than an invitation to a grand Christmas dinner; for it does me so much good to hear from so many brothers and sisters, and of their good intentions for the coming year, and I hope that each one that makes a good resolution will pray to God daily for strength to carry it out; for we mortals can do nothing of ourselves, without the help from our heavenly Father that he will freely give for the continued earnest asking. So dear ones, dont fail to ask for strength to overcome our most dangerous enemy, which is self. I hope this wont sound like boasting, for I believe that I can truthfully say that my faith in the promises, and in God that made them, has done me good every day of the year that is nearly closed; but before I began in earnest to seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, (as in Matt. vi. 33,) I often wondered why I could not have plenty of this world's goods, as some of my neighbors had; but since I have sought first the kingdom of God, my wants have diminished so much that I have often wondered why my lot was cast in this land of plenty and freedom, and why I have been so highly favored with the many blessings of this life; and still better is a knowledge of the promises, and how to receive them. There surely is more real satisfaction in being rich in faith than owning all the treasures of this world that will soon perish.

Your Brother, in hope, believing that the promises are sure.

G. W. CALDER.

Dearly Beloved in the Lord:

I gladly accept the invitation to join the Love Feast. My hope is anchored within the vail. It is the blessed hope of the coming kingdom of Jesus the Christ. Rejoicing that the coming of the Lord is at hand. I am resting in the Lord and patiently waiting his appearing, knowing he is my strength and my Redeemer. I bless the Lord for his mercies and benefits so freely bestowed upon unworthy me. Let us be faithful to the end knowing there is a crown awaiting all who suffer with him in this life. We who are isolated now will rejoice with joy unspeakable, and full of glory when we meet to part no more on the evergreen shore, where the tree of life is blooming, and we are accounted worthy to be sent out as leaves for the healing of the nations.

Dear Brothers and Sisters, let us praise the Lord for all his mercies and benefits. Yes, we will praise the Lord for his mercies endure forever. Amen. Come Lord Jesus, quickly come, is the prayer of your unworthy Sister in Christ.

MRS. R. A. NEFF.

Editor Restitution, Brethren, and Sisters, Greeting:

We of the household of faith in Hammond, Louisiana, desire to be remembered in your Christmas Love Feast. We are still contending for the faith once delivered to the saints.

We meet every Saturday night, as that is the most convenient time for all. We have Bible study and Communion Service. We also have a Sunday School, which we trust is doing much good. It is run as a Union school so that others will come in more freely, but our teachers are all of the one faith, and we are trying to teach the Word in its purity. We have from thirty-five to fifty in attendance, and they do not seem much prejudiced. We do not have much gospel preaching here. Get a preacher once in a while when we can, but they all live so far away that it costs so much to get them here. How I wish we could have more preaching in the south, it is so much needed. There are lots of so-called preachers but very little gospel preaching. The signs indicate that the Master is soon coming. Let us all be up and doing that we may be found ready. Pray for us that our labor may not be in vain.

Your Sister in The Christ.

MRS. A. M. SIELE.

Beloved in Christ:

As the time for our Love Feast is here, I will wish you all a Merry Christmas, and a Happy New Year. I am far from my home at present. I am now in Kansas, and my home is in California. I came back to spend Christmas with my only child and her family, and to visit my only sister and her daughter, but the weather has been so cold, with snow and ice everywhere, that it is hard to get around. This is quite different from our California climate.

There is much need of an evangelist here, but it would do no good for one to come this time of the year. There are many here that have never heard the true gospel preached. My sister and myself have distributed tracts and papers, but it seems that they wont read and pay attention like they would to hear a preacher talk and explain the Scriptures. We are still strong in the faith, and longing for the time to come when righteousness shall cover the earth as the waters cover the face of the mighty deep When none shall say, Know ye the Lord, for all shall know him from the least to the greatest. Then the righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein forever. Psa. xxxvii. 29.

My desire is to be found faithful and at my post of duty when the Lord shall come to claim his own. Often when I feel these chilling winds I think of the song

No chilling wind or poisonous breath
Can reach that healthful shore,
Sickness and sorrow, pain and death,
Are felt and heard no more

May God grant that we may all reach that blessed land no more to part. With love to all of the one faith.

Your Sister, in Christ.

M. A. CALDER.

Editor Restitution, Dear Brother:

I will say to the dear ones scattered abroad, that we, of all people on the earth have more to be thankful for than any one else; for we know that the Lord has opened our understanding of his Word that we through faith have laid hold of the promises of eternal life, which is life in his Son. This is the only true hope, how we rejoice in the blessed hope.

What if we are cast alone without fellowship of the one faith, which is so sweet to us, our Father knows what is best for us and the trial of our faith is more precious than gold. Pray for us isolated ones, that we may hold out faithful to the end, and receive the end of our faith which is eternal life in the kingdom of God when Jesus comes.

Your Sister, in the one hope.

MRS. MARTHA SUTTERFIELD.

To the Dear Brothers and Sisters of the Church of God, Everywhere, Greeting:

We are among the isolated ones, being the only ones of the faith that we know of in this section of the country and sometimes it seems very discouraging; but we are still holding to the faith and trying to press onward with the hope of life, and being fully persuaded that if we are faithful to the end we will win the prize of the high calling.

We see in the last number of THE RESTITUTION, an inquiry from a Mr. Joe Tucker, as to what qualifications are necessary to legally fit an individual to perform the ordinance of baptism. I am satisfied that one who knows nothing about an Order is capable of inducting another into the Order, and so also one who knows nothing about the Gospel is capable or able to induct one into or baptize one into Jesus Christ. It must necessarily be one who is in Christ to baptize or introduce another into that name, and the better he lives up to his profession the better he is qualified for the work. I never yet knew a Methodist minister to baptize any one into, or induct any one into the Church of God, and certainly the candidate should prepare himself thoroughly and we certainly wish him good success. I was very much pleased to read such a good article from the pen of our beloved Brother D. T. Halstead, whom we learned to love long ago. It was he who baptized me and I am always glad to hear from him, and we pray God's richest blessings may surround him through life, and we dont feel afraid of the future for him; and Brother J. F. Wagoner, another good, old soldier, and many others; but perhaps I am taking too much room. So to all the Household of Faith, A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

W. W. and ANNA ROLL.

THE ADVENT OF JOY.

"And the angel said unto them, Fear not; for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people." Luke ii 10.

This gracious offer of "great joy" is open to all people. The Father's heart is great enough to take us all in, providing we will comply with the conditions required. Paul says, Rom viii 2: The law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." Now those who have obtained freedom "from the law of sin and death, are on the way to "Great joy." This law leads to purity of heart. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." Note the promise, "shall see God." The thought seems too vast for human comprehension. What! can it possibly be, that the pure may yet see the Great Uncreate dwelling in light unapproachable by mortals, and before whose glorious presence the angelic host prostrate themselves, crying, "Holy, holy Lord God Almighty," as he dwells in an atmosphere of immaculate purity?

The promise is to the "pure in heart," and not to that which may appear so, on the exterior; an apple may appear beautiful on the outside, giving a promise as far as appearances may go of being perfect and still may be rotten at heart. Even so, as far appearances go, a person may be polished, and polite in his behavior, and may even profess piety, and yet be desperately wicked at heart.

The promise of "Great joy," is not to those who profess purity but to those who are pure.

The beauty and power of the pure in heart is seen in the home life—it is a crown of glory—it is a precious gem. The pure in heart robe themselves with the beautiful garment of love, and delight in deeds of good will and mercy. They rise above the mists and shades cast by sin into the full light and sunshine of eternal day.

In the Blessed Hope.

W. H. WILSON.

Dear ones of the household of Faith:

I am glad of this opportunity of hearing from those whose acquaintance I have made, and I am sure we will all be glad to hear from those who, during the year, have come over on the Lord's side. We want to make your acquaintance, dear ones.

I feel daily, how precious are the promises of God, how vast his love, and how great the blessing that we receive through Jesus Christ. I could not live without the hope that I have in him. His goodness and mercy are a joy continually. The battle of life is easy for none, and sometimes it is indeed hard, so hard, that many despair and give up the struggle, but they who have the Lord to lean upon, to guide and strengthen them, will find comfort when they look to him. The trouble is that we try too often to accomplish things in our own strength. If we would keep in mind that admonition of David, "Wait on the Lord: be of good courage and he shall strengthen thine heart" we would avoid many worries and perplexities.

May our lives tell for him in some way each day. His Word will keep us in close fellowship so let us not forget to meditate upon it daily.

Yours in the name of the Anointed.

ESTHER RICHARDSON.

Let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run patiently the race that is set before us. Heb xii 1. No one sin in particular is mentioned here, but anything that has a tendency to draw us away from the love of God; for he tells us in Mark xii 30, "And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all soul, and with all thy mind, and with all strength." For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. Jno iii 16. Who of us have such unselfish love as that? I fear too many of us depreciate the true meaning of love or charity, which practically means the same thing, for without charity we are "as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal." As a rule we are too prone to criticise other's faults, while perhaps our own short comings are much greater in the eyes of others, let us therefore have more love for one another and as Paul told the Corinthians, "Be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, for as much as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord." I Cor xv 58. If we work more for the Lord we will have less time for fault finding and we know if we strive lawfully we will surely win a crown of righteousness. Let us each examine ourselves daily to see wherein we may do something to better our Christian character, and bear with fortitude and patience all the trials that come upon us. Oh! that we could all say with Paul. I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but all them also that love his appearing. 2 Tim iv 7, 8.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Christmas greeting to all the faithful ones:

We are always glad to assemble ourselves with the household of faith. Therefore we gladly accept the kindly invitation to the "Christmas love feast," for we read, Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is, but exhorting one another, and so much the more as ye see the day approaching. What will the day bring to the faithful watchman? It will be a great day of exchanges, we will change our weak, frail, mortal nature, for the immortal, glorified nature; when all our sighs and tears will be turned to everlasting joy and gladness. All the dying moans will be turned to shouts of victory over death. For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as a hart and the tongue of the dumb sing; and God also has a blessing in store, for old mother earth, the curse that has held the earth for so long in its grasp will roll away, in its place will come one of God's richest blessings: for he says, "Thou shalt no more be termed forsaken, neither shall thy land any more be turned desolate, but thou shalt be called Hephzi-bah and thy land, Beulah, for the Lord delighteth in thee. "The desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose, it shall blossom abundantly and rejoice even with joy and singing. Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the briar shall come up the myrtle tree. For brass I will bring gold; and for iron, I will silver; and for wood, brass; and for stones, iron. I will make thine officers peace, and thine executors righteousness; violence shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting nor destruction within thy borders, but thou shalt call thy walls salvation, and thy gates praise. The sun shall be no more thy light by day, neither for brightness shall the moon give light unto thee, but the Lord shall be unto thee an everlasting light and thy God glory; thy sun shall no more go down, neither shall thy moon withdraw itself, for the Lord shall be thine everlasting light, and the days of thy mourning shall be ended; thy people shall be all righteous, they shall inherit the land forever, the branch of my planting, the work of my hands that I may be glorified, a little one shall become a thousand, and a small one a strong nation, I the Lord, will hasten it in his time. These signs indicate the dawning of that glad and glorious day, is at hand, may it quickly come.

Dear Restitution:

It is ever with glad memories I pick up the dear old RESTITUTION to read the truths I learned in my younger days. The truths of the Bible time cannot change, all remain the same though ages intervene. I am so glad I came to a knowledge of the truth in my youth, for as old age comes creeping on its a great joy to hold sweet communion with my Savior. Great peace have they that love thy law, hoping all that have an interest in the truths of our dear paper will respond to the call of the love feast, that we may learn to know each other better is my earnest desire.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, DEC 22, 1909

EXAMINE Your account, and give us a renewal of subscription if you can do so.

CIRCUMSTANCES of late have added somewhat to our expenses, and we do really need what is due us right now. This ought to be enough to say, and we will not add more to it, but trust that by thus calling your attention to the matter, all who know that their time has expired, will send in renewals at once, and so relieve our necessities.

We thank you for the favor.

WE wish all our readers a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

THIS issue completes the volume for 1909, and next number will bear date of January 5, 1910.

WE are very glad that so many took a part in our Christmas Love Feast, and only wish that others had spoken out the sentiment of their hearts at this season.

THE Plymouth Church again had the opportunity of hearing Brother John L. Wince last Sunday. Brother Wince left an appointment for the 3d Sunday in next month.

BROTHER J. H. Willey was called to Rensselaer last Sunday to officiate at the funeral of Brother R. S. Driggins, who died in New York last week. We hope to have an obituary next week.

LET all Indiana Churches who have neglected their organization, and failed to keep up the legal requirements regarding Trustees, etc., give heed to the call made by the President, and do as near as possible what was recommended by the State Conference.

Christmas Love Feast.

Dear Restitution:

As this year is near at a close we should all look back over it, and see if there is any place along the line of duty which we have neglected. If there is, let us make this resolve, that if our lives are spared another year, that we will try and neglect nothing which is along the line of duty. First is to know what our duty is, and second, to do it. I saw the other day where this question was asked, Were you thankful on Thanksgiving day? The answer was, Of course you were, and I think we all have a great many things to be thankful for. There is never a day in our lives in which we cannot feel thankful for something or at least I can, even while alone and while at my house work. I think sometimes I am not thankful enough. Perhaps there are many others the same way. Our ambition is too great for our strength, or at least mine is. But while this is true let us make up our minds to trust in God and do his will, and all will be well. There are only a few more days as it were till all this life's toil and hurry will be ended, then if we have been faithful and built up that perfect character we will enter the kingdom of God, where all will be peace and happiness, this is our hope. If death should overtake me before another year, I want to be laid away with this hope of the resurrection from the dead.

Your Sister in hope.

MRS. ALMUS ADAMS.

Dear Restitution:

A merry Christmas greeting to all. Once more the time for merry making is at hand, and we hope all will have a joyous time. It is with pleasure that we look forward to the Christmas time, with its gifts and pleasant times. But with how much more pleasure we should look for the time of the "Christ's coming; with the gift of eternal life unto all that are ready and expecting. Instead of pleasures and gifts that endure for only a while, we will be endowed with the gift that will last forever. And what merry making it will be, to sing the new song of salvation with the redeemed of all nations, with no cares and troubles to endure. In this stage of life we are troubled with pains and sorrows of all kinds. But when the "Christmas Time" of the new age appears, all sorrows and sighing cease, and true happiness will reign supreme. Knowing therefore that we shall receive this great blessing, we should be willing to do the requirements and help others along on the journey to a better life. For the night is far spent, the day is at hand, let us therefore cast off the works of darkness and let us put on the armor of light. Let us walk honestly as in the day. Not in rioting and drunkenness. For in such an hour as ye think not the Son of Man cometh. Take ye heed, watch and pray, for ye know not when the time is. For the Son of Man is like a man taking a far journey. Who left his house and gave authority to his servants, and to every man his work and commanded the porter to watch. Watch ye therefore for ye know not when the Master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cockcrow, or in the morning. Lest coming suddenly, he find you sleeping. Let us pray then that all who have taken upon them the name of the Lord. May be ready at his coming.

Your Brother in the blessed hope.

BEN B. CARPENTER

Dear Restitution:

We are thankful that we have been permitted to hear the gospel in its purity, and that we have been made to see the true light and have been made partakers with the dear household of faith in hope of the promises made to our Fathers. Let us strive to ever walk in the light that we may hear the longed for welcome, enter into the joys of thy Lord.

J. F. and C. B. CARPENTER.

Dear Pilgrims:

I would join your company in acknowledging the tender mercy of our heavenly Father towards me. Seventy-two years of service dont make me weary of the way or of the company. I can testify to his keeping power.

Watch and pray, the hour approaches,
Swiftly draws the break of day;
Soon we'll hear the glad hosanna,
Fellow pilgrim watch and pray.

LAURA H. PERKINS.

Shall a word be published that only has the ring of thankfulness pulsating from a joyful heart. A week ago I was high up in the mountains of New Mexico traveling on the Santa Fe R. R from Iowa to Arizona. Heart failure brought on by reaching too high an altitude brought on a struggle with the enemy—I do not claim the power of conquest, but with gladness attribute all to the "Giver of all good and perfect gifts," not boastfully—for you and I have nothing of which to boast—but thankfully. But it was not the foregoing paragraph that I had in view when I began, for have I not been reminded sufficiently often that it is only the strong that are able to continue the battle, and then not very long at the best.

What I wanted to tell you is this: While I was in Iowa I became convinced through the prevailing voice of the Iowa brethren that it would not be safe for me to remain and work in an icy winter like Iowa would prove. This advice coupled with a letter from my daughter Grace, stating that they had sold their Washington home and were almost ready to go to Arizona to make a home in a drier and warmer land, gave haste to my departure from the land of wheat and corn and ice, to that of oranges, figs and sun shine. But we will still entertain the hope of clinging to this mortal existence in order to benefit other mortals, till mortality is swallowed up of life. We all reached this new home land safely and happily and I wish to send my Christmas greetings to the many beloved brethren, and with renewed confidence remind you all that our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." 2 Cor iv 17.

W. L. SKEELS.

To the Children of God:

I am glad to report in THE RESTITUTION that I am still striving to serve Christ who was born in Bethlehem of Judea, and whose memorable birth is generally celebrated Christmas day. Jesus Christ is to us the best Christmas gift, and I am laboring here in Cairo, Illinois, to tell the glad news of his soon coming kingdom on earth. Pray for me.

Your Brother in Jesus,

R. E. LLOYD.

Dear brothers and sisters, Christian greeting:

We are very glad to take a part in the love feast. Oh how thankful we are that we see such a blessed truth is able to save to the uttermost and by so doing it may encourage those of like precious faith. We are trying to stand for the truth if we have to stand alone. As we look all around we are most confident that we are living close to the close of Gentile time. We are trying to look up in confidence of what is promised in the Holy Scriptures of a soon coming King Jesus to reward us if we are found faithful. Oh may every one be found ready to hear the well done plaudit, is the prayer of your humble Brother and Sister, wishing you all a happy Christmas.

MR. & MRS. J. E. COOK.

Dear Restitution:

I will write a short letter for the Christmas Love Feast. I was baptized into Christ last winter. I am twelve years old. I love to read of our Savior when he was a Babe born in Bethlehem of Judea. In the days of King Herod, Wise Men came from the East to Jerusalem, saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? For we have seen his Star in the East and are come to worship him. King Herod was greatly troubled. He demanded of the priests and scribes of the people where Christ should be born? They told him, in Bethlehem of Judea. For thus it is written by the prophet, For out of thee shall come a Governor that shall rule my people Israel. And the King sent the Wise Men to search for the young child; and when they had found him to bring him word, that he might also come and worship him. But God who searcheth the reins of the heart and knoweth the thoughts and intents of the heart, warned the Wise Men in a dream not to return to Herod, for he would seek the young Child to destroy him. And shepherds were watching their flocks by night, when the angel of the Lord came upon them and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were sore afraid, but the angel said unto them. Fear not, for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people; for unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Savior, which is Christ our Lord. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men. Pray for me that I may ever prove faithful.

Yours, in hope of eternal life.

MARY HELMS.

Dear ones of the household of Faith:

I feel like I want to join all of God's people in this Love Feast of praising and thanking God for his goodness and his mercies he has bestowed upon us this year; for God has spared our lives and given us food for our bodies, and thank his holy name, he has given us his Holy Spirit to keep us in his holy way. I thank the Lord we are rejoicing on our way in hope of a happy resurrection when Jesus comes to be glorified with all of his saints, and I hope I will meet you all in the glorious kingdom that is coming soon. So cheer up dear ones and be faithful until death, and then the Lord will give us all a crown of life that will never fade away. Pray for me and my loved ones.

Your Sister, in hope of eternal life when the Lord comes.

EMMA C. SHARPTON.

Dear Restitution:

This is near Christmas time, and whether or not our Savior was born in this month, I am thankful that he was born, and that he died and rose again and is now at the right hand of the Father to intercede between God and man. May we all live so that if he comes suddenly, day or night, we may not be ashamed.

Your Brother, in hope.

JOHN HELMS.

Christmas Greeting and Cheer to the Household of Faith, especially to the sick and afflicted Ones, who are sometimes almost tired of life:

Be of good cheer, be comforted; for has not God said that, In that new body he has promised to all who obey him, there will be no pain, neither sorrow nor crying. Rev. xxi. 4. But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength, they shall mount up with wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary, shall walk and not faint. Isaiah xl 21.

Your Sister, waiting for the fulfillment of those promises.

JULIA STAMP.

Dear brothers and sisters scattered of all over this beautiful land of ours, greeting:

I would join with the rest of you in sending in our letters to the Christmas Love Feast. I will say I am glad for one more opportunity to cast in my name on the Lord's side.

I am trying to inform myself more thoroughly of God's plan of redemption by studying the Scriptures that I may see more plainly what he has in store for us. For it is written, Eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither hath it entered into the heart of men the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. Sometimes I fear we do not love enough. Our thoughts are given over more to doctrines than love of God. But he that loveth not knoweth not God. For God is love. Then we have this, He that loveth God loves his brother also. Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of God.

And now dear ones, let us remember that we are not made partakers of Christ unless we hold the beginning of our faith unto the end, which please God we intend to do with his help.

ALMIRA BROOKS.

Editor Restitution:

A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. To the older brothers and sisters that have long been fighting for the faith and truth, our Savior was born for this truth. Stephen was stoned for it, and Paul suffered and died, and Jesus was crucified because he said he was the Son of God.

To the younger ones I would say—Stand firm for our King. To those who are almost persuaded to become joint heirs with the Son of God, do not delay making your calling and election sure. Be baptized in his Name, and grow like him, and not be ashamed when we come before the Judge to receive our reward.

He that is faithful in a little will be given much. Let us love one another with a pure heart.

Your Sister in hope.

AMY A. JOHNSON.

To the Love Feast, those of like precious faith:

The subject of this sentence is love, God is love; for God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life; and he also gave it in commandment, that ye love one another, as I have loved you. Greater love has no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. John iii. 16; xv. 12-13. I am a firm believer in the things pertaining to the zoe life, and hope to be an overcomer and to be found faithful unto the end, and not only myself, but every one of the household of faith, that there may not one be lost.

Your Brother, waiting for the coming of Christ.

J. C. DANIELS

A merry Christmas to all of the one faith:

As we have an invitation to the Christmas love feast. What better thoughts could we have at this season than God's goodness and love for us; for God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that we through him might have life or be saved. Jno iii 16. Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends. Jno xv 13. Our Savior has done this for us but that is not all, he commanded us to have this same love for him and for each other. Do we realize this as we should? As the Father has loved me, so have I loved you, continue ye in my love. Jno xv 9. How? Verse 10. If ye keep my commandments ye shall abide in my love. Verse 12. This is my commandment that ye love one another as I have loved you. Verse 17. These things have I commanded you that ye love one another. And again a new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another, as I have loved you, that ye love one another. Jno xiii 34, 35. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples. If he have love one for another.

If we do this as commanded us there will be no room left in our hearts for the evils spoken of, deceit, envy, hatred, so enumerated in this life. It is my great desire to have this love in my heart, that I may grow in knowledge, till we all come in the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. Eph iv 13.

E. L. CRONK.

The more we think of it, the more we are struck with the wise foresight which suggested the creative fiat, "Let the earth bring forth grass" Gen. i. 11, 12. It is the most abundant and the most generally diffuse of all vegetation. It suits almost every soil and climate.—Hugh Macmillan.

Obituary.

Before noon, Dec. 9th, Bro. P. Neill, of Salem, Ohio, wrote us as following on a postal card: 'Dear Brother Huggins, your card received yesterday, was glad to hear from you. Thanks for your promise to help us in our special meetings, if nothing prevents. We are expecting you to make preparation accordingly, and will be pleased to welcome you on Monday, Jan. 10, 1910. I will be pleased to call attention to your book matter. Hope all are well with you.

Your Brother in the one Hope.

P. NEILL."

Unaware that he was laying down his pen for the last time, he placed his work to one side, ate the noon lunch in apparent good health, after which he rested awhile as usual on his couch. When he awoke he was taken suddenly and dangerously ill with heart trouble, and in spite of medical aid and the prayers of God's people, he died in peace with God and with all men, Dec. 12th, 2:45 in the afternoon.

Our dear Brother was born in Scotland, but came to this country when a young man, and settled in Toledo, O. Here he was very successful in a business way as a dealer in dry goods merchandise. Here he met and married Miss Mattie Birchell, June 23rd, 1874. Two living children, a girl and boy, with Sister Neill, mourn his death: Ethel B., at home; and George D., of Washington, D. C. Our Brother had enjoyed 65 years of life; he had never been sick in bed in all these years.

Seven years ago our brother left Cleveland to become pastor of the Church of God in Salem. Assisted by his proficient, most worthy and highly esteemed wife, the Church has thrived under his ministry. His death to every member of his Church was like a clap of thunder out of clear sky; they all flocked to his home to sustain by tears, prayers and sympathy themselves and Sister Neill.

On the morning of December 14th we went to Salem, and shall never forget this visit to the house of mourning. Only fifteen weeks ago to the day, our Brother had officiated at my wedding; today I look upon him in the coldness and stillness of death! The flock of God scattered like sheep without a shepherd, and a burden of sorrow knawing at my heart, I nerved up and spoke as best I could to the large company who came together for the funeral services.

His was brought to Cleveland on the 15th, and after a brief chapel service he was tenderly laid to rest in Lakeview Cemetery, till the Master comes and says to him as he said to Lazarus: "Come forth!" The Cleveland Church, Brother Hescock of Canton, Ohio, and Brother George Neill of Washington, D. C. were very helpful to Sister Neill in the way of comforting and sustaining her in her bereavement. All the assurances of Bible promises and the consolations of divine truth are yours, Sister Neill. May they bear you up all the residue of your days, and make you strong to fill the responsible position of pastor to the same church and same people, and with the same degree of success as under God's blessing, attended the labors of your dear husband and our much loved brother.

R. G. HUGGINS.

Editor Restitution:

The Church of God at Fonthill, Ont. have had Brother S. J. Lindsay with them four weeks. The attendance and interest were good. Seven put on Christ in baptism. We hope they will live a life worthy of the name of Christ.

We all feel thankful to our Heavenly Father for the good done during these meetings. Dear brothers and sisters, pray we all watch and pray, so that when Jesus comes we may be ready to hail him with joy and gladness.

Your Sister in the Blessed Hope,

ELIZABETH READ, Sec.

Brother Underwood,

I want to make a brief report of Brother Lindsay's visit to Fonthill. He came here accompanied by his eldest daughter, and held meetings till December 5th, with the result of seven baptisms. We hope they may continue faithful to the end and thus be amongst the saved.

I remain yours for the truth as it is in Jesus,

P. H. BOSK.

We are transformed by our ideals. He who holds a lofty idea ascends to it, while a man with a base ideal descends. And what a noble ideal the gospel of Jesus Christ presents to us! —Gilchrist.

The Song of Peace.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid.

And the angel said unto them,

"Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord.

"And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger."

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying,

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."—Gospel by St. Luke.

Notice to Indiana Churches.

At the Annual Conference held at Rensselaer, September 30 to October 3, 1909, resolutions were adopted recommending that the various Churches throughout the State hold their annual Church meetings at one and the same time, namely, on the first Tuesday in January of each year; at which time each Church would elect Elders, Deacons, Secretary and Treasurer, to hold office for one year. Also where there is Church property, that three (3) Trustees be elected, who shall have custody of said property. That they be elected for the term of one, two and three years respectively. To make election of Trustees legal, a notice should be posted on the Church door, and in two public places in the neighborhood of the Church. The names of the Trustees should be recorded in the County records, and should be furnished by the Secretary of the Church to the County Recorder, giving date of their election. This should be kept in the Church records also. If this is done, each year thereafter, and the name of the newly elected trustee is kept on the Church record, giving the name of the Trustee he superceded, your Church property will be safe.

I suggest that the meeting for the election of officers be held at 7:30 p. m., unless otherwise arranged by the Church. The names of each person elected, and the office each is to fill, should be sent to the State Secretary, Mrs. Lydia Rallsback, 921 S. Fellows St. South Bend, Indiana. I urge that each Church pay attention to this notice, and that the present Elder or Elders make a call for the meeting in due time.

J. H. WILLEY,
Pres. Indiana Conference.

The Bible.

A DECLARATION OF ITS FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES, WITH EXPLANATIONS OF MANY DIFFICULT TEXTS.

The above is the title page of a book the Editor proposes to publish as soon as enough subscriptions are received to pay the printer. The subject matter of the book as now prepared consists of explanations of more than one hundred and twenty-six subjects; and to these will be added other subjects readers may send us while the book is being gotten ready for the press.

The primary design of the book is to teach aliens the truth. Selections from our writings in THE RESTITUTION, especially from the "Question Box," have been carefully made, and thoroughly revised. The only book ever published by our Church which formulates the fundamental principles of the gospel in propositions, and then explains all difficult texts, introducing every conceivable Bible subject—a variety most pleasing to the reader.

The price will not be less than 25 cents, and not more than $1 00. Do not send money now, but send us your pledges, and when we have received enough pledges to pay the printer, we will go to press, and will announce when our pledged subscribers can remit the money. In sending us pledges to take one or a number of books, be sure and give your correct address.

Christmas Love Feast.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

For twenty-one years the Lord has been my Shepherd, and when temptation seems so near me and my burden too heavy to bear, I just go to Jesus with it, and how soon it rolls away. My greatest desire is to comfort the poor and needy, and pray for the salvation of sinners. Please all pray for me.

A Sister in Christ,

MISS SALLIE B. ROBBINS.

Dear Ones gathered at our Christmas Love Feast:

There are many good things prepared for the guests. Is not this thought very sweet and precious. God loves us and we love him. He is ours and we are his. A few strengthening words out of a favorite text—"Kept by the power of God," 1 Peter i. 5.

ALICE KERR.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of the One Faith and Hope of the Gospel:

I am so glad Brother Underwood has granted us another Love Feast, for I like to hear a good live testimony from one whose heart is overflowing with love for God, and the grand old faith of the restitution of all the things that God has spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began. O those days, those haunted days by the prophets foretold! When man will be restored back from the death state. God hath said, O death, I will be thy plague. O grave I will be thy destruction. Hosea xiii. 14. I am so thankful for this hope, for it is indeed a blessed hope, and I am so glad that I can say that although I have had some trying things to contend with, yet on the whole the past year has been a real love feast to me, for the Lord has blessed my efforts in trying to spread the good news of the soon coming King to reign on the restored throne of David. How I wish we could all meet and sing—

O, we'll stand up for Jesus,
The lowly Nazarine,
And point the blood-stained banner
Amid the hosts of sin.

I am so thankful to Sister Barber for giving us this dear song, for I have been thinking about it so much of late. I used to help sing it about 28 years ago when we used to meet at Adeline, Illinois, to hear Brother Jacobs preach. He was the first one to teach me this wonderful restitution doctrine. How strange it sounded to me at first, for I never heard anything about the promises God made to Abraham until I met Brother Jacobs. At first I was afraid to even think of some things he taught, but God kept drawing me until I saw it was his most holy plan, and O how thankful I am that my poor blind eyes were opened, and how Brother Jacobs did love to tell the grand old story, and sing as well.

How sweet the Christian hope to me,
While here I'm called to roam;
It points me to a better land,
That I may call my home.

This hope reminds me of the time
When Jesus will appear;
It gives me joy, it gives me peace,
It drives away my fear.

When darkness hovers o'er my path,
And no light can see,
This hope sustains my drooping heart,
And fills me joyful be.

When friends that once I loved so well,
Leave me alone to sigh,
This hope bids me rejoice and sing,
For my redemption's nigh.

This hope—it purifies my heart,
And turns my night to day;
It plants my feet upon the Rock,
And keeps me in the Way.

The day is near—Oh, joyful thought!
When I shall gain the prize;
This hope will then be turned to sight
Before my wondering eyes.

Now dear brothers and sisters let us try and work harmoniously together the coming year, and spread the good news as never before.

Your Sister in hope of immortal life when Jesus comes,

MRS. CLARK MCCLELLAND.

Editor Restitution:

It gives me pleasure to send Christmas greetings to all the Household of Faith. I am still strong in the one faith and one hope, looking for the Blessed Redeemer, who when he comes will change this vile body, and fashion it like unto his glorious body. It appears to me that the signs of the times bespeak his coming near. While we have trials and troubles, sorrow and pain here, it is a pleasure to know that there is one who says Come unto me, all ye that are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Blessed thought, how it cheers us to think of him. He is closer than a brother to all who are of his body, and heirs according to the promise. There are but few who know what this means. If we have a promise, and through that promise we are made heirs to something, why not try and find out what it is. If we have a promise and do not know what it pertains to, we cannot really have faith in it. Faith comes by knowledge, and without faith we cannot please God. Not so with the household of Faith, for we all know what that promise is. They say Come with us, there is no harm in attending shows, and doing many other things, but our answer is, Our Savior says, Be not of the world, as I am not of the world. I have chosen you out of the world. Keep yourselves unspotted from the world, be not partakers of their evil deeds. I am waiting watching and praying, thy kingdom come. I thank our heavenly Father for the good old RESTITUTION. May God's blessing be with the Editor, and all the faithful. We cannot all preach and write, but all can say something for the cause of Christ.

Hoping all will enjoy a happy Christmas, your Brother,

JESSE HARROLD.

Dear Restitution:

I see by the paper that you want to have a Christmas Love Feast, and wish to hear from all. We are still trusting in our Savior and trying to lead others that they may see the truth. We are living in very perilous times. Some are departing from the faith, taking to themselves some new doctrine that our dear good old Bible does not teach. Pray for us that we may hold out faithful to the end. May God's richest blessing guide and protect the Bereans is our prayer.

Wish you all a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Yours for the Truth,

MR. & MRS. L. E. FLAHER.

Dear Restitution:

I see our time has come to renew our subscription, so enclosed you will find a check for the amount. Wife and I send Christmas greeting to all your readers. Let us come before God's presence with thanksgiving, and make a joyful noise unto him with psalms. Sing unto the Lord, bless his holy name. Let the heavens rejoice, let the earth be glad before the Lord. Praise his holy name, for his mercy endureth to all generations.

Your Brother and Sister in one faith and hope,

PETER OVERHOLZER & WIFE

Dear Brethren:

As I am left alone and my dear companion is called to pay the debt we all must pay sooner or later, I hope to be prepared as he was. I am striving to live so I can meet him in God's kingdom. I ask an interest in your prayers, that I may be ready when I have to go. I love THE RESTITUTION, it gives such good advice.

Farewell to all the dear ones,

AMANDA J. HERRON.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

We are again invited to a Love Feast. How we should enjoy being all met together in one assembly, as we hope to be in the coming kingdom, where we could speak our words of hope and faith face to face. How we enjoy the weekly visits of THE RESTITUTION, which is so carefully prepared for a feast of good things from the Word. The day of glory will soon dawn, the age to come will be ushered in upon us. Let us keep ourselves unspotted from the world. God's grace is sufficient for all our needs.

Yours for truth,

MRS. C. W. RUSSELL.

Dear Ones in Christ:

I am an isolated member of the Household of Faith. I feel the need of the Church badly, and the association of the brothers and sisters, but I take great pleasure in reading my Bible and THE RESTITUTION. I am seeking for eternal life, for God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life, John iii. 16. How thankful I am to know the true meaning of this passage. Dear ones, let us try to be ready each day, hour and moment to meet our Savior. Yourselves know perfectly, that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night, Thess. v. 2. Let us hope and pray that we can say as Paul, I have fought a good fight, I have kept the faith, I have finished my course, now henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but to all them also that love his appearing.

Wishing all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Your Sister in Christ,

IDA JEFFREY.

Dear Brothers and Sisters, of like precious Faith, Greeting:

Another Christmas will soon be here, a day of merry making and of giving and receiving gifts; and also a day of feasting. The writer remembers many of these annually recurring days. Some of them back in the years of childhood and youth, when the custom was to celebrate the day largely by making a noise. The larger boys and men by the firing of guns. The smaller boys amused themselves with a few firecrackers, or pewter pistols manufactured by their own hands. There was of course some feasting and the small boy hailed with delight the great puffy doughnuts that the kind mother had made. The giving and receiving of gifts was not much practiced back there. However observed; by noisy demonstrations, by merry making, by feasting, or religious ceremonies comparatively few grasp the full meaning of the event for which the day, centuries after was set apart as a holyday. The birth of the Son of God meant infinitely more to man than any other birth in the history of the human race. That he was born on December 25th has been called in question by learned men; but Professor Totten, the wizard of chronology, sets down that day as the date of his birth—and this not simply on the ground that the Catholic and Protestant churches celebrate that day but on other grounds. This infant, humanly born (supernaturally begotten) was the Father's gift of love in embryo. In that babe of the manger centered God's plan for the recovery of man from the direful result of the fall. What amazing possibilities in swaddling clothes! Much has been done in the unfolding of Jehovah's purpose of grace; much remains to be done. The believer stands facing further displays of God's love. The real Christmas is to come. A royal feast with the King at his own table. Luke xxii 30. All that has been done, and all that will be done as manifestations of God's love to us should inspire our love for one another and for the cause we represent.

JOHN L. WINCE.

I feel thankful by the grace of God to be able to write a few lines for the love feast. I wish to say that I am still firm in the faith once delivered to the saints. I am waiting and watching for the return of our dear Lord, he keeps me through trials, griefs, pains and heartaches he gently clears the way. I ask an interest in the prayers of the saints.

Your humble Sister in Christ.

MARY J. CRATON.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christian greeting:

Another year is now almost to a close, which brings us nearer the appearing of our dear Lord and Savior. When we think how God gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him might not perish but have everlasting life. What are we doing in return for such love? Are we giving the best of our lives, the best of our talent and energy to the cause we love and cherish so dear. Are we living as Paul says, "Approved of God and man." Are we rejoicing in the hope of the gospel so that our daily walk will show we are ready and would be glad to see the King in his glory. May the time hasten when he will gather his loved ones in his eternal kingdom.

Your sister in hope.

INEZ TITUS.

To the loved ones scattered abroad greeting:

We are still rejoicing in the blessed hope of the soon coming King; who will drive away the dark clouds of sin and death, and bring in that glad day of glory and rest. May we not allow ourselves to be overcharged with the cares of this life; but may we seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness. Ever remembering that earthly things are only temporal, while heavenly things are eternal. Let the watchword be faithfulness. For the command is "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life."

R. C. & LYDIA RAILSBACK.

Dear Brother Underwood:

I have been a baptized believer for sixteen years; and for the same length of time I have been publishing and defending the gospel by pen and mouth. I am a stronger believer today than ever. For several years I have worked in the same harness with you, Brother Underwood, and except a few who object to what they call my acerbities in answering opponents, I hear no criticisms of my humble work. My better judgment approves of their strictness; and I confess that my pleasing personal address disappears as soon as I begin to write. I am apparently unable to overcome this blunt style of writing; and am wondering if it would not serve the cause of the truth better for me to give up "Ebenezer," and for this reason.

The Church of God in this city is in a prosperous condition. We have had many additions during the year, and we are in peace. The foundation of our new church building is laid; and in a few days we are to lay the corner stone. We send our love and the compliments of the season to you, and all the children of God scattered far and wide.

Most fraternally your Brother in Christ.

ROBT. G. HUGGINS.

Christmas Greeting to All:

Once more we enjoy the coming of Christmas, but it will be much more joy when Christ comes and sets up his kingdom which shall never be destroyed. Let us watch and be sober for we know not when the time will come. We should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints. We have only a few members in Kentucky, but all are strong in the one faith. Let us strive to be overcomers, and endure all things unto the end, for we will soon be at our journey's end, when we all must stand before the judgment to be judged every one according to which their works have been.

We will close wishing a merry Christmas to all.

QUINCY L. CARPENTER.
ETHAN E. CARPENTER.

Editor Restitution:

To the dear ones in Christ and the Christmas Love Feast, greeting:

May peace, joy and blessing be yours in the Holy Spirit, from God our Father and his beloved Son who came to us and paid the price of our redemption. To him be honor, glory, praise and dominion forever, ever watching and waiting and praying, Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. We feel very grateful to our heavenly Father for past blessings, which are as the sands of the sea, and who can tell what another year or Christmas tide may bring forth, but let us ever be ready to exclaim, Oh Lord! Thy will be done. Make a joyful noise unto God all ye lands. Sing forth the honor of his name; make his praise glorious, all the earth shall worship thee, and shall sing unto thy name.

God be merciful unto us, and bless us; and cause his face to shine upon us. Selah. That thy way be known upon earth, thy saving health among all nations. Let the people praise thee, O God. Let all the people praise thee. God shall bless us and all the end of the earth shall fear him. A blessed and happy Christmas and New Year to all.

Your Sister in the one faith.

L. R. FREER.

Dearly beloved of the Household of Faith:

I am glad that I am living to greet you at still another blessed Christmas tide, and to wish you good cheer. It is a great joy to me. I do not want to go down to darkness and to silence; I want to live to praise the Lord and to do good, for life by his mercy and favor is full of enjoyment.

The year about closing has had its sorrows, dear ones in the Church have been laid away, voices of loved friends have been silenced by death; little children have stopped their play, and folded their innocent hands in a sleep that will know no waking till Jesus comes. I have mourned for these but have mourned in hope, that threw a rainbow of glory over their tombs.

I shall soon hear Bro. Thompson singing again, I shall clasp my cousin Rolando Chaplin's hand once more, and lead darling, little Muriel Voss to beds of flowers that will never fade, and shall hear gentle Mary Boyce shout victory over death. Brother Neill will take up his work again with a heart that will never stop beating, and beloved and lovely Sister Railsback will be there, never more to be laid aside in the chambers of silence and decay.

Why should I shed tears over them? It is Christmas! And Christmas is the day of memory and of hope. It tells me that Jesus has come, the One who was "to be powerful" who was "to save his people from their sins," and who was "to rule over his people Israel," and ruling over the whole earth. It bids me joy in the hope that he is soon coming back to his own—to the earth that he has redeemed.

S. ROXANA WINCE.

Dear Restitution:

As the new year draws near, we are reminded of our duty to join in the Love Feast, for the strengthening of each lone and isolated member of the Church of God. May we all take courage and begin the New Year with a determination to do more for the Master. We enjoy the dear old paper and may the Lord bless and prosper all its helpers.

A Sister in the faith.

MRS. B. COLEMAN.

Dear Brother Underwood:

I have been a reader of THE RESTITUTION in its different forms of publication for 45 years or more. Have taken much satisfaction in perusing its pages from week to week. Its teachings have given me strength; and caused me to be more and more firm in "The Faith once delivered to the Saints." I rejoice greatly, when I read of the exceeding great and precious promises of God's Word.

There's a good time coming in the "Sweet Bye and Bye"—Jeremiah saw it with prophetic eye, when he said—"Behold the Lord our God will come with a strong hand. His arm shall rule for him. His reward is with him, and his work before him." Christ will execute justice and judgment in the earth. We are very much in need of such a Ruler. May the eyes of many be opened to behold the wondrous light that shines through the glorious gospel of the kingdom of God. The "Child" once cradled in a manger, is yet to rule the world. Let us thank our heavenly Father for his great goodness.

Dear Brothers and Sisters, I very much enjoy reading letters from you all. No doubt a few words from me will be welcome.

Yours in hope of eternal life.

MRS. JOHN HARTMAN.

Greeting to the Household of Faith, Everywhere:

I have been a reader of THE RESTITUTION ever since the year 1876, and I still love it. I am always glad to hear the call for the Love Feast letters. It gives the faithful a chance to express their desires for the coming of our Elder Brother and Redeemer. This is an inspiring hope founded on the words of him that spake as never man spake, saying if "I go away I will come again and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye may be also."

Brethren and Sisters, let us strive to be ready to meet him with oil in our lamps, and our feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace.

Your Sister waiting for our soon coming King.

S. F. MORGAN.

Dear Brothers and Sisters of the Household of Faith, a Christmas Greeting to all:

Another year is nearly past since our last Love Feast. I thank Brother Underwood for giving us this opportunity that we can hear from each other, if not face to face, I hope it may be heart to heart, helping each other to stand steadfast in the one faith once delivered to the saints, and looking for the glorious appearing of our Savior Jesus Christ. I rejoice that I may have my name with the Little Flock. As we look around us how few there are that will give up the pleasures of the world for the promises of God that are sure to all them that will obey his Word.

There are a few of us here; but we are scattered so that we do not have meetings very often. Brother Almus Adams of Omaha, came down last summer and held a few meetings, and two more was added to our number.

Hoping these few lines may cheer others on the way, as I am made to rejoice by reading the letters from all that take part in the feast.

Yours, in hope of eternal life.

MRS. N. G. CALKINS.

Dear Restitution:

I was reading in THE RESTITUTION and I came across your Christmas Love Feast, and as you invited all to take a part, I thought I would write a few lines for my first. When I was young I was baptized in the faith of going to heaven when I died. Two years ago I went to hear Brother Hudler preach and he led me to the light of the coming kingdom and the reign of Christ, and I went to reading my Bible for myself, and I cannot see any other way but that that is the true gospel, and the more I read the more I love the way, it is the promise of God. On the 20th of last September, I was buried with Christ in baptism, in the faith of the restitution of all things and the coming kingdom that God has promised to give his saints. My greatest desire is to lead some one to the light. I will close by asking the prayers of my brothers and sisters in Christ. May God's blessings rest with us all until the coming of the Lord, and that you and I may be prepared to hear the call that summons the righteous to come forth, to life everlasting.

Your Sister in Christ, awaiting his coming.

MRS. SARAH LINDSAY.

Dear Brothers and Sisters, of the One Faith, Greeting:

I wish you all a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. I have to praise and glorify God, for his grace to save and keep me. I thank and praise his Holy name for what he has done for me, for he is a blessed and ever present help in every time of trouble. He has sent his comforter unto his faithful ones. How blessed is his Word. Oh how I love to read and study it, and meditate upon his promises, and if we take heed thereto it will lead us from the broad road of destruction into the way of life, light and hope, of truth, purity, holiness and immortality. The wages of which is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord and Savior. May God help us all to search his Word more in the future than we have ever done in the past; let us live up to all the light that God has given us, that others may profit thereby and be led to glorify our Father which is in heaven. I am the only one of like precious faith that I know of nearer than Barberton, or Cleveland, some twenty-five miles away, and my health will not permit me to visit those places often. Am in my seventy-seventh year and pretty well crippled up, so that it is hard for me to get about. I desire an interest in your prayers, that I may ever be found walking in the Master's footsteps.

Yours for the truth as it is in Christ Jesus.

J. M. THORP.

Dear Restitution:

We feel that we want to send a few words of Greeting for the Christmas Love Feast. We certainly enjoy reading the many words of praise, from the different brethren. We, as David, can say, The Lord is my rock and my fortress, and my deliverer; my God, my strength, in whom I put my trust. So let all put their trust in him and rejoice. I will praise thee O Lord, with my whole heart. Wishing all the brethren the compliments of the season, we remain,

Your Brother and Sister, in the one hope.

ALDEN and NORA OVERHOLZER.

I would like to take a part in the Love Feast, as I have never written anything for the dear, old RESTITUTION. I have been a reader of this paper some forty years and it has been a welcome visitor in my home. I feel more thankful to that dear Sister who has sent it to me, may God help her in her effort to spread the blessed gospel truth. As the dear Father has blessed us in the year that is soon to pass away, may the New Year find us living nearer the blessed Master, and be untiring workers in his blessed vineyard.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

MRS. MARY E. YOUNG.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

As Christmas is drawing near I hope I may not be too late to say a few words for the Christmas Love Festival. I have been in the faith for the last year, October a year ago I was baptized in the precious faith by Brother Tichenal, at Wenatchee, Washington. May we ever be waiting and watching for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. Praise ye the Lord. Praise the Lord, O my soul. Pray for me, that I remain faithful.

Your Sister, in Christ.

CHRISTINA KREGER.

To the Dear Brothers and Sisters of the Church of God, Everywhere, Greeting:

I am thankful for the privilege offered by THE RESTITUTION. I want to do all I can for my Master. I realize the time is short to work; but let us work, watch and pray that we enter not into temptation, but walk in that straight and narrow path. May we all prove faithful and see that no one takes our crown. I am trying to live faithfully to prove myself worthy of eternal life, and my prayer is, Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly.

Your Sister in The Christ.

MRS. NINA PONTIOUS.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

Thousands and thousands of books will be purchased and given to friends as Christmas presents this year. Other thousands of subscriptions to magazines and periodicals will be given. Most of them will be of a nature that please for the moment, but which have but little of actual worth in them. After a few days most of these books will have been read and then laid away to be kept in memory of the giver, and yet of no more real value than so many little blocks of wood.

The present that is of most value is the one that is capable of doing the most good. After such a book is once read, it has done all the good it can possibly do, and what little it did do was of a fleeting nature. A gift that will keep before your friend the whole year through a fond remembrance and at the same time render lasting service for good, is something that will show them the way of life eternal. Something that will show them the way of salvation.

Can you find anything better than THE RESTITUTION to present to your friend? Think of this and consider well what you are giving. You cannot purchase a single book that will contain the variety of information that a year's subscription to THE RESTITUTION will afford. Figure over the amount of reading and see how many "dollar books" it would take to give what our paper will give in a year. You have surely some relative, friend or neighbor, who would be made by such a present. Try it a year for them.

Our rate to new names is but One Dollar for the first year to enable all to thoroughly test it. Perhaps your friend is not yet interested in the question of his salvation—something during the year may attract his attention, and by your little gift be started on the way to acceptance of the gospel. Perhaps your friend has thought many times that some day he would seek God, but has put it off from one time to another. Suppose by your gift to him this year he should read just what would decide for him, would you not be thankful you had given him THE RESTITUTION this year?

When sending your subscription put in an extra dollar with your friend's name, and thus try to have him go with you into the kingdom of God—a star in your crown to lay at the Savior's feet.

When purchasing a book or other present for a friend, you are often puzzled to know what to buy. You want to give a "good" book of course, and not being familiar with the authors, etc. you are undecided. You can make no mistake by sending him THE RESTITUTION. Try it this year.

Brethren of the Household of Faith in Michigan. Greeting:

At the Annual Conference in 1908, a committee was appointed to recommend a plan of raising more funds for the purpose of furthering evangelistic work in the state of Michigan. Their report has been published in these columns from time to time, and a great many of the brethren have responded nobly, and much additional work has been accomplished.

During the month of October we had some excellent help from Brother S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, with the result that eight dear ones were added to our number, and we have a promise from him that he will return and give Michigan some additional work during the winter, and we trust the brethren who have delayed sending in whatever they intended giving for this work will kindly respond with promptness, for on this depends how long we can keep Brother Lindsay at work. If we could send our offerings quarterly, it would no doubt be easier than to send the whole amount at once, and that would give us more to use during the year. We cannot afford to let this opportunity pass, so will expect the brethren to respond promptly. Forward offerings to A. K. Richardson, R F D 5, Hastings, Michigan, or the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette Street, Grand Rapids Michigan. We thank you in advance.

Yours in the service of the King,

F. V. BLAKELY, Sec.

Christmas Notice.

The Chicago Bereans wish to notify their friends that they will again take up this year their Christmas work of distributing dinners to the widowed and the fatherless. Those who joined with us last year in the work, were blessed in the giving, and many expressed a desire to help another time. If any one wishes to send Christmas brightness into the little lives, please send your contribution to Miss Gertrude Ellis, 3013 Washington Blv'd, Chicago, Illinois, if sent before Dec. 15. If sent after that date please mail to Leila E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario Street, Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois. We are also dressing dolls for a Jewish mission. Those who desire to bring gladness untold into some little heart, send a dressed doll to the last address.

Signed:—

COMMITTEE

Home Department Visitor.

Dear Ones in Christ:

The Christmas time will soon be here and we will be repeating again the old sweet story. We will read the angel's glad message "Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be unto all people." We will think of another angel's message—"This same Jesus shall so come again in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

Have the years of watching and waiting for this same Jesus been long? Yes, very many years have passed, the pages of history tell the long sad story of how the saints of God have suffered and died, because they too had a message to tell. The blessed promise, "I will come again," has been an anchor of hope, in time of trial and in times of gladness. How we rejoice when some hear and obey the gospel message; and again sorrow fills our hearts as many turn away and follow the path that leads to destruction.

What will be our message to the world at Christmas time of 1909? The Home Department Visitor of 1908 will tell the same glad tidings. Will you not send it to some neighbor or friend? Send ten cents for a copy and see if you do not want to invest one dollar for Visitors. All money received except enough to pay postage, is placed to the credit of the Home Department fund in the Savings department of the Illinois Title and Trust Bank of Champaign, Illinois. As soon as a sufficient fund is accumulated I will publish another issue of the Visitor. This fund draws interest until withdrawn for the purpose of publishing the Visitor. So whenever you send ten cents for a copy of the Visitor you add eight cents to this fund. If you wish to add anything to this fund send to the undersigned at 1009 South Wright street, Champaign, Illinois.

HARRIET E. REICE.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Christmas and New Year Gifts.

The best gift to make is that which will do the recipient the most good. The gift that may lead such an one to receive the Pearl of Great Price, will certainly be the most profitable gift made. Between now and January 1st 1910, I will sell the Pine Woods Bible Class, Student's Text Book, Cunningly Devised Fables of Russellism, and the Bible Study of Hades, all four when taken together, for $1 75. Address me at 625 N. Willow Avenue, Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois.

W. H. WILSON.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured the Vanburen Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Sermons meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 303 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each. 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Those having communications for the Secretary of the Ohio Conference, will kindly notice that at the recent business session of that body, Stanley A. Sanford, 10909 Orville Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, was elected to fill that office for the coming year.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wines. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to every one. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wines is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1 00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2 00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1 00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scriptures, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Woods Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1 25.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones, who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10643 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe and without risk of loss. Stamps cannot be returned and are useless. Money sent in paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution" and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not La. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed, give both old and new address.

In renewing renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has taken a week to get it, addresses it, puts on a few stamps and drops it in the box. He has in many cases performed the hardest work, but neglected two important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Thoughts on the New Year.

Swift as the eagle flies the year,
Our moments fly away;
The years in quick succession roll,
And one can bid them stay.

Our life is shorter than a span,
A humble bourne along;
Now morn, then noon, and night steals on,
And ends this mortal tongue.

The poet who can the past recall
Without a pang of grief?
Who only put their trust in God
Can find a sweet relief.

Each heart and home some sadness feel,
Lost chords of its body:
Some string has broke, some joy has fled,
That mars the harmony.

Unbroken circle's are not here,
Nor perfect happiness;
The cup of nectar will not stay
In this bleak wilderness.

The spring of youth and summer's day,
With autumn's ripe years,
Ar nipped by winter's frost and chill,
Our joys are mixed with tears.

Wherever on earth we pluck the rose,
The thorn is surely there;
In every earthly paradise
There lurks the tempter's snare.

In the early buds of spring-tide,
Or summer's golden hours,
Or autumn's ripe and mellow fruit,
Some sting mingles the flowers.

The past we view, the present feel,
The future yet unknown;
The good or ill that may befall
To God is only known.

We stand upon the virgin year,
And list a longing ear,
And vaguely gaze into the deep
And scan the distant sky.

O God! Thy hand alone can guide
Throughout the new-born year;
Thy voice alone can speak the word
To drive away our fear.

Our needs faith to Thee we raise,
Our hope on Thee we rest;
Our failings stops heal Thou along
Through night's wild, stormy blast.

By day, by night, at home, abroad,
Be Thou our ever tower;
And when at last our race is run—
O dry our latest tear.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JANUARY 5, 1910. NUMBER 1.

Communicated.

Paul and his Last Letter. No. 2.

The Apostle's first imprisonment at Rome was far less restricted than his last. While it is true he was chained for rude and insolent soldier he enjoyed the freedom of his own house, and to receive all that came unto him. Acts xxviii 30. He was a prisoner under guard and not confined to the common prison of criminals. His last imprisonment was very different. In his grateful mention of Onesiphorus he says, "May the Lord grant mercy to the family of Onesiphorus, because he often refreshed me, and was not ashamed of my chain: but being in Rome he searched very diligently and found me." i. 16, 17. Diligent search had to be made to find his place of confinement, so secluded was it. It may have been a dungeon in the old Mamertine prisons mentioned in the history relating to the reign of the first Cæsars.

Any one reading Luke's history of Paul's travels as found in Acts cannot fail to notice the frequent mention made by the Apostle of a number of fellow laborers who travelled with him as he went from place to place, sharing with him both the labors and sufferings which was the common lot of the proclaimers of unpopular truth. While it is true that these were not all with him at any one time, yet some of them were his constant travelling companions. I think he alludes to some of these rather than to the members of the church of Rome, when he says, "At my first defense no one came to me, but all forsook me (Daglott) (may it not be imputed to them.) This forsaking of the Apostle at this most critical moment was the result of fear. It was dangerous for any Christian at that time to take a stand with the Apostle or bear a part in his defence before the court. Back of Demas' movement to make choice of some worldly pursuit was the peril to which Paul was exposed, a trial before the blood thirsty Nero with but one termination—death. Seeing no chance of escape this fellow-laborer of Paul made choice of the safe course, so departed unto Thessalonica. Paul twice makes respectful mention of Demas: once associating him (Philemon v 23) with Epbaphras, Marcus and Lucas, as a fellow-laborer. Demas left Rome the place of danger, to engage in some secular pursuit at Thessalonica; thus deserting the Apostle and the public proclamation of the gospel. It is to be hoped that Crescens who went to Galatia and Titus to Dalmatia, were influenced by other motives than fear and love of the present world. They may have been sent by the Apostle on a mission, as was Tychicus to Ephesus. Paul in his forlorn condition urges Timothy to come to him shortly. Later he writes, "Do thy diligence to come before winter." Passage by sea was impossible at this season of the year. Another reason for haste was his need of the cloak which he at some previous visit left with Carpus at Troas. Winter was nearing. It was already late in the autumn, and he was feeling the chill of the damp climate of Rome and the still damper air of his prison quarters. What a real comfort was that cloak under Paul's circumstances, though in the estimation of some very wise men (?) of the present day a trifling matter to mention in a letter to be handed down to the latest centuries of the church. By mention of this we are the better able to realize the suffering to which he was subjected in the closing days of his ministerial life, and sadly wish that the history of his tragic end, as given by himself, had mentioned some other incidents that must have occurred then and there. He does not tell us of the intensity of his sufferings, nor of the many privations he endured, nor of his hard stinted fare, and equally hard bed. He does not describe his prison quarters, nor tell us, even that he was in prison, but does [illegible] in his brief eulogy of Onesiphorus that he wore a chain. Yet it is quite clear to our minds that the Apostle must be in prison as truly as that he is murdered. This is the only reasonable conclusion in the light of all the circumstances surrounding his case. The character of Nero at this time, with hands red with the blood of his young and beautiful wife; with that of his adopted brother and the blood also of his mother, was without a parallel in the history of Roman rulers.

Christianity under years of preaching by Paul, his co laborers and others had produced a wonderful effect on the popular mind. If the genuine conversions by the power of the gospel were proportionately few, the faith of the masses in idol gods was constantly being undermined by the proclamation of a religion that was destined at no distant day to overturn the whole system of idolatry and to bring into utter contempt all the gods of the Pantheon. All the religions of the conquered nations subjected to the dominion of Rome could be tolerated as not dangerous, and each find a place for its false gods in the great temple of all gods, but the Christian religion was so different from all these and in conflict with them, and especially antagonistic to the religion of the state of which the Emperor was pope or pontifex maximus, that policy demanded the imprisonment and execution of Paul as the ring leader of a dangerous sect; so confinement pending his trial, and not the freedom of his own hired house, as during his first imprisonment, was his inevitable lot. We may be sure that the prisons of that early day under the cruel rule of Nero, were no better than those of Europe less than two centuries ago; the conditions of these abodes of criminals being so horribly bad that the kindly heart of Howard was prompted to undertake the amelioration of the sufferings of these poor wretches who, though guilty of crime had some rights other than bare existence under the worst possible conditions. Paul's prison abode being as bad as these, yet he drops not a word of complaint, only modestly saying, "For which cause I suffer these things." i 12. "Wherein I suffer trouble as an evil doer." ii 9. "Therefore I endure all things for the elect's sake, that they may also obtain the salvation which is in Christ Jesus with eternal glory." v 10. What self-renunciation and self sacrifice is this! He is now an old man worn with the weight of years of labor and suffering. He needs his cloak to his damp and chilly prison. Ye critics will you say it is too trifling a matter to be mentioned among other things of a grave nature and unworthy of inspiration?

Not one iota would I wish omitted from this painfully brief sketch of the great apostle to the nations, any more than I would wish a retrenchment of the history relating to the betrayal sufferings and death of my Redeemer; leaving out the mention of his garment and venture, the dividing of the one and the casting of lots for the other, as recorded by his biographers, which incidents in the tragic scene he is made to speak of by the Psalmist, hundreds of years before his birth or before he had any being. There are no trifling things in God's Revelations. "Only Luke is with me." verse 11. Faithful Luke, the "good physician" and historian is with him to do what he can to supply his wants and cheer his lonely hours. Human sympathy was not entirely cut off. The means of communicating with Timothy were in hand, carried with him into his prison cell, or passed to him afterward by Luke or Onesiphorus. Pen, and ink, and parchment, so often employed before to put the truth in permanent form for the good of the church then, and all after time. From his prison cell, uncomfortable as it was came forth this last letter, so full of warning and exhortation; warnings concerning the consummate selfishness and worldly mindedness of the professed christian church of the last days; exhortations, urging Timothy to faithful adherence to the truth in the face of danger and bitter opposition.

The apostle may comprehended the situation and the liability of all except the very bravest, to desert the standard of truth; hence the utmost need of putting Timothy on his guard against the dangers confronting him at that critical hour of the church's history, when, on the one hand the power of secular magistrates was arrayed against the new religion, to the [illegible] of personal violence and the [illegible]tion of property, and on the [illegible] hand, the seductive influence of popular error were constantly working to corrupt the truth—"the mystery of iniquity was already working," (2 Thess ii 7) especially in the church at Rome where it finally culminated in the great apostasy that almost utterly eclipsed the truth in the midnight darkness, and filled the world with ruin.

Obituary.

Jane O. Hockensmith was born on November 16, 1837, died December 10, 1909, aged 72 years and 24 days. She was united in marriage to Robert Railsback October 30, 1855, and to this union two children were born—Albert H. and Rosetta C. both dying in infancy.

For about fifty years Sister Railsback has been an exemplary member of the Church of God. Possessing a quiet unassuming disposition, her piety based upon earnest conviction, was manifested in that practical way that leaves no doubt in the mind as to the sincerity of the act. Her noble deeds of generosity to the needy will be long remembered by those whose lives were sweetened by the timely aid that she delighted to render. "God bless you," was a phrase to her o deep meaning, because it was accompanied [illegible] substantial assurance in the form of real aid.

The writer with others will remember with deep gratitude her cheerful gifts and thoughtful acts of kindness that like sweet incense rise to bless her memory.

Sister Railsback has for many years been a sufferer from constitutional disease, and knowing that death was near, had like one of old "set her house in order," even to the details of conducting her funeral exercises, all of which was faithfully carried out by her faithful friend and kind assistant Bert Haines.

The writer by request spoke words of comfort from 1 Thessalonians iv. 13 to close of chapter, to an attentive audience gathered at the quiet home in Indianapolis, after which she was laid to rest in that great "City of the dead" Crownhill Cemetery, containing over six hundred acres of land thickly dotted with memorial stones, there to await the roll call at Christ's coming.

As the solemn scene approached the last act, the writer was impressed with the last word so uttered when with heart filled with grief he bowed his head over the casket and with choking sobs said to the dear daughter "Good bye, Cora, until Jesus comes," so in earnest benediction could say "Good bye, Sister, until Jesus comes."

To all the loved ones who read this message, which the writer feels has failed to do full justice to one whose life work has been completed, yet knowing that He who keeps the record of our lives will make no mistake, we would say to each of you, we are rapidly approaching the same common resting place, the sombre shadows of the "deep, dark valley" seem so near that we almost feel the icy chill. God help us all to quickly retrospect the past. If the record shows faults let us hasten to correct them. They will stand as we make them. O Father, keep us in the love of the truth, and the patient waiting for the Christ. As ever in hope,

J. F. W[illegible]ONER.

Sunday School Lesson.

The lesson for January 2, which we have missed, was concerning John the Forerunner of Jesus, Matt. iii. 1-12.

The time was A. D. 26 28, and his work was in the wilderness of Judea. Tiberius Cesar was emperor of Rome, and Pilate governor of Judea.

The object of John's mission is told in verse 3: "The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord. Make his paths straight."

John called on the people to "Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." He dressed in the poorest style, and ate the commonest food. Many went out from Jerusalem, and the regions round about, and were baptized by John, after repenting of their former life. John warned them of coming wrath and urged them to make due preparation to escape it.

Jesus says in Luke xiii. 5: "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."

LESSON FOR SUNDAY, JAN'Y 9.

Baptism and Temptation of Jesus. Matthew iii. 13-17; iv. 1-11.

Golden Text—"In that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted." Hebrews ii. 18.

Time of the baptism probably January A. D. 27, and the temptation 40 days following. Jesus had lived in Nazareth, and come to where John was baptizing at one of the fords of the Jordan. After his baptism he was led into the wilderness of Judea where his temptation occurred.

This lesson gives the account of Christ's preparation for his work. A preparation that enabled him to fight a great battle, and gain the victory over self and the world.

Why was Christ born into the world? Isaiah lxi. 1-3; Luke xix. 10.
How was it that Jesus increased in favor with God and man? Luke ii. 52
Jesus now makes public his decision to place himself on the side of righteousness.
How old was Jesus at this time? Luke iii. 23.
Where was Jesus baptized? John i. 28
Did John object to baptizing Jesus?
What was his objection?
What reason did Jesus give for being baptized?
Do we get any idea of the mode of baptism by verse 16 compared with John iii. 23?
How could John know that Jesus was the Christ? John i. 33.
In what way did God show his approval of Jesus' act in being baptized? Mark i. 10-11.

This ends the private home-life of Jesus. He is henceforth consecrated to his work as prophet and priest. His work as the Messiah commences. The battle with Temptation begins—a testing time. He must prove himself worthy.

Why was it necessary that Christ be tempted? Golden text.
Would he have been any help to others if he had yielded?
Do we have more to tempt us than he had? Hebrews iv. 15.
Could Jesus have served two masters?
Can we? Matthew vi. 24.
How long did Jesus fast?
What does Mark i. 13 say occurred during this time?
What do you think of Jesus as a hero in this battle with Satan?
Do we have opportunities in our lives to show heroism?
What was the first temptation?
Would this have been wrong when Jesus was hungry? Why?
Where do we find the words that Jesus used to rebuke Satan? Deut. viii. 3.
What was the second thing Satan asked Jesus to do?
Could Jesus have summoned angels if he had chosen to do so? Matthew xxvi. 53.
How did he answer the tempter this time?
What was the third temptation?
How did Jesus meet this temptation?
Why did Jesus have to endure trials? Hebrews v. 8-9.
Does our faith need to be tested? 1 Peter i. 7.
After Jesus had gained the victory how was he consoled?

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Who are promised the aid of angels? Hebrews i. 14.
What is promised to those who endure temptation? James i. 12.
What does James iv. 7 say about resisting the tempter?
What does Paul say in 1 Corinthians x. 13 about God's power to help us?

THOUGHTS—The "devil" who tempted Jesus, nor the "angels" who afterward ministered unto him, may not have been personal beings, but the temptation—the tests given Jesus—were the real thing.

The life of Jesus as a carpenter—a working man—now as he steps out from it, merits God's approval:—"In whom I am well pleased."

Not the amount of your money, nor personal appearance count with God, but what you really are, and the use you make of what is entrusted to you.

In all of our trials we are assured that Jesus our Lord sympathizes with us.

It is only through victory that we grow.

"There is no pleasure in life equal to that of the conquest of a vicious habit."

"Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." 1 Corinthians xv. 57.

Editor Restitution:

I am writing this report because it will be of special interest to many readers of THE RESTITUTION.

On Wednesday, December 22, 1909 Mr. Earl Koontz, of Adeline, Illinois, drove to Oregon to be baptized. After cutting through eight inches of ice and opening a space large enough, it was my pleasure to induct Earl into the name of the Lord Jesus. My heart rejoices the more because of all the circumstances attending. First, Earl is my cousin, and one of a family of children left orphans early in their life by the death of both father and mother. Notwithstanding this inconvenience, these children have all grown to womanhood and manhood with the same untarnished reputation to which they fell heir by birth, Marie, Eva, and now Earl, having put on Christ early in life, and we are hoping that Walter and Etta may soon do the same.

Earl has by careful study laid for himself a foundation upon truth from which he cannot be moved. Brethren, rejoice with me and pray for our young brother that he may be faithful to the end.

EXAMINE Your account, and give us a renewal of subscription if you can do so.

We thank you for the favor.

Our correspondents demand much space this week, so we give way.

A NUMBER of our friends failed to send their Christmas letters in time, so we give them this week.

SEND pledges for Brother Huggins new book "The Bible" to him at his address as given at the head of his department.

THIS issue is the beginning of the 1910 volume of THE RESTITUTION. Our endeavor shall be to make it better than ever if possible. We know to begin with, that every one cannot be pleased with every thing. This is because we are not all alike. However, if we try we can each find something that will please us always. The great trouble is we are mostly looking for errors in each other. For 1910 let us try the other way, and look for the good in our Brother. It is there and we can find it easily, and in doing so we shall be happy ourselves all the year through. Try it for 1910.

AT the Zionist Congress just closed at Hamburg there was some degree of friction, but it closed without any great rupture. One thing that was accomplished was the recognition of the western branch of the society in America, with their headquarters in Chicago, giving them the same representation as the New York division. The report says "One fact which stands out most clearly is the decision to concentrate efforts toward the extension of our credit, possessions, and economic position in Palestine. This decisive step was taken with the adoption of the critical resolution ordering the Jewish Colonial Bank to reduce the volume of its European business, and to devote the capital thus released to the extension of our interests in Palestine. From now on our efforts will center in the practical work of preparing the ground for Jews who wish to go there."

Christmas Love Feast.

Dear Restitution:

It is with great pleasure I herewith renew my subscription for another year. The year just closing has been one of great hardships and trials to me, but I thank God for his blessing amidst all. It has taught me many lessons, and made me more humble. With all the trials I have had I have spent many happy hours with THE RESTITUTION paper, and thank you all of the Household of Faith, who have contributed to make that paper bright and helpful, and full of learning to us who are more unfortunate in scholarship. The Lord bless you all in your work, and give us all an abundant entrance into his kingdom when he shall comes.

Sister Townsend says she is still looking for that blessed hope.

JOHN ALLEN TOWNSEND.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

I send Christmas greeting to all of like precious faith through the medium of the Love Feast. I thank God for the hope he has given me through his dear Son, Jesus Christ, and I am striving, I hope lawfully, that I may prove a valiant "soldier of the cross" that I may some day, I trust soon, see my Savior face to face as King of kings and Lord of lords.

Yours waiting the soon coming of the Lord,

MRS. MINNIE DAWSON.

Dear brothers and sisters, Christmas greeting:

As the old year draws to a close it brings with it the remembrance of the greatest event of all ages—Christ's birthday. Doubtless we have not been so faithful to our pledge as we should have been. Then let us all as the old year is passing away welcome the new year in, and try to live nearer the Christ life. Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not.

EMMA SOUTHERLAND.

Dear Brother Underwood:

We see in THE RESTITUTION a call for the Christmas Love Feast. As we can hear from each other better that way than in any other, we feel like we would like a part in it. We are still striving for the high calling in Christ Jesus. We are commanded to exhort one another, and so much the more as we see the day approaching. Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another, and the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord and thought upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith the Lord in that day when I make up my jewels, and I will spare them as a man spareth his own son that serveth him.

Dear ones, may we each so live that we will be counted worthy of a part in that number when Jesus comes, is our prayer.

S. W. & LOUISA PHESLEY.

Editor Restitution:

A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to all of the dear brothers and sisters. Let us all so live that we will hear the Master say Well done.

I was sorry to hear of the death of Brother Neill. His writings will be sadly missed, but we have that blessed hope that our loved ones will be raised again. Oh, may that time soon come.

CYNTHIA THOMPSON.

To the loved ones scattered abroad greeting:

"What think ye of the night." This know also, in the last days perilous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy. Without natural affection, trucebreakers, false-accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good Traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God. Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof. From such turn away.

Do we see any of these things nowadays? We certainly do without any hunting for them. It is a hard struggle, but I am trying to be ready all the time.

MRS. C. C. RAMSAY.

Dear brothers and sisters:

I thought I would write a few lines for the Love Feast. Well, brothers and sisters, when I speak to one I mean all in the one faith, for our Lord says one faith, one Lord, one baptism. Another year is gone. Let us try a little harder to meet our Savior in peace, who died on the cross for you and me.

I wish you all a Merry Christmas and New Year. Brothers and sisters, pray for me when it goes well with you, that I may have my lamp burning when Jesus comes to make up his jewels. Dear ones in the Abrahamic faith, if I never meet you in this life, I hope to meet you in the world to come where there will be no sorrowing and sighing, and there will be no Good-byes in that bright world.

Your Sister in faith.

MRS. R. C. ELLIOTT.

To the sad-hearted ones, the happy ones, and withal the faithful ones in Christ Jesus, greeting:

It is hard for me to write the Xmas greeting this year for a sense of loneliness, sadness, and heartache has taken possession of me as I realize the losses we have so recently sustained. Brother R. S. Dwiggins, who, I believe was the first one to suggest the Christmas letters, has fallen. True, he had passed his days of useful toil, was aged and saddened with the weight of human sorrow, and perhaps was anxious to sleep. But it seems so lonesome to know we can never see him again, in this life. Then the faithful Brother P. Neill, whose sudden death made me almost rebellious at first; for Oh! how we need all such true men, comparatively young, willing and anxious to do, ready at every bidding of the Master, needed so much in the home, the church, the Sunday-School work, that he should have to sheathe his sword, and lay all the work down. Oh, we cannot understand, truly it is the work of the enemy. We weep true tears of sympathy for the lonely wife, who we are glad has Israel's God as her strong tower of strength. Then our eyes fall on the next column of the paper, and I exclaimed, "O Benjie, Sister Jane Railsback is among the slain." True faithful Sister Railsback how many days we have spent in their hospitable home. Think God for such as she and Brother Railsback were. But with these sad thoughts, we still rejoice that unto us has been born the life-giver in whose hands we all are, and all will be well if we can but prove faithful.

We had many pleasant remembrances of the day sent us. Christmas cards from Brother and Sister Wince, Sister M. M. Nicholls, others from Chicago, Indiana, New York, Canada, and from all parts of Michigan for which accept our thanks and to each one we have many a wish for your future good, and a blessed rest when the peace-maker appears as the bright restorer, and life giver.

Yours in his name.

MARY A. WOODWARD

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

It is with much pleasure that I accept the invitation to add my mite to the "Love Feast." I am striving at all times to defend the faith as best I can, but in some instances my patience is tried to the core. There are some who deny the whole story of our dear Savior, and some who say say "its all rot," when immersion is mentioned as the only true means of baptism. I love to read the letters from those of the faith as they appear in THE RESTITUTION for the Love Feast, and also wish to express my appreciation of the writings of all who contribute to the paper, thus [illegible] the whole year. I rejoice when I read of one who has put on Christ by baptism and mourn with those who have been bereaved. My sympathy is extended to all who are afflicted or whose loved ones have been snatched from them by the enemy.

R. A. DANIEL.

To the Church of God everywhere, greeting:

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men!" Beloved in the Lord! We are in these days going through festivals commonly known as Christmas, but it is especial for us, who have voluntarily taken upon ourselves that sacred name, which God hath so highly exalted, that at that name every knee should bow, to celebrate that event in memory of the birth of Jesus of Nazareth, and I wish to quote to you from Matt ii 1-2, "Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, in the days of Herod the king, behold there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews, for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him." But what made these men wise? Think of it brother, meditate on it sister!

In I Kings iv we find that Solomon's wisdom excelled the wisdom of all the children of the east country, and his wisdom is still spoken of today, and his fame is in all nations round about. But what was the cause of his fame? He spake 3000 proverbs, he spake of trees, he spake also of beasts, of fowls, of creeping things and of fishes; in short because he could speak on every subject.

These men were not wise men, because they came from the east to Jerusalem, no, no! but because they spake something on a certain subject, namely: "Where is he that is born King of the Jews?"

You, my brother, and you also, my sister, have made that good confession, that Jesus of Nazareth was the Christ or the King of the Jews and you have through faith been begotten of God, which is our peculiarity. These men became wise because they acknowledged that the child was "the King of the Jews," and we further on read in Matt ii 11, when they were come into the house they saw the young child with Mary his mother and fell down and worshiped him, and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts: gold, frankincense and myrrh.

As it is the custom in this land of ours, that the different members of the families exchange gifts at this festival, why not extend this custom into the household of faith and follow the example set us by the wise men of the east and open our treasures and present to him whom we so dearly love our gifts? that perhaps some one else may be a partaker with us of God's great gift, "Eternal Life."

Wishing you all a merry Christmas and a happy new year, your sister and brother.

ANNIE & HEINRICH JUERGENSEN

Dear Brothers and Sisters of our Father's family:

Almost two thousand years ago the first Christmas greeting was heralded to a waiting world. To those faithful shepherds the angels proclaimed the good news of our Savior's birth "Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people, for unto you is born this day in the City of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord," Luke ii. 20 11.

Across the hills, across the snow,
Christ was born so long ago.

In every Christian land and home will they celebrate our Savior's birthday. To absent loved ones will we send greetings. Whole families will meet in glad reunions, but by many firesides there will be vacant chairs. To those who sit in the shadow, "Lift up your heads and look up," for the same messengers of peace who proclaimed his first advent will soon proclaim his return, and we have his own promise that he "will come again."

We are waiting for the morning,
Of that blessed day to dawn;
When the sorrow and the sadness,
Of this changeful life are gone.

We extend to all Christmas greetings in the name of Christ, wish all a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. God bless every one, and when the last returning Christmas eve will bring peace, good will to men, may we all meet in a glad reunion in the kingdom of God.

ELLA DEFFENBAUGH

Christmas greeting to all:

To the scattered and loved ones, and the called according to his purpose, wherever these lines may fall, whether in the palace or the humble cottage, it matters not, so long as a gleam of sunshine may result and one heart be cheered by its radiance. As we near the supposed time of our Savior's natal morn, our hearts go out in love to all mankind, and especially to those of like precious faith, we extend Christmas greeting, love and good will. We feel an impulse to exclaim as did those of old "Glory to God in the highest," and our minds retrace the old story that is yet ever new, and random thoughts come.

In the dim misty past mid cosmic star,
The wise men beheld an eastern star:
It coursed its way through the heaven's gray dome,
And its radiance cheered the midnight gloom
Of a world enshrouded beneath a pall,
For in cause of sin death had passed upon all.
With dominion lost without hope of regain,
From Adam to Moses death did reign.

That star was Bethlehem's glorious star,
That lighted the earth to regions afar,
And shone o'er Judea's fair domain.
O'er hamlet it glided, o'er valley and plain;
It traveled on in its heavenly way,
Neither varied its course nor rested its stay,
Until it came to Bethlehem of old,
That Morn of peace to mines untold.

Our minds go back to those days when its meekness and humility our loving Savior, who is the author of our salvation trod the shores of Galilee, and though he was rich yet for our sakes became poor. For our example of obedience he suffered even the death of the cross, and so tasted death for every man. It becaths him for whom all things are, and by whom are all things, to make the Captain of their salvation perfect through suffering, and as we have not a High Priest who cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, let us come therefore boldly to the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy and find help in every time of need, for God is not unrighteous that he should forget his labors of love. He who heeds the sparrow's fall will note every loving deed, and we know that we have passed from death to life because we love the brethren.

Seeing these things are true, let us render thanks to Almighty God for the gift of his beloved Son, and take up the song of the angels, Peace on earth, good will to men, and rejoice in hope of the time when righteousness shall cover the earth as the water covers the sea, and feel a delight that we are permitted to live in these latter days, this wonderful age of improvements. Nations without knowing it are carrying out God's will, and he that letteth will let, until it be taken away.

Let us then in these latter days,
Join heart and voice in songs of praise,
With loud hozannahs gladly sing
A tribute to our Lord and King.

Ring Christmas bells, re-echo far,
The glories of that natal star;
Chime louder still o'er all the earth,
The story of the Savior's worth.

Plaint sweetest songs, ye seraphim,
Bow down, adore ye sons of men;
Bring forth the royal diadem,
And crown him Lord of all.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year lovingly to all,

ANGELINE LENT.

To the dear ones of like precious faith:

Our Christmas greeting is a little late, but "better late than never." I am one of the pioneers in the cause we all so much love, having served the Master over fifty years, and can say amid all the discouragements of this life, with its headache and heartache, tired and weary feet, the way grows brighter as I near the end of the journey.

Lift up your heads desponding pilgrims. Think of the joys when Christ shall come, for I reckon these light afflictions are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us. I am persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus.

I have given many years of my life almost exclusively to the work of sounding out the glorious message. But years begin to tell on me, and I know of no way to diminish them. I will be seventy-nine February 19th, if I live. If I die, it will be with my head toward the Kingdom of God.

Let us all be faithful, avoiding all side tracks and cling to the glorious old gospel of the kingdom. We often wonder how the dear faithful Brother and Sister Wince, Wagoner, Halstead and others are this winter. May God keep us all faithful, that we may meet in his coming and kingdom, is the prayer of your brother in Christ.

R. W. WOODWARD.

We praise him who has made it possible for us to tell of his great love and care for us, during the past year. Great is our hope in Him as our Savior, our Life-Giver and soon coming King. Good tidings of great joy are these to his people. Let us rejoice always in his eternal love, dear ones of the faith.

MRS. C. N. HOWARD.

Dear Brother Underwood:

We send you Brotherly Greeting in the Lord and as my time will be up on January 1st, I send you a Money Order to renew. We sympathize with you for the trial we have through the subscribers not keeping up their pay. If they would only think a little that our paper expense is not run by filling it up with advertisements that pays a big sum to editors of all papers. I ask the Brethren if they would rather pay up or force Brother Underwood to do the same as other papers. How many 5cts per week the brethren wastes in a week, 5cts put away each week would give each Brother his money to turn into our Brother by the first day of each year so that he could balance up his books and start out on the New Year a happy man and not have to carry the burden of many nearly the year through.

Dear Brother, yesterday I received a Post Card from Salem, Ohio, stating that our beloved Brother P. Neill, had fallen asleep. What a lose to the brethren at large but, Joy he rests in hope.

Your Brother and Sister in hope.

G. and A. DOWLE.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in the faith of the soon coming King, Jesus:

I am glad I am living in this gospel age. At my age can read and understand the blessed promises. I am getting old and feeble, but with my Bible and the dear, good RESTITUTION, and good comforting words of the brethren, I am trying to live on in a way that others may see that I am looking for the Lord to come. I am trying to teach others of the coming of the Lord, but it seems as though the people are willingly ignorant, for they will not listen; but we must not give up, for this world is full of false teachers trying to deceive the very elect. Some are saying, Where is the promise of his coming? I grieve when I look back over my past life and think I have not done more for the cause of Christ, and now with the Lord's help will try to be more faithful and stronger in the faith, willing to suffer anything for him who died for me, that I might live. Bless his Holy name, the name of Jesus. Let us press on for the mark of the high calling. It won't be long till he calls, Come, ye blessed of my Father, enter into the joys of the Lord.

Your Sister, waiting patiently for the Lord.

MRS E. A. MORRILL.

Dear Restitution:

I am a little late for our Christmas greeting, but wish all our dear brothers and sisters a Happy New Year, and that we may all try and do a little more work for our dear Master through the new year. I have to give praise and glority God for his many mercies to me, and that I have been brought out of darkness into the marvellous light of the gospel of Christ, which is the power of God to salvation, and an entrance to his glorious kingdom when established on earth—not in heaven.

Now dear brethren, I want to say a word for our little Church in Barberton, Ohio. We have our meetings on the first and third Sundays of each month to remember our dear Lord, for as often as ye do this ye show his death till his return. Am sorry to say there are only the writer and Brother and Sister Juergensen, but our Heavenly Father has said Where two or three are gathered in my name, I will be in their midst, and that to bless.

I have taken great pleasure in reading all of your letters in the last issue of THE RESTITUTION. May our Heavenly Father comfort you all and keep you strong in the faith.

We hope if any of our brethren come this way they will give us a call, and may God keep all in the knowledge and love of the truth, till our Master returns and brings peace and good will to earth, when his glory shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea.

Yours for the truth as it is in Christ Jesus,

HARRY EARLE.

Dear Restitution:

I thought I would write to your Christmas love feast. I am thirteen years old. I joined the Church of God when I was eleven years old. I have never regretted it. I love God and I love to study the Bible. We have no Sunday School in our vicinity of our own faith. I have two brothers, a sister, and a mother and father, and my oldest brother and mother and father are also members of the church and we all hope some day to be in the kingdom of God.

Yours in hope.

EMMA CALDER.

Dear Restitution:

Seeing your suggestion for a Christmas love feast will say that I wish all the dear ones of like precious faith a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, and hope we can look back and see some good done in the year past and strive hard to live only for Christ in the New Year.

I have suffered much in the last few years and I certainly do long for the time to come when God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things have passed away. What a blessed place to live where there will be no more sorrow nor pain. May we all meet there is my prayer.

MRS. ELLA CALDER.

To the Dear Ones, Greeting:

Do we often stop to think how precious to us is the little brown book which lays on the stand. Between those lids is the oath-confirmed title to our everlasting home and there alone is the promise of everlasting life, that we may enjoy eternal blessings. Between its worn covers is the storehouse alone where the true bread which gives courage to the timid, strength to the famishing, and eternal life to the mortal can be found.

It is the lamp to our feet, which, if we heed, will keep us in the straight and narrow way which leads to the pure crystal fountain of life. Through this blessed old book he has revealed unto us his plan for the ages, thereby showing us as "The friends of God, because a servant knoweth not what his master doeth."

Therefore, let us ever praise his holy name for the gift of this wonderful, wonderful book, which lightens every burden, makes the years pass by as a peaceful river, gives to the aged rest and comfort sweeter than the joys of youth, and finally robs death of its sting and the grave of its victory.

Yours in hope,

SADIE SKEELS.

A Christmas Greeting.

I would that each member of the Church of God have a merry Christmas. I would that there were no shadows to sadden the festive day of joy to the world. But there are many homes which have been visited by the dread destroyer since our last love-feast, and some dear ones have been taken away.

When our family shall gather around the Christmas Board, there will be a vacant chair. Father Thompson, the white-haired patriarch, will never again sit at the head of our table surrounded with his children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren, as in days agone. We shall miss him.

Brother P. Neill, Brother R. S. Dwiggins, and many others have laid down the burden, and loving hearts are sad. Yet our sorrow is not without hope. They sleep in Jesus, and with tear-dimmed eyes we lift our hearts in gratitude to God, for the gift of his Son to ransom our loved ones from the grave.

Dear readers, a New Year is dawning, shall we make it a year of credit in our Christian life, that we may be ready when our time shall come.

Your brother in hope.

J. H. WILLEY.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

Ebenezer. 1. Sam 7, 12

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10708 Hampden Ave. Cleveland, Ohio Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

The compliments of the season to all our readers.

The chief corner stone of our new church building was laid Dec. 19th, 1909.

The contents of our book as published in Ebenezer of Dec. 15, have been changed to some extent. Nine subjects have been omitted, and thirteen new subjects have been added. With new matter thus introduced with the critical revision of all articles that have been published heretofore the book will be fresh and interesting. Estimates from printers indicate that the book will contain about 20 or 350 pages of solid matter. It will wear a handsome binding of whole cloth, and its size will be 5 by 7½ inches. The price will be $1.00. We have no time during the summer months for literary work; so we are anxious to publish "The Bible" this winter, in February if possible. If we do not soon receive pledges enough to justify us in going to press, the probabilities are we shall abandon the idea of publishing indefinitely. If all the brethren and sisters who are saying to themselves, "I will take one of those books; I must write and tell Bro. Huggins so," would write us a postal with the words, "I will take a book" written on it, promptly upon reading this editorial, the several hundreds of dollars required for publishing would soon be made up or at least made up near enough for us to risk the deficit. Pledges have been coming to us regularly, but we urge that those who contemplate sending us pledges to take one or more books, do so immediately. Act now so we can have the book ready to mail in February.

Nearness of the Lord's Coming.

Dear Restitution Family:

How I love you all! And how I would love to see you all personally even in this life and take you by the hand and bid you God's speed in the narrow way, seeking to encourage you onward as we journey to Mount Zion. Let us not be discouraged while seeking for salvation, only a little longer. We can now see Daniel's "time of trouble coming upon the world."

We need not guess for we "can know when he is nigh, even at the door." The time was when the saints did not know when the day and hour was due, but now it is so nigh upon upon us we do know approximately. Paul says, "We need not look for that day to come except there come first a falling away and the man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition." This is all in the past. Christ told that to generations away back in his day. "They did not know the day or the hour" the angels nor himself.

This text was literally true of Christ, of the angels, and that generation Except Christ they did not know until the leaves of the fig tree were coming out, then they knew summer was nigh. "So likewise when ye shall see all these things (signs) know that I am nigh, even at the door. Verily this generation (that has seen all these signs) shall not pass till all these things be fulfilled." We can know "He is nigh even at the door." This is near as we can get. And surely near enough to know. It seems to me today our world is wicked as it was in the days of Lot and Noah. Let us be glad that God has revealed these signs to us. "Let us look up and rejoice for our redemption draweth nigh." If we are children of our heavenly Father we are glad that these things are true and all about to be fulfilled.

Your Brother looking for the near coming of our Lord and Master.

WILLIAM H. BELL.

Who Were the Sons of God? Gen. vi. 1-6.

I notice a great deal said of late from different writers about the Sons of God that married the daughters of men. One called them the Sethites; but is that in harmony with the Word that has been given as a light to our feet and a lamp to our pathway? Now notice that those sons of God, men called "Men of Old," men of renown, and also giants. History says that Adam and Eve were of very large stature, hence their children would be the same. They of course did not diminish in size until after the fall when decay and death began to prey on their constitution. These men of old men not a race of mankind before Adam, as I have heard men of note try to prove, but were the children born to Adam and Eve before they lost their Eden home. But how do we find this to be true? By careful study of the light given, we find that Adam waited quite a while for Eve his bride, for the time he waited was a type of the Second Adam, now waiting for his bride (the church,) then God said he saw it was not good for man to live alone. I will make for him an helpmeet, so he presents Eve to Adam, and said "multiply,"—fill the earth.

Now I want to ask, Where is the man that will say that he believes that Adam disobeyed God? If he did he was a rebel and an enemy to God and his plan, but the Word does not warrant such to be the case.

God said to the fish, birds, and beasts of the field, "multiply," and is it reasonable that God should withhold that privilege from man that he had created in his own image and likeness? Luke in the third chapter calls Adam the Son of God, hence his children born while in his innocent state, are the Sons of God; but when Adam, the federal head of the human family, took death upon himself, God decreed all in him should die. So dear brother, Paul says, "in Adam all die, even so in Christ, (the Second Adam,) shall all be made alive." The sons of Adam before the fall could not die a natural death, for Adam could not transmit what he did not have. Some I notice say that Adam was mortal before he ate of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, but that cannot be true. If so he was in a dying condition before God passed the death sentence upon him, for mortal man means a dying man, as God said "In the day thou eatest thereof dying thou shalt die," (mar;) so the day he ate he became mortal, before he was neutral, neither mortal nor immortal, but made subject to death, and again, Brother Paul says that death reigned from Adam till Moses. Over them that had not sinned after the similitude of Adam's transgression. Speaking of those that knew no sin as their Father did, and they (the Sons of God,) saw the daughters of men (distinguishing the two classes) Cain's descendants, that they were fair, beautiful to look upon, and they chose wives of them and bore children to them, and thus they became contaminated with sin; for history says that every generation of Cain became more wicked than the other, and nothing good came from Cain, and the earth, (the habitable world) became very corrupt, so God brought on the flood and destroyed them all; for God hath included all sinners, that he might have mercy for all. After the flood God starts the human family again, and says to Noah, and his sons, "multiply," fill the earth, and they too obeyed God, and are still obeying. Now we can see where Cain got his wife. He no doubt had his wife when he killed his brother, for after the murder was made known he took his wife and moved away from the place of his crime, and the record says he knew his wife and she conceived and bare a son, and Cain built a city and called it after his son Enoch. Gen. iv 17; Matt. i. 24, 25.

Now, dear readers of THE RESTITUTION, the Word of God tells us that the first man Adam became a living soul, and that Eve is the mother of all living, so I dont see how we can believe there was a race of mankind previous to the creation of Adam, and I believe that Adam and Eve lived hundreds of years in the Garden of Eden before God permitted them to be tempted. We have no other place for a type of Christ's reign with his Bride (the church) which is to be one thousand years, and as the Anti-types all except the types. We cannot say that the first Adam reigned a full thousand years. The types and antitypes are a true guide when we place them just where they belong, and we must remember that the history of creation is only outlined and it takes careful study and deep thought to grasp God's wonderful plan. Oh how I wish I understood it better. For years I wondered who the sons of God were, and who Cain feared would kill him if his father and mother were the only ones left after he killed his brother Abel, and how God could multiply Eve's conception as part of the curse that fell on her for eating of the tree of knowledge. Rom. v. 14, was also a mystery to me until I saw these things as I have presented them to you.

Your Sister, searching for truth and light.

MRS. CLARK MCCLELLAND.

Communicated.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

There is a cloud of sorrow over the church at Salem, over which Brother Neill has been pastor for seven years. I felt that I would like to send you a fuller account of his sickness and death. He was taken with a severe pain in his left side Thursday afternoon which continued until Saturday evening, when he became more comfortable and slept much of the time until he passed away. Sunday morning he aroused and said, "What a nice bright morning, this is fine. I must have been sleeping quite a while." He showed the same patient, everything all right disposition that he did when in health. Brother Neill has gone to sleep and when he awakens again it will be a much brighter morning than last Sunday, it will be the morning of the resurrection, the morning without cloud. Bro. Huggins spoke words of comfort, he showed that the loss was all to those who were left. No loss to Bro. Neill as his work had been faithfully done and he is resting from his labors. Yes, the loss is all ours and it is very, very great. How we will miss the hearty good morning greeting that always awaited every one at the little meeting house. He was always at his post of duty, he had been blest with good health, up till this time, which made it possible for him to always be at the meetings.

Those who knew Bro. Neill best loved him most. We lived in the same door yard and had a chance to see his every day life, which I can say was one of example as well as precept. We would be safe in following him for an example, which I hope we will not forget to do. His efforts were not only to add to the church, but to have those in the church live lives that would be fitting to our profession.

I feel that too much could not be said in the praise of Bro. Neill, but I will just say he slept quietly away on Sunday afternoon, Dec 12, 1909. And his breath returned to God who gave it. Now let us follow Paul's admonition to Timothy, "Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling.

We are very much pleased that Sister Neill intends staying with us. She will be a great comfort to us and I hope we may be to her. She bears up wonderfully through her trouble, by the strength she draws from the great book of comfort and life.

Your Sister hoping for the soon return of Jesus.

MARY KNOWLES.

Faithful Until Death.

"I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." 2 Tim iv 7, 8.

The questions submitted by our Brother P. Neill, on the "last words" of Paul to Timothy, fittingly close his lessons prepared for us. We cherish the last words of those whose life conforms to their teaching.

The value of a lesson is its power to transform words into actions. The labors of our lamented brother speak as "living epistles." He was faithful until death and a crown of life will be given him, when the Master shall come to reward his faithful servants.

It is fitting that I should publicly acknowledge my appreciation of Bro. Neill's labor in preparing the Sunday Lessons for THE RESTITUTION, because the past three years he has co-operated with me in my effort to extend the Bible School Work. His assistance, encouragement and timely suggestions have done much to strengthen my purpose to continue my efforts in this work. Referring to a letter he wrote me regarding this matter he says: "Sister, do not give up trying, no, no, try, try, and not only try again—but never give up trying—keep hoping—but Remember there are few that push and fewer still that want to push or be pushed."

When I received the brief note saying: "Brother Peter Neill died Sunday Dec. 12, 1909," I was shocked, as though I had personally suffered a great loss, as indeed we all must suffer, the trial of this, our loss of a faithful soldier of the Lord. Brothers and sisters, what should we do when we are these our strong workers taken away? Is it not a challenge to us to fill up the ranks and redouble our own labors. Paul's charge to Timothy shows us the most important work committed to our trust, and the manner in which we should do this work of teaching the Word. "Let us be true, be faithful and increase our efforts that we may be "vessels unto honor, sanctified and meet for the Master's use, and prepared unto every good work."

Be swift, dear hearts, in loving, for time is brief;
Send now love's token to comfort the widow's grief.
Be swift, dear ones in Christ, in saying the kindly word,
When ears are sealed, thy greetings will not be heard.
Be swift dear hearts in doing the deeds thy Master saith,
Lest soon they whom thou holdest dear be past the need.
Dear hearts, be swift in loving; doing—time speedeth on,
And all thy chance of service will soon be gone, be gone.

HARRIET E. BOGE.

At Breaking of Bread.

TITUS III. 8, 9.

"This is a faithful saying and these things I will that thou affirm constantly that they which have believed in God might be careful to maintain good works, these things are good and profitable unto men. But avoid foolish questions and genealogies and contentions and strivings about the law, for they are unprofitable and vain. Neither give heed to fables and endless genealogies which minister questions rather than godly edifying which is in faith so do. Now the end of the commandment is charity out of a pure heart and of a good conscience and of faith unfeigned. From which some having swerved, having turned aside unto vain jangling. We should avoid foolish and unlearned questions knowing that they do gender strife. Knowing that a man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ. Without faith it is impossible to please God. For he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him. In the first place we must believe God. Abraham believed God and God accounted him righteous, so then they which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham. But faith without works is dead, by works a man is justified, and not by faith only. Let every man prove his own work and then shall he have rejoicing in himself alone and not in another. For every man shall bear his own burden. God will render to every man according to his deeds. Glory, honor and peace to every man that worketh good. As we have therefore opportunity let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith. That we may rejoice when we shall hear our Lord say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

ESTHER BURTON.

Editor Restitution:

I wish to give to the dear ones my hopes of a future life. By the way our preachers are cut off by the icy hand of death, we know that when a man reaches the age of 77 his days of usefulness are about over. With Sister Boice I will read that sweet old story. O how I wish all could read and appreciate the deep lessons taught. Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people. What was that message? For unto you is born this day in the City of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord, which shall be to all people.

I am afflicted with rheumatism and other ailments which admonishes me that my race is nearly run. I am like David in Psalms xvii. 15; lxxi. 16-20, which please read.

This may be the last Christmas I shall be permitted to enjoy. Pray for me that I may be preserved unto God's heavenly kingdom.

JOHN FOOTE.

Married.

At the home of the bride's mother, Savanna, Illinois, on Christmas day, 1909, Mr. Harlan S. Bell and Miss Mabel A. Eaton. Mabel is one of our most faithful girls, and as she now goes to build up a home of her own our best wishes go with her. Mr. Bell is a first quality young man and one thoroughly fitted to provide and care for the life companion he has chosen.

We bid these young people God-speed in their new relation, and our prayers are for their success as God sees success.

About forty guests—near relatives—were present. The great display of presents were but mild expressions of the love and esteem in which Harlan and Mabel are held.

S. J. LINDSAY.

Report of Meeting.

To the Restitution;

On Wednesday, November 24, Brother Adams arrived at Moorefield, Nebraska, to hold a meeting in our church, which was just completed and ready for use.

Beginning that evening we continued meeting for several nights with good interest and attendance, the house being full nearly every night, but soon the weather changed and we had snow or rain most of the time for several days, so the bad roads and weather together, were such a hindrance to travel that country people could hardly go at all, but quite a number braved the storms and got there anyway, and we are glad also to say that several from town came almost every night and showed a great interest. Meetings continued until December 12, when Brother Adams departed for Holbrook to hold another meeting.

We trust that the good seed sown by our Brother during this meeting may do much good and those interested ones may soon be not only hearers but also doers of the Word.

VERLIE STEPHENSON, Secy.

Editor Restitution:

I wish to send greeting to all of the faith. I am one of the Lord's poor, but can't think of doing without the grand old RESTITUTION. I have taken it forty-three years, and feel as though through its many years the paper is getting better and better all the time. In a late issue was a question to Bro. D. C. Robison, asking him to harmonize his views on resurrection and judgment with Ezekiel xvi. as I wanted to better answer some Russellite people whom I often meet. My views for many years have been identical with Brother Robison's on resurrection and judgment. It seems to me the only Scriptural way revealed.

Will some Brother give a few articles on the Signs of the Times.

May God's blessing rest on those brethren who have sent money to pay for papers sent to the poor.

Your Brother in hope,

G. W. SMITH.

Editor Restitution:

I enclose a list of twenty names and an order of $2.00, for which please send the paper two months to each address. Most of this list is furnished me by Brother Almus Adams, for my acquaintance is limited. Others might take this hint, and find out from our preachers, who there are among those they meet who will appreciate THE RESTITUTION.

May our Lord soon come,

JESSIE PAGE.

Dear Brother Underwood:

As my time is nearly out, I hasten to renew, as I do not wish to be without the dear old RESTITUTION, as it is the only preaching I have, as I am isolated from any of the faith of Abraham, which I love so dearly. I try to get some to read, but they do not want to learn any thing different from the teachings of men. I want to so live as to be accounted worthy to share in the coming glories. Brethren pray for me that I may remain faithful to the end and receive a crown of life when Jesus comes.

Notice to Illinois Bereans.

Our new lesson books are now ready. In order to meet, in a measure, the expense of printing, the Bereans, who attended the annual meeting agreed to buy their books and to invite any, who felt so inclined, to do the same. This is not necessary, as all Bereans will be provided with the Lesson Books; but the deficit of the treasury can be easily met in this way. Will the Illinois Berean Societies send in their orders as soon as possible to Leila E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario St., Austin Station, Chicago, Ill. Our president wishes all societies to begin the new work the first week in February. After February first send to her for the books at 620 N. Galena Ave., Dixon, Ill. Order about six more than you need and keep them as a reserve fund. When your society is supplied, send the money to Wm. Hardesty, Oregon, Ill. If you wish books sent by express, state plainly, in your order the nearest express office. If you wish them sent by mail enclose the postage in the order, five cents for three books and seven cents for six books, etc.

Illinois has the new Berean Bible Lessons to sell to any isolated societies or members who are not affiliated with Iowa, Indiana or Michigan. Price ten cents.

The garden experience is not only filial resignation, but also victory over natural desires.

Obituary.

Elwood Spencer was born in Henry Co., in 1854. Died at Beirleville, Ind., Dec. 27, 1909; aged 55 years, 11 months and 27 days.

He was the son of Clarkson and Emily Spencer. He is survived by three sisters and two brothers. His father and mother preceded him to the grave several years ago.

He united with the Church of God fourteen years ago, being immersed by Bro. J. S. Hatch. He died firm in the faith and in the hope of eternal life.

He was a cripple from rheumatism since 7 years of age. Several times during his last illness he expressed to different relatives and friends his readiness to fall asleep and his desire thus to be free from his suffering. His good Christian character has been an inspiration to his associates. We hope to meet him again in the time of the great awakening.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS.

Mary Hummell-Wolfe was born in New York State, November 10, 1844, died at her home near Box Elder, Nebraska, October 20, 1909. She was married to W. B. Wolfe in DeKalb County Illinois, January 18, 1865. Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe moved to Red Willow County, February 16, 1879, where they have since resided. Seven children are still living: Mrs. Belle McDonald, Indianola, Nebraska; Mrs. Mary Douchy, Stockville; Maxwell Wolfe, Box Elder; William B. Wolfe, Billings, Montana; Sadie Inderbitzen, Portland, Oregon; and Bertha D. Stone, Sherwood, Oregon. Mrs. Wolfe had been suffering from a nervous disease for a number of years. She was taken worse October 12 and passed from this life October 20. Her daughters, Mrs. McDonald and Mrs. Douchy were with her during her last days as was also a sister, Mrs. Siegler and husband, of Beaver Crossing. Mrs. Wolfe was a constant Christian, having been a member of the Church God of since her tenth year. The funeral services were conducted from the Box Elder church Friday, October 22, at 2 p.m. F. C. Taylor officiating, interment in the Box Elder cemetery. A large number of friends were present to pay a last tribute to a worthy friend and neighbor. The bereaved ones have the deep sympathy of all in their affliction.

The Indian Boy and His Bible.

In the early days of American history, it is told that a preacher found a bright Indian boy, told him about Christ, gave him the New Testament, and asked him to read it and be ready to do his duty when he came again. They separated, the preacher going over his long circuit, and the boy to his wigwam to study his strange new book. Three long months passed, and the two met again. The preacher asked the boy if he had learned what his duty was, and he said he had.

"What is it, my son?" said the preacher.

"Duty of Injun is to be baptized," answered the boy.

The good man thanked the Lord.

The boy asked, "When can Injun be baptized?"

"To day," said the preacher.

"Where will Injun be baptized?" he continued.

"I will baptize you here," replied the preacher.

The boy, puzzled, looked all round, and, seeing no water asked, "Where's the water for baptizing Injun?"

"Here it is," said the preacher, pointing to a pitcher on the table.

"You no put Injun down into the pitcher," was the quick reply.

"I'll not put you in the pitcher," said the preacher, "but will pour the water on your head."

Turning away in bitter disappointment, he said, "You give Injun wrong book."

What a commentary on the simplicity of the Bible story of baptism. This honest-hearted child, who had never heard of a Greek lexicon, and knew not the meaning of theology, reads this story without prejudice, learns that it is the duty of a lover of Jesus to be baptized, and in order to baptism he must go down into the water. And perhaps there is not a soul beneath the skies which, under similar circumstances, would not reach the same conclusion.—M. M. Davis, in Christian Standard.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

Obituary.

Robert Starbuck Dwiggins was born November 12, 1884, in Clinton county, Ohio, but his childhood was spent in Grant county, Ind. At the age of twenty-four he removed to Rensselaer, Ind., and entered the law office of General R. H. Milroy. He began practice in 1860 and was elected prosecuting attorney in that year.

In 1861 he enlisted under Capt. Milroy in the Ninth Indiana regiment for three months and served through the West Virginia campaign. The next year Governor Morton commissioned him a recruiting lieutenant and he enlisted over two hundred men for the 87th Indiana volunteers and one company for the 99th regiment.

He was a presidential elector on the Republican ticket in 1868 and cast the vote of his district for President U. S. Grant.

He served in the state senate, representing the counties of Jasper, Newton, Benton, White and Pulaski in 1870 and in 1871. In 1884 he was nominated for governor on the Prohibition ticket.

In 1862 he married Miss Fannie Travis. They had two sons. Elmer Dwiggins, born in 1863, and now residing in Palisade, New Jersey, and doing business in New York City; and Jay Dwiggins, born in 1866, now living in Berkeley, Cal., doing business in San Francisco. A daughter, Gertie, died in infancy.

After practicing law twenty-two years and engaging with his brother in the banking business, he was forced through failing health to retire from active business in 1886 and traveled in search of more agreeable climates.

His wife, Fannie T. Dwiggins, who accompanied him on these travels and nursed him with unflagging care, saw him largely restored to health, but was destined to pass on before him. She died suddenly in Rensselaer in 1898.

Mr. Dwiggins early became a member of the Church of God, and was a leading spirit in it for many years. He held a letter as a minister of the Gospel from the Indiana conference and devoted many of his later years to that work.

In 1900 he married Mrs Ella Barber Weethee, widow of a prominent member of the same church. They removed to California, remaining there until 1907.

Mr. Dwiggins spent his last years with his son, Elmer, on the cliffs of the Palisades, opposite New York City.

He died of a stroke of apoplexy after a brief illness at 5:50 a. m on December 17, 1909, aged 75 years, 1 month and 5 days. Elder J. H. Willey and Elder D. T. Halstead, two old friends and brothers in the church, conducted the funeral services on Sunday in the same church where Mr. Dwiggins had embraced the faith and where his voice had so often been heard.—Rensselaer Republican.

The Bible.

A DECLARATION OF ITS FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES, WITH EXPLANATIONS OF MANY DIFFICULT TEXTS.

The above is the title page of a book the Editor proposes to publish as soon as enough subscriptions are received to pay the printer. The subject matter of the book as now prepared consists of explanations of more than one hundred and twenty six subjects; and to these will be added other subjects readers may send us while the book is being gotten ready for the press.

The primary design of the book is to teach aliens the truth. Selections from our writings in THE RESTITUTION, especially from the "Question Box," have been carefully made, and thoroughly revised. The only book ever published by our Church which formulates the fundamental principles of the gospel in propositions, and then explains all difficult texts, introducing every conceivable Bible subject—a variety most pleasing to the reader.

The price will not be less than 25 cents, and not more than $1.00. Do not send money now, but send us your pledges, and when we have received enough pledges to pay the printer, we will go to press, and will announce when our pledged subscribers can remit the money. In sending us pledges to take one or a number of books, be sure and give your correct address.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

Thousands and thousands of books will be purchased and given to friends as Christmas presents this year. Other thousands of subscriptions to magazines and periodicals will be given. Most of them will be of a nature that please for the moment, but which have but little of actual worth in them. After a few days most of these books will have been read and then laid away to be kept in memory of the giver, and yet of no more real value than so many little blocks of wood.

The present that is of most value is the one that is capable of doing the most good. After such a book is once read, it has done all the good it can possibly do, and what little it did do was of a fleeting nature. A gift that will keep before your friend the whole year through a fond remembrance and at the same time render lasting service for good, is something that will show them the way of life eternal. Something that will show them the way of salvation.

Can you find anything better than THE RESTITUTION to present to your friend? Think of this and consider well what you are giving. You cannot purchase a single book that will contain the variety of information that a year's subscription to THE RESTITUTION will afford. Figure over the amount of reading and see how many "dollar books" it would take to give what our paper will give in a year. You have surely some relative, friend or neighbor, who would be aided by such a present. Try it a year for them.

Our rate to new names is but One Dollar for the first year to enable all to thoroughly test it. Perhaps your friend is not yet interested in the question of his salvation—something during the year may attract his attention, and by your little gift be started on the way to acceptance of the gospel. Perhaps your friend has thought many times that some day he would seek God, but has put it off from one time to another. Suppose by your gift to him this year he should read just what would decide for him, would you not be thankful you had given him THE RESTITUTION this year?

When sending your subscription put in an extra dollar with your friend's name, and thus try to have him go with you into the kingdom of God—a star in your crown to lay at the Savior's feet.

When purchasing a book or other present for a friend, your are often puzzled to know what to buy. You want to give a "good" book of course, and not being familiar with the authors, etc. you are undecided. You can make no mistake by sending him THE RESTITUTION. Try it this year.

Brethren of the Household of Faith in Michigan, Greeting:

At the Annual Conference in 1908, a committee was appointed to recommend a plan of raising more funds for the purpose of furthering evangelistic work in the state of Michigan. Their report has been published in these columns from time to time, and a great many of the brethren have responded nobly, and much additional work has been accomplished.

During the month of October we had some excellent help from Brother S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, with the result that eight dear ones were added to our number, and we have a promise from him that he will return and give Michigan some additional work during the winter, and we trust the brethren who have delayed sending in whatever they intended giving for this work will kindly respond with promptness, for on this depends how long we can keep Brother Lindsay at work. If we could send our offerings quarterly, it would no doubt be easier than to send the whole amount at once, and that would give us more to use during the year. We cannot afford to let this opportunity pass, so will expect the brethren to respond promptly. Forward offerings to A. K. Richardson, R F D 5, Hastings, Michigan, or the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette Street, Grand Rapids Michigan. We thank you in advance.

Yours in the service of the King.

F. V. BLAKELY, Sec.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think. One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Berans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 303 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Puore's tracts, nor for D.C Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

THE article on "Salvation. What is It?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each. 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Christmas and New Year Gifts.

The best gift to make is that which will do the recipient the most good. The gift that may lead such an one to receive the Pearl of Great Price, will certainly be the most profitable gift made. Between now and January 15 1910, I will sell the Pine Woods Bible Class, Student's Text Book, Cunningly Devised Fables of Russellism, and the Bible Study of Hades, all four when taken together, for $1 75. Address me at 625 N. Willow Avenue, Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to every one. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2 00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1 25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10648 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JANUARY 26, 1910. NUMBER 4.

Jeanie McDonald
29

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and noble souls, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the money of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name by which it has previously been sent, and state when it commenced, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams and her husband sends us a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid as to see everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has been carried to hold it, addresses it, puts on a stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, has neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

Poetry.

Yigdal.

Extolled be the living God, and lauded be His name;
He doth exist and will there endless aeons be the same.

One God is Unity, and Unity like His there's none;
Ah! inconceivable is He, and thro' all times is one.

Prior to each created thing, of wondrous shape and grace,
He was the first, and, ere He was, can none commence to trace.

Behold! He rules the Universe, His creatures teeth fly
The greatness of his awful might, His glorious sovereignty.

The spirit of His prophecy hath He bestowed on those Whom, for the glory of His name, our Heav'nly Father chose.

Through great the fame of Israel's sons, meek Moses name excelled;
Above, among her seers, he God's similitude beheld.

A law of truth and life He gave, our everlasting flesh,
By him who was the faithful guide and teacher on the Mount.

This law sublime and beautiful, for any new to change;
Our Shield, Hero' all eternities, will nevermore exchange.

The secret courses of our thoughts doth th' Allwise watch and know;
And clear to Him, all hidden ends their own commencement show.

His loving-kindness bestoweth those who well their task fulfil.
A chast'ning hand falls heavy on transgressors of His will.

His messenger He'll surely send upon the final day,
Redeeming those, who, strong in faith, for His salvation stay.

In love He will the dead revive that sleep beneath the ground,
For ever blessed be His name, His praise for-ever resound!

—Florence Abrombarg, in Jewish Chronicle.

It is your privilege to live such a life of prevailing prayer and purity, that every one with whom you associate will be compelled to respect and confide in you as a holy man or woman of God.

Pine Woods Bible Class.

The lesson we have fixed for tonight is the TYPE AND ANTITYPE.

There is nothing which so clearly fixes the inspiration of Holy Scripture as the relation between type and antitype, and especially that of Jesus being the antitype of the Paschal Lamb.

Now let the Class express their thoughts on this matter. Lud, how does this impress you?

Lud My mind is impressed with the words of the Lord, as found in Luke xxiv 44, which I will read to you: "And he said unto them, these are the words which I spake unto you while I was yet with you, that all things must be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moses, and in the prophets, and in the Psalms concerning me."

Teacher What does the class find in the law of Moses concerning the Paschal lamb, and show how it was fulfilled in Jesus, to which it pointed. When was the Paschal lamb to be purchased?

Carrie As to the time of the purchase, See Exod xii 3, 6: "In the 10th day of this month, they shall take every man a lamb * * * Ye shall keep it until the fourteenth day of the same month."

Teacher When was Jesus sold as the Paschal lamb?

Albert John xii verses one and two says: "Then six days before the Passover came Jesus to Bethany, where Lazarus was which had been dead, whom he raised from the dead. There they made him a supper; and Martha served, etc." Notice the law fixed the fifteenth of that month for the Passover to be eaten. If became to Bethany "six days before the passover," that would make it the ninth day of the month when he was at Bethany. Now read verse 12: "On the next day (the tenth of the month) much people were come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem took branches of palm trees, and went forth to meet him, and cried Hosanna: Blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord."

At this supper Judas found fault with what he considered the waste of ointment, etc.

Matt xxvi gives an account of the "supper," "ointment," etc., and in the 14th and 15th verses it says: "Then one of the twelve called Judas Iscariot, went unto the chief priests, and said what will ye give me, and I will deliver him unto you? And they covenanted with him for thirty pieces of silver."

As the Paschal lamb according to law was to be purchased on the 10th of the first month, so Judas sold the Lord as the antitype on the tenth of the same month. An exact fulfillment.

Teacher When was this lamb to be slain?

George See 2 Chron xxxv 1, "And they killed the passover on the 14th day of first month."

Teacher Was Jesus as antitype slain at the exact time?

Albert He was. According to the law. The lamb must be slain on the 14th and eaten on the 15th.

We must bear in mind that Jewish and Roman time are not the same. On Roman time the day of the 14th would commence at midnight of the 13th, and end at midnight of 14th.

On Jewish time the 14th would begin at sunset on the 13th, and end at sunset of the 14th.

Hence the night of the 14th must follow the day of the 13th, on Jewish time, but on Roman time, the night of the 14th would follow day of 14th. It is important to note that we are dealing with Jewish time.

The passover feast was always eaten on the day following the preparation. The preparation was on the 14th and the feast on the 15th of the first month. The law allowed no departure from this time. In the ninth chapter of Numbers we read: "Ye shall keep the passover at its appointed season * * * He shall be cut off from among his people, because he brought not the offering of the Lord at its appointed season."

Teacher Did Jesus eat the passover at its "appointed season?"

Arlon Why no: he could not, because he was slain at the same time the Jews slew the Paschal lamb, on the 14th of the month called the "preparation of the passover."

Teacher Well, if you can show that he was slain on the day of the "preparation of the passover," you can prove that he did not eat the regular Jewish Passover, because it must be eaten at its "appointed season."

Arlon I can easily prove that he was slain on preparation day, and that he was in his grave on the day the Jews ate the Passover. In the first place I will call attention to the supper he ate with his disciples when he washed their feet.

At that supper he informed them that there was a traitor present, who was about to betray him. He said to this traitor: "That thou dost do quickly." "Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spoke this unto him. Some thought because Judas had the bag, that Jesus had said unto him, Buy those things that we have need against the feast." If the things needful for the feast had not at that time been purchased, he could not have eaten with his disciples the Jewish Passover.

The next we hear, the traitor hath betrayed him. In John xviii 28, we read: "Then led they Jesus from Caiaphas unto the hall of judgment: and it was early: and they themselves went not into the judgment hall, lest they should be defiled; but that they might eat the passover." We find Jesus a prisoner on trial before Pilate, and up to this time the Jews had not eaten the passover, because "the appointed season," had not yet come.

See also John xix 14, 16: "And it was the preparation of the passover. (And they killed the passover on the 14th day of the first month; Chron xxxv 1) and about the sixth hour; and he saith unto the Jews behold your king! * * * Then delivered he him therefore unto them to be crucified.

Now note particularly that it was the day of the "preparation of the passover," that Pilate delivered him to be crucified. The exact time the Jews slew their paschal lamb. Our Lord who was sold for thirty pieces of silver on the tenth of the month, the day set aside for the purchase of the paschal lamb, and slain on the preparation day, of the 14th of the month. For additional evidence see John xix 41, 42: "In the garden a new sepulchre wherein was man never laid. There laid they Jesus, therefore because of the Jews' preparation day."

Jesus was both dead and buried when the "appointed season," to eat the passover arrived; hence he could not possibly have eaten the Jewish passover.

The next day that followed the preparation was the "appointed season" for eating the passover. At this time Jesus was in the grave. See Matthew xxvii, 62 63: "Now the next day that followed the day of the preparation, the chief priests and Pharisees came together unto Pilate, saying, Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while he was yet alive, after three days I will rise again. Command, therefore, that the sepulchre be made sure," etc.

This positive proof that he was in the grave on the feast day. How literally God's types and shadows correspond.

Teacher. There is another thing in the last Scripture quoted, that should not be overlooked, and that is the phrase "After three days I will rise again." It does not say. Sometime within three days I will rise again, but "after three days." He could not use the phrase "after three days" until the three days were in the past. What other Scripture does this harmonize with?

Ella. Mark viii 31: "And he began to teach them, that the Son of Man must suffer many things, and be rejected of the elders, and of the chief priests and scribes, and be killed and after three days rise again."

Teacher. Is there not another Scripture which tells how many nights, as well as days he remained in the grave?

Ella. Yes sir, there is. Matthew xii 39 40: "An evil and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign; and there shall no sign be given it but the sign of the prophet Jonas: for as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly, so shall the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth.

Teacher. Well, what was his being in the earth three days and three nights to be a sign of?

Carrie. His Messiahship.

Teacher. Well, if he failed to be in the heart of the earth that long what then?

Carrie. If the sign failed, it would prove that he was not the Messiah, just as surely as his being in the heart of the earth the required time would prove him to be the Messiah.

Teacher. About what time of day was the burial?

Carrie. At the close of the day on which he was crucified. See Matthew xxvii. 57-58: "When the even was come, there came a rich man of Arimathea named Joseph, who also himself was Jesus' disciple: he went to Pilate and begged the body of Jesus. Then Pilate commanded the body to be delivered." Notice that he did not even go to Pilate till evening had already come, and he had then to return and make preparation for burial, and convey the body to the grave; so it must have been just at the point of sunset.

Now, if Friday was the crucifixion day, and he was raised at sunrise on Sunday morning, that would give Friday night and Saturday, day and night, which would make his entombment one day and two nights. Just two days and one night short of the "three days and three nights," which would surely be a complete failure of the "sign." This is what Protestants get for following the teachings of the Roman Catholic Church.

Teacher. At what time does Scripture say that he was raised from the dead?

George. Matthew xxviii. 1 says "In the end of the Sabbath (Saturday) as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre," etc. The context shows the following events happened at "the end of the Sabbath." The angel of the Lord rolled back the stone, and said to the women, "Fear not ye, for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here, for he is risen." Thus at "the end of the Sabbath" the resurrection had already become a fact.

Teacher. Do other translations harmonize with the Common Version as to the resurrection being in the end of the Sabbath?

Lucy. Yes sir; I will quote a few—"At the close of the Sabbath," Robinson. "About the end of the Sabbath" Lange. "Toward the end of the Sabbath," Dr. Schaaf. "The Sabbath at even," Tyndale. "Upon the evening of the holy Sabbath," Cloverdale "Late in the Sabbath," Bible Union. "Now late on the Sabbath as it was getting dusk," Interlinery.

This testimony abundantly proves the resurrection did not take place early on Sunday morning, but "in the end of the Sabbath," or as Dr. Schaaf puts it "toward the end of the Sabbath"—Saturday.

Teacher. Now the sign that proves Jesus to be the true Messiah was that he should be "three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." Now as we have proved that he was raised on Saturday at the close of the day, we can reckon back three days and three nights, and find the time of crucifixion, cannot we?

Albert. Yes sir; we can do so. The month was Nisan, supposed to correspond with our April. I will now trace it back three days and three nights—

Saturday April 17. 3d day.
Friday	"	16 2d day & 3d night
Thursday	"	15, 1st day & 2d night
Wednesday	"	14, 1st night.

This reckoning back brings us to Wednesday night, the fourteenth of the month, the time the Jews slew the paschal lamb.

Teacher. Please show us how you get the day of the month. You have given the day of the week clearly, as you could not get anything else dating from Saturday night.

Albert. The day of the month is as easily arrived at as the day of the week, as follows: John xii. 1. "Then six days before the Passover, came Jesus to Bethany." As the Passover always took place on Nisan the 15th, then six from fifteen leaves nine. That makes his arrival at Bethany on Nisan the ninth. If you continue to reckon the day of the week from Saturday night on which he rose, you will also find the day of the week of Nisan the ninth when he arrived at Bethany.

Friday	April	9
Saturday	"	10
Sunday	"	11
Monday	"	12
Tuesday	"	13
Wednesday	"	14
Thursday	"	15
Friday	"	16
Saturday	"	17

Teacher. Now we can clearly see from the Scriptures quoted, together with reasonable and logical deductions, that Jesus filled the law in every minute detail. He was sold on the tenth of the month, offered on the fourteenth, and rose from the dead "after three days;" in fact was in the grave full "three days and three nights," proving his Messiahship accurately.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 23.

Everything went on smoothly at Auntie Willard's. There was no jar, no fretting, not even on Monday with a two weeks washing to do for nine or ten people. "Dabby" came and did the rubbing and the rest of us helped with the sudsing, rinsing and hanging on the line, and all worked together at the ironing, enjoying each others conversation so much, that the hard work was scarcely felt.

Shall I tell you the story of one o Auntie Willard's Mondays? It may help you to get through that dreaded day a little more comfortably. She had "come to prize Monday religion as something quite superior to Sunday religion, being a kind of matter-of-course religion, everybody being religious on Sunday. Sleeping late in the morning to show that they were not at all worldly minded, and taking time, it might be, all too precious on other mornings, for family prayer, spending the rest of the day in lounging about, reading Sunday papers, riding out for health, or in dressing up and attending divine service. All this done in a very religious way. But what becomes of this religion when Monday comes? It is as effectually gone as the day itself." So thought Auntie Willard. "She wanted a religion that would last her and her household over Monday. She made this a subject of very special prayer in her family and in social meetings. She asked for a religion that would not only help them to honor God on the day of rest, when everything favored his service, but that would help them over Monday and all through the week.

On one occasion she said with her whole heart, 'My Father, it is easy to be patient and good today, but give me a religion sufficient for the morrow.' The morrow came with its delays of cares, and just as an abundant supply of water was needed for a large wash, it was announced, 'The cistern is dry!' This is overwhelming. What could they do? the well sixty feet deep and already turbid? But it was now the only resort, yet even here calamity awaited them for just as the drawing had vigorously commenced there came a crash, the chain had broken and both buckets were in the bottom of the well! What now?

Her husband was in haste to be off on important business in the already waiting buggy, the men were in haste to get into the field while it was yet cool; could they stop?

O yes! the domestic wheel must move on even if other things had to wait, so the grappling-iron was let down and the buckets, much injured were drawn up and had to be mended. The water was then secured without further trouble,—every one was glad and anxious to comfort and help the others. The meal was eaten and the day passed of more than pleasant ward, and everything all praised the Lord for Monday religion."

We spent three weeks at Brother and Sister Willard—Rowland—coming home to remain over Sunday—and then went over to Philadelphia to the Willard accompanying them and making me acquainted with many of her friends, among the rest Brother and Sister Stulb, Brother and Sister Younger, Sister Helgenson, Sister Reeves, Sister Bussier and her daughter Mary, Brother and Sister George A. Brown and Brother and Sister King with their daughters—Lydia and Lizzie. One evening we went over to Camden—accompanied by Sister Stulb and some other Sisters—to hear the Irish Evangelist, George C. Needham. He spoke on "Christ in the Types" and never have I listened to a more interesting discourse, although Auntie Willard thought he talked like a school boy, afraid of his audience, the meeting held in a Presbyterian church and the congregation mostly Presbyterians, and the tunes Long-Meter.

Brother Needham married Sister A. E. Annabel of Boston, who was quite a writer and a valued friend of Brother Hudson's. She was present at Brother Willard's the night of Brother Hudson's death, held his hand when he breathed his last and wrote his obituary. She now married of her husband to Japan in June 1898 Brother Needham has not long been dead. Auntie Willard and I on our return from Camden spent the night with Sister Stulb, sleeping in the third story where it was so quiet we did not awaken until eight o'clock. Both they and Brother Younger's were well fixed and I think owned their own homes. Father had become acquainted with the brethren and sisters on his previous visit, so while I was having a good time with them, he was in the Library of the Pennsylvania Historical Society, looking over the curious relics of olden days.

After Auntie Willard returned to Haddonfield we made our home with Brother and Sister King, and expected on Sunday to meet with the "Age to Come" brethren of whom Brother Bull was the leader, but he,—seeming to fear we might be heretics—sent such a chilling note, we did not go, but I escorted by Sister Lizzie Brain and a young married couple from Sister Helgenson's went to a colored church instead, while father, Brother Wilcox and other friends were elsewhere.

Sister Lizzie Brain often used to say to me, said, "What! the wife of Brother J. L. Wines, who writes for THE RESTITUTION?" emphasizing the J. L. Wines, as if he were very much thought of among the brethren in the Quaker City. It was quite a surprise to me.

This Sister held quite an important position in some factory, and it was amusing to hear her tell in how many ways the factory workers tried to keep it from being known that they had to make their own living. She was loud in her praise of Brother Work, the man who was active and so influential in getting up the General Conference at Philadelphia. He was a very generous man, and "was carrying," she said, "a large part of the financial burden of the church of which she was a member." She was to go with me in the afternoon to Dr. Seiss' church, but gave up the idea and Brother Willard went instead. On reaching the place however, we found he had no appointment for that day, so I did not get to hear him. In the evening Brother King and family, went with father and I to listen to Brother Geo. A. Brown, who was with us on "Age to Come" views, but did not preach them. I think we heard him several times. He had large congregations and held them spell-bound with his eloquence. I never heard a finer reader than he was, but he certainly was not the brave man that Brother S. G. Clarke was or he would have preached the truth if he had died for it.

AUNTIE SINCE.

To Be Continued.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as king of kings and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief in the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

We thank you for the favor.

LET all members of the Plymouth Church be out next Sunday to meet Brother Carl Thompson, and hear the message he brings us from God's holy Word.

REPORTS come of a flood of water in France that assumes the proportions of a national disaster. Bridges are swept away, railways, pumping and lighting plants, with many important buildings, have suffered very greatly. Paris and the surrounding districts, are the worst hit.

MR. LEON Zolotkoff, in a letter to the Chicago Tribune, concerning the late Zionist congress at Hamburg, says, "The gathering was a remarkable one in more than one respect. In point of bringing home to the friends of the Zionist movement, as well as the public in general, the true inwardness of Zion, its aspirations and plans for the near future, this congress has done more than any of its eight predecessors during the thirteen years since the formulating of the so-called "Basle program." It was replete with interesting dramatic incidents. It also will be known by the new turn which the movement has made in the direction of practical work in Palestine."

Going on he tells of the world-wide representation at the meeting, and the enthusiasm manifested. He says, "Long before the congress convened there seemed to be a feeling pervading every activity connected with the congress that the Zionist movement had reached a decided turning point in its progress. Every delegate, no matter where he hailed from, appeared to carry with him the subconscious conviction that unless all the stored up energy and accumulated substance of Zionism is at once turned to practical uses in Palestine something might be missed."

"If any single word could aptly characterize the mental attitude of the majority of the delegates in that respect that word would have been 'impatience.'"

"Two questions were uppermost in the minds of the delegates: Has the revolution in Turkey upset the Zionist program? Second, Will the congress consent to the transfer of all available means of the Zionist movement to Palestine? Both questions have been satisfactorily answered and elucidated by the congress. With the first Dr. Max Nordau dealt in his address in a clear, incisive, and authoritative fashion. He said, among other things, by way of restating the object of Zionism, that what we desire is to form a nationality within the Ottoman state, like all the other nationalities in the empire. Thus we demand the recognition of our nationality; there must be no doubt about that. It will be our ambition to earn the reputation of being the most loyal, the most reliable, and the most useful of the Turkish nationalities, to contribute the most zealously to the weal, the progress, and the power of the empire. But let it be understood that we will do all this solely as a nationality, as a Jewish nationality. That is our frank reply to certain Turkish utterances. We have been told: 'Come to Turkey as much as you like. You will be welcome. You will find everything you desire, fertile, cheap, possibly free land, security against persecution, all the liberties according to every citizen of the Ottoman empire. But you must become Turkish subjects, adopt the Turkish language, merge with the Turkish people so that you cannot be distinguished from other Turks.'

"In the face of such views we are impelled by pride and self respect to refer to our original program. On this point concessions are impossible. If the Jews want to assimilate they can do it nearer home and more cheaply; they can do it where they are and save the fare. You are Zionists, however, just because you do not wish to disappear as Jews. You wish to go to Palestine, the land of your fathers, to live and develop there as national Jews.

"Our ideal is to see a Jewish people in the land of its fathers, ennobled by a 2000 year old firmness of character, respected on account of its honest, cultural work, an instrument of wise progress, a champion of justice, an apostle and personifier of brotherly love. Of this idea I will not surrender an iota. On this point there can be no concessions. This idea I would not exchange for all the treasure in the world, let alone for a dividend. If Turkey today opposes the realization of my ideal, I must wait. To wait long is a misfortune, but no disgrace. Vacillation is a disgrace. My ideal is eternal. It embraces every hope. To abandon hope is to commit suicide. Therefore, I exclaim as loudly as I can: Back to the Basle program! Let us never forget that we aspire to the creation of a publicly recognized, legally assured home for our people. Let us never forget that we have to cleanse the shield of the Jewish people from all the mire which a hatred that has lasted for 2000 years has begrimed it."

Sunday School Lesson.

FEBRUARY 6, 1910.

Almsgiving and Prayer. Matthew vi. 1-15.

Golden Text—"Take heed that ye do not your righteousness before men, to be seen of them." Matthew vi. 1—Revised Version.

This lesson is a continuation of last Sunday, and the circumstances surrounding are the same.

The subject of this lesson primarily is Sincerity, as opposed to Hypocrisy. No one can be a useful member of the community—can have no claim to goodness, no true manhood, no true religious life, without sincerity.

What did Jesus use the words "take heed" for?

Does it not show how important he deemed this matter of sincerity?

He would rebuke that portion of his audience who were in the habit of making exhibition of their piety by outward demonstration and lavish giving of what they had gotten unlawfully or by oppression. We must remember that a mixed multitude was within reach of his voice, and he would impress lessons that were needed. Hence the importance of emphasizing this admonition and "take heed." It was worthy of special thought.

In this Sermon on the Mount which we are studying, there are various principles brought out by Jesus, and when we get them within our grasp we can better understand what is designed.

What is the meaning of "do not your alms" or "righteousness," as the Revision has it?

It was necessary in those days as in ours, to relieve distress in those about us. The principle here involved is shown in the manner of doing this work. Men work from motives. What motives prompted the giving of alms in the minds of some men?

Why not do right to be seen of men?

Would "to be seen of men" be a good motive for doing right?

What then is the best motive for doing alms?

Is it not that good may come to others?

Should there be any of "self" in it at all?

Then we find the principle here taught by Jesus to be that the value of our action is governed by the motive prompting it. A gift may be of vast importance to the receiver, and may be a great source of good to others, but the giver only gets out of it what prompted the deed. If he wanted applause, praise of his fellows, to be seen of men that they may give him glory, when the shouting of his name is done, he has received his reward.

Jesus says this is what hypocrites do—the way they have of calling attention to self.

Then what is it to be sincerely good?

What is hypocrisy?

How does Jesus say hypocrites pray?

Show why such are not true prayers.

How did Jesus want his disciples to do?

The object of Jesus here is to draw a contrast between the motive that prompts the hypocrite and that of the true disciple.

Prayer is supplication, entreaty; request made with earnest desire for something. Prayer is made to a being who is able to satisfy the desire of the suppliant, supposedly.

"The heathen" or Gentiles—idolaters mostly, thought by many repetitions to induce their gods to grant their request. Thinking that much speaking will bring what they desire.

What does Jesus say of this?

Don't do that way, because your Father, your God, knows even before you make request, just what you have need of.

Instead of making such great displays of their extreme piety, blowing of trumpets, standing on street corners and in synagogues where men are congregated or passing in large numbers, vainly repeating over and over again, Jesus would have his followers avoid all ostentation, and quietly and alone commune with the Father; asking for what they need, thanking him for the blessings constantly bestowed, and worshipping him for his loving kindness and his fatherly care.

The hypocrite gets his pay for what he gives and does as "wages" given for service rendered.

The disciple of Jesus gets his pay as a "reward" for well doing. He is thus made more like his Master, he is more in sympathy with him, his character is ennobled, his means of doing good are thus increased, he has a greater part in the making of mankind better, and when the final victory is won he enters more and more into the joy of his Lord. A very different thing from the "wages" of hypocrisy.

To whom does Jesus say we should pray?

He wants us to first show reverence for God's name.

What should our first request be?

He would have us long for the coming of the kingdom, that God's will may be supreme on earth as it is in heaven.

What comes next?

Our bodily needs call for attention. Daily we need sustenance for our body, and it is right that this be provided.

To whom are we indebted for all that we have?

Are we in danger of being tempted and led away from the truth and the right?

Then our prayer should be for deliverance from evil.

Can we expect God to forgive us if we do not forgive others?

Through whom is forgiveness and deliverance to come?

Then if this is from God, Jesus would have us acknowledge him as its source—"Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever. Amen."

The Bereans Column.

Dear Bereans:

I thought I would write an article for the Berean Column on "Suggestion, Thought, and Action." It may be something new to you, and thus give you something to think on, that you may thresh out the wheat and cast the chaff away, receiving only that which is able to strengthen you in the hope of the gospel.

We are all influenced more or less by suggestion. Suggestion produces thought, and thought action. Suggestion causes us to reason on things, to get at their true meaning. Nearly everything that has been brought to our attention is the result of suggestion. How little we would know about the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus, if it had not been suggested to us by the prophets, through the Scriptures. Suggestion does not always bring about action, but always thought. If a person speaks to me, I must think on what is said; but whether or not I will act on what is said is determined by my reasoning.

Suppose I say to a person that a polar bear froze to death here in Illinois. What would be the result? Why, he would say, "You must be crazy! The polar bear lives in the coldest part of the world." How does he know that? It has been suggested to him when he was a boy, and he has never had any reason to think differently before. He could not accept my suggestion because it was out of the ordinary.

It is just the same way with the majority of the people. The suggestion has been put to them from infancy that the good go to heaven at death, and the bad to that horrible place of eternal torment, called hell. It is so fixed in their minds that when one suggests to them that people do not go to either place at death, they think there must be something wrong with you. It just seems to them that it cannot possibly be any other way than the way they have always believed. So when we have brought to their attention the state of the dead, and their condition in death,—that the dead know not anything, and that their only hope is by a resurrection from the dead,—they act just the same as in the apostles time. Some believed, others mocked. Thus the suggestion caused both classes to think. The difference between the two classes is: the one reasoned and became convinced by proof; the other just gave it a passing thought. Or possibly it was going to hurt them financially and they reasoned thus: "Well, how is this going to affect my welfare?"

Suggestion is not only received by hearing, but by the sight and feeling as well. We have Thomas for an example. He was not with the other disciples when the Lord appeared to them the first time after his resurrection. They told him that they had seen the Lord; but he said, "I will not believe except I shall see in his hands the prints of the nails, and put my finger into the prints of the nails, and thrust my hand into his side." About a week later he was given the opportunity to see and handle the Lord Jesus. He required all three senses to convince him,—hearing, sight, and feeling. We know it only by faith. Therefore the words of Jesus, "Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed." Most people have to see a thing with the natural eye in order to believe. When the truth is suggested to them, it does not concern them enough to cause them to exercise their thought by studying and reasoning on those things contained in the Scriptures. Therefore, they cannot form those beautiful mental pictures of Christ's coming kingdom and glory. In the fifth chapter of Acts, we have an account of a certain man and his wife who sold a possession and kept back part of the price, pretending to have brought all to the apostles. Let us see what was the matter with Ananias. Peter said, "Why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie to the Holy Spirit?"

Satan means adversary. Jesus called Peter "Satan" at one time, and Judas was called a devil. No doubt Ananias sold his land for a good price, and possibly was telling some of his neighbors about it. They may have tempted him to withhold a part of it. At any rate, Ananias and his wife must have reasoned this between themselves, for the record says they agreed to do this thing. In this case, 1st, The suggestion produced the thought.

2nd, They reasoned or meditated on it, causing lust or evil desire.

3rd, Lust causes action which brings forth sin, which is transgression of the law, and sin, when it is finished bringeth forth death.

Dear Bereans, let us be careful about our suggestions, knowing that they have a mighty power for good or evil. Let us suggest only those things that make for peace, truth and righteousness. Letting the Word of Christ dwell in our hearts richly, that we may speak the words of truth and soberness.

I can think of nothing better to close this article with than the words of Paul in Phil. iv. 8 9, "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, honest, just, pure, lovely, and of good report; if there be any praise, think on these things. Those things which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do; and the God of Peace shall be with you."

WILLIAM HARBERSTY.

Dear Bereans:

"Now if Christ be preached that he rose from the dead, how say some among you that there is no resurrection from the dead? But if there be no resurrection of the dead then is Christ not risen. Then they also which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished. But now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept. For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order; Christ the first fruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming. Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have put down all rule and authority and power. For he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." 1 Cor. xii.

Dear Bereans:

"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." Matt. v. 16. We should follow closely in the steps of our Savior, and be ever ready to do good to all. He has taught us that we served him by serving those who need our service. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Each Berean should "study to shew thyself approved unto God, a work man that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth." 2 Tim. ii. 15

JESSIE CLAYPOOL.

What all the young people need is more steadfastness. If we would devote more of our time to the study of God's Word, it would be a great deal more beneficial than the way some of us waste our time. For are we not commanded to "study to show ourselves approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of truth?" If we only would live different than the other young people of the world. If we would only sanctify the Lord God in our hearts and walk so other people could see we were different; for are we not promised to be a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people, that we should show forth the praises of him who hath called us out of darkness into light?

I wonder sometimes if we are a peculiar people. I am afraid that some of us do not care very much whether we are or not. It means something if we only could realize it. Jesus says, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

Let us watch closely for the coming of the Son of God, for in such an hour as you think not the Son of Man cometh. Now if we are waiting for the coming of the Chief Shepherd and are prepared, we will receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away. Let us press onward, letting our lights so shine, watching for his coming and may all our works be a glory to God.

Your Brother in Christ.

THE GIFT OF GOD'S LOVE.

"For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John iii. 16.

By reflecting upon the helpless condition of humanity, after Adam's transgression, we can the better appreciate the depths of God's love in sending his only begotten Son into the world that we might live through him. 1 John iv. 9.

Nineteen hundred years ago, the birth of our Savior was announced by an angel, to a company of Shepherds who were watching their flocks by night. "Behold! I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people; for unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord. And suddenly a multitude of the heavenly host appeared praising God and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

His name was called Jesus, meaning Savior. "Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven, given among men whereby we must be saved." Acts iv. 12. We call him our Christmas Gift from on high. He was the meek and lowly One, the Lamb of God, who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity unto himself, a peculiar people, zealous of good works. "He hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." 2 Tim. i. 10.

"The road to life by Christ was made,
With heavenly truths the rails were laid,
Unto God's rest the line extends,
To life eternal, where it ends.

Come, children come, now is the time,
At any station on the line;
If you repent and turn from sin;
The train will stop and take you in.

The Bible is the engineer,
It points the way to life so clear,
Thro' tunnels dark and dreary here,
It doth the way to glory steer.

No fare for you is there to pay,
For Jesus is himself the way;
Unto God's rest the line extends
To life eternal where it ends."

We have the power to accept or reject God's offer of life eternal; it will not be forced upon us. "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap, for he that soweth to his flesh shall reap corruption; but he that soweth to the spirit shall reap life everlasting." The power of an endless life should have some charms for us.

ALMEDA MITCHELL.

DAVID STARR JORDAN says, "There is no possible question that business prosperity rises in any town as the saloon disappears. When people become accustomed to clean towns, without saloons, pig pens and dens of vice, they will not tolerate any of these evil influences afterwards. The saloon which is the center of vice and drunkenness is especially destructive to young men. The community has the same right to prohibit saloons as it has to prohibit cesspools."

Obituary.

From Brother S. C. Oliver we have received a newspaper clipping telling of the death of Mrs. I. B Doolittle of near Anthony, Harper Co., Kansas. We glean the following concerning her but date of death is not given, and the only clue is found in some figures indicating that it occurred back in 1909.

Lydia Ann Merriam was born in Connecticut, where she was married to I. B. Doolittle about fifty-three years ago. Five children were born to them, two of whom, with the aged husband survive her. They moved to Kansas in 1879, locating first in the eastern part of the state, and going to Harper County in 1881, where they lived for twenty-nine years.

In the early years of her life Sister Doolittle united with the Methodist Church, but some twelve years ago united with "what is known as the Restitution Faith." "All the years of her long life she exemplified the Christian religion, and had a strong and abiding faith in the promised blessings of the Bible. She was a cheerful congenial person: a thoughtful neighbor, a safe and useful friend."

For a long time Sister Doolittle had been in poor health, and had been cared for at the home of her daughter Hattie E. Doolittle, who still cares for the aged father. The funeral sermon was by Brother S. C. Oliver, who said words of comfort for the living, and of praise for this mother in Israel. A large company of neighbors and dear friends were present, and many followed the remains to the cemetery, where our Sister awaits the resurrection morn.

William D. Lyon was born in Rockingham County, Virginia, June 30, 1834, died at the home of his daughter near Kingston, Arkansas, January 9, 1910, of heart failure, aged 75 yrs, 6 months and 10 days.

He was married to Amanda Elliott, January 16, 1861, and to this union were born four children, Alonzo D., who died in infancy, Mary M., Edwin B, and William E. His wife died on December 4, 1881.

He had been a faithful member of the Church of God for 38 years. At the funeral words of comfort were spoken by Brother William Slaven from John v., and we laid him to rest in the C. P. Cemetery, to await the coming of Christ, but we sorrow not as those who have no hope.

There are left to mourn their loss, two sons, a daughter, ten grandchildren, three sisters, and a large circle of friends.

Your Sister as ever in hope.

MARY M. CARTON.

My Dear Brethren and Sisters:

As I have enjoyed reading of so many of the brother's and sister's faith and hope through the Christmas Love Feast, and as all are looking forward to the same event, which is the second coming of Christ, in which centers the hope of all God's children, when we shall be redeemed from the power of that greatest enemy to the human family, that began his work in the garden of Eden, the home of our first parents, and has ever since been a snare and temptation in the world, ready to draw the true child of God aside from the paths of righteousness, into the ways of the world, which is idolatry, and sin of the worst type, professing to worship the Father and Son, whose words they do not believe, and do not accept as his inspired Word of God from heaven. But all should hear the voice of Jesus saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand, repent ye and believe the gospel, for the day of the Lord draweth nigh when all must become subject to his will, Amen.

I wish also to say to the household of faith, that we had Brother O. J. Allard with us a couple of weeks in December, and he certainly is one who can divide the Word of Truth aright, proving Scripture by Scripture, and while God's children could not help being admonished and prompted to a sense of duty, and many who attended the meetings were very attentive and interested in the teachings, yet, no one came out and obeyed from the heart, and shewed to the world that they were tired of sin, and would turn and serve the true and living God.

I also will send the renewal for my paper another year, and it does seem so sad that so many of our useful and much needed ones are being cut down in death, but those who are left so lonely and weeping, certainly have my sympathy, as I have passed under the rod twice in my time, but God be with you to bear you up in all your trials is my wish and prayer.

Ebenezer.

Father, a "Stone of help" I raise to Thee
Here, in the borders of this new, strange year;
Then go I forth to meet it, without fear,
For "hitherto" then, I, too, "have helped me."

Yea, "hitherto," through all my vari d past,
Since childhood's dawn first met me with its sun;
Since youth's bright morning did my heart beguile,
Ere I had dreamt of sin—sky could be overcast;

Down through the gloom, the darkness of deep night,
Down into sorrow's valley where I trod,
And lifted eyes, tear-dimmed and blind, to God,
Ev'n there, my soul was hearing Love-ness and might.

Ev'n there, through all, thy strong right arm of Love,
And led me in thine own appointed path;
Now, know I that 'twas tenderest love, not wrath,
[illegible] the darkness, to thy light.

Not [illegible] Love has led in pasture so still,
Fresh the spirit given me deep peace,
Sending from eyes and heart in sweet release,
Tears long or keen—joy, to do thy will

And thou will lead me through the year to come;
I know not where, nor how, nor do I ask;
Love knows best. Love's divine, appointed task,
Love sends nothing that is sent from [illegible]

[illegible] what thou will; give me to do,
[illegible] or suffer, as it seemeth best;
My all shall be, in love, to thy behest;
Thou [illegible] will, who hast helped hitherto."

Brother and Sister Tomlinson, of this City, have suffered the loss by death of their infant daughter. They have our sympathy and prayer.

We have a dozen or more questions on file, but we have a big batch of copy from our contributors waiting for room, and as we have been holding some MSS. for some time, all questions must patiently wait awhile.

One Brother when ordering one of our books rather objected to its name—"The Bible." This name is abbreviated; its full name being: "The Bible: Its Principles and Texts." The book will be divided into three chapters of departments: The first will be a treatise on the Bible: the second will outline its principles; and the third will be devoted to the application of texts. "The Bible, Its Principles and Texts" is a name which indicates the threefold division and subject matter of the book. We hope this explanation will be satisfactory to him and all others who read this editorial.

The Home Mission Spirit.

Brother Huggins:

I hope you will get enough pledges to insure the publication of your book. It is just what we need at this time. When I make my next circuit of the Nebraska churches I will urge the brethren to take the book. Almost all denominations but ours take an interest in getting their publications out into the world. Hardly any one reads our books but our own people, and but a small per cent of them. Let us see if we cannot get a little spirit into our people along this line. If a good live member from each church could be induced to take a copy and place it in the home of every family, I see no reason why in the aggregate hundreds of copies might not be sold. Our people ought to love the truth enough to do this, as soon as the publication of the book is assured. Get this before them in some way and see if you cannot get one in every locality where we have any members to take the matter up. Call it the Home Mission Spirit. If we could in some way get that spirit into them, the work would go. Every one is capable and must do something. This lesson will have to be learned sooner or later. Hoping for your success,

Yours in the faith,
ALMON ADAMS.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

Our Brother follows the above letter with a postscript in which he says, "Put me down for a copy, and draw on me for money when needed." Then he gives names of brethren and sisters at Blair, Florence, Benson, Grand Island, St. Paul Moorefield, Holbrook, etc., through whom he desires the work to be taken up. For his kindly interest and love for the truth which he has shown, we are thankful beyond words to express. His letter rings with condemnation, and we question ed the prudence at first of giving it publicity in "Ebenezer." It is only because his burning words of rebuke are well merited that we publish his communication. We have leaflets and booklets galore, but we have no recognized church book from which a stranger can learn what we believe. Bro. Woodruff's works are good reading for brethren; and Bro. Wilson's "Bible Class" is an excellent work, but its lessons are lengthy, and do not embrace all the essential items of the one faith. I am ashamed to confess it, but we are the only denomination in the world known to me without a book which exhibits our representative doctrines in a classified and simplified manner. During all the years of my ministry I have never baptized a candidate but what I wished I could place in his hand just such a book—one that would keep the truth in outline before him, and that would answer, if not all, at least most, of the questions that would come into his mind. The "Home Mission Spirit" seems now to be getting hold of our brethren, and we hope and pray that the result will be richly blessed of the Lord.

The churches at Forreston, Ill., and Rensselaer, Ind., have manifested the "Home Mission Spirit" in the pledge matter. If a few other churches would make this a church proposition the necessary number of pledges would be secured in a week, and publication would begin at once. Individual responses are coming to us daily, slowly but surely; it would hasten matters wonderfully if a few churches would act collectively in the matter. We speak thus and give the "hint" broadly, because there is no glory due us in writing a book, nor a cent of financial gain.

"Came Down From Heaven."

Please harmonize Jno xx 17 with Jno iii 13.—E. F. Randolph.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

John xx 17 states that Christ had not yet ascended to heaven, while Jno iii 13 affirms, "No man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of Man which is (now) in heaven." Christ had just emerged from the tomb when he met Mary and told her he had not "yet ascended to heaven," the word "yet" implying that in due course of time he would ascend, which he did forty days after making this statement. Acts i 3. John's gospel was written after Christ had ascended to his Father. So when he says that "no man hath ascended to heaven" he had to qualify his sweeping affirmation in the words, "but he (Christ) which came down from heaven, even the Son of Man which is (now) in heaven." That is, at the time John was writing Jesus had ascended to heaven, and his statement that "no man hath ascended to heaven" would have been untrue had he not expressly noted Jesus as an exception to his broad declaration. So far there is nothing to "harmonize" between the texts.

We judge that the real difficulty in Bro. Randolph's mind is in the words of Jno iii 13, "He that came down from heaven." This expression is instantly seized by believers in the personal pre-existence of Christ, and by it they try to prove that Christ, a personal pre existent being, existed in heaven before his conception and birth, and that then in some way they cannot and dare not define, he "came down from heaven"! In the hope of benefitting such theorists, we now desire to make a few remarks of a general nature which will clear up such Bible expressions as are usually urged in support of Christ's pre-existence; such as, "Before Abraham was, I am"; "I came down from heaven", etc. One essential of Bible hermeneutics is that there are two I's involved in the person of Christ. The Father and Son were united. Notice the plural pronouns in this text, "We (Father and Son) speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen; and ye receive not our witness". Jno iii 11. "We speak;" the result is, "Our witness." We cannot separate the Father and Son without doing violence to the unity and oneness between them constantly insisted upon in the divine Word. Christ's definition of the two I's involved in his person makes plain how we are to understand he came down from heaven; here it is (1) "The Father is in (2) me the words that I speak unto you, I speak not of myself, but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works." Jno xiv 10. They are thus defined by Paul, "God was in Christ." 2 Cor v 19.

These texts speak of the Divine I—the Deity side of Christ's person, of "the man Christ Jesus" we read concerning the second I—the human side of Christ's person, "Of mine own self I can do nothing." Jno v 30. "I am not come of myself." vii 28. "My Father is greater than I." xiv 28; Mark xiii 32; etc. Now which of these two I's was before Abraham, and that came down from heaven? There is only one answer: The Father. The manifestation of the Father revealed to the world as Jesus Christ, dates from the days of Tiberius; but the Eternal Father himself, who, by Jesus, did miracles and signs and wonders, (Acts ii 22), and spoke his word (Heb i 2), was before all things. When Christ said, "Before Abraham was I am," he was the Father's voice; the medium of the Father's thoughts and words. "Through the Eternal Spirit" (Heb ix 14) Jesus spoke and performed his mighty works; hence it is that we are enabled to recognize what is true of him as the implement of the power in whose shadow his person was hid (Isa xlix 2) as distinct from his individuality and powerlessness as the Son of Man.

Now we are ready to understand how Christ "came down from heaven." God gives wisdom (Jas i 5), in fact, "every good and perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights." Jas i 17. That Christ, among the very best "gifts" of God, is "from above," and came "down from the Father of lights," we readily and thankfully admit; but when it is claimed that of "every good and perfect gift" which is "from above" only Christ pre-existed; all the others had no existence till they materialized on earth in the form of blessings, we cannot understand such a contradictory interpretation of the Word. If this form of language teaches the pre-existence of Christ, it teaches the pre-existence of "every" other gift of God! The truth of the matter is, the text teaches that all "good and perfect gifts" have their origin in God. If the reader will study James iii 15; Deut xxx 11-14; Matt xxi 25; John iii 27-36; Rom i 18; Gal i 8; Psa cxix 89; Phil iii 20; Jno iii 12; Acts xvi 19; Heb viii 5; Deut xxxii 1-3, he will learn that one mode of referring to heaven relates specifically to it as the origin of all divine revelation, and that it is interchangably used with the Father's name. That which comes from heaven comes from God. When Christ said he "came down from heaven", the Jews misunderstood him like our Trinitarians do nowadays, and began to wildly speculate Jno vi 38, 42. To insist that Christ was using literal language when he said he came down from heaven in the 6th chapter of John is to follow in the wake of the Jews who misunderstood him, and to deny every revealed truth concerning the person of the Son of God. If Christ personally "came down from heaven", see what follows: Christ is speaking of himself as the "bread of heaven" when he says he came down from heaven: "I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if a man eat of this bread, he shall live forever; and the bread which I will give is my FLESH." Jno vi 51, 58. Understand our Savior literally, and you not only prove his pre-existence, but you also establish that his body of "flesh" pre-existed, and so deny absolutely his conception and birth! And worse yet, for you would also have to believe that somehow his literal "flesh" was changed into a loaf of "bread", and that this dropped down out of the sky, thoroughly "done"! Get behind me, ye speculations. Christ came down from heaven in the same sense that the manna did. Jno vi 31, 33. No one believes that the manna pre existed and was stored away in granaries in heaven; then why claim more for Christ than manna, when the same language is used of them both? Like the manna, Christ came down from heaven in the sense of origin. "He that cometh from above is above all; he that is of the earth is earthy." Jno iii 31. Here "from above" is in opposition to "the earth." He who claims that a personal pre existent Christ came "from above", must, to be consistent, claim that those men whom Christ addressed as "of the earth," personally pre-existed in the earth! They were "from beneath" while he was "from above." Jno iii 23. They were from beneath in the sense of origin, the devil being their father (v. 44); Christ was from above in the sense of origin, God being his Father. Those who refuse to accept this perspicacious explanation of the words, "came down from heaven" and "from heaven", should beware; for these forms of speech are like a two edged sword; they cut both ways. The words, "of the earth", and "from beneath," are phases used in opposition to them, and must be subject to the same interpretation and understanding. If they proves Christ personal pre-existence in heaven, then the Jews whom Christ put in juxtaposition with himself these opponents of our Master, personally pre existed with their "father the devil" in the earth before they were born!

To conclude: The words, "Came down from heaven" cannot mean more than to indicate the origin of Christ. Instead of proving his pre-existence they destroy that doctrine forever. And for this reason: "He that came down from heaven", the text plainly states, was the "Son of Man." The passage has to do exclusively with the "Son of Man;" it has nothing to do in the most meagre way of inference with the Son of God in the form of an angel, or any other imaginary form. So the words, "came down from heaven" being used of the "son of man" (a designation that had no truth in it at all till Christ was born of Mary, and thus became related to man by kindred ties of nature) Trinitarians themselves have to explain the text consistent with Christ's humanity. As it by fate this text logically slips from under their feet; and they have to agree with us that the passage teaches the origin and not the pre-existence of our Lord. —Selected from "The Bible: Its principles," the book now being prepared by the Editor for the press.

Tithing.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

I read the article of Brother E. K. Barnhill in THE RESTITUTION of Jan. 12, on tithing. As he invites investigation and criticism, I wish to make a few remarks and suggestions on the subject. I find that Abraham paid tithes to Melchisedec, king of Salem, after which God required the children of Israel to pay tithes during the Mosaic dispensation. Gen xiv 20; Num xviii 24, 26; Mal iii 8, 10; Heb vii 5-9. I do not find that tithing was required of the Gentile, Christian church after the death of Christ. Paul wrote to the Corinthians (1 Cor xvi 2), "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gathering when I come." He does not call it "tithes," but a portion as God hath prospered him. It might be a tithe, it might be more or less—conditional.

As tithing is generally understood, it appears to me that it is not universally practical. I think it is generally understood that one who pays tithes, must pay one-tenth of his whole income. We must remember that modern methods of business are often very complex. Much more so than those of the nomadic, pastoral conditions of the early, Israelitish nation. The kinds of employment men and women are now engaged in are very numerous, competition very strong, so that the larger portion of mankind find it a hard struggle to "make both ends meet," as the saying is. Paul to Timothy (1 Tim v 8) says, "But if any provide not for his own, and especially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel." For instance, a man may be a carpenter, having a growing family, and his capital consists mostly of his household goods and the tools of his trade. He rents a house at eight or nine dollars per month. It would be unusual if he gets more than 300 days work in a year, which at $2.00 per day amounts to $600. Take out $100 for rent, leaving $500. If his family is small, and they keep well, by rigid economy they may live on $475 a year, leaving a surplus earning of $25. But the tithe would be $60, or $35 beyond his reach. His family must be educated, and if possible, he shall save something for his declining years, and for his family in case of his untimely death or disability.

The Crown Dictionary gives the following definition of "tithe": "n. the tenth part of anything, especially the tenth part of the annual increase of the profits arising from land, stock, etc., allotted to the support of the clergy; small part; v. t. to tax or levy a tithe of." With this view of tithing, the man whose increase is $25 a year, would have to pay only $2 50. But there are thousands of Christian families who cannot gain a surplus. Then where would the tithe come from?

Again, there are many kinds of business done on a large scale, requiring considerable capital, and employing many hands. Competion is very close, reducing the profits to a minimum. The proprietor's profits are comparatively small. He must pay his help each every week, pay the bills for material at least every thirty days, pay freight and express charges, pay for postage, stationary, account book, advertising, lights, fuel, water and phone rent, and keep his shop and keep his shop fixtures in repair, pay for insurance, etc. He finds by strict attention to business he can keep his shop running, paying his hands only living wages, and keep a small surplus in the bank against emergencies and break-downs. Many who try to run business on a large scale, break down financially every year. If a man's business brings him in $20,000 a year, and it costs $18,000 a year to run it, he has only $2,000 left to support himself and family and offset the natural depreciation of his investment by wear and tear. Under the first method of tithing, his entire salary or living would be required; while under the second he would have to pay $200.

Once more: If a man is working on a salary, and his position is quite certain to continue for a long time, he can make an estimate as to how much he can reasonably spare each year. It may be a tithe, and it may be more or less. One man earns five hundred dollars a year, and it costs him six hundred to live. Another man earns one thousand dollars a year, and it costs him six hundred to live. The first has no increase, while the latter's increase amounts to four hundred. Now, how would you adjust the tithes for these men?

There is another important element in this subject. It is faith. Faith of the sower. Paul wrote to the Corinthians, "But this I say, He who soweth sparingly shall also reap sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully." 2 Cor. ix 6. This corresponds with what God told the children of Israel under the Mosaic dispensation, "Bring ye all the tithes into the store-house, that there may be meat in my house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." Mal. iii. 10. Let each one exercise faith as the Lord shall assist. "Cast thy bread upon the waters; for thou shalt find it after many days." Eccl. xi. 1.

D. D. LATHROP.

Dear Brothers and Sisters:

Another year is past and gone, and has left many of us with sad hearts, deprived of loved ones; but not left without a hope. We must look forward and press on, doing the Master's will as we go. There is a work for each one of us to do. We are not all given the same talent; but that does not excuse us. I sometimes become discouraged, then a voice sounds in my ears, "go teach, is all I ask." Oh how I rejoice that our dear Lord did not say, "Go and convert in all the world," for then we would have failed in the task asked of us; but our all-wise Leader does not ask to do any thing that we are not able to do. The least of us can scatter seed, and that is made very light for us weak ones; by our able brothers who does supply us a large variety of books, and tracts, and THE RESTITUTION, let each one of us try and give some one or more THE RESTITUTION, and give some one or more of the good books, and supply some friends with tracts, that they too may learn the good news of the soon coming King, to set up his kingdom and rule the world in righteousness, then there will be no more sorrow, no more death, all will be joy, peace, happiness. Oh dear ones, of like precious faith, is not that worth working for; yes, with all our might and strength.

I see in THE RESTITUTION that Brother Huggins is getting a book ready to print. I hope each family will take at least one book. I will take one and may later on take more. Such books as Brother Huggins' will be, and Brother W. H. Wilson's Pine Wood's Bible Class, will make presents much loved by those who are learning the truth, or to children in families of believing parents, and while we are making these hearts glad, we are also doing our duty. May each one of us improve the time, that we may be found ready when Jesus comes, and may we all be gathered together without the loss of one.

Best wishes to all for the coming year.

MRS. W. H. EDEMILLER.

Editor Restitution:

Our dearly beloved Brother Peter Neill, who passed away December 12, 1909, set us an example of good works. He was baptized January 19, 1878, with Sister Neill, while yet a young man, and united with the Cleveland Church.

It was in the same winter that he came to the home of the writer's parents, and explained to them the first principles of the gospel, which they afterward obeyed.

He made himself useful in the Household of Faith from the first. He did not see how he could be of much value to the congregation, but he decided he would be regular in attendance and arrive at the meetings on time. He lived up to this decision until the end.

For his faithfulness he was elected a deacon against his wishes, as he did not think he was the proper person for the position. However he accepted and afterwards came to the conclusion that a member elected to a position in the Church ought to accept, and do their best to fulfil the duties required.

Brother Neill became an energetic and enthusiastic worker. He was elected an Elder, Trustee and Secretary of the Church, lead the singing class, was a worker in the Sunday School, and taught the Bible class. The singing class and young people's society often met at his home. He organized a young men's Bible class, the object was to keep the young men of the Church together, and to interest them in Bible topics.

Although sometimes severe, he had a kind and affectionate manner, and a word of good cheer and encouragement for all. No doubt he was often discouraged, but his zeal for the truth never lagged—he was always up and doing.

In the fall of 1902 he and his family removed from Cleveland to Salem, where he continued as pastor until his death. He was one of the promoters of the Ohio Conference. He held the positions of President, Vice President, and Evangelist of the Conference, and worked on the committees.

Brother Neill was a firm believer in the soon coming of the Lord Jesus, and that he would reward every member of the body as his work shall be.

Editor Restitution:

Though too late for the Christmas greeting, I may still send a loving message for the New Year. This I do, especially to all those who have been with loved ones even into "the valley of the shadow" and have left them there, to await the coming of the Life-Giver. To all such I would send my tenderest sympathy. May they realize the fulfillment of the blessed promise "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee."

God is love, his mercy brightens
All the paths through which we rove;
Bliss he wakes, and woe he lightens,
God is wisdom, God is love.

E'en the hour that darkest seemeth,
Will his changeless goodness prove;
From the gloom a brightness gleameth,
God is wisdom, God is love.

Your loving Sister.

M. A. LILLYBRIDGE.

Let all who are interested please make note of the change of address of Brother E. W. Knapp. He has been changed from Laurel, Oregon, to Monkland, Oregon.

We ought not to live in the past. No matter how full of blessing and good it is, we may not stay in it. Life is before us, never behind us. If we linger, we shall lose our place, and our fellows will press on and leave us.

A holy life has a voice. It speaks when the tongue is silent, and is either a constant attraction or a continual reproof.—Hinton.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

Dear Restitution:

Please find inclosed Money Order to renew the subscription of THE RESTITUTION. I rejoice to see how God's dear children respond to the kind offer that was given to every one to testify to the only true and living way, knowing there is but one God, he has made all things, and Jesus Christ, our great High Priest, who is at the right hand of the Father to plead for us. He who will come with great power and glory to take the throne of David, and that kingdom will never end. There we all, who are faithful will meet our loved ones, who now sleep in death.

Your Sister in the faith
MRS. NINA J. VESTAL.

Dear Bro Fuhrwood:

I feel very grateful to you and the brethren for sending me the good, old RESTITUTION. I don't know how I can do without it. I hope dear brethren, that you will continue to send it to me. I enjoy reading the many good and encouraging letters of the dear brothers and sisters,—Love Feast letters—although I did not send my letter soon enough: but this I can say, That I am still contending for the faith once delivered to the saints. I have nothing to encourage me but the dear old Bible, and the dear old RESTITUTION. I see, dear brothers and sisters, that, according to the signs of the times that are passing by every day, that Jesus will soon come to set on his throne and reign. I am happy in the Lord and so thankful to you, Brother, for sending me the paper. May the Lord continue to bless and reward you when he comes, and I will strive hard to meet you all in the kingdom.

Your brother, in Christ.
R. W. REESE.

Dear Restitution:

I hold my pen to write you a few lines. I would have written sooner but I have been confined to the house six weeks, but am able to be around a little now. Please find Money order to pay for the paper another year and oblige one looking for the Blessed Hope. Hoping God's blessing may rest on all the loved ones in Christ. I am still fighting the good fight of faith once delivered to the saints. As Paul said "I stand and am judged for the promises made to the fathers."

Yours, in hope of eternal life.
S. R. CLINKINBEARD.

Editor Restitution:

THE RESTITUTION, to me, is like a dear old friend that visits me every week, to tell of the great blessings that our Heavenly Father will give to all that love and put their trust in his dear Son, Jesus Christ.

I enclose one dollar for the Helping Fund.

Yours Truly.
MRS. E. C. POOLE.

The Bible.

A DECLARATION OF ITS FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES, WITH EXPLANATIONS OF MANY DIFFICULT TEXTS.

The above is the title page of a book the Editor proposes to publish as soon as enough subscriptions are received to pay the printer. The subject matter of the book as now prepared consists of explanations of more than one hundred and twenty six subjects; and to these will be added other subjects readers may send us while the book is being gotten ready for the press.

The primary design of the book is to teach aliens the truth. Selections from our writings in THE RESTITUTION, especially from the "Question Box," have been carefully made, and thoroughly revised. The only book ever published by our Church which formulates the fundamental principles of the gospel in propositions, and then explains all dificult texts, introducing every conceivable Bible subject—a variety most pleasing to the reader.

The price will not be less than 25 cents, and not more than $1 00. Do not send money now, but send us your pledges, and when we have received enough pledges to pay the printer, we will go to press, and will announce when our pledged subscribers can remit the money. In sending us pledges to take one or a number of books, be sure and give your correct address.

Send pledges to R. G. Huggins, at 10708 Hampden avenue, Cleveland, O

Notice to Illinois Bereans.

Our new lesson books are now ready. In order to meet, in a measure, the expense of printing, the Bereans, who attended the annual meeting agreed to buy their books and to invite any, who felt so inclined, to do the same. This is not necessary, as all Bereans will be provided with the Lesson Books; but the deficit of the treasury can be easily met in this way. Will the Illinois Berean Societies send in their orders as soon as possible to Leila E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario St., Austin Station, Chicago, Ill. Our president wishes all societies to begin the new work the first week in February. After February first send to her for the books at 629 N. Galena Ave., Dixon, Ill. Order about six more than you need and keep them as a reserve fund. When your society is supplied, send the money to Wm. Hardesty, Oregon, Ill. If you wish books sent by express, state plainly, in your order the nearest express office. If you wish them sent by mail enclose the postage in the order, five cents for three books and seven cents for six books, etc.

Illinois has the new Berean Bible Lessons to sell to any isolated societies or members who are not affiliated with Iowa, Indiana or Michigan. Price ten cents.

INDIANA BEREANS.

[This notice should be read in connection with notice to Illinois Bereans on page 4.—ED.]

Books may be had at the same rate from Evelyn K. Harsch, 515 Pennsylvania Avenue, South Bend, Indiana. Send the money to Flora Harris, at Rensselaer, Indiana.

State officers greatly desire co-operation from every Church in the State as well as all isolated members. Much anxious thought is being given each situation, and we are hoping progress will result from the plans we have formulated, and have started to put into action.

EVELYN K. HARSCH, Pres.

Brethren of the Household of Faith in Michigan, Greeting:

At the Annual Conference in 1908, a committee was appointed to recommend a plan of raising more funds for the purpose of furthering evangelistic work in the state of Michigan. Their report has been published in these columns from time to time, and a great many of the brethren have responded nobly, and much additional work has been accomplished.

During the month of October we had some excellent help from Brother S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, with the result that eight dear ones were added to our number, and we have a promise from him that he will return and give Michigan some additional work during the winter, and we trust the brethren who have delayed sending in whatever they intended giving for this work will kindly respond with promptness, for on this depends how long we can keep Brother Lindsay at work. If we could send our offerings quarterly, it would no doubt be easier than to send the whole amount at once, and that would give us more to use during the year. We cannot afford to let this opportunity pass, so will expect the brethren to respond promptly. Forward offerings to A. K. Richardson, R F D 5, Hastings, Michigan, or the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette Street, Grand Rapids Michigan. We thank you in advance.

Yours in the service of the King,
F. V. BLAKELY, Sec.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will send it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured the VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A M to 12:30 P. M. Order of services.—Berean meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10.00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 303 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Poore's tracts, nor for D C Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each. 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Christmas and New Year Gifts.

The best gift to make is that which will do the recipient the most good. The gift that may lead such an one to receive the Pearl of Great Price, will certainly be the most profitable gift made. Between now and January 15 1910, I will sell the Pine Woods Bible Class, Student's Text Book, Cunningly Devised Fables of Russellism, and the Bible Study of Hades, all four when taken together, for $1 75. Address me at 625 N. Willow Avenue, Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to every one. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1 00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application. Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORKS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Woods Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1 25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10648 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern Ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Coming of the Kingdom.

The [illegible] of the [illegible] eternity,
As it hung the shores of time;
And each beat on that pulse Almighty
Gave notice to the thought sublime,
That the hour that is wasting the foothold
Is but bringing me nearer home,
Where the Savior is waiting to greet us
In the kingdom that's soon to come.

We learn from the words of the Master,
In the Book that is holy and true,
Each earth shall be full of disaster,
The watchers do fumble and few,
That disease hand in hand with dark famine
And war with its cruel demand,
Are the heralds he says will determine
The Kingdom is shortly at hand.

The days of the years that were given,
To limit the length of earth's span,
Witnessed by the Lord of the Heaven,
Ere the work of creation began,
And now will high priest and the glorious King
In his [illegible] ordained,
Will succeed in His aim—the Kingdom bring
That [illegible] shall be established.

Be not [illegible] nor mournful,
For [illegible] object,
Walk not [illegible] of the sensual,
Set not [illegible] sent
For the [illegible],
Subject [illegible],
And may [illegible] the Savior's feet

Inheritance.

"Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." Matt. v. 5.

To those who believe their future home is to be in heaven, the mere thought of this "gross old earth" being the everlasting abode of the saints is repugnant, they want to give some spiritual meaning to our Savior's language; or if literal, such as one expressed it "a space 2x6 feet," which to our mind is so irreverent as to border closely on to "sinning against the Holy Spirit;" like an unjust, and unwarranted play with the Savior's words.

True, this "gross old earth," (as it is sneeringly termed) with the curse resting upon it, (Gen. iii 17-18) would not be a desirable abode for eternity; but the Revelator says, "There shall be no more curse." Rev. xxii. 3

"But the meek shall inherit the earth, and delight themselves in the abundance of peace." Psa. xxv. 11. To inherit the earth implies more than a few feet for a silent resting place; the Savior pronounces a blessing, which carries with it a condition of happiness, as the Psalmist says, "In his days shall the righteous flourish, and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth. He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth." Psa. lxxii. 7, 8.

Agreeable to this Hab. ii 14, says, "For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea." Num. xiv. 21. "But as truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord." Psa. lxxii. 19, "And let the whole earth be filled with his glory." Indeed the whole 72nd Psalm is fitting in this connection. Isa. xi. 9 "For the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." Rev. xi. 15. "And the seventh angel sounded, and there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever."

This, then, brings us to the subject of the kingdom of Christ, which is indissolubly connected with the saint's inheritance. Luke i. 32 33, referring to the Son who was to be born of the Virgin Mary, the angel says, "He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest, and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his Father David, and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

Agreeable to this we read in Dan. vii 13, 14, "I saw in the night vision, and behold, one like the Son of Man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him; and there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, and nations, and languages should serve and obey him; his dominion is an everlasting dominion which shall not pass away; and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed."

As evidence that this earth is to be the theatre of Christ's kingdom, in which such blessings flow, see Isa. ii. 1-4; xi. xii. xxxii. and xxxv. chapters entire; putting special stress on the 10th verse of the 35th chapter, which we take space to quote. "And the ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads: they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away." Isa. l. 11, is almost a repetition of his language just quoted.

The 65th chapter of Isaiah, from the 17th to the 25th verse is very plain on this subject, but for want of space we will request the readers to turn and read.

Our Seventh Day friends would have the saints all transported to heaven at the first resurrection, there to remain for a thousand years at which, and during which time, the wicked are to be destroyed and the earth left utterly desolate; but I find no Scripture supporting this theory. Many of the prophecies have had a literal fulfillment, and many are yet unfulfilled, but certainly will be; but those quoted and referred to above, and many others, do not fit in any age of the past, and will not fit in the ages beyond the millennium; hence their literal fulfillment must be during the thousand years reign of Christ on the earth; for places, people and events mentioned, cannot be in heaven, beside the earth is repeatedly and explicitly stated; hence, the Savior taught his disciples to pray, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth, as in heaven."

The best evidence we find, supporting the theory of going to heaven at the resurrection, and which is quoted by our Advent friends, is Mark xiii. 27. "From the uttermost parts of the earth to the uttermost parts of heaven," this in connection with 1 Thess. iv. 17, "Caught up to meet the Lord in the air," etc.

These, disconnected from other Scriptures, give some coloring to their theory; but Matt. xxiv. 31, quoting the same language of the Savior, says, "From the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other;" earth not mentioned: here would seem to be a discrepancy, but we cannot suppose the evangelists do not agree. The thought to be conveyed, as we understand it is, gathered from the various parts of the earth to one central point and Jerusalem seems to be the place. True, the saints are caught up to meet the Lord in the air, but we find nothing to show that they go on to heaven. We do, however, find that there will be two stages of the Lord's coming, one for his saints, and one with his saints. As to the first we cite the reader to Matt. xxiv. 30 31; Mark xiii. 26 27; 1 Thess. iv. 16 17; as to the second, 1 Thess. iii. 13; Jude 14; Zech. xiv. 5; Rev. ix. 10. "And we shall reign on the earth."

E K BARNHILL.

Paul and his Last Letter. No. 4.

The cloak, the books and the parchment which Timothy was ordered to bring were not all the apostle needed. His trial on the second charge was still pending. What he had done at his first hearing, preach the gospel, he would do at his second hearing. So he requested Timothy to bring Mark with him, giving as a reason, "For he is profitable to me for the ministry." Mark had been under a cloud as the result of his conduct at Pamphylia in departing from Paul and his company of co laborers, and returning to Jerusalem. Acts xiii 13. It was his duty to go with Paul but he was not needed. His motives were and in Paul's estimation: so seven or eight years later when the apostle planned to revisit the churches he had planted to see how they fared; and Barnabas was determined to take Mark as one of the company, Paul stoutly objected on the ground of his conduct at Pamphylia: concluding he was not to be depended on in case of emergency. The contention was so sharp that the result was a separation of Paul and Barnabas, (Acts xv 37) the latter taking Mark and the former choosing Silas; so forming two missions instead of one. Some times, as in this case, when two can not work together, they can work apart and the cause be served. Paul's censure has been severe and high praise pronounced on him, which [illegible] tion of confidence shows that some change had taken place in Mark. If he was cowardly at Pamphylia, he is brave now. He will come to Rome to preach the truth, for which Paul was in bonds and prison, and for which he is about to forfeit his life. "He is profitable to me for the ministry"—I may in truth add—"In the Word." Mark is not to come to Rome to minister to Paul's physical needs only but to preach the gospel in the face of danger. Preach it conjointly with Paul in that vast auditorium, in the great metropolis of the Roman world, from whence it would radiate to distant lands under the dominion of the Cæsars.

In the preaching of inspired apostles and evangelists there had never been the like opportunity of spreading the truth. Paul fully appreciated the situation, as shown by his words in v. 17, "The Lord stood with me and strengthened me; that by me the preaching might be fully known, and that all the Gentiles might hear;" assigning that to this end he was delivered out of the mouth of the lion." We at this distant day from the date of primitive preaching do not fully realize the danger which every where threatened the lives of adherents of unpopular truth; so do not estimate the unorganized cost of giving the world the message of salvation. Ours are civil times. The times of the first heralds of Christian doctrine were those of bitter opposition, of deadly conflict. The adversaries of the new religion were numerous, active and unreasonable. They did not argue the question of differences between their religion and that which they were invited to accept, very long, before they appealed to force. It was to the interest of the secular power to maintain the ancient religion, as this was the religion of the state so thoroughly incorporated with the political system of each kingdom that to assail, as did Christianity, the existing religion, was to assail the secular power, and this demanded in the view of the magistrate on the throne, violent measures to suppress the new religion; so, the proclaimers of this were persecuted even unto death. The heralds of the new religion were peaceable men and came with a message of peace and pardon; but they were under the most solemn obligations to denounce idolatry: as did Paul at Thessalonica, teaching the people to turn from idols to serve the living and true God, and to wait for his Son from heaven. This was the news they kindly broke to men and women steeped in everything foul and debasing. For preaching peace and purity; preaching what would elevate man in the intellectual and moral scale of being, and give him a well grounded hope of life beyond the silence and darkness of the tomb, these heralds of good things to come, were arraigned before unreasonable tyrants, and sentenced to death, preceded by tortures such as only savages could think of. Man in all ages has been styled a rational being, but a very large proportion of the race have in its conduct belied this claim of the attribute of reason.

The apostolic church and especially the public proclaimers had a sorry time; always facing danger, and death in frightful form. Paul writing to the Corinthian church concerning himself and co laborers says, "We who live are always delivered unto death for Jesus' sake." 2 Cor iv 11. "So then death worketh in us but life in you." v 12. Along with other things which fell to his and lot he says, "In deaths oft:" meaning that in numerous instances death seemed inevitable. Chapter xi 23. Referring to this experience in Asia he wrote, "For we would not, brethren, have you ignorant of our trouble which came to us in Asia, that we were pressed out of measure, above strength, insomuch that we despaired even of life." Chapter i 8. He does not tell us here in what form death seemed unavoidably the fate of himself and fellow laborers: but in the 10th verse he says, Who delivered us from so great a death, as [illegible] deliver," of whom we trust to deliver from similar perils to which they would be exposed subsequently. "So great a death." Was it death by exposure to the savage ferocity of wild beasts in some amphitheater: or was it by the slow torture of faggot and flame; a mode of inflicting punishment by papal Rome centuries after: with other cruelties resorted to by the "mother of harlots," to extort denial of a dearly cherished faith, and to gain adherents to Romish abominations? We can only conjecture what the dreaded pains and punishment were to which these faithful men were exposed, or, perhaps in fact, partially suffered. Their trust was not in themselves, but in God who raiseth the dead. Under the circumstances death seemed certain: so the only thing on which to base a sustaining hope is that God raises the dead: and would of course raise them. In the view of the apostle death would terminate the present existence, and the only hope set against this is resurrection. Why does the apostle look to emergence from death for himself and fellow workers as the only way into life and being again? The only answer to this is, That resurrection at the coming of the Lord was the clearly stated hope of the gospel; and so, was the hope that sustained him when facing death. If Paul held the doctrine of Plato it is very strange, that when death was confronting him, he did not give expression to Plato's doctrine in some plain form of words, the meaning of which nobody could successfully dispute—plain as he states the resurrection as the ground of his hope. The nature of the subject would demand such plainness. That he refrained from thus stating plainly the popular hope of the churches, I take as proof that he entertained no such hope. This alone accounts for his silence. It would have been just as easy and natural for him to state in plain speech the immortality of the soul, or any equivalent of this, as it is for men today to put the doctrine in such plain terms that neither child nor adult fails to grasp the meaning. Wherever the doctrine is found this plainness of statement characterizes the language used to set it before us, whether sculptured in marble above the inanimate dust of the dead, or embalmed in verse by the great poets of modern times, or embodied in the learned disquisitions of men eminent in scholarship, or poured forth in oratorical strains from countless pulpits of the enlightened world, or uttered in the stammering speech of illiterate millions, the same plainness is observed.

The sentiment of hope, whether true or false, whether falling from the tongue of the philosopher or that of the illiterate, is always couched in plain words. Bible writers afford no exception to this rule. Paul's hope found expression in very plain terms, but it was not that of ninety-nine obituaries—of religious papers and periodicals—out of every hundred recorded, which represents the immortal soul of the dead as entering on its reward in heaven at the moment of the death of the body. No, no, Paul's hope was a very different thing. This I think I will be able to show clearly in my next paper, the concluding number.

Editor Restitution:

We have teachers in this part who claim to only speak where the Bible speaks, and to be silent where it is silent. These teachers say there are two kingdoms of God. The Church is one of them, and the gospel preached by Jesus and his apostles refers to both kingdoms. Now if there were two kingdoms of God, and the gospel refers to both, Jesus and the apostles would have to speak of them in a plural sense; and where the gospel refers to only one of them, they would have to be a mark of distinction. So I thought I would bring forward all the Scriptures where the kingdom is said to be taught or preached, as that is the only source of light we have on the subject.

Matthew iv. 23: And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues and preaching the gospel of the kingdom.

Matthew ix 35: And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom.

Matthew xxiv. 14: And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations.

Mark i. 14: Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God.

Luke iv. 43: And he said unto them I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also; for therefore am I sent.

Luke viii. 1: And it came to pass afterwards, that he went throughout every city and village, preaching and showing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God.

Luke ix. 2: And he sent them to preach the kingdom of God.

Verse 11: And the people, when they knew it, followed him; and he received them, and spake unto them of the kingdom of God.

Verse 60: Jesus said unto him, let the dead bury the dead; but go thou and preach the kingdom of God.

Luke xvi. 16: The law and the prophets were until John; since that time the kingdom of God is preached.

Acts i 3: To whom also he showed himself alive after his passion, by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God.

Acts viii. 12: But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women.

Acts xix. 8: And he went into the synagogue, and spake boldly for the space of three months, disputing, and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God.

Acts xx. 25: And now, behold, I know that you all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, shall see my face no more.

Acts xxviii. 23: And when they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodging; to whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets from morning till evening.

Verses 30-31: And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house, and received all that came in unto him, preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ.

Dear reader, the above Scriptures evidently show that but one kingdom was referred to in the gospel preached by Jesus and the apostles. How very strange it is that some men preach so much and say nothing about the kingdom of God. They all claim to follow Jesus and his apostles, but what a contrast.

Just think of the above Scriptures, the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, as preached throughout all Judea, Samaria, and Galilee; Jesus' last forty days with the disciples, and Paul's three months in the synagogues, the two years at Rome. The preaching of the kingdom of God must have been very necessary in the scriptures, and it is necessary to day.

Yours in hope of the soon coming kingdom.

Dear Restitution:

Have been much interested in my RESTITUTION of late and [illegible] number seems especially [illegible] "The Parable of the Vineyard," by H. M. Loewus was very full of meat in due season. So too, that of our venerable Brother John L. Wise. May he be spared long to minister to the sacred [illegible]. I noticed also with pleasure an article by Brother [illegible] the interpretation of the parable "Excerpt" from a letter of Prof. Davidson. [illegible] to let me hear from [illegible].

Under [illegible] "Is the Devil in the Millennium?" I [illegible] regard one to [illegible] by reference [illegible] enemy that shall be destroyed at death." 1 Cor. [illegible].

Since the [illegible] that death [illegible] men until the [illegible] never placed [illegible] "all rule and [illegible] reign till he [illegible] under his feet" 1 Cor. xv. 24-26 appears clear [illegible] all things have been [illegible] death be one [illegible]. Then shall [illegible] to God's unit [illegible] God hath [illegible] all" 1 Cor. xv. 28.

I think many [illegible] too broad a [illegible] proof texts, and see [illegible] and compare. [illegible] the references to Isaiah lxv. 22, "The days of my people [illegible] are [illegible] the days of a tree." Now the Christ spoken in [illegible] kingdom (v 19) and to her people coming [illegible]—we are prone at times to apply it to any other than a regathered Israel (see v. 16.) Likewise, it is assumed that previous to the time of Noah men lived to a great age, even as Adam lived to be 930 years old, etc.

Any one who has a Bible can trace up the length of the lives of the patriarch from Adam to Noah, for even we assume upon this record that all the people lived such long lives? I have no knowledge [illegible] any thing which will warrant such an assumption.

Then when we [illegible] the line of Noah's ancestors back to Adam were the chosen few through whom the knowledge of the creation and preservation of the line of truth must be passed down and beyond the flood we can see [illegible] especially favor of God to [illegible]. We know that Noah was six hundred years old when the flood came. He lived among men of intelligence and [illegible] every imagination of the thoughts of their heart was only evil continually."

Can we think of such a people as surviving to such ages as those worthy ones [illegible] Noah and his fathers before him? It does not appear reasonable to think so. Against positive proof, since the children of the wicked generally lose the force of their father's sins.

Although you may not know me, and Abraham may not acknowledge me, and Isaac have no knowledge of me, I am glad to be living in the light—in the blaze of gospel light. I never saw the light as I do now, and I rest on the promises on record. Surely my lines have fallen in pleasant places, and I have a goodly heritage among the Christian brethren, of the Cleveland Church, who take so much interest in my welfare. Though I have a long way to go, it does me good to hear Brother Huggins. The young folks are so kind to me, and give such an inspiration to me. They seem to make my face to shine, and my whole being to leap with joy. We have a fine lot of young people [illegible] and feel like exclaiming Who will join our happy band, and go to come to Zion. I hope the boys will be like Daniel and Jonathan, and the girls like Deborah and Miriam.

EXAMINE Your account, and give us a renewal of subscription if you can do so.

We thank you for the favor.

Brother Joseph Williams was with the Church at Burr Oak, Indiana, last week and the reports indicate a good interest was manifested.

Owing to the severe illness of his little daughter, Brother Carl Thompson could not be at Plymouth last Sunday. We have not heard how the child is, but we can assure Brother that he has the sympathy of all God's people.

Brother O. J. Allard is holding a series of meetings at Argos Church, eight miles south of this [illegible]. He [illegible] and visited us one day last week. He reports good interest. On Sunday evening a sled load of seventeen from Plymouth drove down and heard him and enjoyed meeting the brethren and sisters there.

Word from Brother S. J. Lindsay tells that he is holding meetings at Adeline, Illinois, with splendid audiences. He says "The heavy wall of prejudice that has existed there, has been greatly broken down, and people have been coming out regularly who formerly would not come near our preaching." Good for that.

Sunday night we received word by telegram that Sister Randa McDonald had died that day (January 30, 1910) at Portland, Oregon. We have no particulars, but must have been very sudden, as we received a card from her on Monday morning dated at Portland on January 26. She was born in this, Marshall County, Indiana, and the greater part of her life was spent in and around Plymouth. Her father was Samuel McDonald, one of the first settlers here. Sister Rebecca Osborne of Culver, is a sister, and Mr. Thomas McDonald living south of here is her brother. After leaving Plymouth our Sister went with two younger sisters, (now Mrs. Kittie Upmyer and Mrs. Florence Littler) to Rensselaer, and then to Marion, Indiana. A few years ago they all moved to Portland, Ore. At the June meeting at old Antioch, five miles south of Plymouth, held in the summer of 1872, at the close of an evening service, an invitation was given, and three girls and a boy went forward. One of them, Sister Mary J. Dickson-Price has been dead several years. The others are well known in these parts, being our Brother Mede Logan, and Sisters Lizzie Dickson and Eva L. Thompson-Underwood. As was the custom then, these young people went "the same hour of the night" to the water and were baptized by Uncle Hugh Barnhill. On his asking if any one else desired to confess their faith in Christ, and take on themselves his name, Sister Randa McDonald stepped forward. In this quiet way she lived her life of humble submission to the Master, yet ever with the spirit of determination and firmness. She was willing to spend her strength for the good of others. Her life was an example for those about her. May we each so live that when Jesus comes we will meet our Sister where partings will come no more, and tears will all be wiped away.

Believing that many of our readers are interested in conditions in Palestine, and in doings of the Hebrews, we print the following from the Chicago Tribune:

Dispatches from Jerusalem tell of remarkable strides made during the last few years in the repeopling of Palestine with Jews. The proclamation of the constitution in Turkey threw open the doors of Palestine and led to an enormous influx of Jewish colonists, who are already settled on some of the best lands of the country.

In Jerusalem alone four-fifths of the population now belongs to the Jewish faith. Large portions of land round Lake Tiberias have been bought up from poor natives and converted into prosperous farms.

The plain of Sharon, between Jaffa and Lydda, is one vast garden, owned and tended by Jewish skill and labor. The Hauran, one of the most fertile wheat districts in the world, is gradually being sold to Jewish syndicates.

Almost the whole of the extensive Plain of Esdraelon has been bought up by Jews. Their prosperous colonies spread from Dan to Beersheba, and even farther south to the outskirts of Egypt. Thousands are escaping from Persia to find shelter and protection in the Holy Land, while every ship from Odessa carries some of them.

The Jordan valley, once the property of the ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid, is being eagerly sought after by Jewish capitalists. The Zionists, whose agents are distributed all over the land, are buying up the rich properties of the Mohammedan effendis, whose incomes since the revolution have lessened.

At Jaffa, Tiberias, Safed, and Haifa (Mount Carmel) Jews are reckoned by tens of thousands. Towns like Ramoth-Gilead, Bethlehem, Nazareth, and Gaza, where a few years ago no Jew dared show his face, have now their Jewish quarters and synagogues.

The whole city of Jerusalem is essentially a Jewish town. Banking as well as trade and commerce is monopolized by Jews. The government has found it necessary to organize a company of Jewish gendarmes.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars are annually sent from Europe and America to enable the colonists to build homes, hospitals, schools and invalid homes. Over 100 Jewish schools already exist in Jerusalem alone. Synagogues are rising up everywhere.

The value of the land has risen fourfold. The ignorant and poverty-stricken peasants are being ousted from their homes and villages by the European Jew settler, whose modern agricultural implements and methods have made the land produce harvests never dreamed of by the natives. The Anglo-Palestine company, a Zionist banking and commercial enterprise, is pushing the cause of Israel with energy.

Plea for Palestine Homes.

Prominent rabbis in attendance at the thirteenth annual convention of the Order of the Knights of Zion, which has been in session since Friday in Chicago, will address a mass-meeting to be held tonight at the Chicago Jewish institute, 1256 West Taylor street. The object of the order is to establish a home for the Jews in Palestine. There are now 400,000 members, composing fifty gates, or clubs, in the middle west.

Fellowship.

"That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ."

The apostle declares something unto us for a purpose. "That ye also may have fellowship with us." v. 3.

The twelve were chosen and specially instructed. Matt. x 1 8 Hear the earnest prayer for the apostles chosen to be witnesses, "I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world; thine they were, and thou gavest them me; and they have kept thy Word. Now they have known that all things whatsoever thou hast given me are of thee. I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me, and they have received them, and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me. I pray for them; I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me; for they are thine." John xvii. 6-8.

"They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world. Sanctify them through thy truth; thy Word is truth. Neither pray I for these alone but for them also which shall believe on me through their Word."

Mark tells us "The Lord worked with them confirming the Word with signs following." Mark xvi. 20.

Paul asked the question, "How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him, God also bearing witness, both with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Spirit." Heb. ii. 2-4.

"The people were astonished at the doctrine of Christ for he spake as one having authority, and to his chosen he said, Take no thought how or what ye shall speak; for it shall be given you in that same hour what ye shall speak; for it is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaketh in you." Matt. x. 19-20.

Then it is with "authority" they declare unto us what they have seen and they declare it for a purpose, "That ye may have fellowship with us."

"This, then, is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you that God is light and in him is no darkness at all. If we say we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie and do not the truth. But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin. If we walk in the light, (the light of the gospel) we have fellowship, one with another."

The apostle Paul spoke with authority. He says, "I neither received it of man, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ." Gal. ii. To the Corinthian church he wrote "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ." 1 Cor. xi. 1. In the 17th verse to the 22nd we find he does not praise them for coming together for the wrong purpose. In the 23rd verse he says, "I received of the Lord that which I delivered unto [illegible] Lord Jesus the night in which he was betrayed took bread; and when he had given thanks he break it, and said, Take eat; this is my body which is broken for you. This do in remembrance of me." (Notice, it is not the night nor the day, we are to remember, but the event.) After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is the New Testament in my blood, (this cup is the New Covenant in my blood) Dinglott, do ye, as often as ye drink it in remembrance of me; for as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come, (show ye the Lord's death till he come. Marg.)

Then says one "Why not take it every day." Paul says, "be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ." Paul instructed Timothy, saying, "The things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also." In the tenth chapter of 1 Cor 16 verse he says, "The cup of blessing which we bless is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break is it not the communion of the body of Christ? The Dinglott and McKnight instead of the word communion (participation). This expresses more fully to us that we are a part of the body of Christ. Verse 17. For we being many are one bread, one body; for we are all partakers of that one bread. Is there any possible oneness, when a few believe that if we commemorate his death at baptism that is all that is required, others when the preacher comes, and others once a year, and others occasionally and at night. It is not the time but the event.

Listen to Paul who spake with authority, As often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye show the Lord's death till he come. Wherefore whosoever shall eat this bread and drink this cup of the Lord, unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation (judgment marg) to himself, not discerning the Lord's body. For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep. If this is the condition of those who are careless in their manner, what of those who neglect it altogether. "The bread which we break, is it not the participation of the body of Christ? "For we being many are one body." This signifies the importance of this service. Teaches a participation of something with others, a joint participation, in which we declare we all have the same worship, the same faith, the same hope, being one body, a perfect unison in purpose.

The apostles by seeing and hearing, had the fullest assurance of the doctrine were eye witnesses, walked and talked with him after his resurrection, witnessed his ascension, and was assured by the angel of his return. And he says, "As often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come.

We find Paul on his missionary journey says, "And we sailed from Philippi after the days of unleavened bread, and come unto them to Troas in five days; where we abode seven days, and upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow, and continued his speech until midnight. In that length of time Paul no doubt said many good things. He admonishes us as follows, "Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; (for he is faithful that promised;) and let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching. For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth there remaineth no more sacrifice for sin. Paul on his way to Rome came to Puteoli where he says, "We found brethren, and we desired to tarry with them seven days. Why? We infer it was for the same reason he tarried at Troas. "That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us, and truly our fellowship is with the Father and with the Son.

May we all walk in that strait and narrow path that leads unto life eternal.

Sunday School Lesson.

[illegible]

Worldliness and Trust. Matthew vi. 19-34.

Golden Text—"Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Matthew vi. 33.

Same time and place as last lesson.

Our lesson for January 30, ended with the admonition to strive for perfection, and the lesson last week, followed by this one, contains precepts that, carried out in our lives, will aid us materially in reaching the perfect state.

What does verse 19 warn against?

What does verse 20 admonish us to do?

Here is a contrast between the true riches and the false. By referring to Proverbs ii. 1-4, we learn that God would have us search for the hid treasures. Something worth making effort to attain.

Earthly treasures—houses and land, worldly pleasures, fame, praise of men. All this is passing—perishable.

Heavenly treasures—everlasting life, joys untold, reward for character, for faithful service. These remain, are eternal.

Why should we not set our heart on earthly treasure?

All of earth is transitory, uncertain, liable to failure and loss, unstable. A poor investment. Worldliness makes a failure of life.

Why lay up treasures in heaven?

God wants us to be rich, but would have us discern between the true and false. He wants us to be rich in good deeds, in faith, in love, in peace, in godliness, in brotherly-kindness, in meekness, and all the "fruits of the Spirit."

Why set the heart on these?

No earthly power can destroy them, nor can they be taken away from us, for they become part of our very being.

How can we determine where our heart is?

The heart here is spoken of as meaning the seat of the affections, of the intellect, of the will or mind. By finding where our treasure is, we locate the heart.

What makes anything a "treasure" to us?

The main thought of this lesson is making a choice. Our object should be to settle once for all, that under all circumstances we will do right. A false guide is worse than none. A misleading light is worse than darkness.

How many masters can we serve?

It is impossible to stand for two principles that are opposite. Light is opposite to darkness. Good is not evil—cannot be. No one can go in two directions at the same time. The man who loves the good must hate evil; and if one loves evil he must hate good, for the simple reason that one interferes with the other.

Mammon is the personification of riches—money. Satan appears in this form oftener than any other, and men serve him. Wealth can be used for either God or mammon. The test comes when we make our choice—between riches and character. It is more a question of the way money is obtained, than the amount we have, and the use we make of what is honestly gained. It is serving riches instead of God. Money is a good servant, but a bad master.

What is the principle here laid down regarding two masters?

Must we serve one or the other? or is there a "neutral" ground that we may occupy?

Will outward appearances indicate which master we serve?

Can riches be made a blessing?

In verse 25, what does the service of self lead to?

What does it mean to "take no thought?"

Does this mean we are to take no forethought, or prepare for "a rainy day?"

The ordinary meaning of thought will hardly do here. Webster says one meaning of "thought" is "solicitude, anxious care, concern." So the revisers have put in place of "take no thought," "be not anxious." The idea is to be not over-solicitous, do not worry and fret over what you shall have to eat, or drink, or wear.

The disciples, to whom primarily this Sermon on the Mount is directed, were those who had made a decision—a choice—and were seeking "first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness." If they should become over-anxious in their minds or thoughts about bodily comforts and luxuries, they might be tempted to do wrong to gain their livelihood. Jesus knew that worldly loss follows strict adherence to the right.

There is no such meaning here as that Jesus taught the reckless neglect of the future. The lesson to be impressed is that of Trust in God. God gave us life. Will he not then see that the means to sustain that life are provided? We cannot have life in God without effort to attain it, though it is offered freely. Neither can we have what is necessary for bodily needs without effort—labor, though it is near us in abundance.

Jesus wants us to give our chief attention to gaining that true, real life, eternal, unending life, as contrasted with the transitory fleeting vapor that we now have. He wants us to realize the difference, and make a wise choice.

A lesson is drawn from God's care of the birds. Note that the birds are God's creatures, but Jesus tells his disciples that "your Heavenly Father" feeds them.

How does God feed the birds?

Do they sit idly on the tree limb, and wait for God to drop food in their mouths?

Certainly not. The saying about the "early bird catches the worm" refutes this idea. Birds rise early, make nests to live in, and rear their young ones. By industry they provide food for the nestlings. When winter comes they go to warmer climates, where they can find food.

"Are ye not much better than they?"

"Which of you by taking thought (worrying and fretting—being anxious and concerned) can add one cubit unto his stature?"

There are numberless things in connection with our well-being that we cannot control at all. Man could not create bread for even a single meal. Jesus would have us simply trust God.

"Your Heavenly Father knoweth ye have need of all these things." He wants you to be supplied. He wants you to be happy. It is his delight to do you good. He gets no pleasure by depriving you of any good thing. He wants you to know him so well you will not distrust him.

"Seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness." By faith in God we are able to avoid the anxieties that destroy our lives, and enjoy the blessings that our Heavenly Father bestows upon us.

Report of Meeting.

Brother Almus Adams of Omaha, came to Blair, Neb., Friday, January 21, remaining with us over Sunday. Services were held each night and Sunday afternoon at the church, and Bible Study Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning. The attendance was small, but the interest good. Brother Adams has been with us a good many years. We can always depend on him. Firm in the faith, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth. We enjoyed a visit from Sister Gordon of St. Paul at the same time.

Editor Restitution:

Since Bro. Skeels' return we have had several interesting meetings at the home of Bro. U. A. Saylor.

Sunday Jan. 23, 1910, upon the occasion of Brother and Sister Saylor's moving into their new home in Tempe, about twenty-five of the brethren and friends assembled with their baskets.

After a sumptuous spread some little time was spent in listening to Bro. Skeels' interesting discourse upon "The Kingdom." A social hour followed till our visiting friends hastened for their train to Phoenix and all departed, feeling that they had spent a profitable day, and wishing Brother and Sister Saylor much happiness in their new home.

Yours in the one faith.

Business and the Bible.

The Bible spirit is not unknown in business life. Many a hard-headed business man hides in his bosom a heart as warm and soft as a woman's, which prompts the hand to a gift richer than the coffers of a merchant prince.

A lady, once in affluent circumstances and moving in the highest social circles, by a series of misfortunes was reduced to poverty and had become one of two thousand employees in a corporation in New York. She reached a period when she felt the need of a Bible—the book that had been familiar in her childhood home; but out of her meager wages she felt she could spare only $1 00 for such a purpose. She went to a well-known store in the city, and the clerk most affably exhibited his goods, but she could find nothing that met her want. The clerk expressed his regret, but said another invoice of Bibles was expected within a few days. She turned to go out, but at the door she encountered the venerable proprietor, who inquired:—

"Couldn't you find what you wanted?"

"No," replied the lady: "nothing within my means."

"Let me look," he smilingly responded as he led her back to the counter. Thereupon he climbed to an upper shelf and brought down several handsome teachers' Bibles, ranging in price from five to ten dollars. She saw one that had pleased her fancy and inquired the price.

"Five dollars," said the proprietor.

"But I have only one dollar," protested the lady.

"Never mind," replied the proprietor; "if that suits you, you can take it for that price."

And he wrapped it up in the most gracious manner, and she went forth enriched with her coveted treasure, wondering at the Christian generosity of the gentleman.—Homiletic Review.

Christianity vs. Heathenism.

The ancient nations were all religious. Egypt had many gods, magnificent temples, and a splendid ritual. Babylon was polytheistic. She was strenuous in the worship of her gods, and in the magical devices employed to ward off the evil influences of multitudinous demonistic spirits. Phenicia, with her Baalim and Ashtaroth, was plunged in worship of a shockingly cruel and corrupt nature. And so we might go on, but we forbear.

And what, we here ask, have all the religion and superstition of the nations accomplished? Their many gods, their splendid sanctuaries, their attendant priests, their bleeding victims, their temple ritual, their magic rites—what had all this done? Their adoration of ideal divinities, their worship of the heavenly orbs, their prostrations before senseless and lifeless images, their propitiations of non-existent deities, their dread of demons, their fear of spells and charms, their superstitious faith in the potency of witchcraft and sorcery—what saving efficacy was there in all this? Had it lifted them from the sensuous to the spiritual? from sin to holiness? from condemnation to peace? No! All these nations went down because of their moral corruption. Egypt, despite her gods and temples, became the basest of kingdoms. (Ezek. xxix. 15.) Babylon was "mad over idols," and corrupt to the core. Phenicia was polluted beyond repair. Greece was voluptuous and unspiritual. And as to Rome, her morals were depraved, and her people thoroughly debauched.

But Christianity lifted itself in noble and unique grandeur in a world of religious rottenness. It was the advent of a new life, new hopes, new possibilities. And today it is still all this. It is a help to civilized man, and an uplift to the savage. Let us appreciate such a religion as this. Let us be grateful for it, accept it in its fulness, and live in accord with its holy precepts.—G. L. Young.

Little Things.

Little self denials, little honesties, little passing words of sympathy, little nameless acts of kindness, little silent victories over favorite temptations, these are the silent threads of gold, which when woven together, gleam most brightly in the pattern of life.—Townson.

The article by Bro. Adams in this issue is splendid. Read it.

We will be at Salem, Ohio, Feb'y 1 to the 11. If we have enough pledges for our book we will give it to the printer upon our return home. We are in need of more pledges at this writing. Our address while in Salem will be 209 W. Dry St. Our permanent address at the head of "Ebenezer" will always find us.

Bro. Eychaner gives us an interesting article in this issue. He tells about an Elder he knew who "passed by the church door with his pack of deer-hounds enroute for a hunt" while the church was holding the solemnities of worship. We blush and bow our heads in shame. We say such rotten fruit must be borne by a rotten tree. God's Word is very explicit about the kind of a brother the church should elect to the office of Elder. 1 Tim iii; Titus i. If our churches obeyed the Word of the Lord they would not in the first place elect such a man to the Eldership of the church. And if, in the second place, a good man whom they had elected to that office, turned out afterwards to be unworthy, they would correct him. Such action, of course, would, to that extent, recognize discipline. Knowing this, the Elder waits his "pack of deer hounds," soon as he hears any mutterings of complaint from his brethren with the question, "Are you opposed to religious liberty?" Reminding them that the wheat and tares are to grow together until the harvest, he forces them at the point of being "intolerant," and upon Scriptural(?) grounds, to let him hold the office of Elder, even if he is a "tare." Asserting his "religious liberty" rights he and his "pack of deer hounds" go forth upon their hunt! All this grows out of the church neglecting discipline. The parable of the wheat and tares, the strongest part of the Word depended upon to teach this confusion and disorder, we have explained at length in this issue. As the reader studies it, may God add his blessing, and give him a clear mind and right conception of this much abused parable of our Lord.

The Wheat and the Tares.

MATT. xiii. 24-30; 36-43.

This parable is a favorite resort of those who feel themselves free from all principles of Church discipline. Here it is alleged, there is mixture. Instead of an injunction of separation there is no explicit mandate to the contrary. A positive order is issued—"Let both grow together until the harvest:" and according to the interpretation of the parable given by the Master himself, that means until "the end of the world,"—when the separation is to be made by the "Son of Man." That this method of interpreting the parable has the attribute of superficial plausibility we admit, but we object to it for the following reasons:

I. The wheat and tares signify persons. The persons represented by the tares are not hypocrites, as is generally supposed. To talk of retaining hypocrites in church fellowship is absurd. We cannot be said to retain such characters in the church; the very idea of a hypocrite implies that the real character is successfully hidden. And so long as it is covered, there cannot be criminality in retention, or warrant for exclusion. Then the tares of the parable do not refer to them. It does not even include them. It discriminates between two characters, whose respective characters are equally apparent. The parable does not drop the remotest hint of any difficulty in telling the wheat from the tares. The servants distinguished the one from the other without any hesitation. "Then appeared the tares also." They saw them when they "appeared," and knew them. The risk suggested about gathering up the tares was not the fear that the servants would pull up wheat instead of tares, but that they might pull up wheat along with tares. The tares do not represent hypocritical professors, but known "children of the wicked one."

II. If the design of the parable is to teach that all varieties of character are to be admitted and retained in the church, then Christian communion is at an end. The church becomes an indiscriminate mixture of the godly and the ungodly, the pious and the profane: and this means, when properly analyzed, no church at all. The world is the church and the church is the world! There is no point at which, on this understanding of the parable, its advocates can consistently stop short of universal admission and no exclusion. And this leads me to say:

III. That this principle leads our no discipline friends farther than they want to go. The loosest of our loose friends will not tolerate in church fellowship liars and drunkards—any who grossly offend against the laws of morality. However loosely this principle may be carried out in practice among them, it stands acknowledged in fact. Here, though, is an inconsistency. See how general and comprehensive are the designations in the parable. What can be more so than "the wicked," and "children of the wicked one?" No limitation, no qualifications are used. The word "discipline" itself becomes a term of rebellion. It is not letting both grow together "until the harvest." They who make exceptions of any kind show themselves sensible that the parable, as they interpret it, proves more than enough, and cannot be harmonized with other Scriptures. When they plead for separation from any offender whatsoever—ever the grossest—they contradict their principle. If there is to be separation, let it be as complete as faithfulness and charity united can render it. Let us act definitely and uniformly on our principles. It will not do to quote the tares and wheat parable in proof that purity of church fellowship is not required, and then refuse to admit the impurity in the extent which the parable so quoted not only warrants, but enjoins. If there is to be mixture, let us have mixture, and to the extent the parable teaches. Let us have one or the other.

IV. Those who resort to this parable to teach impure communion, feel themselves pinched between it and the entire tenor of the New Testament. The commands: "If he refuse to hear the church, let him be to thee as a heathen man and publican;" "purge out the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump;" "but away from among yourselves that wicked person;" "be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers;" "from such withdraw thyself," are all in the very face of the interpretation of the parable which justifies the godly and the ungodly in church communion. Any doctrine which sets the Bible against itself cannot be sound doctrine.

V. If the parable teaches the indiscriminate mixture of saints and sinner in the church, then we ask, To whom is this mixup attributed? The answer is, "An enemy hath done this!" Who is the "enemy" before whose door this charge is laid? The Interpreter answers, "The enemy that sowed them is the devil!" This is the reply to the inquiry, "Whence, then, hath it tares?" The bad seed is not sowed in the field by the servants of the Householder; he never issued any such an order as this. It is done by "an enemy." In secrecy—in the darkness of nightfall—"While men slept." It follows then, that when the servants of the Householder knowingly introduce into his church "offenders and them that do iniquity," they are doing the devil's work. If it is the devil's work to introduce them there, it cannot be the Lord's work to keep them there! But lastly,

VI. We must state briefly what the parable really does teach. "The field is the world" (not the church.) This is doubtless sufficiently explicit. "Go ye into all the world." Mark xvi. 15. "The world" in which the gospel was to be preached is "the field" in which the tares and wheat were to "appear." Here they were to "grow together until the harvest." "Wilt thou that we go and gather them up?" must have referred to the field (the world.) Since the tares are persons, and the field is the world, we are naturally led to believe that the parable teaches their extirpation from the world itself, by violence. It is a lesson given by Christ against persecution. Compare the parable with Luke ix. 54-56: Matt. xxvi. 51, 52. Three motives are brought out why we should not participate in persecution:—1. It is inconsistent with the genius of the "gospel of the kingdom:" "ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of." 2. Christ interdicts it by penal sanction: "All they that take the sword shall perish with the sword." 3. It cannot be attempted by God's people and carried on by them, without involving themselves, and their brethren, in a common destruction: "Lest, while ye gather up the tares, ye root up the wheat with them."

"Discipline."

Brother Huggins:

I have been very much pleased with the illustration about the "wild asses" in your paper, in the article on "Discipline, and good judgment." The good brother says, he has "Found how hard it is to contend with the religious liberty idea." I am wondering with whom has he had the "contention." Was it with the enemies on the outside, or was it with his brethren on the inside? If it was with his brethren, the Church of God is not one of the asses who has turned hi heels toward the inside and is kicking his brethren! He tells us that the wild asses when in danger from an enemy, turn their heads in and their heels out, and thus ward off the foe, but it seems he has had no contention on the outside. His trouble is all on the inside, and there, it seems, all the "kicking" was done. In fact he admits it, when he says, "We turn our heads out and our heels in, and kick one another." Just so exactly. What we need to do is, stop the kicking.

Does our brother mean to say that he is opposed to religious liberty to the Word of God bound? If his liberty in religious matters was circumscribed or abridged or shut off, there is no doubt but he would kick as vigorously as any one in the ring, whether he hit any one or not.

It is a good thing to obey the authority of an Elder, when that Elder is guided by the Spirit of God. I know a congregation whose Elder claimed that, 'Once an Elder, always an Elder." That same Elder has passed by the church door with his pack of deer-hounds, enroute for a hunt, when the congregation had assembled for worship and instruction in divine things. I believe in fearlessly standing for the faith, but I do not believe that the authority of such an elder is worth regarding. Let the wheat and tares grow together until the harvest, but be sure that you—you, yourself—are wheat.

Lovingly your brother,
A. J. EYCHANER.

Doctrine Embraces Belief and Works.

The importance of the subject is the only excuse for resuming our remarks with reference to our Brother's position. It now becomes our duty to go back to THE RESTITUTION of November 10, where we find an article under the caption of "What is the Doctrine of Christ?" That a good many have applied doctrine to belief too freely, we must admit, but now you have gone to the other extreme, which is just as dangerous and unscriptural. In said article you take the position that all the doctrine of Christ and the apostles refers to what we do or how we should live, not what we believe. Why you take this position is apparent, for you say in referring to the Sermon on the Mount "There is no calling out the articles of our faith as found in the Bible—no appointing of a committee or a conference board to examine the disciples," etc.

So your idea is to refute that by showing that Jesus taught us how to live—not what we should believe. It is passing strange that you have just discovered this after so many years. If certain Conferences had not made this move you might never have discovered it. It is evident that when a cat gets its eye on a mouse hole, it becomes oblivious to its surroundings. It sees and thinks of but one thing. So we may become so wrought up, and possess such an intent desire to refute certain things, that we become forgetful and unmindful of many things in connection.

In paragraph three of your article you say, "Some suppose and teach that the doctrine of Christ refers exclusively to what a man should believe, while the truth of this matter is that it refers to his actions, his conduct, his work. A few texts will illustrate the true idea of doctrine."

Here you go to the other extreme. This is the idea of all the churches and opens the way for our entrance there. Why not go with them, if conduct is all that is necessary? You call the above "facts," and call our attention to Matthew v. 3 to end of chapter 7th as proof. The facts are that the Sermon on the Mount was preached to the disciples who already had the belief, and did not much need to be referred to that.

But before discussing the "facts" in this Sermon, I wish to propound a few questions: Is it not a fact that our belief is the basis for what we do? Faith first, then right doing. Can one do right and believe wrong, and receive a reward? On the other hand, can he believe right and do wrong, and receive a reward? No; it takes right believing and right doing to procure the reward. The two go together, and are inseparable. Jesus and the apostles taught both.

You say the Sermon on the Mount refers wholly to how we should live. Let us examine it closely and see. Commencing at Matthew v. 3, as you ask us to, we quote: "Blessed are the poor in spirit; for their's is the kingdom of heaven." Both belief and action are taught here. Why poor in spirit? Because we believe in so doing we will get into the kingdom of God. Verse 4: "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted." Why mourn unless you believe you shall be comforted? If you did not believe you would be comforted you would not mourn, would you? Verse 5: "Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth." Any belief taught here? Why be meek? Because we believe in so doing we shall inherit the earth. Belief is the basis for meekness. Why hunger and thirst after righteousness, unless we believe we shall be filled? Why be pure in heart? Because in so doing we believe we shall see God. The belief that we shall see God is the basis for purity of heart. So in all these verses, the Savior has taught us what to expect as a reward for our actions. In our trials and persecutions which Jesus knew would come, he tells us in verse 12 to "rejoice, and be exceeding glad." Why? Because we believe we have a great reward in heaven, and also believe when Jesus comes he brings that reward to us, Matthew xvi. 27.

So we see that the doctrine of belief and actions is carried along together in this sermon. As proof of this, in addition to the above, turn to chapter vi. 33, where Jesus says, "Seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." The conjunction "and" joins the two. It is evident that the one is useless without the other. The belief in the kingdom of God is at least a part of his righteousness. This is so plainly taught by Jesus, when he came to John to be baptized. John refused, and Jesus told him, "Suffer it to be so now, for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness. The word "all" here includes baptism. To fail in this is to fail in God's righteousness.

Have I a right then to sit in judgment on a person's faith respecting baptism? If I fail to do so I would fail to be right with God. Jesus includes himself as the candidate, and John as the administrator here. The church would be compelled to refuse one admittance without baptism, as one not having done the right things of God; and refuse to tolerate a proclaimer of the gospel who would refuse to administer it. So in this matter we have to sit in judgment by the authority of the Scripture.

Let us now look at this matter from another standpoint. Faith comes under two heads: 1st, It refers to things we believe. 2d, How much do we believe it. There can be no faith without something to have faith in. Then we are in a position to show by our works how strong our faith is. As the paint is to the house, so is our morals to our faith. The Christian graces are the adornments of our faith. "Add to your faith virtue, knowledge," etc. But how can I "add" to something I haven't got? Morals must be preached to the believer. This was the way and doctrine of Jesus. As Paul says there is but "one faith," then these ornaments are for that faith only. "Examine yourselves, whether ye are in the faith."

The Brother says No; you can examine my morals but not my belief. Let me remind you that the Church has no jurisdiction unless you are in the faith. To sit in judgment on you morals, the Church must first know whether or not you are within its jurisdiction. This can be determined only by examining your faith or belief first, and if you have one faith and me another, then the jurisdiction of the Church is lost on one or the other of us, and without a guide of some kind, they cannot determine that, and so lose their power to judge our morals. Any way we look at it, we can see that the two stand or fall together.

To prove further that the doctrine of Christ does not refer to morals only but includes faith or belief, we have only to refer to what the Word says.

In Matthew xx. 20-23, we have the account of the "mother of Zebedee's children" coming to Jesus and asking that her two sons might "sit the one on the right hand, and the other on the left, in thy kingdom." We learn here that Jesus had not only taught the people that he was to have a kingdom, but had gone into the details at least as to positions. If not, why did this woman ask this of the Savior? His answer shows that she had understood the teaching rightly, but did not know whose prerogative it was to grant the request. "It is not mine to give," says Jesus, "but it shall be given to them for whom it is prepared of my Father." Here is an incentive to action. We are striving to win a position with Jesus in his kingdom. We must know and believe there are such positions before we can work for them.

Here then we learn that the doctrine of Jesus includes more than right living; it includes the thing that prompts us to live right. If the Church has the right to sit in judgment on a man's morals, but not his faith, we are left in a pretty predicament; for we would have no right to admonish an unruly member, for if we did we would be dealing with his faith. You would not dare to point out to him what he was going to lose, nor on the other hand, show him what was to be gained. It is the allurements of the world that cause a departure from the faith, while the joys, the glories of the kingdom anchor us to God and keep us in the faith.

Exhortation would fall flat without belief. The apostles wanted to know what they were going to get for forsaking all and following Jesus. The question with them was. Will it pay? Then Jesus told them what they were to receive as a reward, Matthew xix. 28, and let them decide whether it would pay or not.

Here is some more calling out of belief, another article of faith. Their faith in his promise was responsible for their decision, and they continued with him in the hope of those positions. That we are "to sit with Jesus in his throne," with all that means, is the basis of exhortation to us. So no difference which way we turn, belief is before us all the time. And it formed one part of the doctrine of Jesus all the way through.

Turning to John xi. we find the beautiful story of the resurrection of Lazarus. Here we find several points of more than passing interest. We begin our comments at verse 23, "Jesus saith unto her, Thy brother shall rise again." Verse 24: "Martha saith unto him, I know he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day."

Here we want to emphasize the expression of Martha, "I know." How did she know her brother would "rise again?" Martha expresses a knowledge here of the resurrection, and even the time of it. Where did she learn this unless Jesus had taught her on some of his visits to her home? And if Jesus taught her, and that is where she got her knowledge, it must be an important item of belief. Do we think Martha's believing this would have any thing to do with her conduct during life? This article of faith would be one of the objects with her of a pure and devoted life. Strange as it may seem, this article of her faith is written down, and though she has been sleeping for centuries, the world still knows what Martha believed. Would to God that in future time when our life work is in the past, that future generations might look in the Church records and learn not only that there had been such persons, but what we believed. (Amen.—Editor.) Can we fathom the joy that must have come into the hearts of this girl when she heard the gracious words fall from the Master's lips, "Thy brother shall rise again." Did I hear you say, I believe that too? Then you must believe Jesus taught belief as well as morals.

But here is another item: "Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?" Here is another item of belief. Why ask her this question, if it was not important to be believed? In this last item of belief we find in her answer another one connected with it, and cannot be separated from it. She said: "Yea, Lord, I believe (an article of faith here) that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world."

For Martha to have denied that Christ was the Son of God, would have made her faith in the resurrection invalid, and vice versa. "I am the resurrection and the life." Who? "The Christ, the Son of God." If Martha had denied either one, her moral life would have availed her nothing.

There comes finally a supreme test of Martha's faith. In verse 39, supposing putrefaction had set in, her faith seems to waver. But what Jesus now says to her is very important. "Said I not unto thee that if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldst see the glory of God." You say "the doctrine of Christ is not a series of propositions upon which faith is founded, but is a series of proposition regulating what we do."

Why was it Jesus did not say to Martha, "If thou wouldst do right, thou shouldst see the glory of God?" Is there a hint that she would see "the glory of God" if she did not believe? The negative of this would be, If thou believest not, thou shalt not see "the glory of God." So the doctrine of Christ is a series of propositions regulating both belief and what we do. Let us see, Jas ii 19: "Thou believest there is one God; thou doest well; the devils believe and tremble." Vs. 20, But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead?" To believe in one God is well, but it would not be well for you to believe in three. We learn from the Scripture that faith is one of the factors in the proposition, but is of no avail without works, "being alone." Works without faith would be just as lonely, would it not? Here is an article of faith but if a committee or conference should copy that and say: We believe "in one God" I suppose they would commit an unpardonable sin!! To head off creed making, you separate works from faith, and make the doctrine of Christ apply to one only. I believe you do it at your own peril. The Pharisees accused Jesus of teaching that he was a king, the Son of God, etc., while the Sadducees accused him of teaching the literal resurrection of the dead. And did Jesus deny either charge? No; on the other hand he admitted it, as you well know. He quoted from the old Scriptures to prove he was right with reference to the resurrection. Luke xx 27, 38 That all this doctrine refers to belief no one can deny.

Lastly, I wish to call attention to your interpretation of the parable of the sower, Mark iv 2. You say: "The point in the whole parable is to bring forth fruit." This is very misleading. In Matt xiii. Jesus tells us the seed sown is the Word of the kingdom; the fruit is the production of that seed. In other words, the seed is the gospel, "the good news of the kingdom;" the "fruit" is the works of those that believe. Jesus makes this so plain in Matt xiii 23: "But he that received seed into the good ground, is he that heareth the Word, and understandeth it, which also beareth fruit," etc. In addition to hearing the Word we must bear fruit. Here Jesus makes the belief or an "understanding" of the kingdom just as binding, as the bearing of fruit. In fact it is the tree that bears fruit or is barren. Why any one should misunderstand this parable and interpret it in such a manner, can be accounted for only by knowing the purpose for which it is done. So in this parable Jesus taught both belief and right doing, as in all his teaching, and so did the Apostles. One is just as binding as the other. One adorns the other. One should be just as sacred to the church as the other. Both should be carefully guarded. To be slack in either would be fatal. Why did Jesus speak to Martha of the resurrection as "the glory of God"? Because in it rests the hope of the believing dead. Without it we would look upon the pale cold faces of our loved ones for the last time. But how glorious to be able to say with Martha, "We know;" "they shall rise again." This is the climax of all articles of faith. Because all the rest depend upon it so far as the dead are concerned. Oh brethren, are we trying to put down the "shield of faith" and let the fiery darts of skepticism and all other isms shoot their darts into us (God forbid, dear Brother—Editor)? Or will we put on the shield of faith and stand by the old ship until she lands safely in port? If we fall, let us fall fighting the good fight of faith. Let us remember that we rise in the morning of the resurrection to realize what we believed or stood for here. The one must correspond to the other. But we must not expect a wrong belief to correspond to a perfect kingdom. In Rev ii and iii we find the letters to the seven churches. Here Jesus finds fault with both their belief and works. And if we do not guard both we may expect to be found wanting. That the foregoing is in the light of Scripture we have no doubt. And if so our duty is plain.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

The Bible.

A DECLARATION OF ITS FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES, WITH EXPLANATIONS OF MANY DIFFICULT TEXTS.

The above is the title page of a book the Editor proposes to publish as soon as enough subscriptions are received to pay the printer. The subject matter of the book as now prepared consists of explanations of more than one hundred and twenty six subjects; and to these will be added other subjects readers may send us while the book is being gotten ready for the press.

The primary design of the book is to teach aliens the truth. Selections from our writings in THE RESTITUTION, especially from the "Question Box," have been carefully made, and thoroughly revised. The only book ever published by our Church which formulates the fundamental principles of the gospel in propositions, and then explains all difficult texts, introducing every conceivable Bible subject—a variety most pleasing to the reader.

The price will not be less than 25 cents, and not more than $1 00. Do not send money now, but send us your pledges, and when we have received enough pledges to pay the printer, we will go to press, and will announce when our pledged subscribers can remit the money. In sending us pledges to take one or a number of books, be sure and give your correct address.

Send pledges to R. G. Huggins, at 10703 Hampden avenue, Cleveland, O

Brother Underwood,

Please find inclosed Money Order to pay my subscription to the dear old paper for another year. Would have remitted sooner, but have been moving to a new location, hence the delay. Have been taking the dear old paper for nearly forty years and would be lost without its visits, as it is all the preaching we have. I know of no one of like precious faith in this part of Colorado. I greatly enjoy the Love Feast letters from the brethren scattered abroad. I am truly glad to know that there are a few that are still contending for the faith once delivered to the saints. May the Lord hasten his coming, is my prayer.

Yours in the One Faith.
N. H. HORNADAY.

Notice to Illinois Bereans.

Our new lesson books are now ready. In order to meet, in a measure, the expense of printing, the Bereans, who attended the annual meeting agreed to buy their books and to invite any, who felt so inclined, to do the same. This is not necessary, as all Bereans will be provided with the Lesson Books; but the deficit of the treasury can be easily met in this way. Will the Illinois Berean Societies send in their orders as soon as possible to Leila E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario St., Austin Station, Chicago, Ill. Our president wishes all societies to begin the new work the first week in February. After February first send to her for the books at 829 N. Galena Ave., Dixon, Ill. Order about six more than you need and keep them as a reserve fund. When your society is supplied, send the money to Wm. Hardesty, Oregon, Ill. If you wish books sent by express, state plainly, in your order the nearest express office. If you wish them sent by mail enclose the postage in the order, five cents for three books and seven cents for six books, etc.

Illinois has the new Berean Bible Lessons to sell to any isolated societies or members who are not affiliated with Iowa, Indiana or Michigan. Price ten cents.

INDIANA BEREANS.

[This notice should be read in connection with notice to Illinois Bereans on page 4.—ED.]

Books may be had at the same rate from Evelyn K. Harsch, 515 Pennsylvania Avenue, South Bend, Indiana. Send the money to Flora Harris, at Rensselaer, Indiana.

State officers greatly desire co-operation from every Church in the State as well as all isolated members. Much anxious thought is being given each situation, and we are hoping progress will result from the plans we have formulated, and have started to put into action.

EVELYN K. HARSCH, Pres.

Brethren of the Household of Faith in Michigan. Greeting:

At the Annual Conference in 1908, a committee was appointed to recommend a plan of raising more funds for the purpose of furthering evangelistic work in the state of Michigan. Their report has been published in these columns from time to time, and a great many of the brethren have responded nobly, and much additional work has been accomplished.

During the month of October we had some excellent help from Brother S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, with the result that eight dear ones were added to our number, and we have a promise from him that he will return and give Michigan some additional work during the winter, and we trust the brethren who have delayed sending in whatever they intended giving for this work will kindly respond with promptness, for on this depends how long we can keep Brother Lindsay at work. If we could send our offerings quarterly, it would no doubt be easier than to send the whole amount at once, and that would give us more to use during the year. We cannot afford to let this opportunity pass, so will expect the brethren to respond promptly. Forward offerings to A. K. Richardson, R F D 5, Hastings, Michigan, or the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette Street, Grand Rapids Michigan. We thank you in advance.

Yours in the service of the King.
F. V. BLAKELY, Sec.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Mrs John Fletcher	1 50
Mrs E C Poole	1 00
Mrs Frank L. Martin	50
Hannah M Barber	1 50
Mrs Selia Anderson	1 50
Mrs S Sherland	50

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured the Van Buren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 803 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Christmas and New Year Gifts.

The best gift to make is that which will do the recipient the most good. The gift that may lead such an one to receive the Pearl of Great Price, will certainly be the most profitable gift made. Between now and January 15 1910, I will sell the Pine Woods Bible Class, Student's Text Book, Cunningly Devised Fables of Russellism, and the Bible Study of Hades, all four when taken together, for $1 75. Address me at 325 N. Willow Avenue, Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. T. J. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1 25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10648 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from Mrs M Joblin, 10648 Ashbury ave, N E Cleveland Ohio

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1.00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

Inheritance.

"Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." Matt. v. 5.

To those who believe their future home is to be in heaven, the mere thought of this "gross old earth" being the everlasting abode of the saints is repugnant, they want to give some spiritual meaning to our Savior's language; or if literal, such as one expressed it "a street 2x6 feet," which to our mind is so irreverent as to border closely on to sinning against the Holy Spirit," like an infant, and unwarranted play with the Savior's words.

True, this "gross old earth," (as it is sneeringly termed) with the curse resting upon it, (Gen. iii 17-18) would not be a desirable abode for eternity; but the Revelator says, "There shall be no more curse." Rev. xxii. 3

"But the meek shall inherit the earth, and delight themselves in the abundance of peace." Psa. xxv. 11. To inherit the earth implies more than a few feet for a silent resting place; the Savior pronounces a blessing, which carries with it a condition of happiness, as the Psalmist says,

In his days shall the righteous flourish; and abundance of peace so long as the moon endureth. He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth." Psa. lxxii. 7, 8

Agreeable to this Job xi. 14, says, "For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea." Num. xiv. 21, "But as truly as I live, all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord." Psa. lxxii 19, "And let the whole earth be filled with his glory." Indeed the whole 72nd Psalm is fitting in this connection. Isa. xi. 9 "For the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." Isa. xi 15 "And there were great voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever."

This, then, brings us to the subject of the kingdom of Christ, which is indissolubly connected with the saint's inheritance. Luke i 32 33, referring to the Son who was to be born of the Virgin Mary, the angel says, "He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest, and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his Father David, and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

Agreeable to this we read in Dan vii 13, 14, "I saw in the night vision, and behold, one like the Son of Man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him; and there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, and nations, and languages should serve and obey him; his dominion is an everlasting dominion which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed."

As evidence that this earth is to be the theatre of Christ's kingdom, in which such blessings flow, see Isa ii 1-4 xi. xii. xxxii. and xxxv. chapters, entire; putting special stress on the 10th verse of the 35th chapter, which we take space to quote. "And the ransomed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away." Isa. l. 11, is almost a repetition of his language just quoted.

The 65th chapter of Isaiah, from the 17th to the 25th verse is very plain on this subject, but for want of space we will request the readers to turn and read.

Our Seventh Day friends would have the saints all transported to heaven at the first resurrection, there to remain for a thousand years at which, and during which time, the wicked are to be destroyed and the earth left utterly desolate; but I find no Scripture supporting this theory. Many of the prophecies have had a literal fulfillment, and many are yet unfulfilled, but certainly will be; but those quoted and referred to above, and many others, do not fit in any age of the past, and will not fit in the ages beyond the millennium; hence their literal fulfillment must be during the thousand years reign of Christ on the earth; for places, people and events mentioned, cannot be in heaven, beside the earth is repeatedly and explicitly stated; hence, the Savior taught his disciples to pray, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth, as in heaven."

The best evidence we find, supporting the theory of going to heaven at the resurrection, and which is quoted by our Advent friends, is Mark xiii. 27, "From the uttermost parts of the earth to the uttermost parts of heaven," this in connection with 1 Thess. iv. 17, "Caught up to meet the Lord in the air," etc.

These, disconnected from other Scriptures, give some coloring to their theory; but Matt. xxiv. 31, quoting the same language of the Savior, says, "From the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other;" earth not mentioned: here would seem to be a discrepancy, but we cannot suppose the evangelists do not agree. The thought to be conveyed, as we understand it is, gathered from the various parts of the earth to one central point and Jerusalem seems to be the place. True, the saints are caught up to meet the Lord in the air, but we find nothing to show that they go on to heaven. We do, however, find that there will be two stages of the Lord's coming, one for his saints, and one with his saints. As to the first we cite the reader to Matt. xxiv. 30 31; Mark xiii. 26 27; 1 Thess. iv. 16 17; as to the second, 1 Thess. iii. 13; Jude 14; Zech. xiv. 5; Rev. ix. 10. "And we shall reign on the earth."

E K BARNHILL.

Paul and his Last Letter. No. 4.

The cloak, the books and the parchment which Timothy was ordered to bring were not all the apostle needed. His trial on the second charge was still pending. What he had done at his first hearing, preach the gospel, he would do at his second hearing. So he requested Timothy to bring Mark with him, giving as a reason, "For he is profitable to me for the ministry." Mark had been under a cloud as the result of his conduct at Pamphylia in departing from Paul and his company of co laborers, and returning to Jerusalem. Acts xiii 13. It was his duty to go with Paul but he was not needed. His motives were bad in Paul's estimation; so seven or eight years later when the apostle planned to revisit the churches he had planted to see how they fared; and Barnabas was determined to take Mark as one of the company, Paul stoutly objected on the ground of his conduct at Pamphylia; concluding he was not to be depended on in case of emergency. The contention was so sharp that the result was a separation of Paul and Barnabas. (Acts xv 37) the latter taking Mark and the former choosing Silas; so forming two missions instead of one. Some times, as in this case, when 2 men not work together, they can work apart and do more or better. Paul [illegible] has been weaned out and he is praise pronounced on him, which restoration of confidence shows that some change had taken place in Mark. If he was cowardly at Pamphylia he is brave now. He will come to Rome to preach the truth, for which Paul was in bonds and prison, and for which he is about to forfeit his life. "He is profitable to me for the ministry"—I may in truth add—"of the Word." Mark is not to come to Rome to minister to Paul's physical needs only but to preach the gospel in the face of danger. Preach it conjointly with Paul in that vast auditorium, in the great metropolis of the Roman world, from whence it would radiate to distant lands under the dominion of the Cæsars.

In the preaching of inspired apostles and evangelists there had never been the like opportunity of spreading the truth. Paul fully appreciated the situation, as shown by his words in v. 17, "The Lord stood with me and strengthened me; that by me the preaching might be fully known, and that all the Gentiles might hear;" assigning that to this end he was delivered out of the mouth of the lion." We at this distant day from the date of primitive preaching do not fully realize the danger which every where threatened the lives of adherents of unpopular truth; so do not estimate the enormous cost of giving the world the message of salvation. Ours are civil times. The times of the first heralds of Christian doctrine were those of bitter opposition, of deadly conflict. The adversaries of the new religion were numerous, active and unreasonable. They did not argue the question of difference between their religion and that which they were invited to accept, very long, before they appealed to force. It was to the interest of the secular power to maintain the ancient religion, as this was the religion of the state so thoroughly incorporated with the political system of each kingdom that to assail, as did Christianity, the existing religion, was to assail the secular power, and thus demanded in the view of the magistrate on the throne, violent measures to suppress the new religion; so, the proclaimers of this were persecuted even unto death. The heralds of the new religion were peaceable men and came with a message of peace and pardon; but they were under the most solemn obligations to denounce idolatry; as did Paul at Thessalonica, teaching the people to turn from idols to serve the living and true God, and to wait for his Son from heaven. This was the news they kindly broke to men and women steeped in everything foul and debasing. For preaching peace and purity; preaching what would elevate man in the intellectual and moral scale of being, and give him a well grounded hope of life beyond the silence and darkness of the tomb, these heralds of good things to come, were arraigned before unreasonable tyrants, and sentenced to death, preceded by torture such as only savages could inflict. Man in all ages has been styled a rational being, but a very large proportion of the race have in its conduct belied this claim of the attribute of reason.

The apostolic church and especially the public proclaimers had a sorry time; always facing danger, and death in frightful form. Paul writing to the Corinthian church concerning himself and co laborers says, "We who live are always delivered unto death for Jesus' sake." 2 Cor iv 11. "So then death worketh in us but life in you." v 12. Along with other things which fell to his and lot he says, "In deaths oft;" meaning that in numerous instances death seemed inevitable. (2 Cor xi 23. Referring to this experience in Asia he wrote, "For we would not, brethren, have you ignorant of our trouble which came to us in Asia, that we were pressed out of measure, above strength, insomuch that we despaired even of life." Chapter i 8. He does not tell us here in what form death seemed unavoidably the fate of himself and fellow laborers; [illegible] the 10th verse he says, Who delivered us out of so great a death, and doth deliver;" in whom we trust that he will yet deliver," or continue to deliver from similar perils to which they would be exposed subsequently. "So great a death." Was it death by exposure to the savage ferocity of wild beasts in some amphitheater; or was it by the slow torture of faggot and flame a mode of inflicting punishment by papal Rome centuries after; with other cruelties resorted to by the "mother of harlots," to extort denial of a dearly cherished faith, and to gain adherents to Romish abominations? We can only conjecture what the dreaded pains and punishment were to which these faithful men were exposed, or, perhaps in fact, partially suffered. Their trust was not in themselves, but in God who raiseth the dead. Under the circumstances death seemed certain; so the only thing on which to base a sustaining hope is that God raises the dead; and would of course raise them. In the view of the apostle death would terminate the present existence, and the only hope set against this is resurrection. Why does the apostle look to emergence from death for himself and fellow workers as the only way into life and being again? The only answer to this is, That resurrection at the coming of the Lord was the clearly stated hope of the gospel; and so, was a hope that sustained him when facing death. If Paul held the doctrine of Plato it is very strange, that when death was confronting him, he did not give expression to Plato's doctrine in some plain form of words, the meaning of which nobody could successfully dispute—plain as he states the resurrection as the ground of his hope. The nature of the subject would demand such plainness. That he refrained from thus stating plainly the popular hope of the churches, I take as proof that he entertained no such hope. This alone accounts for his silence. It would have been just as easy and natural for him to state in plain speech the immortality of the soul, or any equivalent of this, as it is for men today to put the doctrine in such plain terms that neither child nor adult fails to grasp the meaning. Wherever the doctrine is found this plainness of statement characterizes the language used to set it before us, whether sculptured in marble above the inanimate dust of the dead, or embalmed in verse by the great poets of modern times, or embodied in the learned disquisitions of men eminent in scholarship, or poured forth in oratorical strains from countless pulpits of the enlightened world, or uttered in the stammering speech of illiterate millions, the same plainness is observed.

The sentiment of hope, whether true or false, whether falling from the tongue of the philosopher or that of the illiterate, is always couched in plain words. Bible writers afford no exception to this rule. Paul's hope found expression in very plain terms, but it was not that of ninety-nine obituaries—of religious papers and periodicals—out of every hundred recorded, which represents the immortal soul of the deceased as entering on its reward in heaven at the moment of the death of the body. No, no, Paul's hope was a very different thing. This I think I will be able to show clearly in my next paper, the concluding number.

Editor Restitution:

We have teachers in this part who claim to only speak where the Bible speaks, and to be silent where it is silent. These teachers say there are two kingdoms of God. The Church is one of them, and the gospel preached by Jesus and his apostles refers to both kingdoms. Now if there were two kingdoms of God, and the gospel refers to both, Jesus and the apostles would have to speak of them in a plain sense, and where the gospel refers to only one of them they would have to use a mark of distinction. So I thought I would bring forward all the Scriptures where the kingdom is said to be taught or preached, as that is the only source of light we have on the subject.

Matthew iv. 23: And Jesus went about all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues and preaching the gospel of the kingdom.

Matthew ix. 35: And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom.

Matthew xxiv. 14: And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations.

Mark i. 14: Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God.

Luke iv. 43: And he said unto them I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also; for therefore am I sent.

Luke viii. 1: And it came to pass afterwards, that he went throughout every city and village, preaching and showing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God.

Luke ix. 2: And he sent them to preach the kingdom of God.

Verse 11: And the people, when they knew it, followed him; and he received them, and spake unto them of the kingdom of God.

Verse 60: Jesus said unto him, let the dead bury the dead; but go thou and preach the kingdom of God.

Luke xvi. 16: The law and the prophets were until John; since that time the kingdom of God is preached.

Acts i 3: To whom also he showed himself alive after his passion, by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God.

Acts viii. 12: But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women.

Acts xix. 8: And he went into the synagogue, and spake boldly for the space of three months, disputing, and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God.

Acts xx. 25: And now, behold, I know that you all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, shall see my face no more.

Acts xxviii. 23: And when they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodging; to whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus, both out of the law of Moses, and out of the prophets from morning till evening.

Verses 30-31: And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired house, and received all that came in unto him, preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ.

Dear reader, the above Scriptures evidently show that but one kingdom was referred to in the gospel preached by Jesus and the apostles. How very strange it is that some men preach so much and say nothing about the kingdom of God. They all claim to follow Jesus and his apostles, but what a contrast.

Just think of the above Scriptures, the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, as preached throughout all Judea, Samaria, and Galilee; Jesus' last forty days with the disciples, and Paul's three months in the synagogues, the two years at Rome. The preaching of the kingdom of God must have

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other Kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Dear Restitution:

Have been much interested in my RESTITUTION of late and the last number seems especially interesting to me. "The Parable of the Pounds," by H. M. Lucas is very full of meat in due season. So too, that of our venerable Brother John L. Wise. May he be spared long to minister to the scattered flock. I noticed also with pleasure an article by Brother Mason on the interpretation of the prophets, "Excerpt" from writings of Prof. Davidson. Brother Mason ought to let us hear from him more frequently.

Under the head of "Do People Die in the Millennium?" That question seems one to be answered very easily by reference to the text—"The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." 1 Cor. xv. 26.

Since the above proves conclusively that death will continue to befall men until the "righteous King" has accomplished the putting down of "all rule and authority;" for "he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet" (1 Cor. xv. 24.) it appears clear that not until "all things have been subdued unto him" does death become unknown or impossible. Then shall the Son himself be subject to God's universal reign, for God shall "be all in all." 1 Cor. xv. 28.

I think many times we assume too broad a meaning from our proof texts, and should more clearly study and compare. Take for instance the references to Isaiah lxv. 22, "The days of my people (shall be) are as the days of a tree." Now as this is spoken in reference to Jerusalem (v 19) and to her people—"mine elect"—we are prohibited from applying it to any other than regathered Israel (see v 16) Likewise, it is assumed that previous to the time of Noah men lived to a great age, even as Adam lived to be 930 years old, etc.

Any one who has a Bible can trace up the length of the lives of the patriarch from Adam to Noah, but can we assume upon this record that all the people lived such long lives? I have no knowledge of any thing which will warrant such an assumption.

Then when we see that the line of Noah's ancestors back to Adam were the chosen line through whom the knowledge of the creation and the preservation of the line of truth must be passed down and beyond the flood, we can see why they should be specially favored with long life. We know that Noah was six hundred years old when the flood came. He lived among men of intolerable wickedness—"every imagination of the thoughts of their heart was only evil continually."

Can we think of such a people as surviving to such ages as those worthy ones like Noah and his fathers before him? It does not appear reasonable to think so without positive proof, since the children of the wicked generally bear the fruits of their father's sins.

Although you may not know me, and Abraham may not acknowledge me, and Isaac have no knowledge of me, I am glad to be living in the light—in the blaze of gospel light. I never saw the light as I do now, and I rest on the promises on record. Surely my lines have fallen on pleasant places, and I have a goodly heritage among the Christian brethren of the Cleveland Church, who take so much interest in my welfare. Though I have a long way to go, it does me good to hear Brother Huggins. The young folks are so kind to me, and are such an inspiration to me. They seem to make my face to shine, and my whole being to leap with joy. We have a fine lot of young people here, and feel like exclaiming Who will join our happy band, and go marching to Zion. I hope the boys will be like David and Jonathan, and the girls like Deborah and Miriam

EXAMINE Your account, and give us a renewal of subscription if you can do so.

We thank you for the favor.

Brother Joseph Williams was with the Church at Burr Oak, Indiana, last week and the reports indicate a good interest was manifested.

Owing to the severe illness of his little daughter, Brother Carl Thompson could not be at Plymouth last Sunday. We have not heard how the child is, but we can assure our Brother that he has the sympathy of all God's people.

Brother S. J. Ward is holding a series of meetings at Argos Church, eight miles south of this city. He came up and visited us one day last week. He reports good interest. On Sunday evening a sled load of seventeen from Plymouth drove down and heard him and enjoyed meeting the brethren and sisters there.

Word from Brother S. J. Lindsay tells that he is holding meetings at Adeline, Illinois, with splendid audiences. He says "The heavy wall of prejudice that has existed there, has been greatly broken down, and people have been coming out regularly who formerly would not come near our preaching." Good for that.

Sunday night we received word by telegram that Sister Randa McDonald had died that day (January 30, 1910) at Portland, Oregon. We have no particulars, but must have been very sudden, as we received a card from her on Monday morning dated at Portland on January 26. She was born in this, Marshall County, Indiana, and the greater part of her life was spent in and around Plymouth. Her father was Samuel McDonald, one of the first settlers here. Sister Rebecca Osborne of Culver, is a sister, and Mr. Thomas McDonald living south of here is her brother. After leaving Plymouth our Sister went with two younger sisters, (now Mrs. Kittie Upmyer and Mrs. Florence Littler) to Rensselaer, and then to Marion, Indiana. A few years ago they all moved to Portland, Ore. At the June meeting at old Antioch, five miles south of Plymouth, held in the summer of 1872, at the close of an evening service, an invitation was given, and three girls and a boy went forward. One of them, Sister Mary J. Dickson-Price has been dead several years. The others are well known in these parts, being our Brother Mede Logan, and Sisters Lizzie Dickson and Eva L. Thompson-Underwood. As was the custom then, these young people went "the same hour of the night" to the water and were baptized by Uncle Hugh Barnhill. On his asking if any one else desired to confess their faith in Christ, and take on themselves his name, Sister Randa McDonald stepped forward. In this quiet way she lived her life of humble submission to the Master, yet ever with the spirit of determination and firmness. She was willing to spend her strength for the good of others. Her life was an example for those about her. May we each so live that when Jesus comes we will meet our Sister where partings will come no more, and tears will all be wiped away.

Believing that many of our readers are interested in conditions in Palestine, and in doings of the Hebrews, we print the following from the Chicago Tribune:

Dispatches from Jerusalem tell of remarkable strides made during the last few years in the repeopling of Palestine with Jews. The proclamation of the constitution in Turkey threw open the doors of Palestine and led to an enormous influx of Jewish colonists, who are already settled on some of the best lands of the country.

In Jerusalem alone four-fifths of the population now belongs to the Jewish faith. Large portions of land round Lake Tiberius have been bought up from poor natives and converted into prosperous farms.

The plain of Sharon, between Jaffa and Lydda, is one vast garden, owned and tended by Jewish skill and labor. The Hauran, one of the most fertile wheat districts in the world, is gradually being sold to Jewish syndicates.

Almost the whole of the extensive Plain of Esdraelon has been bought up by Jews. Their prosperous colonies spread from Dan to Beersheba, and even farther south to the outskirts of Egypt. Thousands are escaping from Persia to find shelter and protection in the Holy Land, while every ship from Odessa carries some of them.

The Jordan valley, once the property of the ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid, is being eagerly sought after by Jewish capitalists. The Zionists, whose agents are distributed all over the land, are buying up the rich properties of the Mohammedan effendis, whose incomes since the revolution have lessened.

At Jaffa, Tiberias, Safed, and Haifa (Mount Carmel) Jews are reckoned by tens of thousands. Towns like Ramoth-Gilead, Bethlehem, Nazareth, and Gaza, where a few years ago no Jew dared show his face, have now their Jewish quarters and synagogues.

The whole city of Jerusalem is essentially a Jewish town. Banking as well as trade and commerce is monopolized by Jews. The government has found it necessary to organize a company of Jewish gendarmes.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars are annually sent from Europe and America to enable the colonists to build homes, hospitals, schools and invalid homes. Over 100 Jewish schools already exist in Jerusalem alone. Synagogues are rising up everywhere.

The value of the land has risen fourfold. The ignorant and poverty-stricken peasants are being ousted from their homes and villages by the European Jew settler, whose modern agricultural implements and methods have made the land produce harvests never dreamed of by the natives. The Anglo-Palestine company, a Zionist banking and commercial enterprise, is pushing the cause of Israel with energy.

Plea for Palestine Homes.

Prominent rabbis in attendance at the thirteenth annual convention of the Order of the Knights of Zion, which has been in session since Friday in Chicago, will address a mass-meeting to be held tonight at the Chicago Jewish institute, 1256 West Taylor street. The object of the order is to establish a home for the Jews in Palestine. There are now 400,000 members, composing fifty gates, or clubs, in the middle west.

Fellowship.

"That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us: and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ."

The apostle declares something unto us for a purpose. "That ye also may have fellowship with us." v. 3.

The twelve were chosen and specially instructed. Matt. x 1-8 Hear the earnest prayer for the apostles chosen to be witnesses, "I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world; thine they were, and thou gavest them me; and they have kept thy Word. Now they have known that all things whatsoever thou hast given me are of thee. I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me, and they have received them, and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me. I pray for them; I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me; for they are thine." John xvii. 6-8.

"They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world. Sanctify them through thy truth; thy Word is truth. Neither pray I for these alone but for them also which shall believe on me through their Word."

Mark tells us "The Lord worked with them confirming the Word with signs following." Mark xvi. 20

Paul asked the question, "How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him, God also bearing witness, both with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Spirit." Heb. ii, 2-4.

"The people were astonished at the doctrine of Christ for he spake as one having authority, and to his chosen he said, 'Take no thought how or what ye shall speak; for it shall be given you in that same hour what ye shall speak; for it is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which speaketh in you." Matt. x. 19-20.

Then it is with "authority" they declare unto us what they have seen and they declare it for a purpose, "That ye may have fellowship with us."

"This, then, is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you that God is light and in him is no darkness at all. If we say we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie and do not the truth: But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin. If we walk in the light, (the light of the gospel) we have fellowship, one with another."

The apostle Paul spoke with authority. He says, "I neither received it of man, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ." Gal. i. To the Corinthian church he wrote "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ." I Cor. xi. 1. In the 17th verse to the 22nd we find he does not praise them for coming together for the wrong purpose. In the 23rd verse he says, "I have received of the Lord that which I delivered unto you; that the Lord Jesus the night in which he was betrayed took bread; and when he had given thanks he break it and said, Take eat; this is my body which is broken for you. This do in remembrance of me." (Notice, it is not the night nor the day, we are to remember, but the event.) After the same manner also he took the cup when he had supped, saying, This cup is the New Testament in my blood, (this cup is the New Covenant in my blood) Disciples, do ye, as often as ye drink it in remembrance of me; for as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come, (show ye the Lord's death till he come. Mark.)

Then says one "Why not take it every day." Paul says, "be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ." Paul instructed Timothy, saying, "The things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also." In the tenth chapter of I Cor 16 verse he says, "The cup of blessing which we bless is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break is it not the communion of the body of Christ? The Diaglott and McKnight instead of the word communion (participation). This expresses more fully to us that we are a part of the body of Christ." We are. For we being many are one bread, one body; for we are all partakers of that one bread. Is there any possible oneness, when a few believe that if we commemorate his death at his room that is all that is required, others when the preacher comes, and others once a year, and others occasionally and at night. It is not the time but the event.

Listen to Paul who spake with authority, As often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye show the Lord's death till he come. Wherefore whosoever shall eat this bread and drink this cup of the Lord, unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord. But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup. For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation (judgment marg) to himself, not discerning the Lord's body. For this cause many are weak and sickly among you, and many sleep. If this is the condition of those who are careless in their manner, what of those who neglect it altogether. "The bread which we break, is it not the participation of the body of Christ? "For we being many are one body." This signifies the importance of this service. Teaches a participation of something with others, a joint participation, in which we declare we all have the same worship, the same faith, the same hope, being one body, a perfect unison in purpose.

The apostles by seeing and hearing, had the fullest assurance of the doctrine were eye witnesses, walked and talked with him after his resurrection, witnessed his ascension, and was assured by the angel of his return. And he says, "As often as ye eat this bread and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come.

We find Paul on his missionary journey says, "And we sailed from Philippi after the days of unleavened bread, and come unto them to Troas in five days; where we abode seven days, and upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came to gather to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow, and continued his speech until midnight. In that length of time Paul no doubt said many good things. He admonishes us as follows, "Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; (for he is faithful that promised;) and let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching. For if we sin willfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth there remaineth no more sacrifice for sin. Paul on his way to Rome came to Puteoli where he says, "We found brethren, and we desired to tarry with them seven days. Why? We infer it was for the same reason he tarried at Troas. "That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us, and truly our fellowship is with the Father and with the Son.

May we all walk in that strait and narrow path that leads unto life eternal.

Sunday School Lesson.

February 13, 1910.

Worldliness and Trust. Matthew vi. 19-34.

Golden Text—"Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Matthew vi 33.

Same time and place as last lesson.

Our lesson for January 30, ended with the admonition to strive for perfection, and the lesson last week, followed by this one, contains precepts that, carried out in our lives, will aid us materially in reaching the perfect state.

What does verse 19 warn against?

What does verse 20 admonish us to do?

Here is a contrast between the true riches and the false. By referring to Proverbs ii. 1-4, we learn that God would have us search for the hid treasures. Something worth making effort to attain.

Earthly treasures—houses and land, worldly pleasures, fame, praise of men. All this is passing—perishable.

Heavenly treasures—everlasting life, joys untold, reward for character, for faithful service. These remain, are eternal.

Why should we not set our heart on earthly treasure?

All of earth is transitory, uncertain, liable to failure and loss, unstable. A poor investment. Worldliness makes a failure of life.

Why lay up treasures in heaven?

God wants us to be rich, but would have us discern between the true and false. He wants us to be rich in good deeds, in faith, in love, in peace, in godliness, in brotherly-kindness, in meekness, and all the "fruits of the Spirit."

Why set the heart on these?

No earthly power can destroy them, nor can they be taken away from us, for they become part of our very being.

How can we determine where our heart is?

The heart here is spoken of as meaning the seat of the affections, of the intellect, of the will or mind. By finding where our treasure is, we locate the heart.

What makes anything a "treasure" to us?

The main thought of this lesson is making a choice. Our object should be to settle once for all, that under all circumstances we will do right. A false guide is worse than none. A misleading light is worse than darkness.

How many masters can we serve?

It is impossible to stand for two principles that are opposite. Light is opposite to darkness. Good is not evil—cannot be. No one can go in two directions at the same time. The man who loves the good must hate evil; and if one loves evil he must hate good, for the simple reason that one interferes with the other.

Mammon is the personification of riches—money. Satan appears in this form oftener than any other, and men serve him. Wealth can be used for either God or mammon. The test comes when we make our choice—between riches and character. It is more a question of the way money is obtained, than the amount we have, and the use we make of what is honestly gained. It is serving riches instead of God. Money is a good servant, but a bad master.

What is the principle here laid down regarding two masters?

Must we serve one or the other? or is there a "neutral" ground that we may occupy?

Will outward appearances indicate which master we serve?

Can riches be made a blessing?

In verse 25, what does the service of self lead to?

What does it mean to "take no thought?"

Does this mean we are to take no forethought, or prepare for "a rainy day?"

The ordinary meaning of thought will hardly do here. Webster says one meaning of "thought" is "solicitude, anxious care, concern." So the revisers have put in place of "take no thought," "be not anxious." The idea is to be not over-solicitous, do not worry and fret over what you shall have to eat, or drink, or wear.

The disciples, to whom primarily this Sermon on the Mount is directed, were those who had made a decision—a choice—and were seeking "first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness." If they should become over-anxious in their minds or thoughts about bodily comforts and luxuries, they might be tempted to do wrong to gain their livelihood. Jesus knew that worldly loss follows strict adherence to the right.

There is no such meaning here as that Jesus taught the reckless neglect of the future. The lesson to be impressed is that of Trust in God. God gave us life. Will he not then see that the means to sustain that life are provided? We cannot have life in God without effort to attain it, though it is offered freely. Neither can we have what is necessary for bodily needs without effort—labor, though it is near us in abundance.

Jesus wants us to give our chief attention to gaining that true, real life, eternal, unending life, as contrasted with the transitory fleeting vapor that we now have. He wants us to realize the difference, and make a wise choice.

A lesson is drawn from God's care of the birds. Note that the birds are God's creatures, but Jesus tells his disciples that "your Heavenly Father" feeds them.

How does God feed the birds?

Do they sit idly on the tree limb, and wait for God to drop food in their mouths?

Certainly not. The saying about the "early bird catches the worm" refutes this idea. Birds rise early, make nests to live in, and rear their young ones. By industry they provide food for the nestlings. When winter comes they go to warmer climates, where they can find food.

"Are ye not much better than they?"

"Which of you by taking thought (worrying and fretting—being anxious and concerned) can add one cubit unto his stature?"

There are numberless things in connection with our well-being that we cannot control at all. Man could not create bread for even a single meal. Jesus would have us simply trust God.

"Your Heavenly Father knoweth ye have need of all these things." He wants you to be supplied. He wants you to be happy. It is his delight to do you good. He gets no pleasure by depriving you of any good thing. He wants you to know him so well you will not distrust him.

"Seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness." By faith in God we are able to avoid the anxieties that destroy our lives, and enjoy the blessings that our Heavenly Father bestows upon us.

Report of Meeting.

Brother Almus Adams of Omaha, came to Blair, Neb., Friday, January 21, remaining with us over Sunday. Services were held each night and Sunday afternoon at the church, and Bible Study Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning. The attendance was small, but the interest good. Brother Adams has been with us a good many years. We can always depend on him. Firm in the faith, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth. We enjoyed a visit from Sister Gordon of St. Paul at the same time.

Carrie Free, Sec'y.

Editor Restitution:

Since Bro. Skeels' return we have had several interesting meetings at the home of Bro. C. A. Saylor.

Sunday Jan. 23, 1910, upon the occasion of Brother and Sister Saylor's moving into their new home in Tempe, about twenty-five of the brethren and friends assembled with their baskets.

After a sumptuous spread some little time was spent in listening to Bro. Skeels' interesting discourse upon "The Kingdom." A social hour followed till our visiting friends hastened for their train to Phoenix and all departed, feeling that they had spent a profitable day, and wishing Brother and Sister Saylor much happiness in their new home.

Yours in the one faith.

Jessie T. Blake.

Business and the Bible.

The Bible spirit is not unknown in business life. Many a hard-headed business man hides in his bosom a heart as warm and soft as a woman's, which prompts the hand to a gift richer than the coffers of a merchant prince.

A lady, once in affluent circumstances and moving in the highest social circles, by a series of misfortunes was reduced to poverty and had become one of two thousand employees in a corporation in New York. She reached a period when she felt the need of a Bible—the book that had been familiar in her childhood home: but out of her meager wages she felt she could spare only $1 00 for such a purpose. She went to a well-known store in the city, and the clerk most affably exhibited his goods, but she could find nothing that met her want. The clerk expressed his regret, but said another invoice of Bibles was expected within a few days. She turned to go out, but at the door she encountered the venerable proprietor, who inquired:—

"Couldn't you find what you want-ed?"

"No," replied the lady; "nothing within my means."

"Let me look," he smilingly responded as he led her back to the counter. Thereupon he climbed to an upper shelf and brought down several handsome teachers' Bibles, ranging in price from five to ten dollars. She saw one that had pleased her fancy and inquired the price.

"Five dollars," said the proprietor.

"But I have only one dollar," protested the lady.

"Never mind," replied the proprietor; "if that suits you, you can take it for that price."

And he wrapped it up in the most gracious manner, and she went forth enriched with her coveted treasure, wondering at the Christian generosity of the gentleman.—Homiletic Review.

Christianity vs. Heathenism.

The ancient nations were all religious. Egypt had many gods, magnificent temples, and a splendid ritual. Babylon was polytheistic. She was strenuous in the worship of her gods, and in the magical devices employed to ward off the evil influences of multitudinous demoniatic spirits. Phenicia, with her Baalim and Ashtaroth, was plunged in worship of a shockingly cruel and corrupt nature. And so we might go on, but we forbear.

And what, we here ask, have all the religion and superstition of the nations accomplished? Their many gods, their splendid sanctuaries, their attendant priests, their bleeding victims, their temple ritual, their magic rites—what had all this done? Their adoration of ideal divinities, their worship of the heavenly orbs, their prostrations before senseless and lifeless images, their propitiations of non-existent deities, their dread of demons, their fear of spells and charms, their superstitious faith in the potency of witchcraft and sorcery—what saving efficacy was there in all this? Had it lifted them from the sensuous to the spiritual? from sin to holiness? from condemnation to peace? No. All these nations went down because of their moral corruption. Egypt, despite her gods and temples, became the basest of kingdoms. (Ezek. xxix. 15.) Babylon was "mad over idols," and corrupt to the core. Phenicia was polluted beyond repair. Greece was voluptuous and unspiritual. And as to Rome, her morals were depraved, and her people thoroughly debauched.

But Christianity lifted itself in noble and unique grandeur in a world of religious rottenness. It was the advent of a new life, new hopes, new possibilities. And today it is still all this. It is a help to civilized man, and an uplift to the savage. Let us appreciate such a religion as this. Let us be grateful for it, accept it in its fulness, and live in accord with its holy precepts.—G. L. Young.

Little Things.

Little self denials, little honesties, little passing words of sympathy, little nameless acts of kindness, little silent victories over favorite temptations, these are the silent threads of gold, which when woven together, gleam most brightly in the pattern of life.—Townson.

The article by Bro. Adams in this issue is splendid. Read it.

We will be at Salem, Ohio, Feb'y 1 to the 11. If we have enough pledges for our book we will give it to the printer upon our return home. We are in need of more pledges at this writing. Our address while in Salem will be 209 W. Dry St. Our permanent address at the head of "Ebenezer" will always find us.

Bro. Eychaner gives us an interesting article in this issue. He tells about an Elder he knew who "passed by the church door with his pack of deer-hounds enroute for a hunt" while the church was holding the solemnities of worship. We blush and bow our heads in shame. We say such rotten fruit must be borne by a rotten tree. God's Word is very explicit about the kind of a brother the church should elect to the office of Elder. 1 Tim iii; Titus i. If our churches obeyed the Word of the Lord they would not in the first place elect such a man to the Eldership of the church. And if, in the second place, a good man whom they had elected to that office, turned out afterwards to be unworthy, they would discipline him. Such action, of course, would, to that extent, recognize discipline. Knowing this, the Elder with his "pack of deer hounds," soon as he hears any mutterings of complaint, turn upon his brethren with the question, "Are you opposed to religious liberty?" Reminding them that the wheat and tares are to grow together until the harvest, he forces them at the point of being "intolerant," and upon Scriptural (?) grounds, to let him hold the office of Elder, even if he is a "tare." Asserting his "religious liberty" rights he and his "pack of deer hounds" go forth upon their hunt! All this grows out of the church neglecting discipline. The parable of the wheat and tares, the strongest part of the Word depended upon to teach this confusion and disorder, we have explained at length in this issue. As the reader studies it, may God add his blessing, and give him a clear mind and right conception of this much abused parable of our Lord.

The Wheat and the Tares.

MATT. XIII. 24-30; 36-43.

This parable is a favorite resort of those who feel themselves free from all principles of Church discipline. Here it is alleged, there is mixture. Instead of an injunction of separation, there is an explicit mandate to the contrary. A positive order is issued—"Let both grow together until the harvest;" and according to the interpretation of the parable given by the Master himself, that means until "the end of the world,"—when the separation is to be made by the "Son of Man." That this method of interpreting the parable has the attribute of superficial plausibility we admit, but we object to it for the following reasons:

I. The wheat and tares signify persons. The persons represented by the tares are not hypocrites, as is generally supposed. To talk of retaining hypocrites in church fellowship is absurd. We cannot be said to retain such characters in the church; the very idea of a hypocrite implies that the real character is successfully hidden. And so long as it is covered, there cannot be criminality in retention, or warrant for exclusion. Then the tares of the parable do not refer to them. It does not even include them. It discriminates between two persons, whose respective characters are equally apparent. The parable does not drop the remotest hint of any difficulty in telling the wheat from the tares. The servants distinguished the one from the other without any hesitation. "Then appeared the tares also." They saw them when they "appeared," and knew them. The risk suggested about gathering up the tares was not the fear that the servants would pull up wheat instead of tares, but that they might pull up wheat along with tares. The tares do not represent hypocritical professors, but known "children of the wicked one."

II. If the design of the parable is to teach that all varieties of character are to be admitted and retained in the church, then Christian communion is at an end. The church becomes an indiscriminate mixture of the godly and the ungodly, the pious and the profane: and this means, when properly analyzed, no church at all. The world is the church and the church is the world! There is no point at which, on this understanding of the parable, its advocates can consistently stop short of universal admission and no exclusion. And this leads me to say:

III. That this principle leads our no discipline friends farther than they want to go. The loosest of our loose friends will not tolerate in church fellowship liars and drunkards—any who grossly offend against the laws of morality. However loosely this principle may be carried out in practice among them, it stands acknowledged in fact. Here, then, is an inconsistency. See how general and comprehensive are the designations in the parable. What can be more so than "the wicked," and "children of the wicked one?" No limitation, no qualifications are used. The word "discipline" itself becomes a term of rebellion. It is not letting both grow together "until the harvest." They who make exceptions of any kind show themselves sensible that the parable, as they interpret it, proves more than enough, and cannot be harmonized with other Scriptures. When they plead for separation from any offender whatsoever—ever the grossest—they contradict their principle. If there is to be separation, let it be as complete as faithfulness and charity united can render it. Let us act definitely and uniformly on our principles. It will not do to quote the tares and wheat parable in proof that purity of church fellowship is not required, and then refuse to admit the impurity in the extent which the parable so quoted not only warrants, but enjoins. If there is to be mixture, let us have mixture, and to the extent the parable teaches. Let us have one or the other.

IV. Those who resort to this parable to teach impure communion, feel themselves pinched between it and the entire tenor of the New Testament. The commands: "If he refuse to hear the church, let him be to thee as a heathen man and publican;" "purge out the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump;" "but away from among yourselves that wicked person;" "be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers;" "from such withdraw thyself," are all in the very face of the interpretation of the parable which justifies the godly and the ungodly in church communion. Any doctrine which sets the Bible against itself cannot be sound doctrine.

V. If the parable teaches the indiscriminate mixture of saints and sinner in the church, then we ask, To whom is this mixup attributed? The answer is, "An enemy hath done this!" Who is the "enemy" before whose door this charge is laid? The interpreter answers, "The enemy that sowed them is the devil!" This is the reply to the inquiry, "Whence, then, hath it tares?" The bad seed is not sowed in the field by the servants of the Householder; he never issued any such an order as this. It is done by "an enemy." In secrecy—in the darkness of nightfall—"While men slept." It follows then, that when the servants of the Householder knowingly introduce into his church "offenders and them that do iniquity," they are doing the devil's work. If it is the devil's work to introduce them there, it cannot be the Lord's work to keep them there! But lastly,

VI. We must state briefly what the parable really does teach. "The field is the world" (not the church.) This is doubtless sufficiently explicit. "Go ye into all the world." Mark xvi. 15. "The world" in which the gospel was to be preached is "the field" in which the tares and wheat were to "appear." Here they were to "grow together until the harvest." "Wilt thou that we go and gather them up?" must have referred to the field (the world.) Since the tares are persons, and the field is the world, we are naturally led to believe that the parable teaches their extirpation from the world itself, by violence. It is a lesson given by Christ against persecution. Compare the parable with Luke ix. 54-56; Matt. xxvi. 51, 52. Three motives are brought out why we should not participate in persecution:—1. It is inconsistent with the genius of the "gospel of the kingdom:" "ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of." 2. Christ interdicts it by penal sanction: "All they that take the sword shall perish with the sword." 3. It cannot be attempted by God's people and carried on by them, without involving themselves, and their brethren, in a common destruction: "Lest, while ye gather up the tares, ye root up the wheat with them."

"Discipline."

Brother Huggins:

I have been very much pleased with the illustration about the "wild asses" in your paper, in the article on "Discipline, and good judgment." The good brother says, he has "Found how hard it is to contend with the religious liberty idea." I am wondering with whom has he had the "contention." Was it with the enemies on the outside, or was it with his brethren on the inside? If it was with his brethren, the Church of God is not one of the asses who has turned hi heels toward the inside and is kicking his brethren! He tells us that the wild asses when in danger from an enemy, turn their heads in and their heels out, and thus ward off the foe, but it seems he has had a contention on the outside. His trouble is all on the inside, and there, it seems, all the "kicking" was done. In fact he admits it, when he says, "We turn our hands out and our heels in, and kick one another." Just so exactly. What we need to do is, stop the kicking.

Does our brother mean to say that he is opposed to religious liberty? Is the Word of God bound? If his liberty in religious matters was circumscribed or abridged or shut off, there is no doubt but he would kick as vigorously as any one in the ring, whether he hit any one or not.

It is a good thing to obey the authority of an Elder, when that Elder is guided by the Spirit of God. I know a congregation whose Elder claimed that, 'Once an Elder, always an Elder." That same Elder has passed by the church door with his pack of deer-hounds, enroute for a hunt, when the congregation had assembled for worship and instruction in divine things. I believe in fearlessly standing for the faith, but I do not believe that the authority of such an elder is worth regarding. Let the wheat and tares grow together until the harvest, but be sure that you—you, yourself—are wheat.

Lovingly your brother,
A. J. EYCHANER.

Doctrine Embraces Belief and Works.

The importance of the subject is the only excuse for examining our remarks with reference to our Brother's position. It now becomes our duty to go back to THE RESTITUTION of November 10, where we find an article under the caption of "What is the Doctrine of Christ?" That a good many have applied doctrine to belief too freely, we must admit, but now you have gone to the other extreme, which is just as dangerous and unscriptural. In said article you take the position that all the doctrine of Christ and the apostles refers to what we do or how we should live, not what we believe. Why you take this position is apparent, for you say in referring to the Sermon on the Mount "There is no culling out the articles of our faith as found in the Bible—no appointing of a committee or a conference board to examine the disciples," etc.

So your idea is to refute that by showing that Jesus taught us how to live—not what we should believe. It is passing strange that you have just discovered this after so many years. If certain Conferences had not made this move you might never have discovered it. It is evident that when a cat gets its eye on a mouse hole, it becomes oblivious to its surroundings. It sees and thinks of but one thing. So we may become so wrought up, and possess such an intent desire to refute certain things, that we become forgetful and unmindful of many things in connection.

In paragraph three of your article you say, "Some suppose and teach that the doctrine of Christ refers exclusively to what a man should believe, while the truth of this matter is that it refers to his actions, his conduct, his work. A few texts will illustrate the true idea of doctrine."

Here you go to the other extreme. This is the idea of all the churches and opens the way for our entrance there. Why not go with them, if conduct is all that is necessary? You call the above "facts," and call our attention to Matthew v. 3 to end of chapter 7th as proof. The facts are that the Sermon on the Mount was preached to the disciples who already had the belief, and did not much need to be referred to that.

But before discussing the "facts" in this Sermon, I wish to propound a few questions: Is it not a fact that our belief is the basis for what we do? Faith first, then right doing. Can one do right and believe wrong, and receive a reward? On the other hand, can he believe right and do wrong, and receive a reward? No; it takes right believing and right doing to procure the reward. The two go together, and are inseparable. Jesus and the apostles taught both.

You say the Sermon on the Mount refers wholly to how we should live. Let us examine it closely and see. Commencing at Matthew v. 3, as you ask us to, we quote: "Blessed are the poor in spirit; for their's is the kingdom of heaven." Both belief and action are taught here. Why poor in spirit? Because we believe in so doing we will get into the kingdom of God. Verse 4: "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted." Why mourn unless you believe you shall be comforted? If you did not believe you would be comforted you would not mourn, would you? Verse 5: "Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth." Any belief taught here? Why be meek? Because we believe in so doing we shall inherit the earth. Belief is the basis for meekness. Why hunger and thirst after righteousness, unless we believe we shall be filled? Why be pure in heart? Because in so doing we believe we shall see God. The belief that we shall see God is the basis for purity of heart. So all these verses, the Savior has taught us what to expect as a reward for our actions. In our trials and persecutions which Jesus knew would come. In tells us in verse 12 to "rejoice, and be exceeding glad." Why? Because we believe we have a great reward in heaven, and also believe when Jesus comes he brings that reward to us, Matthew xvi. 27.

So we see that the doctrine of belief and actions is carried along together in this sermon. As proof of this, in addition to the above, turn to chapter vi. 33, where Jesus says, "Seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." The conjunction "and" joins the two. It is evident that the one is useless without the other. The belief in the kingdom of God is at least a part of his righteousness. This is so plainly taught by Jesus, when he came to John to be baptized. John refused, and Jesus told him, "Suffer it to be so now, for thus it becometh us to fulfil all righteousness. The word "all" here includes baptism. To fail in this is to fail in God's righteousness.

Hence it is right then to sit in judgment on a person's faith respecting baptism? If I fail to do so I would fail to be right with God. Jesus includes himself as the candidate, and John as the administrator here. The church would be compelled to refuse one admittance without baptism, as one not having done the right things of God; and refuse to tolerate a proclaimer of the gospel who would refuse to administer it. So in this matter we have to sit in judgment by the authority of the Scripture.

Let us now look at this matter from another standpoint. Faith comes under two heads: 1st, It refers to things we believe. 2d, How much do we believe it. There can be no faith without something to have faith in. Then we are in a position to show by our works how strong our faith is. As the paint is to the house, so is our morals to our faith. The Christian graces are the adornments of our faith. "Add to your faith virtue, knowledge," etc. But how can I "add" to something I haven't got? Morals must be preached to the believer. This was the way and doctrine of Jesus. As Paul says there is but "one faith," then these ornaments are for that faith only. "Examine yourselves, whether ye are in the faith."

The Brother says No; you can examine my morals but not my belief. Let me remind you that the Church has no jurisdiction unless you are in the faith. To sit in judgment on you morals, the Church must first know whether or not you are within its jurisdiction. This can be determined only by examining your faith or belief first, and if you have one faith and me another, then the jurisdiction of the Church is lost on one or the other of us, and without a guide of some kind, they cannot determine that, and so lose their power to judge our morals. Any way we look at it, we can see that the two stand or fall together.

To prove further that the doctrine of Christ does not refer to morals only but includes faith or belief, we have only to recur to what the Word says.

In Matthew xx. 20-23, we have the account of the "mother of Zebedee's children" coming to Jesus and asking that her two sons might "sit the one on the right hand, and the other on the left, in thy kingdom." We learn here that Jesus had not only taught the people that he was to have a kingdom, but had gone into the details at least as to positions. If not, why did this woman ask this of the Savior? His answer shows that she had understood the teaching rightly, but did not know whose prerogative it was to grant the request. "It is not mine to give," says Jesus, "but it shall be given to them for whom it is prepared of my Father." Here is an incentive to action. We are striving to win a position with Jesus in his kingdom. We must know and believe there are such positions before we can work for them.

Here then we learn that the doctrine of Jesus includes more than right living; it includes the thing that prompts us to live right. If the Church has the right to sit in judgment on a man's morals, but not his faith, we are left in a pretty predicament; for we would have no right to admonish an unruly member, for if we did we would be dealing with his faith. You would not dare to point out to him what he was going to lose, nor on the other hand, show him what was to be gained. It is the allurements of the world that cause a departure from the faith, while the joys, the glories of the kingdom anchor us to God and keep us in the faith.

Exhortation would fall flat without belief. The apostles wanted to know what they were going to get for forsaking all and following Jesus. The question with them was, Will it pay? Then Jesus told them what they were to receive as a reward, Matthew xix. 28, and let them decide whether it would pay or not.

Here is some more culling out of belief, another article of faith. Their faith in his promise was responsible for their decision, and they continued with him in the hope of those positions. That we are "to sit with Jesus in his throne," with all that means, is the basis of exhortation to us. So no difference which way we turn, belief is before us all the time. And it formed one part of the doctrine of Jesus all the way through.

Turning to John xi. we find the beautiful story of the resurrection of Lazarus. Here we find several points of more than passing interest. We begin our comments at verse 23, "Jesus saith unto her, Thy brother shall rise again." Verse 24: "Martha saith unto him, I know he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day."

Here we want to emphasize the expression of Martha, "I know." How did she know her brother would "rise again?" Martha expresses a knowledge here of the resurrection, and even the time of it. Where did she learn this unless Jesus had taught her on some of his visits to her home? And if Jesus taught her, and that is where she got her knowledge, it must be an important item of belief. Do we think Martha's believing this would have any thing to do with her conduct during life? This article of faith would be one of the objects with her of a pure and devoted life. Strange as it may seem, this article of her faith is written down, and though she has been sleeping for centuries, the world still knows what Martha believed. Would to God that in future time when our life work is in the past, that future generations might look in the Church records and learn not only that there had been such persons, but what we believed. (Amen.—Editor.) Can we fathom the joy that must have come into the heart of this girl when she heard the gracious words fall from the Master's lips. "Thy brother shall rise again." Did I hear you say, I believe that too? Then you must believe Jesus taught belief as well as morals.

But here is another item: "Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?" Here is another item of belief. Why ask her this question, if it was not important to be believed? In this last item of belief we find in her answer another one connected with it, and cannot be separated from it. She said: "Yea, Lord, I believe (an article of faith here) that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, which should come into the world."

For Martha to have denied that Christ was the Son of God, would have made her faith in the resurrection invalid, and vice versa. "I am the resurrection and the life." Who? "The Christ, the Son of God." If Martha had denied either one, her moral life would have availed her nothing.

There comes finally a supreme test of Martha's faith. In verse 39, supposing putrefaction had set in, her faith seems to waver. But what Jesus now says to her is very important. "Said I not unto thee that if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldst see the glory of God." You say "the doctrine of Christ is not a series of propositions upon which faith is founded, but is a series of proposition regulating what we do."

Why was it Jesus did not say to Martha, "If thou wouldst do right, thou shouldst see the glory of God?" Is there a hint that she would see "the glory of God" if she did not believe? The negative of this would be, If thou believest not, thou shalt not see "the glory of God." So the doctrine of Christ is a series of propositions regulating both belief and what we do. Let us see, Jas ii 19: "Thou believest there is one God; thou doest well: the devils believe and tremble." Vs. 20, But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead?" To believe in one God is well, but it would not be well for you to believe in three. We learn from this Scripture that faith is one of the factors in the proposition, but is of no avail without works, "being alone." Works without faith would be just as lonely, would it not? Here is an article of faith but if a committee or conference should copy that and say: We believe "in one God" I suppose they would commit an unpardonable sin!! To head off creed making, you separate works from faith, and make the doctrine of Christ apply to one only. I believe you do it at your own peril. The Pharisees accused Jesus of teaching that he was a king, the Son of God, etc., while the Sadducees accused him of teaching the literal resurrection of the dead. And did Jesus deny either charge? No; on the other hand he admitted it, as you well know. He quoted from the old Scriptures to prove he was right with reference to the resurrection. Luke xx 27, 38. That all this doctrine refers to belief no one can deny.

Lastly, I wish to call attention to your interpretation of the parable of the sower, Mark iv 2. You say: "The point in the whole parable is to bring forth fruit." This is very misleading. In Matt xiii. Jesus tells us the seed sown is the Word of the kingdom; the fruit is the production of that seed. In other words, the seed is the gospel, "the good news of the kingdom:" the "fruit" is the works of those that believe. Jesus makes this so plain in Matt xiii 23: "But he that received seed into the good ground, is he that heareth the Word, and understandeth it, which also heareth fruit," etc. In addition to hearing the Word we must bear fruit. Here Jesus makes the belief or an "understanding" of the kingdom just as binding, as the bearing of fruit. In fact it is the tree that bears fruit or is barren. Why any one should misunderstand this parable and interpret it in such a manner, can be accounted for only by knowing the purpose for which it is done. So in this parable Jesus taught both belief and right doing, as in all his teaching, and so did the Apostles. One is just as binding as the other. One adorns the other. One should be just as sacred to the church as the other. Both should be carefully guarded. To be slack in either would be fatal. Why did Jesus speak to Martha of the resurrection as "the glory of God"? Because in it rests the hope of the believing dead. Without it we would look upon the pale cold faces of our loved ones for the last time. But how glorious to be able to say with Martha, "We know;" "they shall rise again." This is the climax of all articles of faith. Because all the rest depend upon it so far as the dead are concerned. (If brethren, are we going to put down the "shield of faith" and let the fiery darts of skepticism and all other isms shoot their darts into us (God forbid, dear Brother—Editor)? Or will we put on the shield of faith and stand by the old ship until she lands safely in port? If we fail, let us fall fighting the good fight of faith. Let us remember that we rise in the morning of the resurrection to realize what we believed or stood for here. The one must correspond to the other. But we must not expect a wrong belief to correspond to a perfect kingdom. In Rev ii and iii we find the letters to the seven churches. Here Jesus finds fault with both their belief and works. And if we do not guard both we may expect to be found waiting. That the foregoing is in the light of Scripture we have no doubt. And if so our duty is plain.

ALMON ADAMS.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of dishonest clerks always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Id. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important [illegible] the paper sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her subscription [illegible] money order is his wife's name not his. saying for us to send the paper to Susan. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and after awhile when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—every body knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author usually spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

The Bible.

A DECLARATION OF ITS FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES, WITH EXPLANATIONS OF MANY DIFFICULT TEXTS.

The above is the title page of a book the Editor proposes to publish as soon as enough subscriptions are received to pay the printer. The subject matter of the book as now prepared consists of explanations of more than one hundred and twenty-six subjects; and to these will be added other subjects readers may send us while the book is being gotten ready for the press.

The primary design of the book is to teach aliens the truth. Selections from our writings in THE RESTITUTION, especially from the "Question Box," have been carefully made, and thoroughly revised. The only book ever published by our Church which formulates the fundamental principles of the gospel in propositions, and then explains all difficult texts, introducing every conceivable Bible subject—a variety most pleasing to the reader.

The price will not be less than 25 cents, and not more than $1 00. Do not send money now, but send us your pledges, and when we have received enough pledges to pay the printer, we will go to press, and will announce when our pledged subscribers can remit the money. In sending us pledges to take one or a number of books, be sure and give your correct address.

Send pledges to B. G. Huggins, at 10703 Hampden avenue, Cleveland, O

Brother Underwood,

Please find inclosed Money Order to pay my subscription to the dear old paper for another year. Would have remitted sooner but have been moving to a new location, hence the delay. Have been taking the dear old paper for nearly forty years and would be lost without its visits, as it is all the preaching we have. I know of no one of like precious faith in this part of Colorado. I greatly enjoy the Love Feast letters from the brethren scattered abroad. I am truly glad to know that there are a few that are still contending for the faith once delivered to the saints. May the Lord hasten his coming, is my prayer.

Yours in the One Faith.
N. H. HORNADAY.

Notice to Illinois Bereans.

Our new lesson books are now ready. In order to meet, in a measure, the expense of printing, the Bereans, who attended the annual meeting agreed to buy their books and to invite any, who felt so inclined, to do the same. This is not necessary, as all Bereans will be provided with the Lesson Books; but the deficit of the treasury can be easily met in this way. Will the Illinois Berean Societies send in their orders as soon as possible to Leila E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario St., Austin Station, Chicago, Ill. Our president wishes all societies to begin the new work the first week in February. After February first send to her for the books at 629 N. Galena Ave., Dixon, Ill. Order about six more than you need and keep them as a reserve fund. When your society is supplied, send the money to Wm. Hardesty, Oregon, Ill. If you wish books sent by express, state plainly, in your order the nearest express office. If you wish them sent by mail enclose the postage in the order, five cents for three books and seven cents for six books, etc.

Illinois has the new Berean Bible Lessons to sell to any isolated societies or members who are not affiliated with Iowa, Indiana or Michigan. Price ten cents.

INDIANA BEREANS.

[This notice should be read in connection with notice to Illinois Bereans on page 4.—ED.]

Books may be had at the same rate from Evelyn K Harsch, 515 Pennsylvania Avenue, South Bend, Indiana. Send the money to Flora Harris, at Rensselaer, Indiana.

State officers greatly desire co-operation from every Church in the State as well as all isolated members. Much anxious thought is being given each situation, and we are hoping progress will result from the plans we have formulated, and have started to put into action

EVELYN K. HARSCH, Pres.

Brethren of the Household of Faith in Michigan, Greeting:

At the Annual Conference in 1908, a committee was appointed to recommend a plan of raising more funds for the purpose of furthering evangelistic work in the state of Michigan. Their report has been published in these columns from time to time, and a great many of the brethren have responded nobly, and much additional work has been accomplished.

During the month of October we had some excellent help from Brother S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, with the result that eight dear ones were added to our number, and we have a promise from him that he will return and give Michigan some additional work during the winter, and we trust the brethren who have delayed sending in whatever they intended giving for this work will kindly respond with promptness, for on this depends how long we can keep Brother Lindsay at work. If we could send our offerings quarterly, it would no doubt be easier than to send the whole amount at once, and that would give us more to use during the year. We cannot afford to let this opportunity pass, so will expect the brethren to respond promptly. Forward offerings to A. K. Richardson, R F D 5, Hastings, Michigan, or the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette Street, Grand Rapids Michigan. We thank you in advance.

Yours in the service of the King,
F. V. BLAKELY, Sec.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Edwin Wood	1 00
Mrs John Fletcher	1 50
Mrs E C Poole	1 00
Mrs Frank L. Martin	50
Hannah M Barber	1 50
Mrs Sella Anderson	1 50
Mrs S Sherland	50

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will bring for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured 4h VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 303 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Christmas and New Year Gift.

The best gift to make is that which will do the recipient the most good. The gift that may lead such an one to receive the Pearl of Great Price, will certainly be the most profitable gift made. Between now and January 15 1910, I will sell the Pine Woods Bible Class, Student's Text Book, Cunningly Devised Fables of Russellism, and the Bible Study of Hades, all four when taken together, for $1 75. Address me at 625 N. Willow Avenue, Austin Station, Chicago, Illinois.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 180 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10648 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave, Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from Mrs M Joblin, 10648 Ashbury ave. N E Cleveland Ohio

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1 00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

STRIFES.

When I beheld the strifes and explosions,
Within the fold of Christ on every side,
[illegible] who in love once walked,
[illegible]
[illegible] against the
[illegible] mangled,
As I saw tract to virtue built on pride
Then think of location where such times arise:

Woe to the factious ones, who cause the offense!
And woe to those who blindly misapply
Their unerring Spirit, and, if they could [illegible]
Straightway religion brand as sheer pretense,
Rather than upward turn to bring the eye,
And draw the portrait of a Christian thence.

Theodore D. Woolsey.

Communicated.

"Lord Teach Us to Pray."

And so he taught us to say, "Our Father." Ours. Not merely the Father of a chosen few. No partiality. No respecter of persons. His bosom broad enough for all humanity, for he made all "of one blood." Hence if one piece of flesh is his own "we are also his offspring" and all mankind are brethren. This first word embodies the Divine plan of peace and good will in all the earth—home of all his children, for he who loves God will love his brother and can work no ill to his neighbor. In Christ all are his children. But we see not yet all things gathered together "in Christ," and glorifying God. The many are still his children only in the flesh of Adam, and do not bear the likeness of him who is spirit.

And Oh the meaning of that word "Father!" One of whom we can be proud. One who honors his offspring with the heritage of nobility indeed, and because he is able he will protect the innocent, because he is wise and good will prepare good things and will not fail to perform, because rich, will give lavishly to them, because they realize the Source, so prayer leads to love the Giver, and helps the other children because of it.

"Who art." Faith. For he who comes to God must believe that he is and will reward the seekers, without which faith there could be no prayer and we be humble in comparison, so we pray—

"Who art in heaven." In the heavenly or high condition, far above all. For the chief idea of heaven in the Scripture is condition rather than place. Jesus has entered that, yet he was near Paul at times, and promises to be in our midst as we assemble in his name. He is at God's right hand in the sense, not of place, but of position of honor, exalted to it at his resurrection. So the Father being above all is in the supreme sense "in heaven."

"Hallowed be thy Name." A recognition that he is holy and we therefore are of a reverent spirit. His name stands for himself; it is his manifestation to us of what he is. The different names of Deity in Scripture show the different ideas of his character we may get through this manifestation. In Ep iii 15-16 he shows his enduring life. In Eph vi he shows his power. In Jesus Christ he manifests himself fully. "God is one and his name one." This excludes idolatry and false prayer as a success. When we learn that this supply is in Christ we thus ask in his "name" by his merit.

"Thy Kingdom Come." Up to this time the prayer has been worship, reverently, as all prayer should begin. Now comes the beginning of the request. The first request is for the kingdom of God, since if it is put first, food and all other needs will be added. The kingdom is the fullness of all things, so when we obtain an entrance there we "shall be satisfied." We never then shall more feel need, but lie in green pastures, beside still waters. "Even so, come Lord Jesus!"

"Thy Will be Done." Consecration. Not our own will, for it has been crucified. We have found his instead, and it is our food and drink, as Jesus said.

"In earth as it is in heaven." When his kingdom comes this will be realized. Finally every knee shall bow and every voice confess dominion.

"Give." A recognition that all is his and we are unworthy to demand anything as earned by our works. Humility again. After we receive in this spirit we know he loves us. Then we will love each other. And not before.

"Our daily bread." We already have first sought the kingdom so now the promise is for the other needs. But even this is not to come except we act. We are to eat bread by labor, just as we are to find an entrance to the kingdom if we "add".

"This day." Manna fell only a day's supply at a time. So does Jesus, the antitypical "bread from heaven." Rain would drown if it came in floods; untempered sunlight would kill. God's love is tempered with adversity. We are not to ask today for tomorrow's bread. "As your day, so shall your strength be." Sufficient for each day the trials of it, and no anxiety for tomorrow.

"And forgive us." Mercy is God's crowning revelation to reveal his love. "We love him because he first loved us," and "thereby perceive we the love, that he laid down his life for us." The atonement is the only basis of Christian conduct and brotherly love. To ask pardon shows penitence and humility, two important traits.

"As we forgive." If we do not, it shows we do not love, else we would forgive. If we do not love we have not forgiven, for he who loves God for his mercy will love and therefore forgive "his brother whom he hath seen." If you find it hard to forgive, count your sins and ask God to pardon you.

"And lead us" He is able, therefore we commit ourselves to him. He is wise and we shall not stray. He is good, therefore we can trust him. "Though he slay me," Job said.

"Not into temptation." If we keep the humble, right spirit needed for the sincerity of the prayer thus far, we need not so much trial and will therefore escape it. Be delivered "from evil," or adversity.

"For thine is the kingdom," therefore we can pray for it to come by his will. And his being the authority over all, we recognize none in heaven or among the gods but him. "And the power." Therefore he can answer the prayer. "And the glory." Wrought in our requests, not because of our righteousness, but because of his goodness. If we recognize this, we have learned why he has us ask him for it. This is probably the deepest principle in God's revealed wisdom, to see how he reveals his love.

Do not pray these words as a mere form, if at all.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS.

Paul and his Last Letter. No. 6.

"MY DEPARTURE."

Commentators make this mean go to heaven at death as they do "depart," in the Philippian Letter. I have, I think, quite conclusively shown that it has no such meaning. The Diaglott rendering of "analuseos" in this place is "dissolution." Green's Greek Lexicon defines the word—dissolution, departure, death. Let us now read Paul's words in connection with each of these definitions; the time of my dissolution is at hand, the time of my departure is at hand; the time of my death is at hand. If we choose the first, it is true and scriptural, for the dead dissolve into dust; the process beginning the moment life is extinct. If we choose the second, it is true of those who die, they "depart this life"—using the old form of words of a hundred years ago. We go out of life and into the death state, as did Paul when he poured out his blood a libation at the foot of the martyr's altar.

If we choose the third definition and read, "the time of my death is at hand," we are strictly in the bounds of truth and fact, as a thousand texts of Scripture come forward to testify. Man dies—surely he does; and the simple minded, unspoiled by Plato's doctrine, bend over his bier and drop the tear of sorrow on the pulseless form they loved in life. A little later, and the grave is the spot where private grief pours its unavailing tears on the mound above the silent and unresponsive sleeper.

Paul died under section of Nero; so a few months, at most, prior to his execution he wrote "The time of my death is at hand." Is there anything strained by this view of his case? It is simple, easy, natural, and in accord with the Scriptures and the harmony of doctrine. To read into the text the exit of an immortal soul and its flight to heaven, produces a clash at once, and discord all along the line of revealed truth

"I have fought a good fight." What confident words to pen as he retrospects the past of his ministerial life—but written not in an air of boasting. He had carried on his commission so faithfully, even in the face of danger and death, that there was no ground for self-reproach and condemnation. Who of us latter day proclaimers, on retrospecting our public labors and private lives, could say unhesitatingly I have fought a good fight? Imperfectly performed duties, some omissions, and exhibitions at times, of cowardice might prompt us to leave the eulogium to others to pronounce. Paul's weapons of warfare were not carnal, but mighty through God to pulling down of strongholds, 2 Cor. x. 4. Many a fortification was assaulted and pulled down by Paul; often at the risk of his personal safety. He was "a turner of the world upside down." Old superstitions and old religions were hewn down with the sword of the Spirit by this indefatigable iconoclast, or idol breaker.

Paul's preaching of the unadulterated gospel put him in conflict with very much that was believed and practiced by the world of his day. The worship of the masses was as false as their own gods, and their morals wretchedly bad, made such by the deification of the vilest of human passions. He proclaimed the God who was unknown to the loftiest Athenian wisdom; to whom in their ignorance it inscribed an altar, back somewhere in the history of the city of art and schools, when the people suffering from a protracted drouth, appealed to the many gods to send rain, but appealed in vain, until as a last resort the petitioned The Unknown God who answered with rain. This God to whom in their ignorance the Athenians were paying adoration, Paul declared unto them, as the one who made the world and all things therein. A very different God from those of their own creation; a God infinitely above man and unlimited by human passions.

To seek, to feel after, find and know the God who giveth to all life and breath and fruitful seasons, would draw men upward; while to worship gods invested with nothing higher than the creature, would limit man to the level of his own passions and vile affections. When he preached Jesus and the resurrection, the Epicurians and Stoics encountered him, and some of them said, What will this babbler say? and some others said, He seemeth to be a setter forth of strange gods; because he preached Jesus and the resurrection.

The opposition of these philosophic sects was not such as he usually met in other places, especially when the Jews were on the ground; for they neither forgot nor forgave his grave offense of deserting the law. Here at Athens no violence was offered him. His preaching provoked discussion. The encounter was in the form of arguments on the part of some; while others resorted to ridicule as best befitting Paul's foolishness (?). His whole audience were prompted by curiosity to give attention, and the awful sanctity of the place, the spot where for hundreds of years the Supreme Court of Athens sat to try criminal cases, was sufficient to secure him a decorous hearing, while he talked to them in a strain of mingled piety and rebuke. He had in accord with his usual custom previously gone into the synagogue and disputed with the Jews and devout persons, but whether they welcomed or repulsed him we are not informed, but it is fair to infer that no personal violence was shown him.

This was one of his fortunate exceptions to bad treatment. Neither fear nor favor caused him to abate one jota from the gospel; so he was in every place in conflict with prevailing views and practices. There is no doubt but that a part of the fight was with himself in keeping his body under, 1 Cor. ix. 27.

"I have finished my course." Paul is using a figure of speech borrowed from the Grecian athletic contests; among which was the footrace. He had run lawfully, and successfully; so was entitled to the crown, or stephanos. What an immeasurable difference between Paul's crown and that of the successful contestant in the Isthmian games! The latter's crown was only a chaplet or garland of green leaves. Although it signified victory or triumph it seemed so trifling, that the wits and wags twitted those athletes who wore the fading honors with having purchased these at a high price; ten months of discipline, hard fare and exposure to cold.

Paul quotes the practice of the Isthmian athletes, and what they won with a view to drawing the contrast between their reward and that of Christian believers.

"And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown; but we an incorruptible," 1 Cor. ix. 25.

If they subjected themselves to the strictest discipline for a fading and perishable garland, symbol of a little fleeting honor, what should the Christian do who is striving for the incorruptible crown, the crown of glory that fades not away, 1 Peter v. 1, a reward as enduring as the eternal kingdom.

Narrowing down the thought to himself as an example conforming to every principle of righteousness he says "I therefore so run." The rigid discipline, the strict observance of rules, and the practice of temperance in all things to which the Isthmian athletes subjected themselves, was the manner of his Christian course. He conducted himself like these in strict conformity to the requirements of his Lord. "I therefore so run, not as uncertainly; so fight I, not as one that beateth the air."

In the outcome there was this advantage in his favor; he could be sure of the prize. No competitor would carry off his crown. In the races of the Isthmian youths only one, the one reaching the goal first, bore off the prize. To this he alludes in verse 24: Know you not that they who run in a race, run all, but one obtaineth the prize? So run that ye may obtain. All Christian believers who run will be sure of the crown. The only contingency is in the running. Many will fail but the fault will be their own; not that of the Judge. More than one thing, taken separately, will be sufficient to forfeit the claim to eternal life, and bar the entrance to the kingdom. So thought Paul when he wrote his first letter to the Church at Corinth. Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulters, effeminates, nor Sodomites, nor covetous persons, nor thieves, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God.

Any one of these persisted in will disinherit the offender, and the list might be added to from other Scriptures, of sins equally fatal. So there is danger of losing the crown. "Be not deceived" is a fitting admonition thrown in by the Apostle.

Tithing

Editor Restitution:

In issue of January 26, Brother D. D. Lathrop finds some difficulties in the tithing system, which by your permission I will notice in part. As stated in my article of January 12, "criticism was invited," so we take it in the spirit of brotherly love.

There is generally three sides to a question; two extremes and a middle ground; and usually the middle is the nearest correct.

Brother Lathrop finds some business relations which seem (to him) insurmountable barriers, and our Seventh Day Advent friends go to the other extreme and tithe not only once, but often twice. As to the brother's proposition of a man doing a business of twenty thousand dollars a year and it requiring eighteen thousand dollars to run it, leaving him only two thousand dollars clear profit, it seems to me clear, according to the definition of tithing, that the two thousand dollars should be tithed; he would then have eighteen hundred left to support himself and family, and offset the natural depreciation of his investment by wear and tear." The average family I venture, would live well on less than this. But why argue on this line? if we want to share in all the pleasures and luxurys of this life, denying ourselves of no temporal wants, before we can spare anything to the Lord, he will get a very small share, no matter how large our income. "God loveth a cheerful giver." 2 Cor. ix. 7.

Psalm l. 10 15, says, "For every beast of the forest is mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills. I know all the fowls of the mountains; and the wild beasts of the fields are mine; if I were hungry I would not tell thee; for the world is mine and the fullness thereof. Will I eat the flesh of bulls or drink the blood of goats? Offer unto God thanksgiving, and pay thy vows unto the Most High; and call upon me in the day of trouble; I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me."

If all we have and are belongs to God, then he is certainly very liberal in giving us a rental of nine-tenths.

It is the Brother's last proposition that strikes the key-note,—Faith. "Without faith it is impossible to please him; for he that cometh to God must believe that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." Heb. xi. 6. This harmonizes with Prov. iii. 9, 10; Mal. iii. 10, which has previously been quoted. If we have faith in God's promises, we will not hesitate to give liberally to his cause.

The Brother says, "I do not find that tithing was required of the Gentile Christian Church after the death of Christ;" that is probably true; but we do find that after Pentecost they "sold their possessions, and had all things common;" that was more than a tenth, was it not? I fear if this were the practice now, we would have many Ananias and Sapphira's.

I presume the brother will agree with me, that some system of raising money for the Lord's cause is necessary, as we know that volunteer giving is unsatisfactory. The tithing system was given to the Israelites by him who makes no mistakes, and can fallible man devise a better? We repeat, if we have faith in God's promises we will contribute liberally and cheerfully.

The Brother quotes Eccl. xi. 6, "Cast thy bread upon the waters, for thou shalt find it after many days;" good, but if we do not cast our bread upon the waters, can we hope to find it?

Submitted in brotherly love.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 85 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, FEBRUARY 16, 1910. NUMBER 7.

Chicago Bible College
Chicago, Ill. U.S.A.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Report of Meeting.

Our State Evangelist, S. J. Ludsay assisted part of the time by our pastor, Eldred Marsh, held a two weeks meeting in Adeline, Illinois, commencing January 23, and closing February 6, which were productive of much good. Each meeting was well attended by a good-sized congregation of thoughtful attentive listeners. Many friends from the various denominations expressed themselves as having received much profit from the able discourses. The walls of prejudice are fast being broken down and not a few showed their interest by asking questions and also saying that they were in accord with many of our teachings, as was aptly expressed by one gentleman, who did not miss a service, "It's the only place where we can hear the gospel preached."

May we have just such a series of meetings every year is the wish of the members of the Adeline congregation and its many friends.

SEC'Y. BEREANS.

Brother O. J. Allard, of Iowa, began meetings at Ripley, Illinois, January 11, and continued until the 28rd. Although the weather was bad we had a very good attendance. While there were no additions to the church, yet we believe the good seed was sown, and will in due time bring forth fruit. Brother Allard is a firm, logical reasoner, and well qualified to teach, and to any congregation desiring a preacher we commend him as such.

The sickness of our Secretary will account for this report coming in so late.

Dear Restitution:

Find enclosed $3 00,—$1.50 to pay for THE RESTITUTION, for another year, and the other $1 50 to the helping fund. I feel thankful that by the grace of God, I am able to write a few lines. I have taken the dear old paper for over fifty years. I am now in my 80th year. I wish to say that I am still in the faith once delivered to the saints. I am waiting and watching for the return of our dear Lord. I do not get to go to church very often; but I am thankful for THE RESTITUTION and my Bible. I have tried to get some to read the paper by giving mine to them. May the eyes of many be opened to behold the wonders that shine through the glorious gospel of the kingdom of God.

Your Sister in the faith.

N. J. PRUITT.

Doing Better than Resolutions.

Good resolutions are never a short cut to good works. Carefully thought out plans and earnestly made resolves are valuable only as they bring into plain sight the duties that we ought to be doing. They are worse than useless when we let them take the place of duty doing, as we so often do. A man will, on his way from house to office at the beginning of the day, make such good plans and resolves for that day that by the time he reaches his office he has unconsciously let himself think that the hardest part of the work is already done; and then the real doing of it evaporates in the glow of the plan-making. It is better for most people to spend more of their time on what needs to be done than on planning when and how they will do it. An unplanned duty done is better than a duty that always remains planned for.

Obituary.

On the night of January 24, 1910, occurred the death of Nettie J. Sherer, near Ripley, Illinois.

Deceased was a member of the Church of God, having united with the church when about sixteen years of age, during a series of meetings held by Elder John Cooro. The funeral was conducted in the M. E. Church after which she was laid to rest in the Ripley Cemetery, to await the coming of the Master.

EXAMINE Your account, and give us a renewal of subscription if you can do so.

We thank you for the favor.

THE Plymouth Church expects Bro. John L. Wince to preach next Sunday morning and evening.

THE meeting at Argos were concluded on last Wednesday evening. On the evening before Brother Allard with several others came to Plymouth where he baptized a young man named Cox. May God's blessing be with our Brother in his home, and guide him to life eternal in the soon coming kingdom. We hope to have a report of this meeting soon. Also friends would like short reports of Brother Williams' meetings at Hillisburg and at Burr Oak.

Do We Need a Creed?

Some will answer this question Yes, others think No is the proper answer. While this is being discussed, we wish to present another matter, and see if there is anything besides a creed that we are suffering for.

We wish to give some headings and remarks concerning articles sent us for publication. We do this to show what is given us to deal with, and to give an idea of what we really do want for our paper. What is said of any article or writer is not meant to be offensive in the least. Most of these articles are written by capable men and women—good students. We wish every one of them would write for our columns—they have talent if conducted in a proper channel. We simply want to show how the drift has been to things that are not "to edification." We trust all will see the mark aimed at, and get away from bickering and liming over matters that will never be settled to the satisfaction of us all, that only gender strifes, and could do no real good to any one if they were capable of definite settlement.

To begin with we have here an exhaustive article, carefully typewritten of 28 pages entitled "The great harlot—or latter day identification." The writer demonstrates to his own satisfaction that "The woman clothed with the sun," Rev. xii. 1, "The great harlot that sitteth upon many waters," Rev. xvii. 1, and "The bride the Lamb's wife," Rev. xxi. 9, are each symbols of God's chosen elect race.

"The Turk," 20 large pages closely written. It assumes to prove that "The history and consequence of this effete demi-nation is on a par with that of Dahomy," etc. "The assumption that it stands in any relation to prophecy, is like the great jests of Jules Verne, in his adventures on the moon." "The Russ has his stern faults, but they in no wise compare with the fierce unreasonableness and cruelty of the Briton."

"The Lord's Day." About two columns long to show that it is wrong to say "There will be preaching here next Lord's day," and show that "the Lord has not as yet had his day."

Thirty-five pages of "Thoughts for Christians," handling the question of "Christian Union," and concluding that the various churches of Orthodoxy will not be able to unite.

Next comes an article quoting Jas. ii. 19, "Devils believe and tremble," and setting forth that there is surely not only one personal devil, but many of them.

To prove that "God is here," a writer tells a long story of a young man who ran away from home, and one night "laid down in the kingdom of God" and dreamed a dream in which God appeared to him. Of course he turned from the error of his way. This is written by one who has never before written for our paper.

An article on "Life" comes next. The author shows that "As life is so 'desireful,' and all nature loves life, it is not possible that the majority of mankind are 'traveling down the broad road to death.'" Of course this author teaches that very many, most all, and quite likely all, men will be saved.

Next to hand comes a long string of continued articles which make a man of straw from what some other brother has written, tries to show that the first writer does not believe in "Restitution," and proceeds to "do him up" right.

A 16 page screed, lambasting the entire Brotherhood for not aiding his project, claiming to have been "turned down" by the brethren, etc.

As if we could take up and settle differences between brethren, here is a letter relating how two had fallen out because one was rich, the other poor. The rich man (so the poor man said) was puffed up, and wanted to be "truckled to." The poor man evidently would not "truck," hence the very strained relations. How much genuine Christian spirit do you suppose we found in that article?

Two more long articles on the "3 days and 3 nights" question. Will this ever be settled so all will see "eye to eye?"

Reaching for the next it proves to be 18 pages more of "Pre-existence," and we simply groan.

Lo and behold! the very next to come to hand is "A few thoughts on the Incarnation," and after quoting "Without controversy great is the mystery of godliness," the author launches out "that the personality of that illustrious being born of the virgin, and called the Son of God, existed as a distinct personality before the world was, is a truth so well and unmistakably revealed in the Scriptures, that none should fail to discern." We wonder what next!

This time it changes to a 12-page rehash of the "Sabbath" question, and the writer proves to his own satisfaction at least that God instituted the Sabbath at creation. We simply pass it.

This next one goes it one better and has 13 pages. Its subject is a good one—"Resurrection," but the writer devotes his whole time to ringing the changes on the word "all," and succeeds in putting in all the space on his paper in this way. The real subject of "the resurrection of the dead" is lost in his endeavor to show that "all means all."

Our hand goes forth again and this time comes back with 9 large pages of "Pre-existence of Christ," and a glance shows "Logos" as the most prominent word to be seen.

"The end of the world" is next, and the author gets his time fixed definitely at 1925.

"For whom did Christ die, and how many did the Lord come to save?" is the next question asked, and the author concludes Christ died for all men, and he believes he will be successful in his mission.

A question—"Is man a dual being?" four long articles, and the author sickened and never was able to write the concluding article before he died.

"The nature of the Christ." This savors very much of the natural son of Joseph idea.

Thirty-seven pages of "Signs." We supposed it would be on "Signs of the times." On reading it we find nothing that indicates where we are in time's history, but the author declares "The hundreds of millions of 'heathen' peoples who have never had the faintest glimmer of saving grace, are as certainly provided for in the Word as are those in any of the special covenants of Jehovah."

The next writer is "aggrieved at the exclusiveness of some writers in THE RESTITUTION." He contends that immersion is not the only mode of baptism. His pious forebears are large before him. They were sprinkled, but will surely be saved, they were so good, hence if they can be, he can also—therefore baptism—immersion—is unnecessary.

Another writer takes 34 large pages to tell what he knows about the New Jerusalem being a literal city—or not.

The next brother who writes just must have the subject next his heart settled. It is this "Is the world getting better?"

Following next is the subject of proportional giving. How can we force all to see this matter alike, and make the rich do "as they ought to."

A poem written advising men how to vote at a local option election, is next in order.

Another article sets forth that all there is to know before baptism is that there was such a person as Jesus Christ, and you desire to "put your trust in him."

"Who were the sons of God, who took daughters of men for wives?" We are told that God's messengers—angels—coming on errands saw the daughters of men were fair to look upon. They decided to abandon God's service—become fallen angels—and marry these good looking girls. They did so, and being of differing natures, their offspring were "hybrids." (We might use another word—"mules.") The writer goes on to claim that these descendants were incapable of propagation, and became the "mighty men" "giants" of those days.

With all solemnity, brethren, we state to you that we have no article now on hand proving that "the moon is made of green cheese," but if you were here what would you look for in the next mail?

But why go on. Not one of these articles is such as we want for our paper. We want articles showing the establishment of the kingdom of God on earth. It need not take very many words to tell what the kingdom of God is; but a good many writers may write a good many articles showing that God's kingdom will be set up on this earth. The constituent elements of this kingdom—Christ the King, his saints made immortal to be associated with him as joint heirs and rulers. Their business to govern and rule—administer the affairs of the nations. This naturally calls for the literal resurrection of the dead. Don't for pity sake, quarrel over just the number God's ultimate plan may raise. Get up the ones that God wants to utilize in his work for the next age. Take one step at a time. You can't jump the mountain at one step. Israel is to be restored—write about that. The righteous are to be immortalized and given eternal life as a reward. The wicked are to be put away—not given eternal life—banished from the presence of the Lord—destroyed. How will the righteous get life? Only in Christ.

Thousands of articles won't be too many brethren and sisters, on these subjects, and what grows out o. them. The what course must we pursue to attain to the part of this that is desirable? There is belief, repentance, baptism, a godly life. Perfectly inexhaustible—you cannot wear them threadbare. Every preacher can talk, every writer can write, on these and allied topics for years, and the more he preaches and writes the more will he be able to bring out. These are living, vital questions. We very much need to go over the fundamentals again.

The above list of articles shows how far we are away from where we should be. Were every one of these subjects discussed in these articles, followed up and argued pro and con for the next ten years, and all space given to them, not one person would be shown the way of life, not one sinner would see the error of his way. Would the body of Christ be built up and encouraged by such discussions, think you? Well hardly. It would show extreme good life if it even survived.

Not one of our brethren but knows and realizes that his duty is to get off his hobby, kill him and bury him deep. Then go to work manfully the remaining time he has to live in teaching men and women the way of salvation. Brother, Sister, will you do your duty? Will you?

Brother Eychaner, if you are sick and tired of contention and strife, give us some of the old-time "Laurel-Hill sermonettes." They will be a pleasing change for all and most restful as well. Brother Adams, Lindsay, Allard, Woodward, Robison—all get on the armor and do battle together once more. Don't fight one another. Unite in service for God, and to aid one fellowman.

Selections.

The Yellowtown Debate.

The following is the argument of the negative stating when Christ's kingdom will be established:

The point at issue, not only between me and my opponent today, but between all Christian people who believe that Christ is or will be King over all the earth, is "Is Christ's kingdom now in existence, whether it was set up on the day of Pentecost, before, or since, or will it not be established with Christ on his throne as King, until his second coming at the beginning of the Millennium? Our object is to arrive at truth.

In order to have a kingdom in operation there must be the following:

1st, a king on his throne, that is, the king must be exercising the power or authority of his office.

2nd. The king must have his associate rulers as servants or messengers to execute his laws.

3rd. The king must have a people as subjects over whom he is ruling.

4. He must have territory over which his authority extends. There must be a capital city as the seat of government from which the laws are sent out.

I think you will agree with me that the kingdom of Christ is also called the kingdom of God, and the kingdom of heaven, and that it will be a heavenly kingdom, a righteous kingdom, an everlasting kingdom.

The kingdom of Israel, called also the kingdom of the Lord, over which David was a king, was a type of the kingdom of heaven over which Christ will be King. When we speak of it as Christ's kingdom, we refer to it in its eternal state. Christ's kingdom is the re-established kingdom of Israel or throne of David, which was overturned under king Zedekiah "until he comes whose right it is, and it will be given to him." Ezek. xxi. 26.

As all Bible students know, Christ's kingdom is the kingdom that God has promised to have established for the purpose of redeeming man from the effects of the curse of sin, and to fill the earth "with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea." Isa. xi. 9; Hab. ii. 14

I wish to show here that the Scriptures teach very clearly that this kingdom of heaven which Christ is to set up at his second coming, and over which he and his saints as associate rulers are to have complete dominion, is the kingdom of Israel over which David ruled, and which was overturned under king Zedekiah until he comes whose right it is (which is Christ,) and it will be given to him; also that Jesus is the seed of Abraham to whom was promised the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession, and that by genealogy he is the regular heir and Prince of the kingdom of Israel and throne of David which was overthrown and it he comes again to build it up and sit on the throne of his glory.

The Lord said unto Abraham, "I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession." Gen. xvii. 7, 8. This same promise was made to Isaac and to Jacob.

The Lord said to Israel that the land he had given to his servant Jacob, and in which his people should dwell forever, was the land wherein their fathers had dwelt. Ezek. xxxvii. 25. Stephen said to the Jews that the land God promised to Abraham "the land wherein ye now dwell. And he gave him none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on; yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child." Acts vii. 4, 5. Paul said to the Galatians, "To Abraham and his seed were the promise made. He saith not And to seeds, as of many: but as of one, and to thy Seed, which is Christ." Gal. iii. 16, 18

The manner of Christ's birth, and his office, were prophesied many years before by Isaiah, and was announced the year before by the angel Gabriel. Isaiah prophesied, "For unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even forever." Isa. ix. 6, 7.

The angel Gabriel said to the virgin Mary, the mother of Jesus, "And behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb and bring forth a Son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end." Luke i. 31-33.

Right in harmony with these prophesies the prophet Nathan said to David, "And when thy days be fulfilled, and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I (the Lord) will set up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build an house for my name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever. I will be his Father, and he shall be my Son." 2 Sam. vii. 12-14.

You notice that this is one of the prophecies which is of a two-fold nature. In regard to building the house it refers to David's son Solomon, who did build a temple of stone and cedar for the Lord, in obedience to this promise (1 Kings v. 5,) and it also refers to the eternal house or kingdom which Jesus the Son of God is now building, which in the stage of the preparation of the material, in this probationary period or age, when men and women are being tried in their faith, is called "the Church" (1 Tim iii. 15,) but which, after a sufficient amount of material is ready, the 144,000 (Rev. xiv. 1-4,) and are gathered together from the four winds (Matt. xxiv. 31,) and are joined to Christ, their Head, into one holy temple, is then called "the Kingdom," because Christ will then have his bride, his associate rulers, will be ready to commence to rule the nations. Now David understood God's reference to the house that Christ would build for him for the name of the Lord, he said, "Who am I, O Lord God? and what is my house, that thou hast brought me hitherto? And this was a small thing in thy sight, O Lord God; but thou hast spoken also of thy servant's house for a great while to come." 2 Sam. vii. 18, 19.

Peter was enabled to understand this promise that Christ was to build this house or kingdom for David, and to sit on his throne so when he (Peter) in his initiative sermon on the day of Pentecost was using the keys of the kingdom that Jesus had given him to unlock to the world the hidden truth about Christ's kingdom, he said. "Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre is with us unto this day. Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne; he seeing this before spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul was not left in hell (the grave,) neither his flesh did see corruption. This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses." Acts ii. 29-32.

We know that Christ has been raised up from the dead according to promise, but when is he to establish his kingdom, set up this house, this tabernacle of David that has been thrown down, and sit on his throne?

Listen. Peter said, "And he (God) shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of the restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." Acts iii. 20, 21. So God will not send him, but retain him in heaven, until the times of the restitution of all things spoken by all the prophets, the very work for which Christ and his saints are to reign on the earth.

Why is Christ retained in heaven so long? He answered this when he said to his apostles, "In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you; and if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye may be also." John xiv. 2.

The Father's house is the house or kingdom that his Son Jesus is building for his name, which God planned for his people before the ages; the mansions in this kingdom are the places of honor and glory for Christ's associate rulers. These places will not be ready until the people are called, tried, and chosen over whom the apostles are to be judges or rulers. These elect will constitute the twelve tribes of Israel, the true Israel according to faith, and are the antitype of which the Israel according to the flesh was the type. God is now choosing these people from among the Gentiles.

Paul said to the Hebrews, "Moses verily was faithful in all his (God's) house, as a servant, for a testimony of those things which were to be spoken after; but Christ as a Son over his own house; whose are we if we hold fast the confidence and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end." Heb. iii. 5, 6.

Inasmuch as the material that is to be selected for this house is conditional that they be firm unto the end, shows that the people who compose this material are not finished and selected for the building until they have overcome at the end of life. Also as the object of Christ's kingdom is to judge the world, all these people that he is taking out from among the Gentiles for his name, for his bride, must be ready before he can return and set up his kingdom, because David says, "This honor have all the saints" (Psa. cxlix. 9,) and Paul said to the Corinthians, "Do ye not know that the saints shall judge the world?" 1 Cor. vi. 2.—F. M. Howell, in the Gallipolis Journal.

Report of Meetings.

On Tuesday, January 25, Brother Almus Adams arrived at Grand Island, Nebraska, to hold meetings. Beginning that evening we continued meetings till February 7. Brother Adams preached seventeen sermons in all. The attendance was small but interest was good, and several not in the faith attended nearly every evening, and seemed to take great interest in what was said.

We trust that the seed sown here was sown on good ground, and will bring forth an abundant harvest.

On February 8, Brother Adams departed for St. Paul, Nebraska, to commence meetings.

Your Sister in hope,
OLA CHAUVET, Sec.

Editor Restitution:

It is with pleasure we send you a few words. The last Sunday in January Brother Marsh spoke for us in Chicago to a very interested company, many of them young people.

On Sunday, February 6, we had the pleasure of having Brother and Sister Robison with us. They were on their way home from a visit to the Iowa Churches, and stopped off in Chicago to see their son, who also broke the Word of God to us, which encouraged us much.

Hope they will come again when in the city, or any one else who may be passing through this way; we will be very glad to see them.

May the Lord bless Brother and Sister Robison as they go among the churches.

Your Brother and Sister in blessed hope,
MARTIN & MARY ASLAKSEN.

Brother Underwood,

I received my paper all right and it is always a welcome guest in my home. I read the many good letters from the weary writing ones, that are scattered abroad. I live in Rockwood, Tennessee, and we have about four thousand inhabitants, and I am the only one that believes in the Church of God. Dont you think we need a teacher? There are about a dozen scattered around through the country, and we, the little flock, are all too poor in this world's goods to call a preacher. We have to study our Bible and read THE RESTITUTION, which we find great pleasure in. We, of all people on earth, have more to be thankful for than any one else. We through faith have laid hold of the promise of eternal life, so you that have the sweet pleasure of assembling yourselves together time after time, remember the little scattered flock here, and pray that when Christ comes whether we wake or sleep, we may have a rich entrance into the kingdom where righteousness shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea.

Your Sister, in hope of eternal life when the Lord comes.

MRS. SARAH LINDSAY.

Editor Restitution:

Although I am somewhat late in sending in my renewal, I will not make excuse but send it now, for I don't feel as though I could get along without the dear old RESTITUTION, as it is all the preaching I have besides my Bible. I enjoyed reading the good letters in the Love Feast, and felt as if I wanted to take the writers by the hand and bid them God speed.

I am hoping to meet all the dear ones in God's kingdom.

Your Sister in Christ,
MRS. M. F. GUILD.

Dear Restitution:

I am very thankful that I can send the money for my paper, and wish you much success, and trust I will be able to pay for our dear paper when it is due again. I wish to send through the columns of THE RESTITUTION my greeting to the household of faith. I have enjoyed reading the letters of the brothers and sisters so much, as they bring so much cheer to us isolated as we are. I have many obstacles which come in my way, but what a blessed privilege to know what a great Friend we have in our Heavenly Father. I would ask an interest in your prayers that I may ever remain faithful to the truths as they are in Christ Jesus.

I remain your Sister in the one faith.
LIZZIE WATKINS.

Dear Restitution:

Enclosed find Money Order for renewal of my subscription. I can not do without the dear, old RESTITUTION. It is so much company to me. I like to read about what the Indiana people are doing. It affords me great pleasure away out here in Vancouver, Washington.

Yours, in hope of eternal life.
MISS NELLIE RIDLEN.

Ebenezer. 1. Sam 7, 12

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10703 Hampden Ave. Cleveland, Ohio Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

We are not able to announce in this issue when our book will be ready as unfounted last week. Next week, however, we expect to be able to do so.

We are having printed a lot of leaflets which advertize "The Bible; Its Principles and Texts." When ordering your book if you desire to advertize it among your friends, ask us to send you some of the leaflets. They are free.

Casting Out Devils.

To understand this subject we need to see the following basic principle:

Since the Bible was written for our sakes the truth in it is often expressed in a way that seems untrue, because of the need of expressing it in strange terms we use and can therefore understand, caused by foreign ideas, and making such expressions easy of wresting to teach what they do not teach.

Illustrations: Witchcraft is condemned as an abomination and we know it to be a delusion, and yet Gideon I seems to teach it. Although the location of Mars is recognized in Acts xvii 22 Jehovah has not therefore ordained him among the gods. The planets to be given a name or we would not know the locality, and if given any other name than the superstitious one in use inspiration would defeat its own purpose. Do not be afraid to call days of the week and months by their pagan names nor to say "martial" (from Mars) and "volcanic" (from Vulcan). You do not thereby fall into recognition that the things named by the words are real. Likewise "Tophet" is named by the Lord, but surely he does not believe in such a place. And Jesus names the current superstition of ghosts in Luke xxiv 39. But he does not therefore recognize the doctrine of the spirits of the dead as true. God is said to repent that he created man. If this is to be taken literally why did he not wash right and not sink all in the flood and try a new experiment? He "is not a man that he.....should repent." Num xxiv 19. Why then does he say he did? "For our sakes, no doubt, this is written." 1 Cor i 10. Else how could he attribute such sins to himself as vengeance, anger, wrath, fury and such like? He does not really lose his temper. The fault is all in us; as we look up to him the bad color in our eyes seems to be on him. Read 1 Sam xxii 26-27. He did not really have to "go down," Gen xviii 21, before he could tell what was happening in Sodom. If he had to come and hunt Adam when he hid how did he know where Saul was when he hid from being king? If you talked to your child at first about arbitration and spheres and algebra he would know nothing you said, so you tell him to "settle" and say "ball" and that one and one are two. Jesus spoke to them "as they were able to bear it." Mark iv 33.

"Not all men can receive this saying, save they to whom it is given..... He that is able to receive it let him receive it." Matt xix 11-12.

By this same principle the cure of diseases is in the gospels and epistles sometimes called casting out devils. Since the heathen religions abound in the doctrine of the immortality of the soul and its consequent ghosts, evil spirits, charms and necromancy, and since Israel in dispersion had fallen away to these abominations, how could it be otherwise than that they would believe such things when Jesus came to them as that diseases were caused by foul spirits being inside a person? It is noticeable that casting out of devils begins in the gospels and Acts and is not in the records of Moses and the prophets before Israel fell away. Then Saul is "well" when spirit leaves him. 1 Sam xvi 23. Naaman is simply "cured" of leprosy and Nebuchadnezzar's "reason returned." No supernatural, malevolent monster in it. Moreover, God himself says he is the one who brings on diseases. Ex iv 11; Job xlii 11; Lev xiv 34; 2 Chron xxi 18; 1 Sam xvi 14. So that Saul's "evil spirit" came from God, insanity, like Nebuchadnezzar had. A power, not a personality, being parallel to the Holy Spirit. 1 S xvi 14.

Matt xvii 14-21. The son had a devil, verse 18. That is, he was "lunatic." Verse 15. His devil was a nervous disease, lunacy, or as the A. V. gives it, "epilepsy" what we call fits. He fell sometimes in the fire and sometimes into the water. We do not today say of people who have fits that they have devils. Doctors often cast it out with treatment of some kind, the cause frequently being eye-strain or spinal affection. It seems strange if a literal evil spirit could not endure staying in a body that wore glasses, doesn't it? We are not today so afflicted with pagan superstition that we say people are "possessed with devils." And if they were they would be helpless and hopeless, for we do not claim miraculous power to "cast them out." We have to go to China and like places to find a belief in evil spirits now.

Mark ix 14 29 gives an account of this same case. Here the "devil" is "dumb," verse 17. People when they have epileptic fits cannot speak, you know. But in verse 26 we find this same dumb devil using a voice. How so, if it was a literal, dumb evil spirit? You will find that these marauders and usurpers always use the tongues arms, legs, ears, etc., of the people they inhabit: Why so, if they are literal beings themselves? There is not a case on record of such an evil spirit speaking unless it was said to be inside a person and using that person's tongue. Matt ix 32 33, "A dumb man, possessed with a devil." His "devil" was dumbness. Are deaf and dumb people today possessed of devils?

Matt xii 22, "One possessed with a devil, blind and dumb." He had two devils. One was that he could not see and the other that he could not speak. Are our blind friends obsessed with evil spirits? Notice, Jesus "healed" him. Cured his afflictions. Read the account of this same case in Luke xi 14. Notice here that it is the evil spirit that was dumb. If this was literally so and I had such a being inside me, instead of wanting him cured so he could talk I should want him made deaf and blind, and afflicted with paralysis, and disabled in every possible way, so he could not "torment" me. Jno x 20 "He hath a devil and is mad." That is, they charged Jesus with having the devil of insanity.

Mark v and Luke viii 26. Here we have a crazy man, for after he is cured he was "in his right mind." Mark v 15. Notice how crazy he acted. He lived in the cemetery, and went naked, and had the abnormal strength belonging to maniacs, crying, and cutting himself with stones. He said, "Torment me not." Crazy people generally run from people who want to care for them by putting them in asylums. And when asked his name he did not know it, but thinking he was a whole host of people he said, "Legion is my name," and requested not to be sent away out of the country or into the deep. Luke viii 31. (According to Matthew's account in viii 28 there were two of these maniacs.) So his crazy mind conceived the thought that the whole army he thought himself to be might as well enter into the herd of swine, which he requested. Notice in Mark v 2, he is said to have one unclean spirit and in verses 12 and 15 is said to have many devils, as an accommodation of the language to follow his crazy train of thought. So as swine-eating was unlawful to Israel Jesus, in curing the poor crazed man sent the disease on the swine. This would punish the owners for violating the law. Paul smote Elymas with blindness, so there was a case of divine power putting a devil in a man, as well as at other times taking them out. Read Ex iv 11. And Jesus put the "legion" in the swine. We see animals crazy oftentimes today. Sometimes from hydrophobia.

Let us have a sane view of the Bible, "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of a sound mind." 2 Tim i 7. And in 1 Jno iv 18 fear is represented as being a demon "cast out" by "perfect love." May we all realize this holy love and use it to serve each other. Gal v 13.

Infidels are Dead Ducks.

Once there was a Judge who had a colored man. The colored man was very godly and the Judge used to have him to drive him around in his circuit. The Judge used often to talk with him, and the colored man would tell the Judge about his religious experience, and about his battles and conflicts. One day the Judge said to him: 'Sambo, how is it that you Christians are always talking about the conflicts you have with Satan? I am better off than you are. I don't have any troubles or conflicts, and yet I am an infidel and you are a Christian—always in a muss;—how's that, Sambo?' This floored the colored man for awhile. He didn't know how to meet the old infidel's argument. So he shook his head sorrowfully and said: "I dunno, Massa, I dunno." The Judge always carried a gun along with him for hunting. Pretty soon they came to a lot of ducks. The Judge took his gun and blazed away at them, and wounded one and killed another. The Judge said quickly: "You jump in, Sambo, and get that wounded duck before he gets off," and did not pay any attention to the dead one. In went Sambo for the wounded duck, and came out reflecting. The colored man then thought he had an illustration. He said to the Judge: "I hab 'im now, Massa: I'se able to show you how de Christian hab greater conflict dan de infidel. Don't you know de moment you wounded dat ar duck, how anxious you was to git him out, and you didn't care for de dead, but jes' let him alone?" "Yes," said the Judge. "Well," said Sambo, "ye see as how dat are dead duck's n sure thing. I'se wounded, and I tries to get away from the debbil. It takes trouble to catch me. But, Massa, you are a dead duck—dar's no squabble for you; de debbil have you sure!" So the devil has no conflict with the infidel.—D. L. Moody.

Reasons Why People Object to Creeds.

Brother Huggins:

I certainly admire the position taken by Brother Adams, and yourself and others on the question of "Articles of Faith." In fact, it is the only right position a believer can take who has the welfare of the truth at heart. Under present conditions one party will assert that Christ is the Deity Himself; others that he is not God, but the "only begotten Son of God;" still others claiming to belong to the one body teach that Christ is the natural son of Joseph.

Besides the above contradictory doctrines, we have advocated here by preachers claiming to belong to the Church of God, Universalism, the fair chance theory, non-resurrection of the wicked, baptism not a saving ordinance, no bodily resurrection, personal devil, etc.

No wonder aliens are bewildered by a people claiming to have the "one faith," yet teaching at the same time so many conflicting ideas. The apostle's injunction applies in vain to such a people, "Be ye of one mind." The apostle says in another place "If the trumpet gives an uncertain sound, who will prepare himself for battle?"

One thing I have noticed in my short experience is, Those who oppose our having "Articles of Faith" usually are afflicted with some heresy, such as that Christians must keep the Jewish sabbath, universalism, etc. Those who are sound in the faith usually favor the idea.

Praying that the time may soon come when we can "in one mind" tell inquiring aliens what to believe in order to salvation.

Yours in hope of immortality,
JOHN FISK, JR.

Pay Your Share.

"George?"

"Yes, pa!"

"Did you pay your share of the expense for the banquet of your class that I heard so much about last week?"

"Why, no, papa; you know some of the other fellows are more flush than I am, and then there wasn't any assessment. The banquet just cost so much; and I thought—"

"Now, my boy, I want to tell you something. If you want to go through this world creditably to yourself and to me, you've got to pay your way from beginning to end. Understand that? Do you suppose I want a deadhead for a son? Jimmy Dougan's father may have a million dollars to my six thousand five hundred, but do you suppose I'm going to have my meals charged to his account at the restaurant where we both dine on that account? Not much! If he wants to invite me out for a good dinner some day, that's another matter; but wherever he and I go, you may depend upon it that I am going to pay my own way. Now you and Jimmy are classmates, and I have no doubt good friends. That's all right. But the only way to retain the respect of Jimmy Dougan and every other boy and man is stand on your own feet and pay your own share, first and last always. I have always made that the rule of my life, and I—"

"But, pa, only yesterday I heard you tell me that you were not going to bother yourself about helping to pay our quota to the boards of the Church because Mr. Dougan was able to pay it all and never miss it, and you said that some of the big Pittsburg congregations were stronger and richer than ours anyway, and that you didn't propose—"

"But my son, that's different. You know I'm not talking about church matters now. I'm talking about the practical affairs of—"

"Different, is it? Well, that's just what wanted to know. I'm glad we're having this talk, pa, because it lets me out a whole lot, I tell you. Now ever since I joined the church last January I've been trying to save five dollars and twenty cents, because the boys in my class said that was the amount that every member was expected to pay to the boards of the Church; and—let's see—I've saved a little over four dollars now, but—say—that's enough to pay my share of the banquet and have two dollars left! Well, so long, pa, I'll think over what you said. I'm sure you must be right."

That night a troubled man overheard an earnest argument over in "mother's room." He could not catch all of the conversation, but he knew well what it was about, for there fell reproachfully upon his ear the oft repeated statement of his son George: "But, mother, the church is different! Honest, if ta! pa said it was!"

Gentle reader, are you making it "different?" Are you teaching your children to make it "different?" How, it is not time that you placed yourself and your congregation, and taught your young people to place themselves in the honor-list of those who pay their share?—The United Presbyterian.

God's Covenant with David.

2 Sam vii 11. The Lord telleth David that he [that is, the Lord], will make him a house, a royal house, or dynasty; away in the future as in verse 19, "Spoken of thy servant's house for a great while to come."

Verse 12 refers to Solomon as verse 13 affirms, "He shall build a house for my name, and I will stablish the throne of his kingdom for ever." "He," that is Solomon shall. As verse 14 indicates, "I will be a father to him .....if he commit iniquity I will chasten him"—He did commit iniquity and was chastened accordingly.

Consult 1 Kings x 23 and compare chapter xi 1-13, Solomon's Adversary's—verse 14 and 25, 27, 31, 34, 36.

Though Solomon was rejected and chastened, yet the perpetuity of the throne is assured (16) Recorded testimony. Psa lxxxix 3, 4. Here the confirmation with the oath of the Almighty settles for all time this covenant arrangement some details recorded and it is necessary to stick to the reading rather than interpretations. Read from and including verse 19-28 and compare Ezek xxxiv 23, 24 and xxxvii 22, 24, 25. This, in the epoch of the regeneration, when the Son of Man shall sit upon the throne of his glory; and the twelve apostles shall sit upon twelve thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel; over these, David anointed prince, over all the twelve tribes. Head over all and to the uttermost parts of the earth; Jesus of Nazareth, glorified, will sit enthroned in Zion, when all people, nations and languages shall serve him, as saith the prophet.

Do not ignore David, by reading "The Beloved" for the name and person—David.

Keep a firm grip on the recorded testimony. Consult Matt xix 28; and Luke xxii 29, 30. Return to Psa lxxxix 29 "His" [that is David's seed]. See Rom i 3. "His seed saith the Lord, I will make to endure forever and his throne as the days of heaven".....If his children [that is, David's children], forsake my law..... Then I will visit their transgression with the rod.....verses 30 32. Emphasize verses 34 37. Repeat verse 36 harmonizing with verse 29. And compare Psa cxxii 5 and cxxxii 11, 17; and Acts ii 30; and numerous references.

These testimonies cannot be shaken. They are founded upon the Word of the Lord and confirmed with the oath of the Lord Almighty. A foundation for faith and hope; as firm as the throne of God; on and on through the ages.

The terms referring to the throne and kingdom of God affirm its perpetual duration; Dan ii 44 and vii 14. Emphasize verse 18, 27. Agreeing with Psa ii 6-9 and Rev xi 15, compared with xxii 5. These testimonies harmonize with the testimony of the angel Gabriel, Luke i 32. The throne of his father David is assured. And he shall reign over the house of Jacob for—"one thousand years"? Read "for ever;" and if this is not sufficient to express the time; read on to next period: "And of his kingdom there shall be no end."

The recorded testimony of prophets and apostles are in perfect harmony as to the perpetual duration of the kingdom and nation of Israel. Consult Jer xxxi 35, 36, 37. Compared with the permanent things of nature—the sun, the moon. The rotation of the seasons; the alternations of day and night. These assertions are fortified with immovable facts pertaining to the ordinances of heaven and earth; so that the covenant with David is on a basis as solid as the everlasting hills. See also xxxiii 20-22. Awaiting the "Times of Restitution."

As to the prerequisites to the throne of David we have placed on record the necessary testimony which affirms Jesus of Nazareth, the One Divinely appointed to occupy the throne of David after fulfilling the predictions with reference to his sacrificial work; whom God hath set forth a Propitiatory (mercy seat) through faith in his blood—to declare his justification for the remission of past sins, during God's forbearance and according to God's predetermined purpose. See Acts ii 23. This Jesus passed through a life of trial and suffered the death of the cross, and therefore his soul was not left in hell, neither did his flesh see corruption—God raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in heaven itself. Phil ii 9, 10, 11. Compare Heb ix 12 and verse 24. He entered in once into the holy place with the blood of himself—into heaven itself. There to be present in the presence of God for us. The ceremonial of the Day of Atonement. Lev xvi 15. A type of the One offering of Jesus himself in heaven where he was glorified in answer to prayer. See Jno xvii 4, 5 and in fulfillment of prophecy. Psa xvi 11 and cx 1. The change from psuchekon to pneumatuar, occurred in the divine presence such as that glorification in the Father's presence on the holy mount. 2 Peter i 16 18 and 1 John i 2.

C. W. TOMKINS.

Doing What One Pleases.

The man who asserts that he has a right to do what he wishes seldom wishes to do right. That is an independence which puts everybody else under bondage. It is a mistaken idea of liberty that gives license. One's sphere is not altogether his own if that of some one else is in part superposed upon it. In a world of relations and connections, dependence and interdependence must be marked more strongly than independence. Any man will destroy his usefulness quickest by a disregard of the rights and desires of others. Recently a friend remarked that the essence of Christianity is to think of the other man first. Selfishness and Christianity are as much opposed to each other as day and night, as much as hemlock and nectar. By precept and example Jesus Christ has marked out the way, and the way passes far on the other side of self-conceit and oppression.

Sunday School Lesson.

FEBRUARY 27, 1910.

False and True Discipleship.—Matt. vii. 13-29.

Golden Text—"Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven," Matthew vii. 21.

The same surroundings and time as last lesson.

This lesson ends the Sermon on the Mount, and as in the lesson for Feb'y 6, sincerity was contrasted with hypocrisy, so in this we have the true and the false compared.

Jesus tells us there is a gate, or rather two gates. These gates each open on a way or road that lead, one to destruction, the other to life.

What kind of gates are these?

The broad one leads where?

The narrow to what place?

What sort of people enter in by the narrow gate?

Turn to Matthew xxv. 31-46, and see if you can find the kind of people God will have in his kingdom.

1 John ii. 3-5 shows that such as keep his commandments will be found there.

In Matthew xxiii. we will find that hypocrites will not be there.

By 1 Corinthians iii. 9-17 we learn that the foundation we lay has much to do with sharing in his kingdom.

In 1 John v. 4 the victory is won by overcoming the world, and this is accomplished through faith.

By studying these passages, and others that can be added, what do we learn?

Do we get the idea that it is only through the narrow gate of Obedience to God's laws, that we can hope to gain an entrance into his kingdom?

There are several things about this narrow gate that we would do well to note. A gate is made to enter by. It shuts to those who are not worthy to enter, but its primary use is for an entrance. An open gate is an invitation to enter. Jesus here states a fact—the gate to life is narrow. He did not say he made it so to hinder men coming in, but implies that it is as wide as God's love for man can make it. This mixed multitude who with the disciples heard this sermon, the publicans and sinners, the worst of men and women of all time, are invited to come, are even urged, but they can only enter through the reformation and change of life from sin to righteousness.

How many does Jesus say find this narrow gate?

If but few found it then, can we hope to see large numbers entering in now?

Why do so many enter the broad way?

Why does Luke xiii. 24 say for us to "strive to enter in at the strait gate?"

The margin says "strive as in agony"—showing that earnest effort must be put forth, with anxiety lest we miss the way.

What does Jesus warn us against?

Do false prophets look like the real prophets of God?

Are we liable to be "taken in" by false teachers?

How can we guard against this danger?

How are we able to tell the false from the true?

Can a false teacher appear real for long?

Can a wolf appear like a sheep always?

Will a good tree bear evil fruit?

Can a corrupt tree produce good fruit?

What is done with a tree that is decayed, unhealthy and of bad nature—corrupt?

We need often to apply the test to ourselves, and if there be any useless branches, any faults, cut them off. If an eye offend pluck it out. God wants heart purity, that leads us to be like himself—perfect.

Is the fact that a person calls on the name of the Lord, and prophesys, and does mighty works in his name, proof that he is a child of God, and will be accepted in his kingdom?

What is it that makes us and keeps us right with God?

What does it mean to do "the will of my Father who is in heaven?"

Does such an one make God's law the rule of his life?

What does "depart from me; I never knew you," mean?

Jesus next uses an illustration showing two houses, one founded on the rock, the other on the sand. There seems to be no difference in the houses. They are alike in appearance.

What was the essential difference in them?

What sort of people are like the wise man who founded his house on a rock?

Hearers and doers simply mean faith and obedience—both being necessary.

What kind of people built in a foolish manner?

To hear and not do—to give assent in a vague way—not digging into God's Word of Truth till the whole heart is filled, and renders obedience, means utter ruin and destruction at the testing time.

When Jesus finished speaking the people were astonished at his teaching, because he spoke not as their Scribes did to them, but as one who had authority. He spoke as one who knew what he was saying, as an expert who speaks confidently from knowledge he has gained. There were no inferences, deductions, or guesses. He spoke with power and authority to enforce. What he said was convincing—had the authority of truth, and inspired confidence and truth.

Many of those who heard that day, and many since, have acknowledged the authority of Jesus, even believed in his teachings as being the truth, and yet have not the love of God in their hearts, Jesus obey him, so cannot hope to enter the kingdom of God.

Our lives are tested by self-sacrifice, by bearing of fruit, by an obedience to God's laws, and by building on Christ as the solid Rock.

On account of weather conditions the work was greatly hindered during the month. Went to Blair, Nebraska on Friday, the 24st, and stayed over Sunday and had a very interesting meeting with better attendance and interest than for some time. The zealousness of the church here not only shows growth among the members, but the influence is being felt by the outside world.

I arrived in Grand Island on Tuesday the 25th, and up to date have spoken eight times, and the prospects are very bright. The little band here are keeping up their weekly meetings, and they are beginning to bear fruit. Will remain here for several days yet. Brother Bronson of Michigan is here, and enjoying the meetings, not having had the privilege before for a good many years. He was brought up largely under the preaching of Bros. Reed and Stephenson, so you may know how well versed he is. We are pleased to have him with us.

Submitted in hope.

ALBERT ADAMS, Evangelist.

Notice to Illinois Bereans.

Our new lesson books are now ready. In order to meet, in a measure, the expense of printing, the Bereans, who attended the annual meeting agreed to buy their books and to invite any, who felt so inclined, to do the same. This is not necessary, as all Bereans will be provided with the Lesson Books: but the deficit of the treasury can be easily met in this way. Will the Illinois Berean Societies send in their orders as soon as possible to Leila E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario St., Austin Station, Chicago, Ill. Our president wishes all societies to begin the new work the first week in February. After February first send to her for the books at 629 N. Galena Ave., Dixon, Ill. Order about six more than you need and keep them as a reserve fund. When your society is supplied, send the money to Wm. Hardesty, Oregon, Ill. If you wish books sent by express, state plainly, in your order the nearest express office. If you wish them sent by mail enclose the postage in the order, five cents for three books and seven cents for six books, etc.

Illinois has the new Berean Bible Lessons to sell to any isolated societies or members who are not affiliated with Iowa, Indiana or Michigan. Price ten cents.

INDIANA BEREANS.

Books may be had at the same rate from Evelyn K. Baresch, 515 Pennsylvania Avenue, South Bend, Indiana. Send the money to Flora Harris, at Rensselaer, Indiana.

State officers greatly desire co-operation from every Church in the State as well as all isolated members. Much anxious thought is being given each situation, and we are hoping progress will result from the plans we have formulated, and have started to put into action.

EVELYN K. BARESCH, Pres.

Our Helping Fund.

Deep Waters.

Shallow waters are easily muddled. After a night of storm the waters of the bay along the beach, stirred by the winds, are foul and black with mire and dirt. But look beyond, out into the deep water, how blue and clear it is! The white caps on the surface show the violence, but the waters are too deep for the storms that sweep its surface to stir up the earth at the bottom. So in Christian experience; a shallow experience is easily disturbed. The merest trifles becloud and darken the soul whose piety is superficial, while the most furious storm of life fails to darken or perturb the soul which has attained a deep experience in the things of God. The agitation may produce a sparkle on the surface, but in the calm depths of such a spirit reigns eternal tranquility, the peace of God that passeth understanding.

The Bible.

A DECLARATION OF ITS FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES, WITH EXPLANATIONS OF MANY DIFFICULT TEXTS.

The above is the title page of a book the Editor proposes to publish as soon as enough subscriptions are received to pay the printer. The subject matter of the book as now prepared consists of explanations of more than one hundred and twenty-six subjects; and to these will be added other subjects readers may send us while the book is being gotten ready for the press.

The primary design of the book is to teach aliens the truth. Selections from our writings in THE RESTITUTION, especially from the "Question Box," have been carefully made, and thoroughly revised. The only book ever published by our Church which formulates the fundamental principles of the gospel in propositions, and then explains all difficult texts, introducing every conceivable Bible subject—a variety most pleasing to the reader.

The price will not be less than 25 cents, and not more than $1.00. Do not send money now, but send us your pledges, and when we have received enough pledges to pay the printer, we will go to press, and will announce when our pledged subscribers can remit the money. In sending us pledges to take one or a number of books, be sure and give your correct address.

Send pledges to R. G. Huggins, at 10705 Hampden avenue, Cleveland, O.

Brethren of the Household of Faith in Michigan Greeting:

At the Annual Conference in 1908, a committee was appointed to recommend a plan of raising more funds for the purpose of furthering evangelistic work in the state of Michigan. Their report has been published in these columns from time to time, and a great many of the brethren have responded nobly, and much additional work has been accomplished.

During the month of October we had some excellent help from Brother S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, with the result that eight dear ones were added to our number, and we have a promise from him that he will return and give Michigan some additional work during the winter, and we trust the brethren who have delayed sending in whatever they intended giving for this work will kindly respond with promptness, for on this depends how long we can keep Brother Lindsay at work. If we could send our offerings quarterly, it would no doubt be easier than to send the whole amount at once, and that would give us more to use during the year. We cannot afford to let this opportunity pass, so will expect the brethren to respond promptly. Forward offerings to A. K. Richardson, R F D 5, Hastings, Michigan, or the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette Street, Grand Rapids Michigan. We thank you in advance.

Yours in the service of the King,

F. V. BLAKELY, Sec.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services.—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 903 N. Willow Ave (Austin Station) Chicago.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, has neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible.

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again:" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10643 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern Ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MARCH 2, 1910. NUMBER 9.

Poetry.

The Lord Is My Shepherd.

My Shepherd is the Lord,
And nothing shall I need.
He leads me by His word,
In pastures green to feed;
Where streams of living waters flow,
There maketh He my rest to go.

My Guide He will restore,
And bring me to the good.
What death hath no more power
Upon the righteous soul
Or those who wear His name confess,
And cover the robe of righteousness.

Yea, though my feet must tread
Where death's dark shadows fall,
No evil will I dread
For Thou art with me all.
Thy strong right hand is still with me,
Thy rod and staff my stay shall be.

Thou dost prepare
Before mine enemies,
A table rich and fair;
And with all goodness
With oil Thou dost anoint mine head.
And my cup Thy wine my cup is filled.

Surely goodness
Thou wilt follow;
They all thy days my guides,
And mercy
And to me I will Thy goodness tell,
And in Thy house my feet shall dwell.

The Yellowtown Debate. No. 2.

When Jesus and his disciples were near to Jerusalem, they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear, so to correct their mistaken idea, Jesus spake a parable, and compared himself to a nobleman taking a journey into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return; and he left his house in the possession of servants, and told them to occupy till he returned. "And it came to pass, that when he was returned, having received the kingdom, then he commanded these servants to be called unto him, etc." Luke xix 11-15; Mark xiii 24.

Now this house that Jesus left in possession of his servants, is the house that God told David that his Seed according to the flesh should build for his name (2 Sam vii 13), and that Paul told Timothy was "the Church of the living God." 1 Tim iii 15 This house left in possession of Christ's servants is not a completed building, but is the preparatory state of the material, consisting of human beings being tried and made ready, which probationary state of the material is called the Church, and when it is all ready, Christ will return and gather it together and set it up, and it will then be the established kingdom, which, like the mustard seed, will be very small at first, but will grow till it fills the earth. In a certain sense the Church is the kingdom in its embryo state, in the period of the development and preparation of the material for the various parts of this house, which, like the typical temple that Solomon built, when all is ready, will be nicely fitted together without any further use of preparatory tools. After the people who constitute the constituent parts of this house have all been tried and chosen from among the Gentiles for the Lord's name, for his bride, then he will return and gather them together and set up his kingdom.

St. James said, "Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name. And to this agree the words of prophets; as it is written, After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up.'" Acts xv 14-16

Now this tabernacle of David that is fallen down, and that Jesus is to return and set up, is the kingdom of Israel, the throne of David, that God by his prophet Ezekiel said that he would overturn, and it should be no more, "until he comes whose right it is, and I will give to him." xxii 27. The prophet Isaiah, in regard to the office of Christ, said, "Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even forever." Isa ix 7.

The Lord by his prophet Amos said, "In that day I will raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen." He says, "I will raise up his ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old." Amos ix 11. You will notice that James said, "After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David." After what? He had just said that Simeon (Peter) had declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles to take out from among them a people for his name, and then he said the prophets declared, "After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David," showing clearly that it will be after he has taken out from among the Gentiles a people for his name. Let us see whether that could have been done on the day of Pentecost.

The Lord by his prophet Isaiah said of Christ, "It is a light thing that thou shouldst be my servant to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and to restore the preserved of Israel: I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth." Isa xlix 6. In obedience to God's plan, Jesus first sent his apostles to the lost sheep of the house of Israel to give them the first opportunity to accept the gospel and become heirs of Christ's kingdom by faith, but when they rejected the gospel, the apostle then went to the Gentiles to take out from among them a people for the Lord's name, who are to be Christ's associate rulers when he sets up his kingdom.

The lost sheep of the house of Israel, where the Jews who were descendants of Israel, and according to the flesh were the legal heirs of the kingdom of the Lord that had been overthrown; long on account of the hardness of their heart, Jesus said unto them, "Therefore say I unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." Matt xxi 43. Not that these Jews already possessed the kingdom, but according to the flesh they were heirs of it, but Jesus said they should not inherit it. At another time he said, "But the children of the kingdom shall be cast out into outer darkness." Matt viii 12. These "children of kingdom" were children and heirs according to the flesh, but not by promise. Paul says, "For if they which are of the law be heirs, faith is made void, and the promise made of none effect." Rom iv 14.

When Paul and Barnabas were preaching at Antioch, and the Jews saw the multitudes, they were filled with envy, and spake against those things which were spoken by Paul, contradicting and blaspheming. "Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold and said, 'It was necessary that the Word of God should first have been spoken to you: but seeing ye put it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles.'" Acts xiii 45, 46.

The Word of God is still being preached to the Gentiles, but there is to be an end of the time in which the Lord is taking out of the Gentiles a people for his name. Paul said to the Romans, "That blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in." Rom xi 25.

Jesus told his disciples about the signs and wonders and troubles that will occur before his second coming, and he said, "Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Lu xxi 24. He meant the time in which he is taking out of the Gentiles a people for his name. Just after Jesus said this, he said, "And then shall they see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory." This is plain evidence by the Lord himself, that he is not to come in power and glory until after the time of the Gentiles be fulfilled. And he said, "When the Son of Man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." Matt xxv 31. Then he continues to tell about the work of his kingdom. Daniel, in a prophetic vision, saw this event that Jesus described. He said, "I saw in the night visions, and, behold, one like the Son of Man came with the clouds of heaven, * * *. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages should serve him." Dan vii 13, 14.

Daniel in this vision saw Christ coming in the clouds, and right in harmony with this vision, the angel told the disciples, who were looking up where they had seen Jesus disappear in a cloud, that "This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." Acts i 2.

Jesus said, "For the Son of Man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels: and then he shall reward every man according to his works." Matt xvi 27. "And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, That ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of Man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." Matt xix 28. "And the Lord my God shall come, and all the saints with thee * * *. And the Lord shall be King over all the earth." Zech xiv 5, 9. Isaiah says, "Out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem." Isa. ii. 3.

When Christ returns with his angels, and resurrects his saints, then the kingdom will be established with Christ the King, the saints his associate rulers, the heathen his subjects, the earth his territory, and Jerusalem and Mount Zion the capital city.

I shall conclude this argument by giving plain and incontrovertible assertions and explanations by the prophet Daniel, the Lord Jesus, and the apostle Paul, which are maintained by history, and by the actual example of our Lord, that prove conclusively that Christ's kingdom was not established on the day of Pentecost, and that the righteous cannot be in it in this life.—F. M. Howell.

Table Lesson.

ROMANS v. 1.

"Therefore, being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

This contains a number of thoughts which surely must be a comfort to those who are in the faith; for we find by refering to Eph. iv 5, Paul talking about the one Lord, one faith and baptism, so there must be only one faith and that must be the faith which was delivered unto the saints and for which they were to earnestly contend.

In Phil. i. 27, Paul says he wishes to hear of their conversation being as becomes the gospel of Christ and that they may stand fast in one spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel. "Know ye, therefore, that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham. And the Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed. So then, they which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham, for ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus, for as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ, and if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise."

We see from the foregoing that by having the faith of the gospel which was preached unto Abraham that we are Christ's and fellow-heirs to the promises made to Abraham and that we are justified by faith. "There is, therefore, now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit."

Psalms xxxii. 1, 2. "Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered.

"Blessed is the man unto whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no guile."

"He that trusteth in the Lord, mercy shall compass him about."

"The righteousness of God without the law is manifested, being witnessed by the law and the prophets; even the righteousness of God which is by faith of Jesus Christ unto all and upon all them that believe, being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus."

Titus iii. 7, "That being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life."

Isaiah xxvi. 3, 4. "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee; because he trusteth in thee.

"Trust ye in the Lord forever, for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength."

Job xxii. 21. "Acquaint now thyself with him, and be at peace; thereby good shall come unto thee."

Psalms xxix. 11. "The Lord will give strength unto his people; the Lord will bless his people with peace."

Psalms xxxvii. 37. "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace."

Col. iii. 15. "Let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body, and be ye thankful. Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord, and whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him, knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance; for ye serve the Lord Jesus."

"The Lord bless thee, and keep thee; the Lord make his face to shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee; the Lord lift up his countenance unto thee, and give thee peace."

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 26.

Auntie Willard said "the loss to her was not to be named with the sorrow of heart which she felt at the thought that their sin had made it necessary that these stripes be laid upon them by the hand of their kind, heavenly Father, and with earnest words did she confess this to her family as they met in their evening service."

It seemed "so surprising to her that the Family Altar, that had been so sacred to them for so many years, had now been set aside for a mere whim, and that they had dared rush out without its fostering care." "It was no wonder" she said, "that they had met with disaster."

She went to bed feeling chastened and humble and on rising in the morning and reading in the Scriptures for sometime before going down stairs, as was her usual custom these words seemed given to her for her especial comfort—"Be careful for nothing but in everything by prayer and thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God, and the peace of God that passeth understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus." Phil. iv. 6, 7.

This, she repeated to her husband as she met him below, feeling that it was equally for him—and also to her family, that they might see in the Word of God "a very present help in trouble" and that when "we confess and forsake our sins" we may find mercy.

It was now Friday, and the morning being pleasant, Brother Willard proposed that they drive over to Moorestown and meet with the brethren and sisters there. They were cordially met and found Brother Burbank giving a course of lectures in the Town Hall. Rain prevented their return home in the afternoon, and Brother Reimer—the German tract Brother—coming down from the city on Saturday, would not hear to their leaving until Sunday P. M.

"Greatly refreshed with their friends at morning prayer and also in prayer in conference, in the lectures and in preaching at the Hall, they returned to Holly Farm at dusk, and were met at the gate by their son Rowland, with the words "Good news for you! Your coupons are found!"

They had been dropped at the lamp post in Camden, just where you cross the Delaware at the Vine St. Ferry. An honest farmer and oysterman of South Jersey had found them, had reported to the conductor of a freight train and he to Rowland, so with generous gifts to these men they were again put in possession of ten hundred dollars worth of coupons, with a life-long lesson of far more worth than the money.

To the great majority of those who have a family altar in their home, it would have seemed a small matter to have neglected bowing there, just once, but not so did it seem to Auntie Willard. She wanted God to go with her every day and all the time, to be guided by his eye, to have him for her "shield and buckler." The fire was ever to be burning upon her altar, it was never to go out.

She had noted that the offerings made by the Israelites were made day by day, continually, in the morning and in the evening, and that we also are commanded to "pray without ceasing" and "in everything to give thanks," and she therefore feared to disobey. She had seen that "IF" in Deuteronomy xi. 13, that so many of us forget—"If ye shall hearken unto my commandments, which I command you this day, to love the Lord your God, and to serve him with all your heart and all your soul. That I will give you the rain of your land in his due season, the first rain and the latter rain that thou mayst gather in thy corn, thy wine and thy oil, and I will send grass in fields for thy cattle, that thou mayest eat and be full," and distinctly understood that we are dependent upon the Lord for daily bread and must ask for it day by day as Jesus bade us. For in bidding us ask daily for our food, it is plainly implied by our Lord, that we are to ask, that God graciously give the rain and the sunshine without which no food could be produced.

The other happened on this wise. A brother in the faith had tarried with them over night, and as they came from the breakfast-table into the sitting-room to wait upon the Lord in prayer, he said, "We have just ten minutes before I must leave to be in time to catch the train." "The hymn-books and testaments were handed around, the hymn—Hail thou long long expected Jesus, was sung, the chapter 1 John i. was read in course, then each one, four in number, offered an earnest prayer and closed with the kingdom prayer, repeated in concert, and when they rose from their knees, the time had just expired!

Who can neglect to seek the Lord when it takes so little time as this?

Married

A quiet wedding took place at Cleveland, Ohio, February 16, when Brother L. E. Conner united in marriage Sister Elizabeth Bradshaw, (widow of the late Brother L. C. Bradshaw,) to Brother Benjamin Blackburn, of Sharon, Pa., the romance which resulted at Pasadena' Cal.

On January 15th, Brother Blackburn made the good confession of faith, and was immersed by Brother Conner.

The happy couple will reside in Cleveland. Their many friends wish them much happiness in their wedded life.

Editor Restitution:

Please find money order to apply on my subscription, as I see my time has expired. THE RESTITUTION is all the preacher we have in this vicinity of our faith, and myself and family are the only ones of like precious faith that live near here. We are watching that the day may not overtake us as a thief in the night.

Your Brother in hope,
HUGH MONTGOMERY.

He that wishes to do good is always in partnership with opportunity.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the Kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Brethren and Fellowship.

These texts have been referred to as proof that it is proper to address all men as brethren. See Gen. xix. 7; Acts xxii. 1.

It can be readily seen that both Lot and Paul did not use the words in the sense that they, (those whom they were addressing) were brethren in the Spirit, but that they were fellow-citizens, or fellow-countrymen. The word is still used in the same sense by foreigners.

Paul was certainly not in the habit of jumbling the classes together and addressing believers and unbelievers, saints and sinners as brethren.

Jesus in Matt. xii. 48 50, says, "Who are my brethren? and he stretched forth his hand toward his disciples and said, Behold my mother and my brethren; for whosoever shall do the will of my Father which is in heaven, the same is my brother."

This teaches it is they who do the will of our Heavenly Father that were Paul's brethren and our brethren, if we walk in the Spirit. Inasmuch as it is impossible to please God without faith, it is necessary to believe in the things promised. "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Heb. xi. 1. Then they who have believed in the promises, and have obeyed the apostles' form of doctrine are our brethren and only such should be addressed as brethren.

The same rule should apply in regard to fellowship. Only those who are of the household of faith should be fellowshipped. No others have a right to partake of the emblems which show forth the Lord's death. It is a serious matter to partake of these emblems unworthily, those who do so are guilty of the body and blood of the Lord.

Editor Restitution:

Last year Mrs. Clark McClelland had THE RESTITUTION sent to me for awhile. I had never seen it before. We are neighbors, and have had several talks about the faith. She explained things that I had never heard before. I had joined the Baptist Church when about fifteen years old, and always thought their faith was right. At the present time I am fully convinced they are wrong in many ways. I like your paper very much, and am sure it will show us the way more perfectly. I am most thankful it was sent to me, for I sincerely want to find out God's plan of salvation, and hope to live a true Christian life, so I can be counted worthy to be one of the Bride class when Christ shall come.

Your paper has such good pieces in it, that it makes me want to send it to every one I know, but my means are limited and I cannot do so, but I will try and do what I can for Christ.

I love Mrs. McClelland, for she is a sincere Christian, and is not ashamed to speak a word for Christ, and does all she can with papers and tracts. She has poor health. I wish I knew as much of the Bible as she does.

Please send THE RESTITUTION to my sister, whose address I give, and to me also.

Yours sincerely,
MRS. W. E. KNIGHT.

"Casting all your care upon him, for he careth for you," is the counsel which the Bible gives to the good man in respect to the God in whom he trusts. God is not indifferent to those who love him, but does care for them, and will make all things work together for their good. They should always think of him as an ever-present friend, and never distrust either his goodness or his power.

God's Word is a two-edged sword, and is often the direct voice of God to one's own heart. Psalm xci. 13, "He shall tread upon the serpent," shows the risk Satan ran when he misquoted verses 11 and 12, to tempt Jesus, well knowing that his own doom was pronounced in the same Psalm. Give thanks to God, he was completely foiled.

We thank you for the favor.

THE last word from Sister Wince is that they think Brother Wince is improving, but he has lost much flesh, and is a very sick man. He hope to have a favorable report again in a few days.

LATER—Before going to press word comes that Brother Wince is still very sick with pneumonia, requiring care both day and night, and Sister Wince herself is nearly sick in bed. May the kind Father in heaven watch over the lives of these his servants, and again restore them to health and vigor, according to his will.

A card from Mrs. J. Phetteplace of Sherburne, N. Y., states that her mother, Sister R. A. Neff, one of our old subscribers, died of pneumonia on February 21st. We have no further particulars.

Word comes that Brother H. F. Cordill, of South Bend, Indiana, is very sick, with pneumonia, and his sons have been sent for, as there is little hope of his recovery.

One's Own Choice.

God created the universe, making a fit abode for living creatures. He created living creatures, each several one fitted to the sphere as designed by the Creator. Animals for the land, birds for the air, fishes for the sea.

A head was necessary, and man was made and endowed with faculties that would enable him to take charge of the creation God had made, and to rule over the creatures he had made to live.

Man was given a test. He was to show his fitness for the position When the trial came he proved unworthy of the confidence of his Creator. Given a command, he failed to obey, but yielded to the solicitation of the deceiver.

What did God want? It is plain to be seen that he who would be possessed of such a character—such high and noble a character—that he would not be moved by the designs of the enemy of God to do contrary to his will; but would have such love and respect that he would ever do that which was pleasing in God's sight.

The failure of the first man in no way changed the original design of God. If a manufacturer has a work to be performed, and engages a mechanic to do that work, he tries him to test his ability to do what he requires. Should the mechanic fail to "make good," the plan is not altered to suit him, but another artizan is called to the position, and so on, till one is found who can fill the requirements. Just so in the working out of the Great Designer's plan, when the first man failed, an opportunity was given for another to step in and fill out the requirements.

Following the history we learn that no man was able to develop a character such as was needful, until Jesus of Nazareth appeared, and his childhood, youth and manhood proved him worthy to undertake the task of gathering together a people and fitting them into the various positions necessary for the operation of the machinery, as designed by the Master Mechanic—the Founder and Creator.

Now the question is, What does God want done? What did he want done in the beginning after he had made the various living creatures? It is plain to be seen that as the trees were to yield their fruit in season, so were the animals, the birds and the fishes to bring forth abundantly, multiply and fill the earth. Had some tree failed to yield fruit, or had some creature rebelled or neglected to perform the function for which it was designed, would this have affected God's plan, and made it inoperative? Certainly not. The one could be burned, the other die and return whence it came, and the wheels of the great factory of the ages roll on and on.

Now comes the man—head of all the creatures who had life. He is given reasoning powers in high degree, and asked to so exercise them that he will show fitness to rule and order the created things about him. Dominion was his function. He was given a help-meet, with like admonition with the beasts, to multiply and fill the earth with his kind. Eden was fashioned for his home.

A command was given, showing the Supreme Head must be recognized and obeyed. A penalty—same as to rebellious or neglectful animal, or a fruitless tree—forfeiture of life—was imposed.

Having the original plan before us, and the story of man's disobedience and fall, we look to see if God's design is to be thwarted. No. The failure of a tree, the neglect of an animal, even the disobedience of the man, can not nullify the wishes of Jehovah. He pronounces the sentence remanding the recreant pair back to the ground from whence they came, and says to the old serpent who wrought the deception, "Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life. And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel."

Here is born a hope. Some time the woman's seed shall develop a personage who will bruise the head of the serpent, and be victorious over the enemy of God.

Following the history on we learn how Jesus accomplishes this. How his sinless life was lived in full obedience to the Father's will, and how finally by the sacrifice of this life a way was opened by which man might become fitted to fill the functions originally designed by the Creator. No other way is given mankind by which salvation may be obtained, than by the name of Jesus. Jesus, the one anointed of God, having shown himself equal to the task of securing a race of beings who will fill in the design of the Creator, is given the position which Adam forfeited.

In setting about this enterprise, he follows out the original pattern given. God set before Adam life, and surrounded him with an Eden showing the beauty and glory of Paradise. God set before Adam death, and gave him to see the blackness and darkness of oblivion. So now, under the operation of the task undertaken by Jesus Christ, before man is set life and death. Adam was left to make a free choice. So today does Jesus ask us to choose. Adam was not forced to take life for his choice—nor death. He was left to develop a character as he would. We are given a like privilege. All the glories and delights of the kingdom that our minds can grasp are protrayed, and then the Prophet Isaiah tells us "Since the beginning of the world men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye seen, O God, beside thee, what he hath prepared for him that waiteth for him," and Paul tells the Corinthian brethren that "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

On the other hand, as Adam was given to see the darkness of the grave—death, so are we asked to look into the silence and gloom of eternal banishment from all the delights of a world redeemed and restored to its Edenic loveliness and beauty.

We are asked to make choice of light or dark—life or death—the glories and happiness of an everlasting abode in the kingdom of God, or the forgetfulness of the charnal house of the dead. There is no compulsion either way. A man's free will has full sway. He accepts or rejects.

What is your choice?

The Bereans Column.

"And he said unto Jesus, Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom. And Jesus said unto him, Verily, I say unto thee, today shalt thou be with me in paradise." Luke xxiii. 42, 43.

Almost the entire Christian world believe that the spirit of Christ and the spirit of the thief went to a place called paradise, supposedly in heaven.

This is the first time paradise is mentioned in the Bible, and there are but two other places where it is found, viz. 2 Cor. xii. 4, and Rev. ii. 7, referring in both places to a location in the new earth.

Paradise is a word of Persian origin, meaning "A garden of delights," or, as the dictionary tells us "a place of bliss," or "Eden."

In the Greek Version of the Old Testament the word is used to translate the locality called the "Garden of Eden." How could Christ be in paradise the same day he was crucified, when after his resurrection he said to Mary, "Touch me not for I have not yet ascended to my Father." John xx. 17.

I believe the thief understood that Christ was coming again to establish a kingdom under the whole heaven, Dan. vii. 14, 18, 27, and not above the heavens, or in heaven. Would not the thief's prayer have been something like this had he believed in a sky kingdom? "Lord, remember my soul when it leaves my body and receive it into heaven," but instead he prayed, "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom," or, as some manuscripts read, "Lord, remember me in the day of thy coming." This harmonizes perfectly with the Bible doctrine that "the dead know not anything," Eccl. ix. 5, and that those who sleep in Jesus will be raised to immortality at Christ's second coming, when he establishes his kingdom upon earth. 1 Thess. iv. 16; Luke i. 33.

Punctuation marks are no part of inspiration. "The Greek Scriptures were originally written in solid blocks of capital letters, without division into sentences, or stops to mark clauses of sentences and without even division into words." The stops, or punctuation marks, are of comparatively recent origin, of about the tenth century. The punctuation would therefore conform to the theology of the person who made the addition.

To show that today and this day are often used merely to express present time, we might quote thirty-five instances from the single book of Deuteronomy. For example let us quote from Deut. xxx. 17-18. "But if thine heart turn away and worship other gods and serve them, I denounce unto you this day, that ye shall surely perish." Suppose we take the same liberty with this verse, that the translators have taken with the verse found in Luke xxiii. 43, and remove the comma from the proper side of the words, this day, it will then read: "I denounce unto that, this day, ye shall surely perish. This shifting of the comma makes a shameful perversion of the sense of this verse, for they were not to perish the day this language was spoken, but at a future period of their apostacy.

This is the way our text has been perverted, so that Christ is made to promise the thief something entirely opposed to all other Bible teaching and is, therefore, false.

ANNA L. ADAMS.

Dear Bereans:

Kindness being one of the characteristics of God's people (Col. iii. 12; 2 Peter i. 7,) we should give head to the opportunities that come our way every day to make others happy by some kindly act.

This is truly a busy world for industrious people, and sometimes in the rush we think we hav'nt time given to be kind. We should'nt wait, because "now is the accepted time," (2 Cor. vi. 2.

God shows his kindness to us by being so ready to forgive our many wrong-doings, and after true repentance on our part, he showers his richest blessings upon us.

If we earnestly love God and wish to do his will we must be kind to one another. To be kind our hearts must be filled with love (1 Cor. xiii. 4) "Be ye kind to one another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you," (Eph. iv. 32.) Christ said, "as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise," (Luke vi. 31.

The fruit of a true Christian spirit will be manifest in our every day life, in our kindly actions toward one another.

Jesus in the parable of the good Samaritan teaches us to be kind and minister to those in trouble or affliction. Christ said "Love your enemies" (Luke vi. 27.) It is only when our hearts are filled with God's love that we can be kind to the unthankful and the evil, (Luke vi. 35.)

RUTH VAN ANTWERP.

Dear Bereans:

A short time ago we had as a subject for our lesson, "What is our Hope?"

In 1 Peter iii. 15, we are told to "sanctify the Lord God in our hearts; and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear."

I am sorry to say that there are not many who are of an inquiring mind about the things pertaining to the kingdom of God, but when one is interested enough to ask us, What is your Hope?" we should be well enough versed in God's Word to answer intelligently.

In Rom. viii. 24, 25, we are told that "we are saved by hope; but hope that is seen is not hope; for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for? But if we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it."

We see, then, that hope is a compound of desire, expection, patience, and joy. "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Heb. xi. 1. It is plain by this that our hope must be right or our faith will be wrong. How important it is for us to have faith when we are told that "without faith it is impossible to please God." Let us then hope for such things as God in his Word has promised.

Our hope is called "good," as is shown in 2 Thess. ii. 16. "Now our Lord Jesus Christ himself, and God, even our Father, which hath loved us, and hath given us everlasting consolation and 'good' hope through grace."

It is also a "lively" hope. "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a 'lively' hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead." 1 Pet. i. 3. This verse would indicate that their hope was dead while Christ was in the grave.

Our hope should also inspire us with courage. "And hope also maketh not ashamed: because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us." Rom. v. 15.

Let us see what Paul says in his Hebrew letter. "Wherein God, willing more abundantly to shew unto the heirs of promise, the immutability of his counsel, confirmed it by an oath: that by two immutable things, in which it was impossible for God to lie, we might have a strong consolation, who have fled for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us: which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and stedfast, and which entereth into that within the veil." Heb. vi. 17-19.

Our hope, then, you see, should be good, a lively one, a courageous one, and, moreover, our hope should be sure. If your hope is built on man made theories instead of God's holy Word, it is very sure not to possess the above qualities. "For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we by patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope." Rom. xv. 4.

So we see that our hope should be built on nothing but God's Word. Let us examine our hope to find if it agrees in all points with the Scriptural hope. The Bible says that there is only one hope. So if our hope is wrong, we have not the "one hope."

"For if in this life only we have hope in Christ we are of all men most miserable. But now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept." 1 Cor. xv. 19. So, dear Bereans, it is evident that our hope is centered in Christ and the resurrection. Hear what Paul has to say about his hope. "But this I confess unto thee, that after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and the prophets, and have hope toward God which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust." Acts xxiv. 14. Again, the 26th chapter we read that Paul was judged "for the hope of the promises made of God unto our fathers. For why should it be thought a thing incredible with you that God should raise the dead?" How plain it is that Paul's hope was centered in the resurrection.

In the 16th Psalm, David says, "Wherefore my heart is glad and my glory rejoiceth, my flesh also shall rest in hope, for thou wilt not leave my soul in hell (grave,) neither wilt thou suffer thy Holy One to see corruption."

Christ's hope was in the resurrection. Can we have a better hope? Can we not put our trust in God as did Christ, and say, "My flesh also shall rest in hope?" This is my hope, believing that Christ is our life and that when he appears in glory we may appear with him.

Let us all believe the gospel of the kingdom of God; repent of our sins; be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ and lead a holy life that we may have purified our bodies and formed a character worthy of the incorruptible nature which is a reward to those that are overcomers and will be given when Christ comes.

Sunday School Lesson.

MARCH 13, 1910.

Two Mighty Works. Matthew viii. 28-34.

Golden Text—"What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the waves obey him." Matt. viii. 27.

Between the lesson of last Sunday and this, according to Matthew, are incidents that should not pass without notice. Jesus was evidently hampered by the multitudes of people, and gave order to go to the other side of the sea, but before starting a certain Scribe came to Jesus declaring he would follow him wherever he went. The Scribes were a well-to-do, influential class of people. Jesus explained to him that foxes had holes for their abiding places, and birds had nests, but that "the Son of Man had not where to lay his head."

This shows that Jesus did not want any man to decide to follow him without duly counting the cost. He wished this man to acquaint himself with all that following him meant. Deciding to enter the service of Jesus under excitement at a so-called "revival," when the excitement runs high, and the sensitive nature has been wrought upon by the strenuous efforts of the speaker to color up the picture he is painting with the glories of his imagination, and giving the individual no time to carefully and candidly count the cost, is little short of criminal. Many persons "make the start" under such circumstances, who have no conception of what such a service will call for. They soon fall by the way, and the name of Jesus Christ is thus traduced.

Another one asked for time to go and bury his father. He was representative of a class who put off known duty under some pretext or other, making excuses that to many look like real good reasons. Jesus would have the first service. God is first. There is nothing that overbalances his demands. How few even among his professed followers of today appear to have learned this lesson. So often plans are made for social enjoyment and pleasures of the day, that interfere with the services of God's house. No apparent effort is made to "keep your appointment" with God and Jesus Christ. Some let their work interfere with Church duties, as if all such could not wait, and let God be served first of all. Some spend their dollars, their half dollars, their quarter-dollars, and even their ten-cent pieces on self, and God's cause in the Church and Sunday School can get along the best it can on a nickel or a penny.

When Jesus said to this man "Follow me; let the dead bury their dead; but go thou and preach the kingdom of God," he simply meant to teach that the service of God was urgent, would brook no delay. Was the leading, the paramount object in the disciple's life, and that nothing at all—no filial duty, no domestic call, no social function, no pleasure of this life, no detail of business, must come in the way of our doing full service in his cause.

There is enough in these two incidents to occupy the whole Sunday School hour, but we must look at the lesson proper.

The time of this lesson is perhaps two months after the Sermon on the Mount, and the place is the east shore of the sea of Galilee, in the region of the Gadarenes.

Jesus and his disciples entered a ship to cross the sea, and it appears that Jesus being weary, fell asleep. The sea of Galilee is so situated that sudden and violent storms are frequent, and during the passage one of these storms arose, and though the disciples were accustomed to these waters, and the management of such vessels, the extreme violence of this storm made them fearful and afraid, but Jesus slept on undisturbed. Losing faith in their ability to weather the storm, they turn to Jesus and say "Save, Lord; we perish." Mark in writing of the event says "Master, carest thou not that we perish?"

What did Jesus do first?

Should the disciples have shown more confidence and faith in God than to be afraid?

After upbraiding his disciples for their lack of faith, what did Jesus do next?

What was the result?

What does this show about the power Jesus had?

If you had been there, would this have shown you that you could rely upon Jesus in any and every circumstances?

What effect did this have on the men on the boat?

God is not only the Creator, but also the Governor of the Universe, and can use his laws for the carrying out of his purposes. God's laws are not broken in performing a miracle. We may understand them always, they may appear "contrary to nature," but we should have confidence in our Heavenly Father, knowing he can use what he has created, and avert disaster as he wills.

With Jesus it seems to be perfectly in accord with nature that the violence of the winds could be abated, and he acts on this at once, and they are controlled. There was a necessity for this. God's plan was to carry out a certain work in the salvation of men through Jesus, and these disciples who were in this boat. The prosecution of this plan depended on their safety. We see but a little in advance of where we are. The future is largely hid from us, but God has the whole of the life of mankind in his view, and does what is wise and good. If we could only realize this more fully, and learn to trust implicitly in him, confident that we serve an All-Powerful King, we would come much nearer being in accord with him. Hope lies not in the absence of danger, but in the presence of Christ.

Landing on the other shore, whom do they meet?

Why were such persons as these allowed to go about?

Were there any asylums?

Were these men like insane persons of our day?

Why did they live among tombs?

What do we learn from Mark v. 1-5 about one of these men so possessed or diseased?

Would such a person make people afraid to pass that way?

What did these crazy men do when they saw Jesus?

Did they recognize Jesus as one opposed to the influences that dominated them?

Did they have faith that Jesus had the ability to overpower the evil spirits that held them?

Would this require any more power from Jesus than to still the wind and waves of the sea?

What did the demons ask of Jesus?

Did Jesus allow them to have their way and go into the swine?

What became of the herd of swine?

What did the men who tended the swine do?

What happened when they told it in the city?

What did the people see when they came out where Jesus was?

What does Mark v. 15 say about the persons who had been possessed of demons?

Why did they want Jesus to go away from there?

What about swine, were Israelites allowed to eat them?

Why not?

Did their destruction interfere with the business of these people?

Do persons who are engaged in selling liquors, or bad books, or in any sort of dishonest business, want Jesus around?

What did Jesus have one of these cured men do? Mark v. 19.

The power of Jesus was shown in the good accomplished, in the fruit he was able to produce. Likewise, the power we as his followers have, is made manifest by what we are able to do in his service—what fruits comes from our efforts.

Are we able to report progress, as we go on from year to year, month to month, week to week, day to day? or are we slipping back, and letting the evil surmount the good. We will each soon be called on to render an account.

What will yours be?

The Wandering Evangelist Again.

Dear Brethren:

The State of Iowa treated me with the utmost kindness and sent me to Arizona to escape the rigor of that severe climate. I am ready to engage in evangelistic work again either in Arizona or any other place. In making calls, please inform me if your locality can be reached without crossing very great altitudes, also the probability of assisting in railroad expense. Address, in care of Mrs. Grace Lawrence, Buckeye, Arizona.

Sunday School Lesson.

March 13, 1910.

Two Mighty Works. Matthew viii. 23-34.

Golden Text—"What manner of man is this, that even the winds and the waves obey him." Matt. viii. 27.

Between the lesson of last Sunday and this, according to Matthew, are incidents that should not pass without notice. Jesus was evidently hampered by the multitudes of people, and gave order to go to the other side of the sea, but before starting a certain Scribe came to Jesus declaring he would follow him wherever he went. The Scribes were a well-to-do, influential class of people. Jesus explained to him that foxes had holes for their abiding places, and birds had nests, but that "the Son of Man had not where to lay his head."

This shows that Jesus did not want any man to decide to follow him without duly counting the cost. He wished this man to acquaint himself with all that following him meant. Deciding to enter the service of Jesus under excitement at a so-called "revival," when the excitement runs high, and the sensitive nature has been wrought upon by the strenuous efforts of the speaker to color up the picture he is painting with the glories of his imagination, and giving the individual no time to carefully and candidly count the cost, is little short of criminal. Many persons "make the start" under such circumstances, who have no conception of what such a service will call for. They soon fall by the way, and the name of Jesus Christ is thus traduced.

Another one asked for time to go and bury his father. He was representative of a class who put off known duty under some pretext or other, making excuses that to many look like real good reasons. Jesus would have the first service. God is first. There is nothing that overbalances his demands. How few even among his professed followers of today appear to have learned this lesson. So often plans are made for social enjoyment and pleasures of the day, that interfere with the services of God's house. No apparent effort is made to "keep your appointment" with God and Jesus Christ. Some let their work interfere with Church duties, as if all such could not wait, and let God be served first of all. Some spend their dollars, their half dollars, their quarter dollars, and even their ten-cent pieces on self, and God's cause in the Church and Sunday School can get along the best it can on a nickel or a penny.

When Jesus said to this man "Follow me; let the dead bury their dead; but go thou and preach the kingdom of God," he simply meant to teach that the service of God was urgent, would brook no delay. Was the leading, the paramount object in the disciple's life, and that nothing at all—no filial duty, no domestic call, no social function, no pleasure of this life, no detail of business, must come in the way of our doing full service in his cause.

There is enough in these two incidents to occupy the whole Sunday School hour, but we must look at the lesson proper.

The time of this lesson is perhaps two months after the Sermon on the Mount, and the place is the east shore of the sea of Galilee, in the region of the Gadarenes.

Jesus and his disciples entered a ship to cross the sea, and it appears that Jesus being weary, fell asleep. The sea of Galilee is so situated that sudden and violent storms are frequent, and during the passage one of these storms arose, and though the disciples were accustomed to these waters, and the management of such vessels, the extreme violence of this storm made them fearful and afraid, but Jesus slept on undisturbed. Losing faith in their ability to weather the storm, they turn to Jesus and say "Save, Lord; we perish." Mark in writing of the event says "Master, carest thou not that we perish?"

What did Jesus do first?

Should the disciples have shown more confidence and faith in God than to be afraid?

After upbraiding his disciples for their lack of faith, what did Jesus do next?

What was the result?

What does this show about the power Jesus had?

If you had been there, would this have shown you that you could rely upon Jesus in any and every circumstances?

What effect did this have on the men on the boat?

God is not only the Creator, but also the Governor of the Universe, and can use his laws for the carrying out of his purposes. God's laws are not broken in performing a miracle. We may understand them always, they may appear "contrary to nature," but we should have confidence in our Heavenly Father, knowing he can use what he has created, and avert disaster as he wills.

With Jesus it seems to be perfectly in accord with nature that the violence of the winds could be abated, and he acts on this at once, and they are controlled. There was a necessity for this. God's plan was to carry out a certain work in the salvation of men through Jesus, and these disciples who were in this boat. The prosecution of this plan depended on their safety. We see but a little in advance of where we are. The future is largely hid from us, but God has the whole of the life of mankind in his view, and does what is wise and good. If we could only realize this more fully, and learn to trust implicitly in him, confident that we serve an All-Powerful King, we would come much nearer being in accord with him. Hope lies not in the absence of danger, but in the presence of Christ.

Landing on the other shore, whom do they meet?

Why were such persons as these allowed to go about?

Were there any asylums?

Were these men like insane persons of our day?

Why did they live among tombs?

What do we learn from Mark v. 1-5 about one of these men so possessed or diseased?

Would such a person make people afraid to pass that way?

What did these crazy men do when they saw Jesus?

Did they recognize Jesus as one opposed to the influences that dominated them?

Did they have faith that Jesus had the ability to overpower the evil spirits that held them?

Would this require any more power from Jesus than to still the wind and waves of the sea?

What did the demons ask of Jesus?

Did Jesus allow them to have their way and go into the swine?

What became of the herd of swine?

What did the men who tended the swine do?

What happened when they told it in the city?

What did the people see when they came out where Jesus was?

What does Mark v. 15 say about the persons who had been possessed of demons?

Why did they want Jesus to go away from there?

What about swine, were Israelites allowed to eat them?

Why not?

Did their destruction interfere with the business of these people?

Do persons who are engaged in selling liquors, or bad books, or in any sort of dishonest business, want Jesus around?

What did Jesus have one of these cured men do? Mark v. 19.

The power of Jesus was shown in the good accomplished, in the fruit he was able to produce. Likewise, the power we as his followers have, is made manifest by what we are able to do in his service—what fruits comes from our efforts.

The Yellowtown Debate. No. 2.

When Jesus and his disciples were near to Jerusalem, they thought that the kingdom of God should immediately appear, so to correct their mistaken idea, Jesus spoke a parable, and compared himself to a nobleman taking a journey into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return; and he left his house in the possession of servants, and told them to occupy till he returned. "And it [illegible] that when he was returned, having received the kingdom, then he commanded these servants to be called unto him, etc." Luke xix 11-15; Mark xiii 34.

Now this house that Jesus left in possession of his servants, is the house that God told David that his Seed according to the flesh should build for his name (2 Sam vii 13), and that Paul told Timothy was "the Church of the living God." 1 Tim iii 15. This house left in possession of Christ's servants is not a completed building, but is the preparatory state of the material, consisting of human beings being tried and made ready, which probationary state of the material is called the Church, and when it is all ready, Christ will return and gather it together and set it up, and it will then be the established kingdom, which, like the mustard seed, will be very small at first, but will grow till it fills the earth. In a certain case the Church is the kingdom in its embryo state, in the period of the development and preparation of the material for the various parts of this house, which, like the typical temple that Solomon built, when all is ready, will be nicely fitted together without any further use of preparatory tools. After the people who constitute the constituent parts of this house have all been tried and chosen from among the Gentiles for the Lord's name, for his bride, then he will return and gather them together and set up his kingdom.

St. James said, "Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles to take out of them a people for his name. And to this agree the words of prophets; as it is written, After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up." Acts xv 14-16.

Now this tabernacle of David that is fallen down, and that Jesus is to return and set up, is the kingdom of Israel, the throne of David, that God by his prophet Ezekiel said that he would overturn, and it should be no more, "until he comes whose right it is, and I will give to him." xxii 27. Do as Near Right as You Can.

The world stret—es widely before you
A field for your muscle and brain,
And though clouds may often float o'er you
And often come tempest and rain,
Be ready to storms which o'ertake you—
Go forward through all like a man—
And God on the will never forsake you
If you do as near right as you can.

Remember He will to do rightly,
In need will the evil confound,
Live daily by conscience, that lightly
Your sleep may be peaceful and sound.
In contests of right never waver
Let honesty shape every plan,
And he will on Paradise favor,
If you do as near right as you can

Though lies darkest combat may utter,
And strive with their falsest to hurt
To injure your fame, never mutter,
But justly and honestly act;
And ask of Him Ruler in Heaven
To save you for name's sake alone,
And all that you need will be given,
If you do as near right as you can

The Apostles' Doctrine.

The historian Luke writes Acts ii 41, 42. Then they that gladly received the Word were baptized; and the same day there were added unto them about three thousand souls or persons. And they continued steadfastly in the Apostles' doctrine and fellowship and breaking of bread and in prayer.

It is our object to show that the apostles' doctrine is a peculiar doctrine and not taught by the popular churches of our day. Also that it is so plainly written that all should understand it. It is the incorruptible Word by which we are begotten. It [illegible] forever. It is the Word which by the gospel is preached unto you. To place it before our readers we shall confine ourselves mainly to the book called the Acts which contains the doctrine preached by those apostles mentioned in this book. The first inspired speaker in this history is the Apostle Peter. The occasion was the day of Pentecost. The words spoken were directed by the power of the Holy Spirit. We ought therefore to give heed to what is taught. Jesus had arisen from the grave and had been received into heaven and sent the Comforter which he had promised. Peter for the first time preached the death and the resurrection of the Messiah or the Christ. It is to be remembered that the Jews maintained that Jesus the son of Mary was not the one promised by the prophets because of his death. Their Christ could not die but when he came he would set up the kingdom and begin to reign The suffering Messiah made no appeal to an orthodox Jew. Jesus taught John xii 32, 33, 34. And I, if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto me. This he said, signifying what death he should die. The people answered him, We have heard out of the law that Christ abideth forever; and how sayest thou, The Son of Man must be lifted up? Who is this Son of Man? So we note that the apostle first preached the death of Christ and his resurrection and the object of his resurrection. While Jesus preached and sent his apostles out to preach, they were to preach the gospel of the kingdom of God. When the Holy Spirit came upon them they were to preach his death and resurrection.

In Acts ii. we hear these words, Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried and his sepulchre is with us unto this day. Therefore being a prophet and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his (David's) throne. The Jew contended that this promise was fulfilled in David. Peter showed them that David was dead and could not occupy the throne of the Lord. He then showed us that David was a prophet and spoke of the oath that Jehovah had made to him concerning his seed according to the flesh. They could not say that David's flesh could not see corruption. Further David had not ascended into the heavens; but he saith himself, The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand until I make thy foes thy footstool. This Scripture could not allude to David, therefore it must allude to the Christ. He closed his argument with, Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly that God hath made that same Jesus whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ. The Jew must accept Jesus, the Son of God and Mary, as the Christ. There was nothing that humbled the Jew so much as to accept the thought that Mary's son was the Christ, the Anointed of God. This is the spirit of the Jew today. Mention Jesus to him and it will bring a frown. The Pentecost Jews were compelled to believe in Jesus of Nazareth. Can any good thing come of Nazareth? Was the thought of the Jew. In believing this the Jew gave up all. We notice in this sermon that Peter preached that God raised Christ up to sit on David's throne. This was the oath made to David. It was the angel message to Mary that her son should occupy the throne of his father David. Luke i 32, 33.

Again we quote from Acts iii. 13. When Peter, saw it he answered unto the people, ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? (The healing of the lame man), or why look ye so earnestly on us, as though by our power or holiness we had made this man to walk? The God of Abraham and of Isaac and Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Son Jesus; whom ye delivered up and denied him in the presence of Pilate when he was determined to let him go. But ye denied the Holy One and the Just, and desired a murderer to be granted unto you. And killed the Prince of life whom God hath raised from the dead, whereof we are witnesses. And his name through faith in his name hath made this man strong, whom ye see and know. Yea the faith which is by him hath given him this perfect soundness in the presence of you all. And now brethren, I know that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers. But those things, which God before had shown by the mouth of all his holy prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath so fulfilled. Those things spoken by God's holy prophets are the truths, that Christ should suffer and that Jehovah would sent him, Christ on David's throne. When this same apostle was sent to preach to Cornelius we find the same message was delivered to the Gentiles. Acts x 36 The Word which God sent unto the children of Israel preaching peace by Jesus Christ (he is Lord of all) That Word, I say, ye know, which was published throughout all Judea, and began from Galilee after the baptism which John preached. How God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and with power We are witnesses of all things which he did both in the land of the Jews and in Jerusalem, whom they slew and hanged on a tree. Him God raised up the third day and showed him openly. To him give all the prophets witness, that through his name whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins. To believe in him is to believe his witnesses who were prophets and apostles. The oath bound covenant contains the promises made to Abraham that his seed should possess the gates of his enemies and in him all nations shall be blessed. Also the promise made to David that he should not want a son to sit on his throne forever. Gen xxii; Psa cxxxii; Jer xxx 17. When Paul was strengthened he preached Christ in the synagogues, that he is the Son of God. Saul increased the more in strength and confounded the Jews which dwelt at Damascus proving that this is very Christ. This could only be proven by the prophetic Word. See Isa ix 6, 7; xxxii 1, 2; Zech xiv 9.

Paul stood before Agrippa judged for the hope of the promise made of God unto our fathers. Acts xxvi 6. Again Paul says, For this cause therefore have I called for you to see you and to speak with you; because that for the hope of Israel I am bound with this chain. When they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodgings; to whom he expounded and testified the kingdom of God, persuading them concerning Jesus both out of the law of Moses and out of the prophets from morning till evening. Shall we not conclude this article by saying, that the apostles' doctrine relates to the fact that Jesus was raised to sit on David's throne. This is the gospel that saves.

Notes by the Way.

My last "Notes" closed with my arrival at Corvallis, Oregon. The Church of God at this place own a neat church building in which we immediately commenced a series of meetings. We sometimes had the church nearly full, while at other times there were not so many in attendance, but on the whole there was nothing to complain of. Nearly all of my discourses were illustrated by chart, which brought the lessons home to the mind with double force. An interest was manifested, and the Church revived, and encouraged to proceed with the glorious work. As this place is located the State Agricultural College, supported by the State, and also by an appropriation from the United States. There is quite a village of buildings, besides several in process of construction. The college is not confined to agriculture, but also various trades and sciences are taught, together with a general scholastic instruction. A large new armory is now being built, to teach all the young men the art of war. There are 1,200 students now in attendance.

I visited around among the various members, and was hospitably and kindly entertained. I expect to visit Corvallis again, before I leave the Pacific coast. Leaving this place, I started for Scholls Ferry. I was met at Reedville, by Bro. W. P. Fisk, who has just removed there from Renfrow, Oklahoma. I had visited at his house, while I was holding meetings in his neighborhood, and had made a pleasant acquaintance with himself and family, and it surely was a pleasant occurrence to meet them again. I shall long remember my pleasant visit at Renfrow, with the Household of Faith.

Bro. Fisk took me to his home at the Ferry. While there I visited with Bro. Knopp, of Laurel. Many of the RESTITUTION readers will remember his writings in THE RESTITUTION.

The Church of God own a commodious church building at this place. I preached a series of ten discourses, and had satisfactory audiences and attention at this place, and some were impressed with the Word of Truth spoken.

During my visits at the Ferry, I was entertained at the homes of Bro. and Sister Grout, Bro. and Sister Fisk, Bro. and Sister Prosser, and Sister Brooks. I visited several days with Bro. and Sister Prosser, which was a very profitable and agreeable visit. Bro. Prosser is one of our old time able defenders of the "Faith once delivered unto the saints." He is one of those faithful ones, who has not been afflicted with the Last Day blight of liberalism, but fearlessly treads the "old path," and fights manfully for an unperverted gospel. His age and infirmities, prevent him doing much in a public way. I enjoyed my visit at the Ferry, and expect to return again.

I next started for Wenatchee, Washington, to hold meetings there, and attend a Conference at Cashmere. I stopped off, however, at Forest Grove, Ore., for a brief visit Sister Lawrence. On the Tuesday morning I resumed my journey for Portland, Oregon, to get a train for my destination, but I could get no train, because of a great snow slide in the Cascade mountains over which I had to pass. It was an occurrance too dreadful, and too painful to think or write about, how those trains laden with human beings, were in a moment of time engulfed in a great avalanche of snow, rocks and fallen timber, with but small prospect of rescue, as it was impossible to rescue them with snow plows and shovels, on account of the massive rocks and fallen timbers. It makes one almost shudder to see how near I came to being one of those unfortunate ones. If I had [illegible] stopped off at Forest Grove, the grave [illegible] is, that you among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God would have seen my face no more, until the King shall come in his glory. I am so thankful that I am life is still preserved, to still go forward to herald "the gospel of the kingdom of God," for this is my life message. I have no use of distracting bobbins.

My plans were of necessity changed. I resolved to started for North Yakima and Sunnyside, Washington. I had to stay a few days in Portland, before I could get a train for these places because no trains were running because Centralia, through which we had to pass, was under a deluge of some four or five feet of water, which if I am not mistaken, was on account of an overflow from the Columbia river. On Wednesday afternoon, at about four o'clock in the afternoon we started out. As we passed Centralia the water had left the tracks, but it was still like a river between the tracks and the store buildings. Some time past midnight we arrived at Tacoma, Wash., and had to lay over there until 8:30 A. M. Tacoma is built upon terraced mountain sides, and makes a pretty sight. Tacoma is on the west side of the mountains, over which I had to pass to reach my destination. We crossed at a point a short distance to the south of where the great snow slide occurred.

At Tacoma, we soon reached spurs of the Cascades, and passing gradually into a great canyon, with towering mountain peaks on every side, was truly a romantic scene. With a ponderous locomotive in front pulling, and another behind shoving, we began the ascent of the mountains. After a time we reached the summit, and then we could look down into the great basins below, and see the dark green waters of the mountain streams plunging down in mad fury into the chasm below. It was a grand sight to see these green waters white capped with foam, as they dashed upon the rocks

Then again, it was a charming sight as we rode along upon the summit of the mountains, to see them all covered, thick as they could grow with evergreen fir trees, on a white background of snow, glistening like diamond in the glorious sunlight. The chasms were spanned with trestle bridges. Above us towered the majestic mountain peaks, through which we passed by means of tunnels. It took from 8:30 A. M. to 3:30 P. M. from Tacoma until we reached the spurs on the eastern side of the mountains, a distance of 102 miles.

At about five o'clock P. M. we arrived at North Yakima, Wash., on the eastern side of the Cascade mountains. My purpose of visiting North Yakima was to visit my niece Mrs. Turner. It was a surprise to her, she did not know of my coming. I took a hack and drove for her home. I found she was down in the city. I waited until she returned, as she opened the door and saw me, she exclaimed: "O all things!" I had a pleasant visit with herself and husband, who is the General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in that city. He showed me all through the building, and explained the work of the Y. M. C. A. They certainly are doing a great work in the uplifting of young men, in both a physical and moral sense.

On Monday morning I started for Sunnyside, Wash., the home of our much-esteemed Sister Mrs. Clark McClelland. Her husband met me at the depot, and conveyed me to their home, and was heartily greeted by our Sister. Meetings are now in progress in the Christian Church, which I will report later on.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 28.

I have no record as to how the Bible readings in the Holly Farm Home turned out, and but little to guide me as to the Cottage Meetings held in other homes, but that such meetings continued to be held, there is abundant evidence in Auntie Willard's later diaries. She was also a member of the W. C. T. U., and frequently read carefully written papers at their gatherings, took great interest in the "Loyal Legion" boys and girls, and sought in every way in her power to forward the work of temperance, and to reform those who were already slaves to the drink habit.

And besides doing all this, it is astonishing to find how much else she accomplished in the way of giving Bibles to the poor, sending out anti-infidel tracts, distributing papers, little and big and donating religious books from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from England to India and New Zealand. And letters—no one can tell how many letters she wrote on the blessed theme of salvation through faith in, and obedience to a crucified, risen and returning Savior. There are pages and pages filled with the record of out-going letters. Much was also written for publication in the way of articles and tracts. And all the time she was doing these things, she was also helping about the household tasks and entertaining her many friends day after day.

Father and I had reached home in November 1873, and in May 1874, he was married to Miss Sarah C. Logan of Plymouth, Indiana, and as he shortly afterward moved to that place, the letters in my possession, written to him by Brother and Sister Willard, from that time onward are few, in number. I think father had little time for personal correspondence after he became Editor of THE RESTITUTION, in 1877.

A letter from Auntie Willard, dated Aug. 19, 1876,—more than two years after father's marriage, says,

"Dear Brother and Sister Chaplin: "The Word of God read and cherished in my heart daily is still the joy and rejoicing of our hearts. Praise the Lord!

Let me say, dear brother, your letter, received today, seemed to me like the resurrection of an old friend from the dead! I had felt compelled to give you up personally. True, I read your able articles to the household in the paper, but these did not satisfy me. I love and prize the friends of the olden time, and am loth to feel they have lost their interest in us, unworthy as we are. I know time is short with us and especially so to some of us. If you ever meet us both alive in this world you must come this autumn. Today (9th) is my birth day. How fast they come round! But would we have them come more slow? O, my soul leaps forward to the goal! "Come Lord Jesus and come quickly. How lovely he is; the chiefest among ten thousand. Soon we shall be with him and see him as he is.

Thank you over and over, my dear brother, for your heartfelt response. Your letters breath the same old tone as of years past. How we would rejoice to see you both, the good Father direct.

This morning in worship we read the 21st of Revelation, "And the twelve gates were twelve pearls; every several gate was of one pearl; and the street of the city was pure gold, as it were transparent glass? 'Heir of glory that shall be for thee and me.' O how centennial splendors—and they exceed anything I ever witnessed—fade before such glory!

Annie Whiting is still in her mission work. She is now at Ocean Grove, but returns south in the fall if the Lord will. Bro. Henry Taylor is in delicate health. He receives THE RESTITUTION and is pleased with it. He is going to camp meeting I learn, kind regards to friends and believe us ever yours.'—E. S. Willard.

Bro. Willard in letter dated Aug 10, 1876, thought "no apology was needed" from father for not writing; "his calling being peculiar." He was now 82 years of age, and several friends from the city had been down on his birthday and had greatly caressed him, "fraternal greetings had abounded" and "a good time had been had at the throne of grace."

A few days before this, he had received a letter from his only sister, almost 87, that was written "with her usual ability." His two brothers, Joel and John Willard, had died the year before.

Both Bro. and Sister Willard had been up to the Centennial and had spent two or three days there, and he thought "it surpassed all description."

Bro. Mershon of Warsaw had been there several days, and had just left Bro. Willard's the morning he was writing. My uncle Morse P. Chaplin, and my brother Virgil, also went, via the Great Lakes and Springfield. Bro. Willard expressed himself as well pleased with THE RESTITUTION.

Father's friend in Philadelphia was Brother Cyrus L. Thacher, instead of Charles L. Thacher. His wife has died about Aug., 1875, leaving him very lonely.

Tuesday Oct. 31, Auntie Willard, not feeling well retired early. In the morning she "came down at the ringing of the bell, and preparing herself some rolled crackers, took her accustomed seat at the table with her back to the usual entrance to the dining room; sipping from her cup as she waited. Brother Willard soon "came in and took his seat at the end of the table to her left. Hearing the rest of the family approaching Auntie Willard's quick ear caught the sound of more than the usual number of footsteps but supposing Willie, the hired man, had brought home some friend, she did not look around. Just then there was a lull that caused Bro. Willard to look up and exclaim 'w-h-y?' Instantly Auntie Willard turned her head and there almost between herself and husband, stood my father, with beaming eyes and laughing full, the first intimation they had of his being nearer than 700 miles 'O! O! O!' was all Auntie Willard could say, while she sprang to her feet and clasped his hand only to drop it the next moment and embrace his wife, whom the next glance had revealed, heightening the surprise if possible, as they had not expected to see her. But the climax was not reached until after they were seated at the table, when in answer to Auntie Willard's inquiry, "How they had gotten into the house that morning and taken off their things and she not heard them? Annie, the little elf, said, 'O they came last night and I set them a supper, and we talked in suppressed tones and Bro. Chaplin drew his boots before going upstairs and told me not to tell you that his wife had come, and I said I wouldn't tell you either of them were here.'

Thus was the trap set and in the morning sprang beautifully upon the game."

Editor Restitution:

Brother Joseph Williams met with the Bereans of Hillsburg Church last Friday evening, and all present had an enjoyable and profitable time.

Brother Williams held meetings on Saturday evening and twice Sunday. Saturday evening the subject was "In Christ." He pointed to Christ as the great storehouse for all good things which are laid up for those who trust and obey God.

Sunday morning he spoke on Christian duty, as to fellowship and charity, showing God's plans far better than those of men.

Sunday evening the subject was on "Christ the Mediator," showing the necessity for a mediator in order that men might be brought into favor with God. God did not need a mediator, but man did. Man needs to be reconciled to God—not God to man.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MARCH 23, 1910. NUMBER 12.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

AS THERE are five Wednesdays in this month, there will be no issue of March 30. Remember, papers dated March 23, and April 6, are consecutive numbers.

EBENEZER seems to be minus this week— why we do not know. Several have asked about Brother Huggins' book, and we wrote asking him to tell in this issue how it is progressing. Perhaps he will be able to tell by our next issue.

ON March 18, Brother S. J. Lindsay wrote from Avon, Iowa, that meeting at that place would close Sunday. He also said that five were to be baptized that day. We hope some one will write a full account of this meeting. Many want to know about it.

The Revelation of Jesus Christ.

ACT SEVEN. THE JUDGE. REVELATION XXI. AND XXII.

"The Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son," John v. 22 28.

In the last act of this great drama, Jesus Christ is revealed as the Judge, from whose face the earth and the heavens fled away. It would seem that the resurrection and judgment occur before the dissolution of the earth and heaven, the writer telling the sequel, and then going back to give the intervening events, as he often does, Psalm xc. 3; Acts xvii. 31.

"And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God." Here the Son, Jesus Christ, is called God, as in Psalm xlv. 6; cii. 25 27; Isaiah ix. 6; Hebrews i. 8, of him it is said—"Thou Lord in the beginning hath laid the foundations of the earth, and the heavens are the work of thine hands," John i. 1-10.

"Come hither, and I will show thee the Bride, the Lamb's wife." First John is shown the bride's palace prepared for her, John xiv. 2; Hebrews x. 13, 16; xii. 22; xiii. 14; Revelation iii. 12. He described its aspect, its walls, size, materials of its foundations, gates and streets; then he tells of its inhabitants, chapter xxi. 22-27; xxii. 14, of its trees, their fruit and healing leaves, what nations will need those leaves, and when they will receive them.

If the New Jerusalem is the place which he went to prepare for his disciples, doubtless it is the place of the marriage supper, where the Bride will be taken after meeting her Lord, type Genesis xxiv. 67. The kings and the priests who reign with Christ 1000 years, and through whom all the families of the earth will be blessed, will probably have their headquarters in the city of which they are citizens, whatever their office and station on the earth may be, and their happy subjects could be healed by the leaves brought to them, yet not eating of the fruit.

There was a taste of those blessings in that typical flash of the millennium that followed Pentecost, Acts ii.-v., when a universal language was restored for a moment, thousands believed, many were healed and the gospel was heard by men of every nation under heaven, Revelation xiv. 6; Zephaniah iii. 9.

When a city's form, material, trees, rivers, etc., are described, the literal, material city is meant; but when a city's moral and political features are given, qualifications for citizenship, and even the city directory, it is the people who are meant. In this case both the city and the bride are described. It is a literal description of literal things. When men's theories contradict the Scriptures, they "explain," evaporate or ignore the word, take away a word that God has used, and add a different word of different meaning. This has been done so much and so long that its wickedness is forgotten, but God's last and heaviest curse is written against those who do this thing. Revelation xxii. 18-19; Job xl. 8.

"If any man shall add unto these things—and if any man shall take away from the words of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book." "He that testifieth these things saith, Surely I come quickly."

So closes this revelation of Jesus Christ. It began with an outline of what he is—

The faithful witness, John xviii. 37.

The first begotten of the dead, 1 Cor xv. 20.23.

The Prince of the kings of the earth, Revelation i. 20.

And of what he does—

Him that loved us, John xv. 13.

And washed us from our sins in his own blood, 1 John i. 7.

And hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father, Rev. v. 10.

"To him be glory and dominion forever and ever, Amen."

It closes with the triumph of the conquering hero, the defeat of evil and evil beings, the lost estate restored, and the whole family at home, John iii. 17, "no more death, neither sorrow nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain."

A. S. CLOUGH.

At the Breaking of Bread.

PHIL. i. 27.

"Only let your conversation be as it becometh the gospel of Christ; that whether I come and see you, or else be absent, I may hear of your affairs, that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the gospel." These are Paul's words to the saints in Jesus Christ which are at Philippi; he is exhorting them first to be careful about their conversation so we see that we must watch and think about what we say so it will be such that will become the gospel of Christ. In 1 Peter i 15 we find one very good reason why we should be careful about our conversation, it reads, "But as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation." We are all looking forward to the time when we shall be like him, so let us commence now by having our conversation more holy. I think if we would all keep in mind these few words of James our conversation would be more according to the gospel. He says, "Wherefore, my beloved brethren, let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, and slow to wrath." May we all keep these words in mind. Paul speaks of the gospel or glad tidings of Christ, and in Rom i 16 we find a very good definition of the gospel of Christ. It reads, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. Paul also exhorts these brethren at Philippi to stand fast in one spirit and strive together for the faith of the gospel. What does he mean when he says stand fast in one Spirit? After studying for some time I think in the second chapter of Ephesians where Paul is writing to the brethren at Ephesus he explains it where he says, "For through him we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father." It is not by many spirits we have access to the Father, but by this one spirit and for this reason he exhorted the brethren to stand fast in this one spirit. Is it any wonder he encouraged them to strive together for the faith of the gospel, for it says in Jude 20 and 21, "But, ye beloved, building up yourselves on your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Spirit, keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life.

IDA BUCKMAN.

2 COR. XIII. 5.

Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith, prove your ownselves. Know ye not your own selves how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates? In this entreaty and interrogation Paul first entreats that they examine themselves, and to examine is to inspect carefully with a view of discovering the truth concerning a certain thing, and in this case it is whether they be in the faith or not; and note that he does not say a faith but the faith, and we find by turning to the same writer's letter to the Ephesian brethren, the 4th chapter and the 5th verse, that he says that there is but one Lord, one faith and one baptism, and from this we most naturally conclude that it certainly makes a difference what we believe, and that is why Paul so earnestly entreats the brethren to examine themselves and we also note that he does not tell them to examine or find fault with their neighbor or brother as we are apt to do, but their ownselves; prove your ownselves whether ye be in the faith. Individual salvation is set forth quite strongly here as it is in Acts ii 40, and with many other words did he testify and exhort, saying, Save yourselves from this untoward generation, and Peter says in chapter iv 17 and 18, "For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God; and if it first begin at us what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God? And if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear? And beloved in the Lord, as we feel that the time of this judgment is nearing, and that this is the time of waiting we must be all the more careful that there be not a falling away among us for we must continue steadfast unto the end if we would gain the crown that awaits the faithful in the Lord. So therefore let us exhort and build each other up in our most holy faith, that we may all receive an abundant entrance in the kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

OWEN POTTORF.

Christian Warfare.

Is the Christian life a warfare? and if so why? To the first proposition I would answer emphatically yes, but would not rely on my own assertion. The apostle Paul to Timothy says, "Thou therefore endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of this life; that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier." 2 Tim. ii. 3, 4.

A soldier is one who is enrolled and educated for war; a good soldier is one who is brave, loyal and faithful. A soldier of Jesus Christ is a Christian soldier, and a good Christian soldier is one who will put on the whole armor of God, Eph. vi. 11, and "Fight the good fight of faith." 1 Tim. vi. 12.

In carnal warfare a soldier must free himself of all business and other cares, so that he may be free to give his time and attention to the duties for which he has enlisted; so a soldier of Jesus Christ must be free from the entanglements of the world; not that he should lay aside all legitimate and honest business and all social relations of every character, for without these he (or she) could not exist in this world; but "Lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset, and run with patience the race that is set before us." Heb. xii. 1.

Here the Christian course is compared to a race; a beautiful illustration; but our lesson is on the warfare, and we will proceed to see who our enemy is. "Finally my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." Eph. vi. 10-12, 13-18, describe the armor, but too lengthy for quotation here.

Psalm cix. 1-6, "Hold not thy peace O God of my praise. For the mouth of the wicked, and the mouth of the deceitful are opened against me, they have spoken against me with a lying tongue. They compassed me about also with words of hatred; and fought against me without a cause. For my love they are my adversaries; but I give myself unto prayer, and they have rewarded me evil for good, and hatred for my love. Set thou a wicked man over him, and let satan stand at his right hand."

"Lest satan should get an advantage of us, for we are not ignorant of his devices." Many more very pointed references might be given, but the above is sufficient to show that the devil and satan, and sin in its various forms are the opposing forces.

The wily enemy approaches us in various forms very alluring, and innocent appearing. It may be covetousness, a desire to possess that which is not our own, a desire to worldly pleasures, card parties, games of chance, dances, clubs for purely worldly pleasure and many other alluring ways too numerous to mention. "Lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God." 2 Tim. iii. 4. This whole chapter would be fitting in this connection, but would lengthen our article too much.

We see then that the Christian life is a warfare, and can think of no more fitting conclusion than the apostle Paul to Timothy, 2 Tim. iv. 6, 7, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith," and what does he say his reward will be? "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

The second proposition is, Why is the Christian life a warfare? There are two opposing forces arrayed against each other. The good, the bad, the righteous the wicked, the just and the unjust. In war, armies have their generals or commanders. God is the Great Commander of the good, Jesus Christ, his Son, is his Captain; the Soldiers of the Cross are the Christian soldiers. Satan is the commander of the hosts of the wicked, and as he and they are very active, seeking every opportunity and every device to deceive, beguile and lead astray, so must the followers of God be active also. "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." Matt. vi. 24.

The whole sixth chapter of Matthew is excellent in this connection, but I will close by quoting verses 19-20:—"Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal. But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." Verse 21, "For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

E. K. BARNHILL.

Dear Restitution:

Through the tender mercies of our Heavenly Father, I am permitted to write these few lines, and I want to tell you through our dear paper, how thankful I am that I am still spared to write. I have been wanting to write for so long, but it seemed impossible. I have been stricken down with palpitation of the heart, caused from overexertion and general debility, since last October, and have been confined to the house, and most of the time to my bed since that time. But thank the kind Lord, I am improving slowly and hope to regain my health if the Lord wills.

Notwithstanding my afflictions I have been greatly blessed, with having my Bible and church paper to read, and have been tenderly cared for by my only daughter. It is indeed a blessed privilege to meditate upon the precious promises of God. I have so much enjoyed reading the articles from the brothers and sisters of like precious faith in THE RESTITUTION this winter. I thank God that he has given me an understanding heart. I find his Word to be a lamp to my feet, and a light to my path.

We have missed Brother Wilson's visit to us this winter, and read with interest his report in the paper. We do hope that Brother Wilson will be spared to visit us many times yet: Oh how we would enjoy communion and fellowship with those of like precious faith.

Brothers and sisters, pray for me that I may never be moved away from the hope of the gospel, but be steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as we know that our labor is not in vain in the Lord, 1 Corinthians xv. 58. I am as ever in the hope of eternal life, Titus i. 3, when Jesus, the life giver comes, John xi. 25, to receive the kingdom, Daniel vii. 14, which is to be under the whole heavens—not above, Daniel vii. 27. Then he will reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end, Luke i. 33. Yes, the Lord shall be King over all the earth, Zechariah xiv. 9, and his dominion shall be from sea to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the earth.

Bless the Lord, oh my soul, all that is within me bless his holy name, and forget not all his benefits.

MRS. A. J. MARTIN.

Never a New Religion.

Dr. Myers, the new incumbent of Tremont Temple, Boston, said in a sermon recently, "There never will be again in this world such a thing as a new religion. The new religion is as old as infidelity, and its author is the father of lies. It would drive the supernatural out of the world. It would take your Bible and cast it into the fire. It bows Jesus Christ out without even a shudder, and with just as much bowling and blasphemy as the mob had at the foot of his cross. It even puts an interrogation mark after the name of the Lord God Almighty himself."

Truth and Christianity need no patching.

Obituary.

Near midnight on March 2, 1910, passed away Wm. Mills, of Wenatchee, Washington, of kidney trouble. Bro. Wm. Mills was born May 18, 1833, at New Castle, Conn. Went to the State of Illinois in 1848. Was united in marriage to Sarah Spruney, in Kankakee, Co., Ill., Dec. 11, 1862, and from thence he removed to Indiana in 1868. He was a member of the Presbyterian church for a number of years, but heard the glad tidings of the coming kingdom from the lips of Bro. D. T. Halstead, which message so appealed to his reason that he accepted it; and was baptized in the faith of the gospel in 1873, and ever since has been a zealous defender and propagator of the faith that was once delivered to the saints.

For years he maintained a hall in Goodland, Ind., from which sounded out the "Good news of the kingdom" from the lips of many of the ablest expounders of the truth.

In the spring of 1888 he moved with his family to Andover, South Dakota. Again erecting a store building, with a large hall over head. In this he placed a large stock of goods, then sent for Bro. Halstead of Rensselaer to come. Bro. Halstead came and in the winter of 1895, he began a series of meetings, which resulted in the organization of a church at that place with some 25 or 30 members, to which was added under the vigorous preaching of the gospel for which Bro. Halstead was noted, from time to time "such as should be saved" until the church numbered some 40 or 50 members.

Bro. Halstead was maintained at that place some 10 or 12 years, the greater part of the expense and care of the church being borne by Brother Mills.

In 1902 he came to Wenatchee, Washington, to the writer's home, bought him a small fruit ranch, built him a home and soon after moved his family out, and has resided at Wenatchee and vicinity, the greater portion of the time till his death. Greatly beloved for his zeal, faith and patience —we miss him.

He has fought his fight, finished his course, and kept the faith, and I believe he can truly say with the beloved apostle Paul, "henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give me at that day."

The funeral sermon was preached at the church building by Brother N. D. Titchenal, pastor of the Church of God from Job xiv 14, and we laid him to rest in Wenatchee Cemetery. He leaves a wife, 2 sons, and 3 daughters to mourn his loss. All were present at his funeral except one, Lizzie Collins, who with her husband was in Phoenix, Arizona at the time. We sorrow, but not as those who have no hope. We wait the joy of "that better resurrection."

Lovingly,
M. W. PERRINE.

John L. Barnes was born in the State of New York, April 7, 1835, and died in Bourbon, Marshall County, Indiana, March 17, 1910, being 74 years, 11 months and 10 days old at the time of his death.

His parents moved to Indiana when he was about ten years of age, and here he grew to manhood.

In about the year 1855 he married Miss Lydia Koffel, who died in 1892. To this union was born six children, two only, survive him.

In 1894 he married Mrs. Margaret Nida, who with his two daughters, Mrs. Ella McElwee, of Peru, and Mrs. Lora Whysong, of Indianapolis, Indiana, and a host of friends are left to mourn his loss.

Some forty years ago he heard and obeyed the gospel as it is in Christ Jesus, since which time he lived an exemplary Christian life. He was one of the few who let his light shine in his every day life. He loved to talk to others of the future, to him so full of hope. Another loyal soldier of the King has fallen, and his wife and children mourn for him, but their sorrow is not without hope.

The undersigned offered words of comfort from the Word of God, using as a foundation Lamentations iii. 26, "It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord," after which we took him by train to his waiting place near the city of Warsaw, Indiana. Shall we meet in the beautiful world made new, where parting shall be no more?

J. H. WILLEY.

Luella May Hampton, the little three year old daughter of Brother and Sister John Hampton, of Frankfort, Indiana, was burned to death from playing with matches. They were not left in reach, being on the top of the cabinet, but she secured them by knocking them off. Her clothing caught fire and although her brother, five years old, ran to the home of neighbors who came to help, she soon died. The mother was at a neighbor's, her duties sometimes requiring her to be away briefly, as Brother Hampton works in the Clover Leaf R. R. shops.

Brother and Sister Hampton are among our steadfast members at Hillsburg, seldom missing our monthly appointment, eight miles from their home. Although sympathy is a poor balm, the brethren and friends extend it freely.

Funeral service was held March 10, from the Christian Church in Frankfort, the large audience seeming to appreciate the beautiful hope of the resurrection, based on Jer. xxxi. 15, with Matt. ii.

May the Father bring consolation through his Word.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS.

Jerusalem, City of the Great King.

MATTHEW v. 35.

The angel Gabriel was sent from God, to a virgin, and the angel said unto her, Fear not Mary, for thou hast found favor with God. Behold, thou shalt conceive, and bring forth a Son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David, and he shall reign over the house of Jacob (Israel) forever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end, Luke i. 26-34.

Peter, full of the Holy Ghost, says, The patriarch David is both dead and buried. Therefore, being a prophet, and knowing God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne, Acts ii. 20-30.

Jesus said unto them (the apostles) Verily I say unto you, that ye which have followed me, in the regeneration, when the Son of Man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging (ruling) the twelve tribes of Israel, Matthew xix. 28.

When the Son of Man shall come in his [illegible] him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory, Matthew xxv. 31.

I should like to see this at the top of the left hand corner of the first page of THE RESTITUTION. What could be any more appropriate, and have it there until the trumpet sounds. This would attract the attention of any one taking up the paper.

Yours, waiting for the King,
JOHN O. BRANSON.

Dear Restitution:

Enclosed find money for my renewal of subscription, and am sorry and ask forgiveness for delay.

I would like to say that I think it is plain that the wheat and tares of the parable are truth and falsehood simply, according to the explanation of Jesus, and not good and bad people, as many think. Jesus said the field is the world, the tares are the children of the wicked one, the father of lies, and the wheat is the children (seed) of the kingdom (the gospel.)

It is true he said to some, Ye are of your father the devil, but was he not speaking to men possessed of evil spirits, as truly as when at other times he commanded those demons to come out of the demented? It is also true that we are called plants, and branches of the vine of our Father's planting, but this need not confuse us in our study of the parable of the great sower If tares are people then some people and not others are tares by nature. Then how could they bring forth anything but tares. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles.

Then the barn. What is a barn but a storehouse for food?

I am the [illegible]d for the many good letters of the lovefeast, and send love to all. Am very thankful for THE RESTITUTION with so many good things in it.

May we grow in love and faithfulness and all good, is my prayer.

ALICE ADAMS.

There is many a Christian who feels the irksomeness of the duties of life, and feels his spirit revolting from them. To get up every morning with a firm resolve to find pleasures in those duties, and to do them well, and finish the work which God has given us to do, that is to drink of Christ's cup.

Sunday School Lesson.

April 3, 1910.

The Power of Faith. Matt. ix. 18-34.

Golden Text—"All things are possible to him that believeth." Mark ix. 23.

The scene is in Capernaum, and the time is the beginning of the second period of the Galilean ministry.

This lesson is of value to us because it bears on one of the fundamental principles—Faith. Paul says "Without faith it is impossible to please God." Without faith it is impossible to have any religious life, for the man who has lost faith, has nothing left.

Who was this ruler who came and worshipped Jesus? Luke viii 41.

How old was this daughter who was sick? Luke viii. 42.

Why was she especially dear to him?

This only daughter of this ruler, a man of influence among the people, was dying, or was so near dead that the father supposing she would die, speaks of her as "even now dead."

What did Jairus' faith in Jesus lead him to ask?

In our lesson for Mar. 6, we had the story of the Centurion asking Jesus to heal his servant. In that case his faith led him to say that he was not worthy to have Jesus come into his house, and asked him to simply speak the word, and his servant would be healed.

Did this ruler have less faith than the centurion?

This seemed a very serious matter to the distracted father, and he besought Jesus to come and touch his daughter, and cause her to live.

What is faith? Hebrews xi. 1.

Faith trusts God in the dark. Faith steps out at God's command, not seeing what lies before. Faith takes God at his word. This ruler's senses told him his daughter was dead. His reason told him that the dead were not alive. His faith told him that Jesus could cause her to live if he only touched her. His faith was right, even though against his sense and reason.

What interruption came as they were on the way to the home of Jairus?

What was the trouble with this woman?

[illegible] Luke viii 43.

What does Mark v. 26 say about her case?

Why did this woman touch Jesus' garment secretly?

Read Leviticus xv. and see the law concerning such cases. She no doubt knew the law in her case. She had spent her money in an endeavor to be healed, but all to no purpose. She was likely timid and ashamed as such a person would naturally be, and having heard of Jesus, and the cures he performed, thought if she could simply touch his garment she would be healed.

What was the result of touching Jesus' garment?

How long before she knew she was healed?

When Jesus knew that virtue had gone out from him, what did he ask?

What did the woman do then? Mark v. 34.

How did Jesus address her?

Did using the word "daughter" show his tenderness and love?

When they came to the ruler's house what did they learn? Read the account given in Mark v. 35-43.

How did Jesus strengthen the ruler's faith?

Who were these flute-players?

At that time the custom was, just at the moment of death the person nearest the bedside would utter a loud shriek, and this was taken up by one after the other, and all the mourning women would do the same. Players on flutes would come and add to the noise. As they approached the house this condition prevailed.

Was the girl really dead?

If Jesus had been after notoriety and popularity, he could have agreed with the rest that the girl was dead, and then the miracle would have been the greater when he restored her alive to her parents. But in a simple manner, with no mystical formula, Jesus orders the din stopped, spoke quiet and endearing words in the common Aramaic language, took the child by her hand, saying "Talitha cumi," "Come, my child," and the damsel arose and walked.

As Jesus passed out from there who next accosted him?

It is said that "Blindness was, and is, one of the commonest afflictions of the natives of Palestine. The bleareyes, often crusted round with dried secretions, and fly-infested, make some of the most sickening sights in a Syrian village crowd."

How was the appeal of these blind men made?

Not in the shrinking way of the woman who touched his garment, nor in the reverential manner of worship as did Jairus, but crying out—"Have mercy on us, thou son of David."

Why did Jesus ask about their faith before healing them?

Does giving expression of our faith in words help to strengthen it?

According to Mark v. 43 we are told that Jesus asked that the cure of this ruler's daughter be kept to themselves, and he now charges these men not to tell of their healing.

Did they obey his injunction?

Why did Jesus ask them not to tell about it?

Was the healing of diseases the principle work that Jesus had to do?

Jesus was a teacher as well as healer. So many being brought to him, taking up all the time interferred with his labor as a teacher of righteousness, hence his request for quiet secrecy in these cases. These men no doubt thought his request prompted by modesty, and rejoicing at being able to see, were anxious to tell others of this Great Physician.

The woman who was healed shows faith for herself. Jairus shows faith for his daughter. These blind men are comrades in faith. The disciples went out to preach in pairs. Here we get a lesson in association—joining in acts of worship and devotional services to God. Not forsaking assembling together.

A dumb man with a demon is next brought to him, and he is healed and can speak. Nothing like it had ever been seen in Israel before, and men marvelled.

Here we again have the fault-finders saying Jesus was in league with the prince of demons.

Faith in God is the highest and noblest attribute of which man is capable. Sneering at such faith is the lowest and most ignoble condition we can attain.

Our Golden Text says "All things are possible to him that believeth." This means we are to have faith. A genuine true belief in God will not ask absurdities, but what is in harmony with his will. Our faith lets God's power flow into our lives.

This lesson will be a blessing to us just in proportion as we trust our faith confidently in Jesus our Lord.

The Mission of the Twelve. Matthew ix. 35-38; x. 1-15, 40-42.

Golden text—"Freely ye have received, freely give," Matthew x. 8.

This lesson belongs not long after last Sunday, and occurred in Galilee, exactly where is not known.

This lesson starts a new order of things. Up to now Jesus has done all the work, but it is so great, as he now looks over the field, after going about the different cities and villages preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing their diseases, that he says to his disciples "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest."

How many did Jesus choose as his first helpers?

Give their names.

Is there the same need for laborers to gather the harvest now as there was then?

Did Jesus select men all alike for this work?

How long had Jesus been training these men for this work?

Who were they to go and preach to?

What was the message they were to carry?

What power was given them to aid in this work?

In whose name were they to do this work?

What object did they have in view?

Jesus looked over the multitudes of people—all sorts and conditions.—Some need bodily healing, and so the power is given to his apostles to relieve these distresses; but the primary object was to show how they could be forgiven of their sins, and have salvation in the kingdom of God. They needed to be shown that in no other name but that of Jesus, could they find salvation. The first thing was to get their own countrymen enlisted in the work. The promise to this nation was that through their father Abraham was the blessing of the nations to be accomplished. Through some one in his line would this promise be fulfilled. Jesus answered the description perfectly, and the disciples recognized in him the one who was to be a blessing to the world.

What were they to preach then?

Has Jesus anywhere given any other subject for his disciples to preach about?

Do we hear many sermons now from modern pulpits on the subject of the kingdom of God being at hand?

Do you know of any time when Jesus took his text from a book of fiction, or the sensational subjects of his day?

Do you think if he were here now he would do differently from what he did when on earth?

The authority and power to perform miracles was given the twelve apostles, thus enabling them to relieve the distresses that surrounded them, and to be as signs to the people that what they claimed they were able to do.

Do we have such persons among us today?

Do any in our day claim to have such power?

The full intent of Jesus in giving power to his disciples to perform miracles was not only to heal their diseases, but these miracles acted in a way as "an earnest" of what was in store in the kingdom of heaven. They would get a little idea of the good things laid up for them. Also such works would arouse attention in the message they had to deliver.

In what measure was this power given the apostles?

How free were they to be in their use of it?

Why did Jesus want the disciples to work without pay in money?

If they were to take pay for performing miracles would they be tempted to neglect the preaching?

If they were seen to be after money, would people have confidence in what they taught?

Did they have any right to sell what cost them nothing?

Jesus always gave freely, and these chosen disciples, being his representatives, must do as he did.

How were they to go? Mark vi. 7.

Why is it best to have two go together?

Two or more is the committee method. A man is encouraged if he has company.

Why were they not to take extra clothing and money with them?

They must learn to trust in God, depend on him for all things. His work was urgent, and they must not be hampered and delayed. Then the people among whom they went were to cultivate generosity. They were to be taken care of by those who were interested in the work. When they went to a place they were to enquire who was worthy, and on entering pronounce peace to that home.

Jesus knew they would meet with opposition, and so told them how to do, and it is apparent that sore chastisement is in store for those who reject and misuse one of the disciples of Jesus.

Christ's followers are to be received as we would receive Christ himself. Read verses 40-42 of the lesson, and learn that every act of kindness to one of Christ's little ones—even the cup of cold water given "in His Name," will be taken note of and rewarded.

The Yellowtown Debate. No. 4.

THE CLOSING REVIEW.

For want of time some of these replies were not produced at the discussion.

1st. In the affirmative's reply to the negatives argument, he said that Jesus is now on his throne in heaven. When asked afterward, if he did not believe that Christ will return and set up his kingdom here on the earth, he said "No, we go to him," quoting 1 Thess. iv. 17. Now my friends, I ask you to accept the assertion of Christ himself, in his message to the church of the Laodiceans. He said, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne." Rev. iii. 21.

Here is a clear distinction between Christ's throne, and his Father's throne. Jesus was then in heaven in his Father's throne. "Thus saith the Lord, The heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool." Isa. lxvi. 1. There are many statements in the Bible that the righteous are waiting for Christ to return to the earth, but not one statement that Christ is waiting for the saints to come to him. This is the doctrine of men.

Paul said to the Thessalonians that they wait for Jesus the Son from heaven. He did say they would meet the Lord in the air, but that was not saying they would go to him, but would meet him when he returns to gather them together from the four winds. Paul wrote to the Corinthians that they were "waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. i. 7.

2nd. To prove that Christ's kingdom must have been established on the day of Pentecost, the affirmative quoted Luke xii. 32, where Jesus said to his disciples, "Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." He also quoted Col. i. 13, where Paul said, "And hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son." He claimed that nothing could be given nor received that did not exist. We do not dispute that at all. But the promise that Jesus made to his disciples was a year before the day of Pentecost, and as the kingdom was then in existence, it must have been established before the day that they claim. The fact of the matter is, Jesus was explaining to his disciples that as a reward for their faith, privations, and persecutions, they were to be rulers in his kingdom when it is established. It was their heavenly Father's good pleasure to give them the kingdom, just as it might be any other father's intention to give a fine house that he is having built to his child, although, the material for the house is only partly prepared.

In regard to being translated into Christ's kingdom, Paul was speaking of God's plan for his people. He said God speaks of things that be not as though they were, as when he said to Abraham, "I have made thee a father of many nations." Rom. iv. 17.

God in his plan had made Abraham a father of many nations. All of God's work was known to him from the beginning, and it was in his plan, in his predestination of his people that he translated them into the kingdom of his dear Son. Can you not see the point?

3rd. In the parable of the nobleman's journey to a far country to receive a kingdom and to return, it was held that Christ's journey into a far country to receive a kingdom, was his journey from heaven to earth, where he received the kingdom and returned to heaven. See Luke xviii. 11-27 and Mark xiii. 34-37.

Is such a theory consistent with Christ's teaching? He said he left his house, and gave authority to his servants, and to every man his work, and commanded the porter to watch. He said "Watch ye therefore; for ye know not when the master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or in the morning; lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping. And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch."

Tell us, ye who believe that the journey was from heaven to earth, what servants did Jesus leave in heaven in authority over his house, and leave them a work to do, and tell them to watch for his return lest he come suddenly and find them sleeping? A sadly mistaken idea!

In harmony with this parable is the parable of the ten virgins, who took their lamps and went out to meet the bridegroom. See Matt. xxv. 1-13.

Tell us, ye who do not believe that Jesus meant "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth," what virgins in heaven were looking for the return of the bridegroom? and what oil did they need to give them light concerning the return of their Lord? No, my friends, this is a sad mistake. The earth is the place where Jesus left his house in possession of his servants, and journeyed to the far country of heaven for the purpose of receiving a kingdom, and when his bride (the Church) is ready, he will return to the earth and receive her. Here is where the virgins are watching for the bridegroom.

4th. It was claimed that if the kingdom was not established while Peter was living he could not have unlocked it with the keys that Jesus gave him; that Peter is dead, the keys are gone, and where is the kingdom?

Well, my friends, the world would be left in a hopeless condition if such were the case. Happily these keys were not the kind that some people seem to think, and fortunately for the world, Peter did use these keys before he died.

In order to make it plain what Jesus meant by these keys, I shall quote two passages: Jesus said "Woe unto you, lawyers! for ye have taken away the key of knowledge; ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in ye hindered." Luke xi 52.

Jesus said to Peter, "And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven." Matt xvi 18-19.

A key, in the sense in which it is used here, Webster says is that which serves to unlock, open, discover, or solve something unknown or difficult.

The lawyers, scribes and Pharisees took away the key of knowledge or information, that was essential to the salvation of man, by perverting the Scriptures, and teaching for doctrine tradition and the commandments of men.

Now this key of knowledge which was necessary to unlock or reveal to the world the truth about the kingdom of heaven, so the people could enter into that preparatory state of the kingdom called the Church, and which the lawyers had taken away, Jesus gave to Peter, who was to preach the first sermon revealing to the people the truth which had been locked up in the ignorance which was in them (Eph iv 18); and as a result of the unlocking or revealing to them knowledge of the true gospel, there was added unto them, that is to the Church, this preparatory state of the Kingdom, about three thousand souls. "And the Lord added to the Church daily such as should be saved."

I shall close this discussion by explaining one more passage that is often quoted by ministers to convey the idea that the kingdom of God is now in existence, and that the righteous are in the kingdom, and the kingdom is in them, being set up in their hearts. The passage is found in Luke xvii 21, where the Pharisees demanded of Jesus when the kingdom of God should come, and he said, "The kingdom of God cometh not with observation: neither shall they say 'Lo here!' or 'lo there!' for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you."

Notice that this conversation occurred before the day of Pentecost, at which time it is claimed that the kingdom was established, and it was also spoken to the pharisees whom Jesus called hypocrites, and of whom in his Sermon on the Mount, he said, "Except your righteousness exceed the righteousness of the scribes and pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven."

Now does any one believe that Jesus meant that his kingdom was in the hearts of those hypocrites?

The truth is, the people desired to know when Christ's kingdom would be set up, and what signs would precede his coming and the end of this age. A part of the answer that Jesus made to these Pharisees was similar to what he afterward told his disciples. He said that while no one knew when he would come, yet when he does come everybody will know it. Although he said he was born to be King of Israel (John xviii. 30,) yet he said his kingdom was not of this world, and often spoke of his coming to sit on his throne as a future event. See Matt. xvi. 27; Mark viii. 38. You will observe that while the Common Version of the Bible says "the kingdom of God is within you," the later editions refer to the margin where it says "or among you," showing that the translators concluded that the first might convey the wrong idea. I shall give you the Greek word from which king and kingdom are translated as it occurs in the Greek New Testament, and also an explanation by eminent Greek scholars. The Greek "hee basileia tou theou" may be translated "the kingdom of God," or "the majesty of God." Basileia in this passage refers to the person to whom the title and honor of the king belonged, rather than to the territory or kingdom. Prof. Whiting, an able Hebrew and Greek scholar, says the clause in the 21st verse ought to be rendered, "the king is among you." Dr. A. Clarke, in a note on the 21st verse, evidently understood it as relating to the Christ. He says, "Perhaps those Pharisees thought that Messiah was kept secret in some private place known only to some of their rulers; and that by and by he should be proclaimed in a similar way to that in which Joash was by Jehoiada the priest." See 2 Chron. xxiii. 1-11. This must have been the opinion of the people at that time, because Jesus said to his disciples, "Remember, I have forewarned you. If, therefore, they say to you, "Behold, he is in the desert!' go not forth; or, 'Behold, he is in secret apartments!' believe it not. For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shines to the west; so will be the presence of the Son of Man." Matt. xxiv. 25-27. Emphatic Diaglott. Now the exact word for word translation of the 21st verse from the Greek is, "nor will they say, Lo here, or, lo there, lo for, the majesty of the God in the midst of you is." We do not know whether Jesus meant that he was in their midst then, or whether he referred to the future when he comes again to sit on his throne; but we do know that his kingdom is not now set up in the hearts of the people, but that it is to be a real kingdom; and that while he will come unexpectedly as a thief in the night, yet when he does come and sit on his throne, like the lightning that shines from the east to the west, his presence will be known to everybody. Let us, therefore, believe and obey him, instead of the commandments and doctrines of men, and when he does come and establish his kingdom, we will be constituent parts of it.—F. M. Howell.

Who Is Legally Authorized to Perform the Rite of Baptism?

Is it not clearly any baptized believer of the true faith? Luke i 5, gives us the name of Zacharias, a priest of the order of Aaron (or Levitical): his wife (of the same line). Both were righteous before God, walking in all the ordinances and commandments before God, blameless. A child is here promised (they had no child) verse fifteen tells what manner of person he would be, and take part of the verse, He should be filled with the Holy Spirit (or in other words he would be an inspired prophet, speaking as he was moved by the Holy Spirit). Verse 59, He was circumcised the eighth day, according to the law, as a proper person for the mission he had to fill. Luke iii 2, 3, 4, He came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins. Matt iii 6. We see John fulfilling this mission, baptizing Sadducees and Pharisees. Why did they come to John to be baptized? Because he was preaching the gospel and was legally authorized by having been inducted into the commonwealth of Israel, and complying with the law. Verse 13, Then comest Jesus into Galilee unto John to be baptized of him. Why did he not go to some of the Pharisees or Sadducees to be baptized? (as some say it makes no difference who performs the rite). Is it not clear because of John's legal authority? Should a person wish to become a citizen of America, they would go to a person vested with the authority to make out said papers. It is just so in becoming a citizen of the household of faith. As was shown by the Master himself, by going to John. Matt xxviii 19, 20. Jesus gives his command to his disciples, who without a doubt were baptized into the one faith. Also in Acts ii we find the apostles beginning to fulfil the mission they were sent out for. In all cases when the gospel was to be preached or ordinances of baptism administered, we find it was done by one legally authorized, as example, the house of Cornelius; case of Paul and Philippian eunuch. To my mind then, One to preach or administer the ordinance of baptism must have the faith, having been baptized into the Christ in all of the pre-requisites necessary.

Submitted in love.

Editor Restitution:

Brother F. L. Austin has announced to us that we cannot depend on his services after May 1, and has advised us to look for some one else to take his place as our pastor. We are in correspondence with some parties, but don't know what the result may be. We thought by announcing in The Restitution that we were in search of a good man, and requesting any of the brethren to recommend any such one, that they might know of, it would help us.

Brother Austin has been with us and the Niagara Falls Church for several years, and has given good satisfaction, and at our annual meeting we voted to have him remain.

Any one wishing to correspond with me on this subject, please address me at Fonthill, Ontario.

J. E. Lest, Sec.

God's Word is a two-edged sword, and is often the direct voice of God to one's own heart. Psalms xci. 13, "He shall tread upon the serpent," shows the risk Satan ran when he misquoted verses 11 and 12, to tempt Jesus, well knowing that his own doom was pronounced in the very same Psalm. We can thank God he was completely foiled!

We wise with speed—a fool at forty is a fool indeed.

Dear Restitution:

It is with great pleasure that we introduce to you Miss Ethel Lehman as a new sister and W. H. Eldemiller and Henry Nelsley as brothers. This is a result of seed sown in the past. It proves God's Word. We must sow the seed and he will give the increase. The sister had requested immersion almost two months ago, but for different reasons had been put off with the result that these two brothers came out also. Bro. Eidemiller has always taken great interest in helping all he could, attending several conferences. We know all will rejoice with him in his hope and promise, if we ever remain faithful. Bro. Henry Nelsley is a young man who had lived with Bro. John Lehman for 8 or 9 years and understood the nature of the step he was taking. He lives at present near Pleasant Hill.

Sister Lehman is a sister in the flesh and made up her mind without persuasion. Bro. Robison assisted these three to put on Christ's name about ten o'clock Sunday morning in the creek near the church after which he talked awhile, several brothers and sisters expressing their joy as they could. They were then given the right hand of fellowship and welcome into the B. C. congregation. May they be a source of strength and be strengthened. Meetings will continue for an indefinite time, no previous arrangements being made.

Your brother in hope.

H. ASHFORD LEHMAN.

Our shortsightedness or want of capacity is often the cause of our stumbling. With a clearer vision, a sounder judgment and a wider knowledge, we would avoid many circumstance which involve vexation and trouble. The blind ox falls into the pit.

Notice to Illinois Bereans.

Our new lesson books are now ready. In order to meet, in a measure, the expense of printing, the Bereans, who attended the annual meeting agreed to buy their books and to invite any, who felt so inclined, to do the same. This is not necessary, as all Bereans will be provided with the Lesson Books; but the deficit of the treasury can be easily met in this way. Will the Illinois Berean Societies send in their orders as soon as possible to Leila E. Whitehead, 5439 Ontario St., Austin Station, Chicago, Ill. Our president wishes all societies to begin the new work the first week in February. After February first send to her for the books at 629 N. Galena Ave., Dixon, Ill. Order about six more than you need and keep them as a reserve fund. When your society is supplied, send the money to Wm. Hardesty, Oregon, Ill. If you wish books sent by express, state plainly, in your order the nearest express office. If you wish them sent by mail enclose the postage in the order, five cents for three books and seven cents for six books, etc.

Illinois has the new Berean Bible Lessons to sell to any isolated societies or members who are not affiliated with Iowa, Indiana or Michigan. Price ten cents.

INDIANA BEREANS.

Books may be had at the same rate from Evelyn K. Harsch, 515 Pennsylvania Avenue, South Bend, Indiana. Send the money to Flora Harris, at Rensselaer, Indiana.

State officers greatly desire co-operation from every Church in the State as well as all isolated members. Much anxious thought is being given each situation, and we are hoping progress will result from the plans we have formulated, and have started to put into action.

EVELYN K. HARSCH, Pres.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

The Bible.

A DECLARATION OF ITS FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES, WITH EXPLANATIONS OF MANY DIFFICULT TEXTS.

The above is the title page of a book the Editor proposes to publish as soon as enough subscriptions are received to pay the printer. The subject matter of the book as now prepared consists of explanations of more than one hundred and twenty-six subjects; and to these will be added other subjects readers may send us while the book is being gotten ready for the press.

The primary design of the book is to teach aliens the truth. Selections from our writings in THE RESTITUTION, especially from the "Question Box," have been carefully made, and thoroughly revised. The only book ever published by our Church which formulates the fundamental principles of the gospel in propositions, and then explains all difficult texts, introducing every conceivable Bible subject—a variety most pleasing to the reader.

The price will not be less than 25 cents, and not more than $1.00. Do not send money now, but send us your pledges, and when we have received enough pledges to pay the printer, we will go to press, and will announce when our pledged subscribers can remit the money. In sending us pledges to take one or a number of books, be sure and give your correct address.

Send pledges to R. G. Huggins, at 10703 Hampden avenue, Cleveland, O.

Brethren of the Household of Faith in Michigan, Greeting:

At the Annual Conference in 1908, a committee was appointed to recommend a plan of raising more funds for the purpose of furthering evangelistic work in the state of Michigan. Their report has been published in these columns from time to time, and a great many of the brethren have responded nobly, and much additional work has been accomplished.

During the month of October we had some excellent help from Brother S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, with the result that eight dear ones were added to our number, and we have a promise from him that he will return and give Michigan some additional work during the winter, and we trust the brethren who have delayed sending in whatever they intended giving for this work will kindly respond with promptness, for on this depends how long we can keep Brother Lindsay at work. If we could send our offerings quarterly, it would no doubt be easier than to send the whole amount at once, and that would give us more to use during the year. We cannot afford to let this opportunity pass, so will expect the brethren to respond promptly. Forward offerings to A. K. Richardson, R F D 5, Hastings, Michigan, or the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette Street, Grand Rapids Michigan. We thank you in advance.

Yours in the service of the King,

F. V. BLAKELY, Sec.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured the VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 808 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send on the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he is led to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who this insincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature [illegible] are unforgiven. Although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10643 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Poetry.

He Leadeth Me.

He leadeth me! oh, blessed thought,
Oh words with heavenly comfort fraught,
Whate'er I be, where'er I be,
Still 'tis God's hand that leadeth me.

Chorus:
He leadeth me! He leadeth me!
By His own hand He leadeth me;
His faithful follower I would be,
For by His hand He leadeth me.

Sometimes with sorrow's heavy gloom,
Sometimes where Eden's flowers bloom;
By waters still, o'er troubled seas
Still 'tis His hand that leadeth me.

Lord, I would clasp Thy hand in mine,
Nor ever murmur nor repine—
Content, whate'er my lot I see,
Since 'tis my God that leadeth me.

And when my earthly task is done,
When, by Thy grace, the victory's won,
E'en death's cold sea I will not dread,
Since God the pilot thus doth lead me.

Sanctification.

"The very God of peace sanctify you wholly: and I pray God your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. Faithful is he that calleth you, who also will do it."

"Christ also loved the Church, and gave himself for it, that he might sanctify and cleanse it by the washing of water by the Word, that he might present it to himself a glorious Church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish." 1 Thes v. 23; Ephesians v. 25.

Dedicated, sanctified, set apart. Set apart from sin to holiness; from "the old man" to the new, "from Satan to God" who is holy. "From darkness to light," from all that is offensive to God and contrary to his will unto harmony and willingness.

Since the Bible is our sufficiency, it is our dictionary. Therefore by consulting the Lord's use of Sanctification in the two above texts and others, we learn that the scriptural idea of it includes sinlessness.

Surely no believer in Scripture can deny that it teaches holiness, sinlessness, human perfection, a life victorious over the flesh and sin. "Be ye perfect." "Awake to righteousness and sin not." "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled," satisfied, get all they desired.

"Now I pray to God that ye do no evil. ...and this also we wish, even your perfection.....Be perfect." "Let not any iniquity have dominion over me." "These things write I unto you that ye sin not." "Whosoever abideth in him sinneth not.....he that committeth sin is of the devil." "Till we all come, in the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ." "Whom we preach..... that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus." "That ye may stand perfect and complete in all the will of God." "Let us, therefore, as many as be perfect be thus minded, and if in anything ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you." "The Lord will perfect that which concerneth me." "Perfect in love." For love is perfection, Rom. xiii. 8-10; Col. iii. 14. The seventh, or perfect thing to "add;" for "God is love," and God "is perfect," therefore love is perfect.

The Scripture was all given to make us perfect, 2 Timothy iii. 15-17. The perfect seed to beget perfect children, 1 Peter i. 23. The previous verse shows it to be love and purity. The whole purpose of revelation and manifestation of Deity in the Son, John xvii. 26. To duplicate God, love, in us who are begotten. Remove holiness from the Bible and you destroy it, you deny the whole purpose of it, and it becomes a song of no music, a mere intellectual clang of sounding brass. "Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness," "without which no man shall see the Lord," but "the pure in heart" shall see him. Into the holy City "there shall in nowise enter.....anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination or maketh a lie." If unrighteous in named sins, or even "such like," we shall not inherit the kingdom, Gal. v. No unrighteous shall enter there, 1 Cor. vi.

Surely no seeker after everlasting life will wish to remove from Scripture the teaching of a sinless life, for eternity in sin would be a worse calamity than eternal sleep. Therefore, till we be saved from sin it is not desirable to be saved from its penalty of death into eternal life. Jehovah thus vindicates his wisdom in excluding Adam and his race from the tree of life while in sin. So it is wise that only those of us who overcome our sins shall enter into life.

Those who do not believe this doctrine, and think it a mistake, point to the following texts in objection: Eccl. vii. 20, "There is not a just man upon earth that doeth good and sinneth not." 1 Kings viii. 46, "For there is no man that sinneth not." Romans iii. 10-12, "There is none that doeth good, no, not one." Romans vii. 14-25. "Sin dwelleth in me.....When I would do good evil is present with me." James iii. 8, "The tongue can no man tame." 1 John i. 8, "If we say that we have no sin we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us." Romans iii. 10 is quoted from Psalms xiv. and liii. by reference to which, we find it spoken of the wicked, who deny the existence of God, so it has no reference to us of the Church.

Eccl. vii. 20 and 1 Kings viii. 46 express the same thought as Romans vii, in which Paul gives hope of deliverance through Christ, which is more fully discussed in a companion subject, The Crucifixion of Self, to follow this, and which also explains James iii. 8. That is, since sin dwells in a "body of sin," Romans vi. 6, or "of death," Romans vii. 24, to destroy the flesh destroys all sin, Romans vi. 6, in the attainment of this crucifixion Galatians ii. 20. No man can control his tongue; since he symbolized in baptism that he died, the thing to do is to "mortify," Col. iii. and since the tongue is a "member" of the body, when the body of sin is mortified in self-crucifixion, the tongue will "be silent in darkness," 1 Samuel ii. 9. Then when we can say with Paul, "nevertheless I live, yet not I, but Christ lives in me," he will tame the tongue and use it. Since he kept the law once and overcame all things, he can do it again in our flesh as in his own.

This explains 1 John iii. 9, for he is the one "born of God" who "cannot" sin. He is beyond possibility of it, out of flesh, born of spirit. He "cannot sin" in us. The "new man" does not sin. It comes from our own unmortified flesh. The conflict in us between flesh and this, his spirit, Galatians v. 17, continues till the flesh be mortified by it, Romans viii. 13, and consumed on the altar of consecration by the fires of suffering, or else, if we resist, rebell, do not "yield," Romans vi, and "submit," James iv. 7, he finally abandons us as incorrigibles, and lets us become "twice dead."

No wonder Paul writes as he does in Galatians iv. 19, an agony of suffering, this death of self on the cross of our adversity, this birth into spirit.

But there is a further truth brought out in Eccl. vii. 16-20 with 1 Kings viii. 46, which taken with sanctification, guards against overstraining it into something unattainable. All the vessels of the temple were sanctified, but they were not all equal. Some were of gold, others only brass. But all were holy. Some were elected before they were formed to greater "honor" than others. The potter's will is what fashions the clay to the purpose of him that calleth. Since enlightenment is essential to sinlessness, and since not all are capable of equal knowledge, and past ages did not have as much revealed as we have, therefore different degrees of attainment are to be reached by different saints in sanctification, the standard for each being different, in that it is perfection in his own talents, but being the same for all, in that it is perfection of the will of the Worker within us, and we need not worry about that degree, since we are dead and cannot work at it ourselves. For his will is the measure of our sanctification, differing among us all. Let us all, however, say "Thy will be done," and "submit" ourselves, always following the light he gives from the truth within, never choosing darkness of sin when he shows sin in us, for if we follow the light "the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin," 1 John i. 7.

1 John i. 8 is explained by verse 10. We have all sinned sometime. We could not otherwise be saved, for he came to save only sinners 1 Timothy i. 15. Forgiveness is the first blessing of the gospel, the only basis of our love. See verse 9. If we do not assent as in verses 8 and 10, but "confess," he not only forgives us but will "cleanse" all the confessed faults we lay on the altar of fire. Like Elijah, we pray for fire, chastisement, as we see in Psalms cxli. 5; Jer. x. 24. Even when thus cleansed we are not to say we have no sin. Boasting is itself a great sin. The apostles do not say they are sinless. "Let another man praise thee, and not thine own mouth; a stranger, and not thine own lips."

Holiness is brought into disrepute by erroneous teaching of well meaning but mistaken people, who assert it as an instantaneous and miraculous baptism of Holy Spirit as at Pentecost. Such people cannot perform miracles, which they could do if so baptized. Sickness is healed by this faith, it is true, but so also by hypnotism. Will they try to raise the dead, or cure a withered limb or leprosy? And again, false doctrine is sinful, and different bodies of such religious people disagree on immersion and other doctrines, so not all can be sinless. Moreover, some of them disagree on moral questions, such as dress. I cannot be sanctified and do right till I know good and evil, therefore we are to be sanctified by or "through truth" and by it "made free" from sin. Above all, there is not a verse in the Book asserting sanctification to be instantaneous. The modern claims of miracles are a delusion, the workings of the "lying wonders" of "the mystery of sin."

Others oppose holiness because it is unattainable to their efforts. The magnitude of it is so stupendous it appalls. True, we cannot do it. "Apart from me ye can do nothing." But, "Faithful is he that calleth you, who also will do it," and, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me" in my "weakness" of utter submission to that Will that works unhindered in my crucified inactivity, and he who is strong "lives in me." For since his will is that we be sanctified, 1 Th iv 3-4, he "will" do it, 1 Th v 24.

It is to be accomplished by the following sevenfold plan: We sanctify ourselves, Lev xi 44, God does it, 1 Th v 24, the Holy Spirit does it, 1 Pet i 2, the will of God does it, Heb x 9-14, Jesus does it, Heb ii 11, it is through truth, Jno xvii 17, and by our faith, Acts xxvi 18. Going back toward God from the last text, sanctification is wrought in us as we have faith, in the truth, "as it is in Jesus," who thus performs the will of God, revealed by the holy spirit, given by the Father to express his will and reveal himself to us. It is thus we sanctify ourselves. We do not do the work, we do the believing, Jno vi 28-29, on him who does the work, Ro iv 1-8. Thus we are sanctified in him, 1 Co i 2. He is the "beginner" of our faith, and also the "finisher," Heb xii 2, who, having begun a good work in us, "will finish it until the day of Jesus Christ," Phil i 6. "If we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end," Heb iii 14. If we let dwell in us richly the word which sanctifies by its truth. If we do not "refuse" his will that we "study", "pray", "meditate" and "watch." In short, if we become enlightened and "obedient children." For the water of our baptism figures this word of truth. Being buried in it, our lives are to be crucified, buried in the truth, safely enveloped in its bathing purity till we be clean. Can we wash clean of our many sins, in the higher critic's muddy Bible, or in the mere conception of he is willing to admit is clean?

Because we may be conscious of instantaneously surrendering our wills, many mistake this for instantaneous sanctification, with all the exuberance of joy and peace that comes from a heart uncondemned. But sin may be there in our ignorance of it. We can, however, get the consciousness of a perfect will thus suddenly, for God's will is perfect, Ro xii 2, and hence if we surrender our own and say, "Thy will be done," we that moment have a perfect will. If you have never so consecrated yourself, may you do it now. Since his will sanctifies us, he then begins the work. For his will must "work" in us, Heb xiii 20-21. There is something to do, therefore this transformation takes time. It is a growth, this perfection. A growth to his "fulness" of the "perfect man" through "truth" into "love", Eph iv 15. "Made perfect in love," 1 Jno iv 18.

We thus purify ourselves, 1 Jno iii 3, "by faith," Acts xv 9, in "the truth", 1 Pet i 22. We wash our own robes in the sense that our believing in his blood does it. We work out our own salvation, Phil ii 12, because our faith does the works, Gal v 6. "With fear and trembling" of what? That we do not do the works? No, that we do not do the believing, Heb iv 1. For that is our work, Jno vi 29. To believe on the Worker, Ro iv 5. For God does the work in us. Both the willing and the doing, Phil ii 13. When we take his will thus, since it is a perfect will it starts a perfect work. And having begun it he will not fail to do it, if we keep our will out of the way in complete surrender. For we know whom we have believed, and are persuaded that he is able to keep that which we commit to him against that day, 2 Tim i 12. He is faithful, and will stablish us and keep us from evil, 2 Th iii 3, and confirm us unto the end, that we may be blameless in the day of our Lord, Jesus Christ, 2 Co i 8, with power fulfilling in us all the good pleasures of his goodness, even this work of faith, 2 Th i 11, through this "mighty power" divine, by our faith thus "kept" to salvation in that day, 1 Pet i 5, kept from falling, so that we may be presented faultless before the throne, a pure bride, worthy of his calling, Jude 24. He will deliver us from every evil work and preserve us unto his heavenly kingdom, 2 Tim iv 18.

We thus see that our part to do is to submit ourselves completely and believe. The reason that sanctification and all of our salvation is by faith and in another Worker is to exclude the pride and boasting, Ro iv 1-8, for since that would be sin, if salvation were planned by our own works, it would defeat its own purpose by leaving us still in the sin of pride and self-sufficiency. If you lack faith, perhaps the third study of this series, on "Overcoming Faith", will aid you.

We are sanctified by faith as follows: Since his word will accomplish the purpose for which sent, Is lv, when we believe we submit to it, it therefore does the work. To illustrate; When I believe in his promise for food and clothes I quit worrying. When I submit to his command of industry I labor with my hands. When I trust him to restore my wrong I do not avenge myself. So with all sin; the Word sets us right on all points as we believe and yield, till it purifies us in all respects, through our faith "Now the God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that Great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant, make you perfect in every good work, to do his will, working in you that which is well-pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory forever and ever." "And the Lord make you to increase and abound in love one toward another, and toward all men, to the end he may stablish your hearts unblamable in holiness before God, even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, with all his saints." Heb. xiii 20-21; 1 Thess. iii. 12-13.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS.

Brother Underwood,

I enclose a copy of a short article I find in a magazine, on Physical Culture, published by the Physical Culture Publishing Company, of New York City. The title of the article is Satan's Opinion of Modern Civilization.

The following satirical comment upon the much-lauded progress and enlightenment of civilized times, is contained in a speech made by the devil in George Bernard Shaw's "Man and Super-man."

"And is man any the less destroying himself for all this boasted brain of his? Have you walked up and down upon the earth lately? I have; and I have examined man's wonderful inventions. And I tell you that in the arts of life man invents nothing; but in the arts of death he outdoes nature herself, and produces by chemistry and machinery all the slaughter of plague, pestilence and famine. The peasant I tempt today eats and drinks what was eaten and drank by the peasants ten thousand years ago; and the house he lives in has not altered as much in a thousand centuries as the fashion of a lady's bonnet in a score of weeks.

But when he goes out to slay he carries a marvel of mechanism that lets loose at the touch of his finger all the hidden molecular energies, and leaves javelin, the arrow, the blowpipe of his fathers far behind.

In the arts of peace man is a bungler. I have seen his cotton factories and the like, with machinery that a greedy dog could have invented if it had wanted money instead of food. I know his clumsy typewriter and bungling locomotives and tedious bicycles; they are toys compared to the Maxim gun, the submarine torpedo boat. There is nothing in man's industrial machinery but his greed and sloth; his heart is in his weapons.

This marvelous force of Life of which you boast is a force of Death. Man measures his strength by his destructiveness. What is his religion? An excuse for hating me. What is his law? An excuse for hanging you. What is his morality? Gentility; an excuse for consuming without producing. What is his art? An excuse for gloating over pictures of slaughter. What are his politics? Either the worship of a despot, because a despot can kill, or parliamentary cock-fighting. I spent an evening lately in a certain celebrated legislature, and heard the pot lecturing the kettle for its blackness, and ministers asking questions. When I left I chalked up on the door the old nursery saying "Ask no questions and you will be told no lies." I bought a six-penny family magazine, and found it full of pictures of young men shooting and stabbing one another."

Respectfully submitted,
D. C. ROBSON.

Obituary.

James A. Burnham, was born in Hollis, now Dayton, York County, Maine, May 24, 1838, being a son of Simon L. and Mary J. Burnham. He was one of a family of seven boys and eight girls. At the age of eighteen, he with his parents moved to Biddeford, Maine, where in 1857 he was united in marriage to Miss Sarah L. Knox, who was a native of Great Falls, New Hampshire. Soon after he moved to Kansas, remaining there four years, then drifting through Missouri and Illinois, reaching Rensselaer, Indiana, April 13, 1861. He enlisted in Company A, 87th Indiana Volunteers, from Jasper County Indiana, served throughout the war. Was mustered out as Captain of his Company on the 10th day of June, 1865. The Colonel of his Company says, "I have been acquainted with him nearly fifty years.....our friendship has been continuous, cordial and uninterrupted.....He was a brave, faithful soldier, his whole heart in the cause for which he devoted his services to his country. He was thoroughly honest in all his relations in life, simple, pure minded, bearing no malice or ill will against any one....."

When mustered out, he returned to Rensselaer, Indiana, and lived there continuously until his death on March 23, 1910, at the age of 73 years, 0 months, and 29 days. One daughter and her husband, and four grandchildren, two brothers and two sisters survive him. The daughter, Mrs. Chas. Morelan, and one Sister, Mrs. M. L. Spitler, reside in Rensselaer, the other Sister, Mrs. Silas Swain, in Morocco, Newton County, Indiana, the brothers residing in the east, somewhere in the New England states.

Brother Burnham and wife united with the Church of God, at Rensselaer, Indiana, in 1896. Has been very active, true and faithful, in trying to promote the faith of the Gospel. For the last six or eight years he has filled the office of Elder, and very seldom permitted anything to interfere with his duties in that capacity. He was an ardent student of the divine Scriptures, and made during his last years very rapid growth in grace and knowledge of the truth, conforming his life thereto, by which he "contended earnestly for the faith once for all delivered." It was his meat and his drink to meditate and converse on the Blessed Hope through Christ. He imbibed much of the Spirit of the Master, self sacrificing, kind and affectionate toward all. He will be greatly missed by the church, as well as in the home, by the grand-children to whom he was affectionately devoted.

The funeral services were held March 25th, Brother Joseph Williams officiating. An uncommonly large concourse of people assembled to pay their last respect, to whom Brother Williams presented the hope of life again from the dead, as reasonable and certain, as promised by him whom God raised from the dead, whose resurrection is verified by evidence undeniable, which presentation of the the hope, was listened to by the assembly with rapt attention. After which he was laid away to sleep until the trumpet call, when our Lord shall descend from heaven, then "whether we wake or sleep may we live together with him, wherefore comfort yourselves together and edify one another even as also ye do."

D. T. HALSTEAD.

Thomas Appleyard was born in Halifax, England, December 3, 1840, and died at Owanka, South Dakota, March 9, 1910.

The deceased is survived by a wife and three daughters, Mrs. Arthur Willbite; Mrs. Clarence Witt, and Miss Rachel Appleyard, and one sister, the writer of this sketch. When Brother Thomas was nine years old he came with his parents to Northfield, Illinois, and spent the following twenty years there. From then on until September 1908, the most of the time he resided at Wall Lake, Iowa. At that time he went with his family to Owanka, S. Dakota. His health during the past year had not been as formerly. The day before he died he ate supper with his family but did not feel able to get up in the morning, he failed rapidly during the day and in the evening he quietly fell asleep to wake no more until the resurrection morning.

In early life he became an obedient believer in the things concerning the kingdom of God and name of Jesus Christ, and although quiet and unassuming in manner he was bold and fearless in proclaiming the gospel whenever opportunity offered, and being a close Bible student was well able to defend the truth as therein set forth.

Thomas sleeps well because he lived well, and we are comforted with the thought that when the time of refreshing shall come and the "earth casts out her dead" there will be for him a glorious awakening to share in the beauties of the earth when it is purified from all sin and stain and made fit for the dwelling place of God's chosen ones, he will then be satisfied to awake in the Savior's likeness. "Weeping may endure for a night but joy cometh in the morning."

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, APRIL 6, 1910. NUMBER 13.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

EXAMINE Your account, and give us a renewal of subscription if you can do so.

We thank you for the favor.

PLEASE remember that the issue of March 23, and this paper, are consecutive numbers, and don't ask for "last week's paper."

LATEST word we have regarding our beloved Brother John L. Wince, is dated March 26, and says: "Mr. Wince thinks he is slowly improving, and he wishes to thank the dear ones of the Household of Faith who have so kindly expressed their sympathy in these weary hours of suffering. He cannot write to each one personally, but he is grateful that they are looking to the God of Jacob on his behalf. It greatly comforts him and strengthens his faith. He is longing to get well, that he may once more proclaim the glad tidings of salvation, to the perishing sons of men. He is still a very sick man, but the Lord of hosts is with him, the God of Jacob is his refuge, and in Him he puts his trust."

AGAIN we have a pleasing message to deliver. On March 26, 1910, Miss Edith Neidig, of Bourbon, Indiana, came to Plymouth, and in the evening when a number of the Church people were assembled, she made the good confession, and was then baptised by Brother J. H. Willey. Our young Sister remained with us over Sunday, and at the morning service was given the welcoming hand, and so another one is added to God's "little flock" to whom is promised the kingdom. Sister Edith is a grand daughter of our lamented Brother J. L. Barnes, who died on March 17. She had received good instruction from him. May her future life ever be in accord with the high profession she has made, and then her reward will be sure.

Wrong Funeral Services.

No fellowship can exist between believers and infidels, light and darkness, nor the temple of God and idols. Therefore my conscience forbids me to participate in funeral services with any order such as G. A. R., Masons, Odd Fellows, or any society whose ritual service teaches the immortality of the soul and all its attendant evils. If you are a member of such an order, please have them conduct the whole service or none if I am sent for to preach at funerals. I do not wish to be unkind, but truth and error will not mix even at funerals. If these things are so how can you mix them while you live and feel safe when you die in the adulteration? I do not care to preach at such mixed funerals.

Obituary.

Evaline F. McCarty was born in Brighton County, Kentucky, September 19, 1836, where she lived till the age of fourteen, and with her parents moved to Clinton County, Indiana.

She was married to Joseph A. Thurman March 8, 1855. Eleven children were born to them: Mary F. Graham of Glen Emma, B. C., Rachel M. Whitcomb of Michigantown, Indiana, Stephen D. of Colorado Springs, George B. of Frankfort, Indiana, Eliza O. Wilson of O'Brine, Texas, Elijah N. of Chickasha, Oklahoma, and Catherine of Oklahoma City, all living, and four deceased, two in infancy, and Mrs. Laban C. Hodgon and Jennie.

She was united to the Church at Hillisburg some forty years ago, and remained faithful to the end, which came suddenly by heart failure, at the home of her daughter in Oklahoma City, March 28, 1910, where she had only recently gone.

Funeral services were held April 1st, from the home of her son in Frankfort, with burial in Green Lawn Cemetery. We hope to meet her again.

Editor Restitution:

I want to tell all the dear ones of the Church of God, that I have been greatly helped by reading THE RESTITUTION which my daughter, Mrs. Burnett, sent me. May God continually bless the Editor and all the members of the Church of the Blessed Hope.

God be with you till we meet again.

God is Love.

All true Christianity is founded on that wonderful word, "Love," love to God and man. Notice its true meaning, viz., To be pleased with; to delight in; a strong feeling of affection combined with gratitude and confidence. These thoughts of love comprehend love to both God and man which the good Father commands: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself."

See how the whole world would be engrossed with the God of love only bringing our [illegible] into the neighborhood of [illegible] divine principle according to [illegible] "For by this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for another." And for all the law is comprised in this saying, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as Thyself." [illegible] fully practised [illegible] contentions [illegible] be few and far between [illegible] commercial age, [illegible] dishonesty is the order of the day. I was a boy [illegible] said he believed [illegible] radical change [illegible] really converted [illegible] our former lives [illegible] creatures, old things [illegible] away and all things [illegible] The great trouble with modern Christendom [illegible] ing to serve two masters. "You old legalists [illegible] n nity too long between two opinions." It is very dangerous [illegible] Christ laid down [illegible] Christians, [illegible] a moment that [illegible] would did not [illegible] sary for a true Christian [illegible] very things of [illegible] more to be feared [illegible] ned, than the [illegible] sand years ago [illegible] from among them. [illegible] shipers) and be [illegible] Lord, and to [illegible] and I will receive you, and [illegible] father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty."

The God of this world is a [illegible] big God, and more people bow [illegible] feet than ever served the true God; the waves of the [illegible] shipers of gold, [illegible] moving picture shows [illegible] many other false [illegible] struction of all spirit of life. Yes, but you do not do it, and [illegible] gradually drift into a careless frame of mind, and lose the interest of the first sweet love, when God was a sure retreat for all the ills of life. But "God is not mocked, for whatsoever a man sows that he also reaps."

Christ loved us so well that he [illegible] with promise [illegible] to the Father [illegible] world [illegible] the Father [illegible] Me [illegible] of his [illegible] Spirit [illegible] many [illegible] the Father [illegible] a world

An unusual pressure of duties prevented me from getting copy ready for "Ebenezer" last issue.

Our book is all proof-read, and as soon as it can be got off the press and bound it will be ready to mail. More particulars next week, the Lord willing.

At this writing Bro. Huffmon, of Hale, Mo., is the last one to send us a pledge. As pledges continue to come, it may be be that some body yet may come in behind our brother and claim the "ninety" prize.

We want a brother or sister in every church in the United States and Canada to act as agent for our new book "The Bible: Its Principles and Times." Especially ministers and evangelists are wanted to take up the work. Write us for terms.

Many questions are filed for answer, but we are so busy with our book, the new church, and discharging pastoral responsibilities, that we have no time for writing replies. It will be the middle of May, probably, before we can resume this feature of "Ebenezer."

The True Conversion.

"Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven" (Matt xviii 3.) So said Jesus to his disciples, whence we can estimate the importance of right views concerning conversion.

Right views can only be found where the words of Jesus and his apostles are on record, that is of course, in the Bible.

The religious world is not in harmony with these. Popular conceptions of conversion are entirely subversive of the word of God; they entirely ignore the conditions that God lays down, upon which men may repent and return unto Him.

In modern conversions there is a conspicuous lack of the knowledge of God and his promises, and of that belief and obedience which the scriptures require, and which are so satisfactorily illustrated in "The Acts of the Apostles." Certain religious excitement is generated by music and fervent oratory, and men and women are induced to declare that they "believe in the Lord Jesus Christ;" and then are persuaded that they are "saved."

To such an extent is this carried that men are supposed to be 'converted' on their death-beds, and, worse still, even on the scaffolds to which their crimes have brought them. Thus, as has been truly remarked, "they hang criminals because society will not tolerate them any more, and then the clergy, by their ministrations, profess to send them to heaven to associate with saints and angels."

And this in the face of the Scripture which declares "that no murderer hath eternal life" (1 Jno iii 15), and that we must not be deceived for "God is not mocked, for that which a man soweth, that shall he also reap, for he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption, but he that soweth to the spirit shall of the spirit reap life everlasting." Gal vi 7 8.

The true conversion of which the Scriptures speak is connected with the Word of God in relation to repentance, remission of sins, and eternal life. A man by this Word comes to know the will of God and his promises, is convicted by that knowledge of walking contrary thereto. He repents, or changes his mind, and, perceiving that God has promised to forgive his sins for Christ's sake, upon his belief of the gospel of the kingdom that Jesus preached, and baptism into his name; he obeys from the heart this form of doctrine delivered by the apostles and is "baptized into Christ." Being then "in Christ" (Dnl iii 28), he is, with him, an "heir according to the promises," and, if he endure in well doing unto the end, he will receive eternal life at the Lord's hand in the day of his coming, to raise the dead and reward all "according to their works." Rev xxii 12.

All profession that is at enmity with the Word and with its living explications, is hypocrisy, and accursed of God, no matter how pious its protestations may be.

The following Scriptures illustrate these things:

Psalm xix 7-12, "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul .....the statutes of the Lord.....by them is thy servant warned and in keeping of them there is great reward."

Isaiah vi 10, "Make the heart of this people fat, and make their ears heavy and shut their eyes, lest they see with their eyes and hear with their ears and understand with their heart, and convert and be healed." Here conversion is allied to perception and understanding, and disobedient professors were to be specially blinded by God. Jesus himself applied this prophecy to the people to whom he spoke in parables, who closed their eyes and would not see the truth in him. Matt xiii 15; see also John xii 40, and Acts xxviii 27.

The case of Cornelius (Acts x), should be studied by all who are in earnest about conversion. This devout and liberal-minded and prayerful man was indeed commended to God by his excellence, but was not thereby saved. He was directed by an angel saying, Send to Peter, "He shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do." Peter being come, spoke to him, "that word which Jesus preached," and how God had raised him from the dead; and how they had seen him, and had eaten and drunk with him, after that he rose from the dead; and that he had commanded them to preach to the people that God had ordained him judge of living and dead; and that in his name remission of sins was granted to all those who believed in him, as all the prophets testified.

At this point the Holy Spirit fell on Cornelius and his household. For they spoke with tongues, which was a sign that God had accepted them. But the obedience of faith was not rendered. Peter enquired, Could any forbid water that these inspired persons should not be baptized? No objection being forthcoming, or indeed possible, "he commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord." All this is very different from modern baby-sprinkling and the unrecognized and uninspired "conversions" of Salvationism and the various "Missions."

Earnestness and zeal will not of themselves save. Here was an earnest and zealous man who persecuted Christ Acts ix 4. He "did it ignorantly in unbelief" and therefore obtained mercy (1 i 13). He was more honored than even Cornelius, for not an angel, but Jesus himself appeared to Paul, and his conversion was based upon this direct "revelation," a fact upon which he insists (Gal i 12; Acts xxii 6 11; xxvi 13-18; 1 Cor ix 1, etc.

Having seen Jesus, and having been struck blind, and afterwards being healed in the name of Jesus by a disciple, he was convinced indeed that Jesus is the Christ, and was immediately baptized for remission of sins in his name. Being then inspired and empowered to work miracles in the name of Jesus, he preached his name for the remission of sins. Upon belief of Paul's testimony and his preaching of the kingdom of God in the name of Jesus, others were converted, especially in view of the miracles he wrought, in which God bore witness to the Word. And it is said of certain of them (who are typical of all), that "many of the Corinthians hearing, believed, and were baptized." Acts xviii 8. This is God's order, and "the true conversion." We must not invert it or tamper with it in any way.—Bible Finger Post.

The Nature of the Resurrected Body.

"But some will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body do they come?" 1 Cor xv 35. As is well known the great majority would have us believe that Paul here teaches that we do not get the same body in the resurrection. But can we believe that Paul would so flatly contradict himself? A little later on he says, "It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption: It is sown in dishonor it is raised in glory." The same "it" all the time. The one that labors is the one that reaps the reward. If we do not get the same body (as Russel says) then the wrong one joined the church, the wrong one was baptized, and the wrong one suffered. But what does Paul mean by his comparison? In verse 35 of this chapter he brings to our view two Adams: The first was a natural, earthy man; the second the spiritual man. So the first man Adam, like the grain of corn or wheat, has produced a crop like himself—a body which is the world. As the head of wheat with many grains is the result of the grain sown, so is the natural race the result of the creation of Adam. He multiplied like the grain of wheat and produced a body like himself. John xii 24, says, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground, and die, it abideth alone; but if it die it bringeth forth much fruit." Verse 23. This shows that Jesus was speaking of his death and refers to himself as the grain of corn to be planted, and die and bring forth fruit. As Jesus is the seed planted he must bring forth the fruit. So the church answers to the ear of corn with many grains or "Much fruit." Here then are the two seeds; the first and second Adam. Each one must have a body peculiar to themselves. You cannot plant wheat and get corn. "Every seed gets its own body." In the resurrection we come up with the Christ body, the Church. These two heads, Christ and Adam, must be kept separate, and each one have his own body. If the church comes up with the Adam body then why was Christ planted? and where would be the fruit? if the church comes up with the Adam body then you have planted wheat and not corn! In that case each seed did not get its own body.

Some think the germ in the grain of corn answers to our immortal souls. But not so, Jesus says, "I am the life." The germ brings the "blade," then the "full corn in the ear." Jesus is the germ, the "life," and the church or "his body," is the full grown ear. When we understand Paul his comparison is beautiful and right to the point. When we go into Christ we sever our relationship to Adam, and in death we pay the penalty, and by believing and developing a character, are worthy of a resurrection to everlasting life. Then "with what body do they come"? With the Christ body, the Church.

ALMUS ADAMS.

Gold Dust.

"Renouncing our own sins is better preaching than denouncing the sins of others."

"That religion which fails us in the every day trials and experiences of life, has somewhere in it a flaw. It ought, if it come from above, to be always, day by day, to our souls as the wings of a bird, bearing us away from and beyond the impediments which hold us down."

I long to have the children feel that there is nothing in this world more attractive, more earnestly to be desired, than manhood in Jesus Christ. —Henry Ward Beecher.

"The heights of Christian perfection can only be reached by faithfully each moment following the Guide who is to lead you there, and he reveals your way to you one step at a time, in the little things of your daily lives, asking on your part that you yield yourselves up to his guidance."

ANNA DREW.

The Bereans Column.

Dear Bereans:

How many of us, as we partake of the Lord's supper, think of the seriousness that is connected with it? How great was the suffering of our Lord in order that we might obtain salvation! And yet we grow careless with this ordinance, the most holy of all, just as we do with all those which are enjoined upon us as his disciples.

How many of us, as we take of the bread, think of his suffering upon the cross? Nor was his suffering upon the tree the greatest he had to bear. What could have been more intense suffering than to see his own countrymen deny him. He was to be their King, yet they turned from him and demanded his life. One of his chosen apostles, for the sake of money, betrayed him unto the chief priests. Even Peter, although he was loud in his protestations of loyalty to the Master, denied that he knew him when Christ was accused before the high priest. What is worse than being forsaken by those whom you have counted as your friends?

The physical suffering upon the cross was a bitter end to a life that had been full of mental suffering and temptation; and yet Christ was willing to die for our sins that we might have eternal life. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

What an unselfish love Jesus showed when, from the cross, he looked round on that mocking, scorning mob, and said, "Father, forgive them. They know not what they do." He was willing, for the joy that was set before him, to endure the cross and despise the shame, for he knew that he would be glorified.

All this, and more, is represented when we partake of the Lord's supper. "And as they did eat, Jesus took bread, and blessed, and brake it, and gave it to them, and said, Take, eat; this is my body. And he took the cup, and when he had given thanks, he gave it to them; and they all drank of it."

What, then, should be our spiritual condition in order that we may partake of this sacred ordinance? Let us see. We have no record of any save the apostles and baptized believers partaking of the communion. We are to examine ourselves, "for he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's body. Christ says, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." Since this is one of his commandments, we will show our love for him if we commune with our brethren. Let us not neglect this ordinance, for "except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you."

RUTH.

This book contains a charming bit of Bible history as well as a fascinating romance. A severe famine in the land of Judah caused Elimelech, a native of Bethlehem to emigrate to the land of Moab with his wife Naomi, and two sons, Mahlon and Chilion. In this fertile country, however, trouble again came to the door. This time it was worse than a famine—death visited them and claimed as its victim Elimelech. The two sons married women of Moab, but sorrow again visited them, and the younger women were left widows.

Soon after this Naomi, hearing that the land of Judah was again filled with plenty, resolved to return. Before doing so, she entreated her daughters-in-law, Ruth and Orpha, to return to their mothers. They both were unwilling to do this and wept at the thought of parting. Again she begged them to go to their homes, and, in accordance with her wish, Orpha returned to her parents; but Ruth said, "Entreat me not to leave thee, nor to return from following after thee, for whither thou goest I will go and where thou lodgest I will lodge, and thy people shall be my people and thy God my God. Where thou diest, will I die and there will I be buried; the Lord do so to me, and more also, if aught but death part thee and me."

These words, showing her unalterable attachment to the mother, land, and religion of her lost husband, convinced Naomi of Ruth's sincerity, so they journeyed together to Bethlehem.

Their arrival was at the beginning of the barley harvest, so Ruth set about to glean in the fields that she might support Naomi and herself. The field in which she chanced to labor was the property of Boaz, a wealthy relative of Elimelech. Boaz had heard of Ruth's affection and devotion for Naomi, and when he saw her gleaning in the fields and had learned her name he showed great kindness to her and gave her the grain she had gleaned.

Naomi, being encouraged by Boaz's kind treatment of Ruth, instructed her to urge Boaz to assert his claims of inheritance; but Boaz, knowing there was a nearer relative gave him the privilege of redeeming the inheritance for himself. He, however, declined and Boaz took Ruth to be his wife. Thus she was rewarded for virtue and faithfulness. She was the mother of Obed and the great grandmother of King David.

LETA RAILSBACK.

CHARITY.

"And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three, but the greatest of these is charity." 1 Cor. xiii. 13.

Charity is not mentioned as one of the Christian graces by Paul in his Galatian letter except as "love," which he names first. Charity is much akin to love; indeed, the same but implying more, charity being the manifestation of love. In short, charity is the embodiment of all that is good, pure and noble. In our own experience we are cognizant of the fact that the greatest of the above named attributes is charity.

Faith is the connecting link between us and God. It has to do with the individual and his Maker alone; an acceptance of his promises set forth; and hope, like faith is an individual matter—we have faith in God and his promises and hope for their consummation as recompense of our faith; but charity embraces the practical part of our religion. It deals with our emotions, impulses and our actions toward both God and our fellowmen. Charity prompts us, if we would possess it, to keep self in subjection, to love our enemies and pray for them that despitefully use us. "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." A mantle of charity may soon be woven by keeping this Golden Rule ever in memory and acting upon it.

Paul, in his Collossian letter admonishes us, above all else, to put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness. Also Peter writes "And above all things have fervent charity among yourselves; for charity shall cover the multitude of sins." So it is of the greatest importance that we, by patience, long-suffering, forbearance, love, meekness and brotherly kindness wis this mantle of charity, not to be taken off and laid away for a season but to be worn on all occasions. If we feel it slipping from our shoulders pull it the more securely around us and if need be pin it fast and immovable not to be torn away, with the golden pin of love and submission. Having charity we have all other virtues combined. Paul speaking to the Corinthians says "Though I have eloquent speech, all knowledge, all faith and have not charity I am nothing. Though I give liberally to the poor and even sacrifice my life, without charity it profits me nothing. Charity suffers long and yet is kind, it envies not, is not hasty, is not easily provoked, thinks no evil, rejoices in the truth alone, beareth all things, hopes all things, endures all things, and never fails."

So, dear Bereans, let us seek earnestly and constantly after this precious treasure, as after the costliest jewel, for such treasure we can lay up beyond corruptibility, in the bank which will never become bankrupt nor can thieves break through and steal. When disposed to anger let charity be our ever ready watchword and count it all joy that these trials come that we may be tried by the fire and purified and come out more than conqueror, through him that loved us; and may we all be counted worthy in that Great Day.

MRS. AMY WEAVER.

THE BEREANS OF OLD.

On the sunny slope of the Olympian mountains in Macedonia, commanding an extensive view of the plain of Axius and Haliacomon, stands the beautiful little city of Varria or Kara-Verria as it is sometimes called. This city, which now contains between fifteen and twenty thousand inhabitants, is associated in the minds of Bible students with that striking epoch in the lives of Paul and Silas recorded in the seventeenth chapter of the Acts.

After a short period of successful work in Thessalonica, the great evangelist and his worthy co-laborer, were forced by the violent opposition of the unconverted Jews, to depart by night to Berea, or Varria, as it is now known. Finding here a class of people who were earnest, prayerful students of the Hebrew Scriptures, it is not at all surprising that many of them were induced to believe the glad tidings proclaimed by the apostle, who drew his entire argument from the law of Moses and the Prophets, with which they were all familiar. It was not the eloquence of the speaker that won them to Christ; for, had Paul possessed the oratorical powers of a Demosthenes, it would have been of no avail, unless his auditors were willing to "receive the word with all readiness of mind", and to accept as true all which was found to be in harmony with the revealed mind of God. It was from this faithful band of Bible students that we, as a society, obtained our name.

Long before Paul reached their city, with his wonderful message of love and universal brotherhood, the Bereans understood many of the blessed truths contained in the Old Testament Scriptures; but it was from him that they obtained their first knowledge of the gospel of divine favor, as expressed in the life and teaching of the Master.

The beauty and harmony of the Bible can be fully felt and appreciated only after a careful and system study; and even this is not sufficient, unless undertaken in a spirit of love and faith, and with a prayer for God's guidance in the effort and blessing on the result. An investigation under these conditions, however, is sure to bring forth blessed results. Mines of treasure never entered, and passages here to fore enshrouded in mystery, are fully revealed in the light of faith and love. Visions of beauty, unfolding on every side, enable us to form some conception of our Creator's greatness, and an idea of the matchless love he bears toward the children of men.

As we proceed we learn to love the Bible as the voice of our best Friend, and to place it before all other earthly possessions as the most to be prized. One can scarcely realize what a blessing God's Word is, until deprived of the companionship of friends and loved ones, we turn to it for comfort; then we see possibly as never before, what a wonderful treasure we have in the Bible!

Beautiful words for every age
Beautiful thoughts on every page;
Beautiful pictures here and there,
Beautiful lessons every where.
Beautiful precepts from above,
Beautiful language, "God is love!"
Beauty and truth where'er we look,
Beautiful, best, most sacred Book!

G. ELDRED MARSH.

Tobacco and Preachers.

A minister, writing to a religious paper concerning the deficiency in the salary of preachers, attributes it in part to hard times, but more especially to evil and extravagant habits.

"One young man," he says, "gives ten cents to the preacher, a dollar to the theatre, and still another to the skating-rink, and so on until the preacher is compelled to quit preaching and resort to daily labor to maintain his family. Tobacco is depriving the church of money that might be used in support of the gospel of Christ. Of a membership of one hundred and sixty, forty used tobacco at fifteen dollars each per annum, making a total of six hundred dollars. A little more religion and a great deal less tobacco would help to pay the preacher.

We judge that if preachers would preach God's truth boldly and faithfully, it is probable that their converts would use much less tobacco than at present. If they adopted the plan which missionaries do in the South Sea Islands, and received no person into the church until they had quit using tobacco, some of these difficulties would be solved at once. Churches might be smaller, but more valuable; as a shilling is smaller than a handful of pennies, but is worth the whole of them. A hundred men soundly converted to God and trained in ways of self-denial, devotion, and earnest, whole-souled effort, would do more work and raise more money than a regiment of those tobacco-using, money-wasting worldlings, who seem to think that their future is assured because they have been permitted to join the church, and who live with little regard to God, or his Word or work.—Safeguard.

Rum and Revenue.

We license men to sell liquor because of the tax they pay. In North Carolina the liquor-tax—or the revenue derived from the liquor-tax—is about $50,000 a year.

To raise this $50,000 the state has about 2000 licensed bar-rooms, and consequently there are 2,000 bar-keepers who do not produce anything, but who are consumers. There are about 10,000 loafers, or dead-beats, who hang around the grog-shops, who do not work, or at most work very little; so that, adding together the 2000 bar-keepers and the 10,000 loafers, we have 12,000 idle men in the State, who have to be fed and clothed at somebody's expense, and whose labor, amounting, at fifty cents a day apiece, to 6000 a day is lost to the state. So we spend about $1,872,000 in the loss of labor and in boarding dead-beats. In order to get $50,000 of revenue!

That's financiering with a vengeance. But still they say, "We can't afford to do without the liquor-revenue, because it helps to run the common schools."

How does this business affect the consumers? Says the Spirit of the Age:

"If you come to Raleigh and get drunk at a licensed bar-room, the police will arrest you, and if the complaint against you is, 'Drunk and down,' the mayor will fine you $5 and costs, making the bill against you $7.25. If you are not able to pay that, he sends you to jail for thirty days. There the county charges you thirty cents a day for board, so that in thirty days you get in debt to the county $9. To pay that $9 you are then sent to the work-house, where you are to work it out at twenty-six cents a day. That will just take thirty-five days. Thirty days in jail and thirty-five days in the work-house make sixty-five days a poor fellow is kept away from his home and his family just for getting drunk at a government bar-room, and in so doing helping to raise revenue."

Try THE RESTITUTION, $1.50 a year

Dear Bro. Underwood:

Perhaps I have passed through as great variety of vicissitudes as any one of my readers could carry during my years of labor, and still ask for more years of labor. While I grow weary of the years of mortality, I do not want to give up the evangelistic work, if it should continue a thousand years. My chief ambition is to be an evangelist for a thousand years, when Jesus will be King, and the nations converted and blessed. Oh, that will be grand! No contention then among the workmen. No prescription of the conscience, but everything fresh from the lips of the King.

I would rather tell the good news to the perishing than sit on a throne among the kings. It is my chief ambition, so I'll keep at work and quietly carry my burdens. I can make them lighter by counting my blessings.

As I was saved from the weight that brought me down into the dust—near the dust of the grave—a year ago, I resolved to keep an account of the gifts of the brethren, which began at the Sanitarium in Phoenix, carried me safely through, and put me on my feet, with an appetite for work that was stronger that the strength to do it. I have not forgotten the donations nor my object of devoting them to evangelistic work. I have at this time in round numbers $50.00 due from me to the work.

A portion of this came when I was working last fall in Iowa, on a liberal salary of $60.00 a month—very liberal for one who has been used to pioneer wages. With permission of the management of THE RESTITUTION I will enter account again through its columns, with the brethren. That the books may be clear with the donors, I state that $10.00 in work is due to Sister Jennie P. which I received while in Iowa, and $2.00 to Brother John H. received March 21.

Brother Underwood, it is due to you and the brethren for me to say that my own experience in teaching and in observation has warned me against dogmatism in establishing theories. I cannot go to the 'lower critics" to bring doubt on the possibilities of Christ's power, or the power of his death in condemning condemnation. On the other hand I cannot accept universal salvation if some of the "higher critics" may think it will be reached. There is too much evidence of utter destruction for some.

My address is Buckeye, Arizona, in care of Grace Lawrence. I remain here to complete plans of work by correspondence with those that will want work and write me.

With faith and hope and love,

W. L. SKEELS.

Editor Restitution:

Brother F. L. Austin has announced to us that we cannot depend on his services after May 1, and has advised us to look for some one else to take his place as our pastor. We are in correspondence with some parties, but don't know what the result may be. We thought by announcing in THE RESTITUTION that we were in search of a good man, and requesting any of the brethren to recommend any such one, that they might know of, it would help us

Brother Austin has been with us and the Niagara Falls Church for several years, and has given good satisfaction, and at our annual meeting we voted to have him remain.

Any one wishing to correspond with me on this subject, please address me at Fonthill, Ontario.

The human heart is like a millstone in a mill. When you put wheat under it, it turns and grinds and bruises the wheat into flour. If you put in no wheat, it still grinds on and wears itself away.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

The Bible.

A DECLARATION OF ITS FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES, WITH EXPLANATIONS OF MANY DIFFICULT TEXTS.

The above is the title page of a book the Editor proposes to publish as soon as enough subscriptions are received to pay the printer. The subject matter of the book as now prepared consists of explanations of more than one hundred and twenty-six subjects; and to these will be added other subjects readers may send us while the book is being gotten ready for the press.

The primary design of the book is to teach aliens the truth. Selections from our writings in THE RESTITUTION, especially from the "Question Box," have been carefully made, and thoroughly revised. The only book ever published by our Church which formulates the fundamental principles of the gospel in propositions, and then explains all difficult texts, introducing every conceivable Bible subject—a variety most pleasing to the reader.

The price will not be less than 25 cents, and not more than $1.00. Do not send money now, but send us your pledges, and when we have received enough pledges to pay the printer, we will go to press, and will announce when our pledged subscribers can remit the money. In sending us pledges to take one or a number of books, be sure and give your correct address.

Send pledges to R. G. Huggins, at 10703 Hampden avenue, Cleveland, O

Brethren of the Household of Faith in Michigan, Greeting:

At the Annual Conference in 1908, a committee was appointed to recommend a plan of raising more funds for the purpose of furthering evangelistic work in the state of Michigan. Their report has been published in these columns from time to time, as a great many of the brethren have responded nobly, and much additional work has been accomplished.

During the month of October we had some excellent help from Brother S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, with the result that eight dear ones were added to our number, and we have a promise from him that he will return and give Michigan some additional work during the winter, and we trust the brethren who have delayed sending in whatever they intended giving for this work will kindly respond with promptness, for on this depends how long we can keep Brother Lindsay at work. If we could send our offerings quarterly, it would no doubt be easier than to send the whole amount at once, and that would give us more to use during the year. We cannot afford to let this opportunity pass, so will expect the brethren to respond promptly. Forward offerings to A. K. Richardson, R F D 5, Hastings, Michigan, or the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette Street, Grand Rapids Michigan. We thank you in advance.

Yours in the service of the King,

F. V. BLAKELY, Sec.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 308 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D.C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind, not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John I. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Ever lasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" "THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, APRIL 13, 1910. NUMBER 14.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Contentment.

Don't look for flaws as you go through life;
And even when you find them
It is wise and kind to be somewhat blind,
And look for the virtue behind them.
For the cloudy night has a hint of light
Somewhere in its darkness hiding;
It is better by far to look for a star
Than the spot on the sun of siding.

The current of life runs ever away
To the bosom of God's great ocean;
Don't set your force against the river's course,
And think to alter its motion.
Don't waste a curse on the universe,
Remember it lived before you;
Don't butt at the storm with your puny form,
But bend, and let it fly over you.

The world will never adjust itself
To suit your whim to the letter;
Some things must go wrong your whole life long,
And the sooner you know it the better.
It is folly to fight with the Infinite,
And go under at last in the wrestle;
The wiser man skips into God's great plan
As the water skips into the vessel.

Forgetting the Things Which are Behind.

PHIL. iii 13, 14.

The Epistle to the Philippian church has all the grand characteristics which shine forth in all the writings of the Apostle Paul. In every chapter it reflects the thoughts, the wishes, the prayers—the very heart's desires of a man who is thoroughly in earnest in his work for the Gentiles. Notice with what fervent expression he begins with a desire for their welfare. Saying: "To all the saints in Christ Jesus which are at Philippi, with the bishops and deacons, grace be unto you and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ."

"I thank my God upon every remembrance of you." "Always in every prayer of mine for you all making request with joy."

"For your fellowship in the gospel from the first day until now."

"Being confident of this one thing, that he that hath begun a good work in you will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ."

And again in the 10th verse of this first chapter, "That ye may approve things that are excellent; that ye may be sincere and without offence till the day of Christ."

Let us consider for a few moments what Paul meant—what he referred to as "the day of Christ."

We read in 8 chapter of John that when the Jews that believed not claimed their descent from Abraham and said, "Art thou greater than our father Abraham, who is dead, and the prophets are dead? Whom makest thou thyself? Jesus' answer to them was: "Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day, and he saw it and was glad."

Now as Abraham had been dead about 1700 years the Jews were curious and sarcastic in their questioning of Jesus, seeing it was evident as they said, that Jesus was not yet even 50 years old. "Hast thou seen Abraham"? they cried: And then he made answer, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, Before Abraham was, I am."

Leaving the element of Faith out of the matter and here was an enigma—a puzzle which neither the Jews, nor any one else could comprehend. Were these unbelieving Jews ignorant, uneducated men? No, but rather they were the scholars—the doctors of the law—the Rabbis, in fact the D. D.'s and L. L. D.'s of their times. Then it was not that they were simple, and question one beyond their mental capacity to fathom. Then, was it a new theory which they were hearing for the first time?

No, the teachings of Jesus were well known from his own mouth, and besides that were found on record in those sacred writings which these men outwardly at least claimed to venerate and make their rule of life to the very letter. Did I say to the letter? Yes, that was it; much more in the letter than in the spirit was their obedience, and here we may find the key to their difficulty experienced in understanding or accepting Jesus.

I think the answer in part, at least, is found recorded in Heb iv 2, where the writer is making comparison between the spiritual seed and the natural seed of Abraham, says: "For unto us was the gospel preached, as well as unto them; but the Word preached did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it."

Those Jews who questioned Jesus could not possibly comprehend the things of God which he taught.

Not having faith in any degree they could not receive spiritual things. The Scriptures tell us that the carnal or natural mind cannot receive the things of God, because the carnal mind is enmity against God, for it is not subject to the law of God.

All this is in closest harmony with the statement made in the Scriptures that the future and eternal things are "hidden from the wise and prudent" —being only seen by faith.

And to lack faith is to be the loser both for time and for eternity. Faith foresees now and causes us to rejoice in anticipation of the glories which shall be revealed in "the day of Christ."

That day is what Jesus refers to when he tells the Jews, "Abraham saw his day and rejoiced"—the same which Paul refers to in his letters as "the day of Christ."

The question for us is: "Where does faith come into the matter? What must we have faith in?

Turning to the 11th chapter of Hebrews we read that "faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Faith then makes things substantial or real things as far as the mind of one having it is concerned; which as yet have not actual existence—are not visible to the natural eye. Then we read of Abraham that: "By faith, when he was called to go out into a place which he should after receive for an inheritance, obeyed; and went out not knowing whither he went. He sojourned in the land of promise as in a strange country, dwelling in tabernacles (tents) with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise: "For he looked for a city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God."

Say brethren, do you think Abraham, the father of the faithful, made any mistake about that promise?

No, for right well he knew that though his bones would moulder into dust long before that city for which he looked would become an actual—substantial fact on the earth, yet he would be there. Faith in him gave it all the force and reality of things seen, and thus having obtained a good report through faith; he received not the promise (its fulfillment rather), but having "seen them afar off" was persuaded of them and embraced them, and confessed that he was a stranger and a pilgrim on the earth.

What a grand privilege it is to be taken into God's confidence, so to speak; to know his plans hundreds of years before they are carried into effect. That is the privilege which Abraham enjoyed, and was even called the friend of God. But the privilege was not altogether exclusive. Isaac and Jacob were heirs with him of the same promises, and therefore must have known all about them in order to have faith in them.

Now is that the limit of the privilege of knowing God's plan and purpose beforehand and of sharing in the blessings of the promises? No, thanks be to his loving kindness and tender mercy, God invites and pleads with all to come and freely share in the blessings and privileges accorded to those worthy ones of old. Abraham was strong in faith and gave glory to God being fully persuaded that what he had promised he was able to perform, and therefore it was imputed to him for righteousness, and the apostle adds that so it shall also be imputed to us if we believe on him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead; who was delivered for our offences, and was raised for justification. Rom iv.

When we meditate upon these things—the wonderful wisdom and love of God—as manifested in the gospel message, and when we realize how unworthy we are of being called the children of God, should not that thought give us some of the earnestness and zeal which we find and admire so much in the apostle Paul.

Our faith may be all right as to the kind, but as compared with that of those faithful ones of old it reminds of one of those diminutive cherry trees raised as a potted plant in Japan—not a foot high but a minature in every respect of the sturdy giants raised in our land which grow and bear abundant fruit in spite of the storms of winter or heat of summer suns. Robbed of its natural soil from week to week, deprived of water, only allowed a few drops at a time, the tiny tree becomes a curiosity—abnormal, unwholesome and unnatural. So our faith, robbed of its food supply (the Word) by the cares, either family, or business, or social; or perhaps by pursuits of pleasure or ambitions of various kinds. Deprived of water (spirit) by the same things and by the habit of absenting ourselves from the Lord's table. What is to be expected? Sunshine and wind and rain are no more necessary to a healthy plant life, and good fruits, than is study of God's Word and frequent and familiar fellowship with those of like precious faith around the Lord's table.

At this beginning of a new year, when retrospection and self inspection are especially appropriate and in order, it seems timely to look around for some way in which we can grow, develop and increase in faith this year.

But says one: "Oh, I am growing all right. I believe a whole lot more than I believed or understood a year or two ago."

Now dear ones, shall we say this one is on the right track? The work which he or she is doing must bear unmistakable evidence of growth in grace—in favor with God.

I would hardly venture to suggest to each one of the Household of Faith just what his or her needs are—what each lacked or what each should cast out. Each must be first concerned in casting the beam out of his own eye so that he can see clearly to serve another. But it is our duty to point to the Word and say, Be sure you have God's approval of whatever plans you make or work you undertake. Don't plan too much or too far ahead either for work or pleasure. You may not be permitted to carry it to a finish. Let pleasures and recreation be only "a side line." Pleasures are important, especially if the right kind, but when a young man or a young woman gets to the point where they think more of what is to happen after working hours than they do of the business or work, they have got about as far as they are likely to go. Pleasure is a good "side line," but undesirable as a regular occupation.

Start the year with some definite ideas. Focus your attention on some particular fault which you are conscious of—that has made trouble for you in the past year. Make the year 1910 a New year in very truth. Unfound the old worries, the old quarrels, the unpleasant things handed down from somewhere in the past.

Forgetfulness is sometimes to be commended. The Apostle Paul found it expedient to forget, and we might say forgetfulness is one of two things he links together—A motto for the year. He says "Forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Forgetting the things which are behind means something. Dear young friends and brethren of older years. Have you left any of the old things behind since you made your covenant with God to serve him? If you have in truth left some unprofitable things of the world behind strive to forget them. Having your hand on the plow do not look back or you will not drive a straight furrow. Looking back sealed the fate of Lot's wife, and alas of many another who had made a start for sure salvation if they had been earnest and steadfast. But our motto says, "Reaching forth to those things which are before."

Paul did not count himself as safe—he kept his body in subjection, curbed his natural desires, lest that by any means, when he had preached to others he himself should become a castaway, I Corinthians ix. 27.

In Luke ix. 62 we find the words of Jesus saying: "No man having put his hand to the plow and looking back is fit for the kingdom of God."

Lot's wife had a good start on the way to a safe refuge, and was traveling in company with others who reached the haven of safety, but her heart was still most concerned about the things which were behind. How much better if she had allowed herself to forget the things which were behind.

Are we not in the same danger that Paul was, or that overthrew Lot's wife, if we are more concerned about the affairs of this life than for those of the kingdom?

The mark of the prize gleams bright with the "brightness of Zion's glad morning" to those who, like the apostle, are pressing toward it, and not looking back. The world's temptations and attractions grow less the farther we leave the world's company behind. It is the looking back with regret that prevents our progress forward.

In the language of the familiar hymn we must "forget the steps already trod, and press with vigor on." The immortal crown is sure if we are but faithful to the end. We will be among that glorious company which shall come from the east and from the west and the north and south, and will sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of God.

CHARLES A. GOSS.

"They Continued Steadfastly In the Apostle's Doctrine."

The above expresses the true spirit of every ecclesia and every individual who is struggling for that life which is to come. Steadfastness is a trait of character that every child of God must possess. The double-minded man, the apostle says, "Is unstable in all his ways."

We are admonished to stand fast in the faith and not to be moved by every wind of doctrine. Our trials come to us in order to strengthen us. Peter the apostle directs that we add to our faith the Christian graces, and says, "If these be in you and abound they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ." If we continue steadfast we must study to be able to divide aright the Word of truth.

The trouble in this day is that churches must have pastors, which means that they do the work and the membership attend and listen. Pastors may be helpful but never absolutely needful. We hear the complaint that if we have no pastor that our flock will scatter. This is owing to the fact that there is no individual interest or effort in the work. If you will read 1 Cor. xii. 12 to close, you will learn how important the individual member of each body is. The apostle places each member where it belongs. "Those members of the body which we think to be less honorable, upon them we bestow more abundant honor; and our uncomely parts have more abundant comeliness; for our comely parts have no need; but God hath tempered the body together, having given more abundant honor to that part which lacked. That there should be no schisms (divisions) in the body; but that the members should have the same care one for another." You ask then should not every ecclesia have a recognized head? We answer, yes; but not to lord it over God's heritage. The head should direct. Every general places his men where they will accomplish the most good. He places the veterans in the most critical and dangerous places. The best governed families and schools are those where government is less noticable. The church where every one has something to do is always the live church. This is an age of individual development. The organization into bodies is for the purpose of strengthening individual members. "Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another; and the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord and that thought upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of Hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them as a man spareth his own son that serveth him."

In apostolic days churches were organized with elders and deacons who were to exercise care over them. The appointment of pastors belongs to the apostasy. The church of Rome and all her daughters do this. The lay membership are the governed. They are regarded as the illiterate class, those that need governing. They are separate and distinct from the clergy. Such a spirit has no place in the body of which Jesus the Christ is Head. Whoever is baptized into Christ has put on Christ, and has the right to attend to all the ordinances of the body.

Every ecclesia is only as strong as the weaker members. We hear it said that large bodies need a pastor more than a small body. The same spirit and rule must govern all Christ bodies. If the large bodies need one, proportionately small bodies need one. The apostolic method was for the master-builder to lay the foundation, and build thereon, and others who built must build on the same. The apostles visited the churches which they founded, but we have no evidence that they did more than appoint elders and deacons. The money that is used for pastors should be used to carry the gospel into new fields. We should heed the many calls that are made by the isolated poor of the flock.

This is the day in which men and women are called out from among the Gentiles as a people for his Name. If we fail to send men and women out who are competent to round out the Word of truth, we will answer for it in the day when Christ shall judge the household.

Notice the effort that is being made by the apostasy to build up their churches. They spare neither time or money to accomplish their desires. One of the popular churches in our city is building a $30000 church. This means that they must increase their membership. To do this is to teach their error. To remove error and the traditions of men, is more difficult than to teach men the truth. We must see that the times indicate that the Gentile times are near their close. Jerusalem shall be trodden down until the fullness of the Gentiles become in. Jehovah has always had a time to accomplish his work. We are servants with whom he has left directions to occupy until he comes. This don't mean that we shall be indifferent, but that we labor to do his will.

We have a race to run, and another cannot run it for us. If we gain the victory we must fight valiantly. We are soldiers in the army of which Jesus the Christ is the Captain. He is the Commander who has never lost a battle, and can never lose one. He was once taken prisoner by the enemy, but it was not possible that he could be holden of it.

Brothers and Sisters, let us not slumber in these trying times. As Brother Neill would say, Let us make the effort.

Your Brother in the Anointed,
D. C. ROBISON.

The great difficulty with goodness throughout the world is, that it is a little but timid, and vice is very bold. Good people, following out their instincts, imagine that all that is necessary to do to convert the world is to show the right paths.—Archbishop Ireland.

ROMANS XIII. 12.

The night is far spent, the day is at hand. Let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light.

The times indicate that the day of the Lord draweth nigh. Paul in 1 Thessalonians v. says, But of the times and seasons brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you; for yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night. But ye brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief. Ye are all the children of the day. We are not of the night nor of darkness.

In 2 Peter iii. we read, The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness, but is long-suffering to usward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night, in the which the heavens shall pass away, and the elements melt with fervent heat; the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up. Ye therefore beloved, seeing ye know these things before, beware lest ye also being led away with the error of the wicked, fall from your own steadfastness.

So brethren and sisters, we see there is danger of us being led away, especially in these last days, for it is he that endureth to the end that shall be saved. So let us exhort one another, and so much the more as we see the day approaching.

My prayer is that we may all be found worthy of a place in that kingdom when Jesus comes.

WILSON TOWNSEND.

2 TIMOTHY iii. 15.

And that from a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus.

So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God.

Solomon said Train up a child in the way he should do, and when he is old he will not depart from it.

For the grace of God that bringeth salvation, hath appeared unto all men, teaching us that denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously and godly, in this present world, looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ.

ANNIE BOSTON.

I Impeach Intemperance.

"Before God and man, before the church and the world, I impeach intemperance. I charge it with the murder of innumerable souls. I charge it as the cause of almost all the poverty, and almost all the crime, and almost all the ignorance, and almost all the irreligion that disgrace and afflict the land. I do in my conscience believe that these intoxicating stimulants have sunk into perdition more men and women than found a grave in the deluge which swept over the highest hill tops, engulfing the world, of which but eight were saved. As compared with other vices, it may be said of this, 'Saul has slain his thousands, but this David his tens of thousands.'" —Dr. Chalmers.

Editor Restitution:

Brother F. L. Austin has announced to us that we cannot depend on his services after May 1, and has advised us to look for some one else to take his place as our pastor. We are in correspondence with some parties, but don't know what the result may be. We thought by announcing in THE RESTITUTION that we were in search of a good man, and requesting any of the brethren to recommend any such one, that they might know of, it would help us.

Brother Austin has been with us and the Niagara Falls Church for several years, and has given good satisfaction, and at our annual meeting we voted to have him remain.

Any one wishing to correspond with me on this subject, please address me at Fonthill, Ontario.

We thank you for the favor.

No further word has come to us of Brother Wince, and we suppose "no news is good news."

A NOTE received from Brother Huggins just before going to press says the new Church building in Cleveland is completed and will be dedicated on April 24.

THOSE who ask about Brother Huggins' book must be patient. He is no doubt having his full share of worry, and when he is ready he will announce it promptly.

THE following item is clipped from the Chicago Record-Herald of April 3, 1910:

"Nations of the world today are the unwitting servants of God, carrying out, unknown to themselves, the very prophecies he made in the book of Revelation in the Bible, according to statements made by Dr. James M. Gray of the Moody Bible Institute in a lecture at the Moody Church last night. It was the first of a series of addresses on the "Things that must shortly come to pass," which Dean Gray is to make before the Moody Bible Class. Every nation of the world today is in the same position as was Babylon when God made it the ruler of the earth and conqueror of the Jewish nations. They will be destroyed, as was Babylon, because of their iniquities, at the second coming of Christ, not now far distant, when the Jews will be the rulers of the earth, with Jerusalem as the capital city."

This item shows that some degree of light is breaking in, but on close examination we find much of error. We recently heard a popular minister of a popular church express his belief in the future personal return of Jesus to the earth, and of a period of time when his saints were to be here and reign with him. This seemed fair and promising, but subsequent questioning brought out that he likewise believed that men possessed immortal souls, which went to heaven at the death of the good man, and to "the other place" if a bad man. That the "kingdom of God" was set up at Pentecost, and all kindred "beliefs" were entertained by this "Reverend." Being curious to know how and why these souls that had been in heaven some of them for centuries should be disturbed and brought back to earth, we found that all there was to learn was that "we were very near in harmony—there being only a slight difference of understanding about the methods God would use in carrying out his wonderful plan, so full of mystery for us, and we can now at best only see through a glass darkly." We are forced to admit that there is at least a "slight" difference. It is likely if "Dr." Gray was asked a few leading questions there would be a "slight" difference between his "beliefs" and God's Word.

Right here we wish to say that so-called "Missions to the Jews," which are established in our larger cities, and beg loudly for aid, are managed by persons who believe in immortal-soulism with all its attendant errors, and an Orthodox Hebrew converted to such "Christianity" is not bettered any that we can see.

You are in debt to the world just to the extent to which you can better it, which is the extent of your talent, declares Today's Magazine for May, in a discussion of "Your Debt to the World." No matter how small your talent, if well used you will be entitled to rank with those who succeed; if not well applied you must take your place with those who fail.

There are two great rulers in the universe—God and Satan. You are serving under one of these two great rulers. Which? There are two roads which lead through time to eternity—the broad road and the narrow road. You are walking in one of the roads. Which?

Were you, with your present traits of character, to be transformed and changed into some expression of plant life, what would it be, a flower or a weed?

Location of the Kingdom.

You will notice in my second article that the throne and kingdom of David was the kingdom of God, Jesus and his apostles preached about, and that Jesus is the rightful heir to that throne and kingdom. In this article I will locate the seat of this future kingdom.

First I will locate where David's seat of government was, as it will be lots of help to us in locating the headquarters of the coming kingdom of which Jesus will be the King. 2 Sam. v. 6. The king and his men went to Jerusalem unto the Jebusites, the inhabitants of the land, which spake unto David, saying, except thou take away the blind and the lame, thou shalt not come in hither; thinking David cannot come in hither, verse 7. Nevertheless David took the stronghold of Zion; the same is the city of David. Verse 9. So David dwelt in the fort, and called it the city of David.

1 Chronicles xi. 4, And David and all Israel went to Jerusalem, which is Jebus, where the Jebusites were, the inhabitants of the land. And the inhabitants of Jebus said to David, thou shalt not come hither. Nevertheless David took the castle of Zion, and David dwelt in the castle, therefore they called it the city of David.

1 Kings ii. 11, And the days that David reigned over Israel were forty years: seven years reigned he in Hebron, and thirty and three years reigned he in Jerusalem.

We learn from the above Scriptures that Jerusalem was the seat of David's kingdom. Now there were two names applied to that seat of government that I want to call the reader's attention to—Zion and Jerusalem—the headquarters of the future kingdom of God will be located there, as the following Scriptures will show:

Zechariah i. 17, The Lord shall yet comfort Zion, and shall yet choose Jerusalem. Jeremiah iii. 17, At that time they shall call Jerusalem the throne of the Lord; and all the nations shall be gathered unto it, to the name of the Lord, to Jerusalem. Isa. xxiv. 23, The moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed, when the Lord of Hosts shall reign in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before his ancients gloriously. Micah iv. 7, I will make her that halted a remnant and her that was cast off a strong nation; and the Lord shall reign over them in Mount Zion from henceforth, even forever. Joel iii 16, The Lord also shall roar out of Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem. So shall ye know that I am the Lord your God dwelling in Zion, my holy mountain; then shall Jerusalem be holy, and there shall no strangers pass through her any more. Zechariah xiv. 16, And it shall come to pass, that every one that is left of all the nations which came against Jerusalem, shall even go up from year to year to worship the King, the Lord of Hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles. And it shall be, that whoso will not come up of all the families of the earth unto Jerusalem to worship the King, the Lord of Hosts, even upon them shall be no rain.

You will see from the last Scripture introduced that the headquarters of the kingdom of God will be at Jerusalem, and that all nations will be required to go up there and worship the Lord of Hosts. The Lord Jesus will not only be King over the house of Israel in Palestine, but will be King over the whole earth, as the following Scriptures will show:

Zechariah xiv. 9, And the Lord shall be King over all the earth; in that day there shall be one Lord, and his name one. Psalms lxxii. 8, He shall have dominion also from sea to sea, and from the rivers unto the ends of the earth. Verse 11, Yea, all kings shall fall down before him; all nations shall serve him. Psalms xxxii. 28—All the kindreds of the nations shall worship before thee. For the kingdom is the Lord's, and he is the governor among the nations.

How strange it is that our church-kingdom friends overlook all these plain well-defined Scriptures, and never preach the things concerning it.

Yours in search of truth,
T. J. COLEMAN.

Brother Underwood,

As in my work I have appeared before the readers of THE RESTITUTION often, I crave permission to address them again, not to create strife, but if possible to harmonize and unite.

How can differences of view exist among those that should be of "the same mind, and speak the same things?" How shall those who seem to be equally conscientious be able to bring the dissenting elements into the "unity of the faith?"

Those who desire with more than earthly desire to see our common cause grow and prosper—we who have successfully stood shoulder to shoulder without a tremor, against the combined attacks of orthodoxy, now tremble under the apprehension that our people are in more danger from self-destruction than the forces of the adversary.

A gospel believer told me recently, "The Church of God is being shot all to pieces." This may be a dismal view of the matter, but if we can open our eyes to the condition, and devise a way to prevent it, we will bring "a God send" to the cause.

While the fighting spirit is among us there even seems to be danger in suggesting an armistice and terms of peace. It has been suggested that "a creed" is the only remedy. Brethren, have you fully weighed this remedy and its results? In this case who would retain the name—those who took a creed, or those who stayed with the Bible as their only creed? Have you realized that various distinct Church of God denominations would speedily become more numerous comparatively than has resulted from the subdivisions of orthodoxy?

Some that have done evangelistic work might throw aside their convictions for the sake of uniting under a predominating human power, but would they not sling honesty aside with the same gesture? I mean those who have stamped creeds as essentially wrong.

If the same errors existed in apostolic times that exist now, and they wrote no creed, then I do not think we should do so. If they wrote the Bible for a creed, we will stay with that and strive to remain established in the doctrine.

Our people throughout the United States have been of the same mind and have spoken the same things concerning the cardinal principles. These have appeared for years in the upper corner of THE RESTITUTION. I endorsed and obeyed those fundamentals when but a boy, and all the way through the half century Eternal life was to come through Christ. The life and the kingdom will come when the King comes. The kingdom we pray for will be the kingdom of God, of heaven, of Jesus Christ, of Israel, will be given to the saints. We all believe the same "gospel of the kingdom."

Then let us have peace among ourselves, and may the God of grace and peace abide with us. I wish to ask a few questions:

1. Should not every convert be so thouroughly converted that he would immediately engage in bringing his whole soul and body under self-discipline?

2. Should not the teachings of the Bible be the only standard of discipline?

3 Should not the Church assist the member rather than seek to condemn him?

4. Should not all members in the spirit of meekness engage earnestly in rescuing themselves and their brethren? and when the line of tolerance is passed, and every effort has failed, should not the congregation and its officers with which the delinquent has been associated dispose of the case alone as the Bible directs?

If we study and follow our Bible we have small need of a human creed. I conclude by expressing lasting "faith hope and love, these three; but the greatest of these is love."

Bible Study.

There never was a day in which earnest Bible study was more necessary than this present one, nor was there one in which so rich a harvest stood ready for the reaping. Most religious people are literally afraid to investigate the Bible, and well they may be if the canons of the Higher Criticism are to guide their study. Most of the laity consider it beyond their sphere, and so far as "Moses and the Prophets" are concerned, even the clergy almost entirely neglect them.

We readily grant that Sin, Repentance and the gospel of a Savior are the vital "ends" of apostolic work. Nevertheless we hold that Christ and the resurrection cannot be successfully preached in this age upon the undermined foundation left by the Higher Critics. It is well for them if they can hold their own souls within the fold; we question it, but be this as it may, it is the rest of men that are the ones whom Christ desires to save, and they have logic left and cannot be savingly reached by any other means than a logical exegesis of the whole Bible, and a satisfactory explanation of its inspiration as such, upon the basis that it is "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth." For not though one arose from the dead will men believe, unless they likewise are taught to believe implicitly, and are made to understand Moses and the Prophets.

It is the Bible that atheists and infidels attack—the Old Testament chiefly—for they are logical, and perceive that if the foundation goes the superstructure cannot stand, no matter how eloquently it can be clothed in agnostic sermons. Hence this Old Testament is our main bulwark of defence.

It will not do to preach Christ and deny Moses. It will not do to doubt the universality of the flood, and ask men to accept a Savior who alludes to it. It will not do to doubt Joshua's long day, with the sun and moon poised in mid-heaven while he fought, and yet stultify our hearts with hopes of a longer day when even the sun and moon will not be needed.

If, therefore, we are to resume our place militantly among the noble army of those who have already testified for Jesus Christ with their lives and works, we must repudiate in toto this iniquitous school of criticism, and recapture the Ararat redoubt, replace the long day, believe Moses rather than the Moabite stone, and the Bible rather than a sunburned brick picked up at Babylon.

As the study of the prophecy was impressively recommended by the Savior, we must study it, and do so until we understand it; but in nowise may we dare to alter it in one single jot or tittle.—Selected by Mrs. C. W. Russel.

Obituary.

On March 23, 1910, at her home in Tacoma, Washington, Sister Teresa Stacy Swan died of Cancer of the stomach. She was laid to rest in Oakwood Cemetery, asleep in Jesus, awaiting the Master's call to life and immortality. She was 73 years of age when she closed up her life work.

Born at Tralseden, England, Jan. 30, 1837, of English parents, and when 20 years of age moved with them to New York State. She soon after met Mr. Wm. E. Swan, whom she married and with whom she lived a happy contented life for nearly 50 years.

From New York they migrated to Ontario, Canada, in which Province was born to them seven children, three boys and four girls, all living now except one girl who died in infancy.

Their next move was to the State of Wisconsin, and from there to Andover, South Dakota, this was in 1882.

Early in life she united with the Methodist Church, and while she was sincere in her profession yet doubts were continually in her mind at the apparent inconsistencies of the Bible, but when Brother D. T. Halstead came there in 1885 with the "Glad Tidings of the Kingdom of God" she was the first to respond, and was baptized into the name of Christ, on the same day that the writer's wife and a number of others were, April 14, 1885. Thus she became a legally adopted child of God, and from that day to the day of her death she remained firm in the faith of the gospel. She was seventeen years with the Church of God at Andover, holding fast the faithful word, ever patient and faithful. Then she removed to Tacoma, Washington where she has resided since. Away from those of like precious faith she had nothing left her but her Bible, THE RESTITUTION, and her God, which was sufficient. She fought the good fight of faith and we feel confident has laid hold on the eternal life whereunto she was called.

Two of the children, Mrs. Charlotte Hogg and Mrs. Nellie Bingham are with their father in Tacoma, the comfort of the bereaved husband. These with Albert Swan and wife were the only ones of the children who could get to the dying bedside in time to see her alive.

With sorrowful hearts we give her up till the Master comes, when "we shall clasp glad hands on a brighter shore, where sorrow and death will be no more." Till then, adieu.

Submitted in love.

Sunday School Lesson.

APRIL 24, 1910.

Warning and Invitation. — Matthew xi. 20-30.

Golden text—"Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Matt. xi. 28.

In our last lesson Jesus sent word by John's messengers concerning his work in performing miracles; and of what he was teaching—that a message of good tidings was being given to the poor. His work had been quiet and gentle, with no harshness. There had been mild reproof to the Scribes and Pharisees, but still there were those who refused to believe, in the face of all the evidence that was given. It would seem that the high motives given for reformation, the glad tidings of coming glory, the wonderful works bearing testimony to the truth of the claims of Jesus, ought to have been sufficient to convince any one. Surely those who were intelligent and well-educated ought to have seen the force of the words and works of Jesus. But that generation was by our Lord likened to children in the street, calling to each other, and quarreling because one had piped and the other had not danced. They were a lot of fault-finders. They were not satisfied with John when he came not eating and drinking, and said he had a devil. They complained about Jesus because he attended a dinner given in his honor by one of his converts, and called him a glutton.

Seeing these men in the very places where most of Jesus' work had been done, and the measure of their unbelief, he changes from the gentleness that had characterized his labors thus far, and upbraids them for their lack of faith.

What three cities are named among the ones where Jesus had done mighty works?

Why were those places named specially?

Many and repeated opportunities had been given the people of these cities, and yet they repented not.

What cities are mentioned in comparison with these Galilean towns?

Tyre and Sidon were Phonician cities on the coast of the Mediterranean Sea, and were like most seaport towns very wicked places. Sodom was the city where Lot lived, and which was doomed to destruction by fire and brimstone because of such gross wickedness that even ten righteous men could not be found in it. See Genesis xviii. and xix.

What was the point of comparison between these cities?

Chorazin, Bethsaida and Capernaum, with all their advantages, were still sinful to an equality with these heathen places, and merit the upbraiding of our Lord. Jesus says that if the mighty works that had been done for Capernaum had been done in Sodom, it would have remained.

Advanced classes may endeavor to figure out why such a chance had not been given to Sodom, if they wish such discussion. We will simply say, God did not show them such mighty works, and that is enough.

The main lesson to be drawn from this section of the Scriptures is this: Tyre and Sidon and Sodom are ranked, with no knowledge of the message of repentance for salvation as given by John, or the glad tidings spoken by Jesus, backed by his wonderful works, as higher than Chorazin, Bethsaida and Capernaum, who have the advantage of seeing and hearing both John and Jesus.

In view of this, what can we expect if we reject this message? We have the account of the works of Jesus and those inspired apostles who followed him, and of the words and works of Christian men and women through all the centuries till now. We know of the suffering, the death, the resurrection and ascension of Jesus, and all that has been promised of coming glory, the full volume of which eye hath not seen, ear hath not heard, nor the mind conceived. Yet a very few take any delight in the Lord's cause, but still reject all his offers of mercy.

What will Jesus say of such a class of people?

Leaving this part of our lesson we come to verse 25, and the attitude of Jesus seems to change. By reading the account as given by Luke x. we learn that the disciples who had been sent out, had made return of their work, and there was cause for rejoicing in the measure of success that had attended them. So we find Jesus thanking his Father that while things had been rejected by the Scribes and Pharisees, who were self-wise and of such vast understanding; that the unlearned disciples, the babes in his household, were able to comprehend and grasp the meaning of his words and works, and had acted on what they had heard, and had gladly accepted him.

In Mark x. 15, we are told that we must "receive the kingdom of God as a little child." Humbly, meekly, in humility. Not asserting our own righteousness, but acknowledging our utter lack and emptiness, willing to be filled by Jesus.

Must we understand from the words of Jesus that real wisdom will keep us from God?

In verse 28 we have the gracious invitation given.

What is this invitation?

To whom is it addressed?

Those worn by endless toil, those oppressed and borne down by a load that no one knows of. The poor man with his poverty, the rich man with a load of responsibility. All are invited to put aside their burden.

What are such persons asked to do?

Simply "come unto me." It will be well for teachers to explain to people what it means to "come to Jesus." This is heard so many times at so-called revivals. People are asked to "accept Christ," to "hold up their hands" in token of their acceptance of him, and such things. They hear a few pathetic and affecting stories told, but get no instruction that will give them any knowledge of what it all means. In a vague way they are conscious of being sinners, and of needing salvation, and are told that Jesus can cure them if they will let him. As for understanding the plan and purpose of God, and how this is to be accomplished, they are most woefully ignorant.

The invitation "come unto me" means more than "just hold up your hands."

What does Jesus promise those who come to him?

The activity and energy of our present day life makes "rest" the sweetest word of all.

The "rest" in Jesus does not imply idleness by any means. His call is to labor. A change of occupation is what we need. Be my disciple—learn of me. Enter my service—be my co-laborer—put on the yoke with me. Leave off the burden of your own sins and wickedness, and accept my service. My yoke is so fitted that it is easy—will not gall the neck—will not hurt the tender places.

However, the "yoke" implies constraint. A man can get no true rest and satisfaction unless he is of service to his fellows.

A yoke also implies fellowship. Jesus invites to "my yoke." He wants us to get under one end of the yoke, and he the other.

A yoke likewise implies labor. No one can enjoy fully what he does not make an effort to attain. A religion of idleness is worthless.

This lesson ought to help us to settle the question, Am I on the Lord's side?

Have we repented of our sins?

Have we accepted his invitation to "come."

Have our sins and burdens been laid on him, and we made free?

Have we the teachable spirit of children?

Have we taken his yoke upon us?

Are we bearing his cross, sacrificing self, sharing with him the labor of telling the world of him, and his work of love?

We may not be the architect or designer. We may not be the master-builder. We may not be the skilled workman who chisels out the design by the pattern given. We may not even be given the task of laying the finished stone, but perhaps we can mix the mortar, and that is a very necessary and particular work—each is essential.

Editor Restitution:

I still receive and enjoy your paper, full of precious truths and the glorious gospel of the kingdom. I feel that I must tell it to every one. There is so much that ought to be done for mankind before Jesus comes.

Brother W. H. Wilson has been here preaching. His sermons have been very instructive to me. I was sorry he could not stay longer. Pray for me that I may ever continue in the faith once delivered to the saints.

When I think of the awful suffering that Christ endured on the cross, and of the time when he will come back to this earth, we ought not to let anything stand in our way, but live holy lives, and watch for his coming.

Your in the Blessed Hope.

Kings and Rulers are Usually Sinners.

PSALMS ii. 2.

Our Lord's death was desired and sought by a sinful people; but the heads of the governments were especially desirous to invent a pretext to take his life. Herod tried to kill Christ as soon as he was born, for the reason that as "King of the Jews" he was a rival to his throne. Matt. ii. 3:17. All government officials were unfriendly to Christ, and sought to take his life, except Pilate, who disliked to condemn the innocent; but when a clique of foul-mouthed politicians clamored for his life, he became "afraid" (1 John xix. 18;) and when they made the threat, "If thou let this man go, thou art not Cæsar's friend, whosoever maketh himself a king speaketh against Cæsar (v. 12,) "that saying" (13) brought Pilate to time. The reason "that saying" had such a powerful effect upon Pilate was this: he was holding his office under, and was subject to, Cæsar. He knew that if the people made an accusation to the Roman Emperor, as they had threatened to do, of his friendship to "another King, one Jesus" (Acts xvii. 7,) he would lose his position, if not his head. His unwillingness to give sentence against Christ did not extenuate his sin; rather it aggravated it. Hence Pilate is mentioned by name, as is also Herod, as being one of the "kings of the earth" who fulfilled the prophecy, "The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the Lord," Acts iv. 26, 27. The word YATSAR, "set," means to station one's self in opposition,—a most determined, resolute and defiant attitude. Psa. xxxvi. 4; 2 Sam. xviii. 13. The Lord's enemies—his worst ones—have been, and are, the officials in the kingdoms of this world.

Of the forty-two kings who reigned over Israel and Judah, most of them were either sinners, or what is worse, apostates. If this is true of the officials of God's Theocracy, what about the government authorities in heathen nations? "Time and chance happens" (Eccl. ix. 11) to us all in many things but when it comes to the destiny of governments, their kings and rulers, we are within the limitations of a definite Providence. Sometimes God providentially manipulates an individual, if he is uncommonly righteous or wicked, but this is not usual. When organized into a government, however, man's power becomes so great that it is necessary for the finger of God to providentially touch them, in appointing them "times" and "bounds of habitation." Acts xvii. 26. To effectually do this, he has to lead "counsellors away spoiled" at one time, and break the "bonds of kings" at another. Job xii. 17, 18. Therefore promotion to national honor does not come from the votes of the people; it does not come "from the east, nor from the west, nor from the south. But God is the Judge." Psa. lxxv. 6, 7. God is the Maker of the earth, man and beast; and as Owner he claims the right to manage affairs as it seems good to him. Jer. xxvii. 5. By virtue of the owner's right, "he removeth kings, and setteth up kings." Dan. ii. 21. Nebuchadnezzar was slow to learn this lesson about God's political prerogative, and some of our brethren are. He was punished "till" he learned and recognized God's superintendence over national affairs. Dan. iv. 25, 32. Punishment for seven times passed over him before he knew "that the Most High God ruled in the kingdoms of men, and that he appointed over it whomsoever he will." iv. 37; v. 21. He sets up or dethrones kings; "the heavens do rule." And while he is the ruler and appointer of all officials, we must remember this fact, that he selects the person best suited to his purposes, without any regard to morality or religion. He not only rules in the kingdoms of men, and giveth it to whom he will, but it is added, "And setteth up over it the basest of men." Dan. iv. 7.

On Using Our Talents.

Dear Brother Huggins:

I would like to say a few words to the dear ones of the Household of God. I have been studying about the talents, and I believe we all have at least one, and many of us have more, for our Savior spoke of some receiving five. It is the duty of every one of us to use the talent the Lord has given us in the way that will be most pleasing to him, so when he comes he may hear the Master say "well done." There are some who are called servants, yet they have to go into outer darkness because they have been unprofitable. Of course we feel sometimes as if what we do is so little it may not be noticed by the Lord, but if we have one talent it may be to feed a hungry tramp and hand him a little tract, or tell a neighbor about the gospel and the coming of the Lord, and we can use the money the Lord has provided us with to help his work along, for every thing we have belongs to the Lord. How careful we should be that we use it to honor him.

We read in 1 John iii. 17, that whosoever hath this world's goods and seeth his brother in need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him.

Dear Brothers and Sisters, the Master commanded that the gospel should be preached in all the world for a witness. We some of us might say That is not to me, for I can't preach, but we can all help in the work, for how can they preach except they be sent, and I know of a brother who is a poor man in this world's goods, but is rich in the faith. Unless he gets help he will have to leave the work of the Lord to work for his family. Now can we not all send him a little, and let him still declare the good tidings of the gospel to a perishing world, as the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, and then we shall be sharers in his work in the Lord. This brother of whom I speak is J. M. Morgan, Bristow, Okla. He is sound in doctrine, and when he is reviled he takes it in the true spirit of a Christian. We are commanded to exhort one another to love and good works, and I believe we would be performing good works to help the gospel.

Hoping you will receive this in the same spirit of love it is written in, you Sister in hope of eternal life when Jesus comes.

MARTHA SUTTERFIELD.

Has God Promised Heaven to the Righteous?

You ought to be able to give a clear and confident answer to this question. If you are not, the eyes of your understanding are shut, so that you do not know what is the hope of the calling, which is just the reverse case from that of the believers of the apostolic age. (See Eph. i. 18) To be thus ignorant is more serious than you may be disposed to think. Upon the opening of our eyes, our salvation depends (Acts xxvi. 18;) if our understanding of the divine purposes remains dark, we are cut off from the life to come. (See Eph. iv. 18, and believe.)

Now, then, has God promised heaven to the righteous? If you are a mere church-goer, or even an earnest believer in pulpit theology, you will say, "Of course he has: who ever heard of anything else?" Now, just try to prove it. Go to the Bible, of course: for there is no other "Word of the Lord" at present. Hunt up hard, and succeed if you can. I tell you beforehand, you will fail. You will not find anywhere, from Genesis to Revelation, a promise that God will take the righteous to heaven. You will ask, "What has he promised, then?" Now let us go to the root of the matter.

TO WHOM WERE THE PROMISES MADE.

I take it for granted you will bow to the apostle Paul as an authority. Hear him, then: "To Abraham and his seed were the promises made" (Gal. iii. 16;) "He (Abraham) received the promises" (Heb. xi 17;) Abraham "had the promises" (Heb. vi. 13.)

Now what was the promise to Abraham? Paul calls it, "The promise that he (Abraham) should be the heir of the world." (Rom. iv. 13.) Does that mean heaven?—But Paul is more precise still. He says that Abraham "sojourned in the land of promise as in a strange country." By no possibility can you make this mean heaven. You might say that "the world" meant "the world to come," and that the world to come was heaven. That would not get you out of the difficulty. Still it might seem to you an answer: but you can, in no way, make out heaven to be a place in which Abraham "sojourned, as in a strange country." Of this place, Paul says, it was "a place which he (Abraham) should after receive for an inheritance" (Heb. xi. 8.) So that Abraham's coming inheritance is the land in which he was a stranger when he lived on earth.

In view of this, you will understand all the following passages, which, if you are in earnest, you will turn up:—Gen. xlii. 14 17; xv. 8 18; xvii. 8; xxvi. 2-4; xxviii. 3 4, 13, 14; Acts vii. 5; Luke xiii. 28, 29; i. 68-73; Lev. xxiv. 42; Matt. viii. 11; Micah vii. 20.

You will see how this is confirmed by considering Christ. He also is a holder or possessor of the promises. This may seem strange to you; but if you are a believer of the Bible you will believe it when you see it Scripturally testified. It is testified, then, the promises were made to "Abraham and his seed." Of this Paul says, "Not unto seeds as of many, but as of one, and to thy seed, which is Christ" (Gal. iii. 16.) Now consider the promises made to Christ, of which his people are fellow-heirs: "I will give unto the heathen (the world of nations) for thine inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession" (Psalm ii. 8.) "The kingdoms of this world become (at last) the Kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ" (Rev. xi. 15.)

This will enable you to understand the following Scripture declarations concerning the coming inheritance of the righteous. "Behold the righteous shall be recompensed in the earth" (Prov. xi. 31.) "Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth" (Matt. v. 5.) "For the evil doers shall be cut off; but those that wait upon the Lord, they shall inherit the earth" (Psalms xxxvii. 9.) "But the meek shall inherit the earth, and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace" (Psalm xxxvii. 11.) "For such as be blessed of him shall inherit the earth, and they that be cursed of him shall be cut off" (Psalms xxxvii. 22.) "The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein forever" (Psalms xxxvii. 29.) "Wait on the Lord, and keep his way, and he shall exalt thee to inherit the land: when the wicked are cut off, thou shalt see it" (Psalms xxxvii. 34.) "Redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation; and hast made us unto our God kings and priests: and we shall reign on the earth" (Rev. v. 9 10.) "And the kingdom, and dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him" (Dan. vii. 27.)—Bible Finger Post.

The Man of Sin.

2 THESS II. 1-12.

The Apostle Paul in writing to the Thessalonians a second letter, beseeches them neither to be troubled or shaken in mind regarding the coming of our Lord, as though he was just at hand; because, neither the spirit indicated his near coming, nor by word of mouth or Scripture, nor by letter from us can you expect the Lord just now. This is pretty strong language, and to those who believe the Lord will come today or tonight, with respect we say, we think this statement is as true today as when it was written; with this difference: "Now is our salvation nearer than when we first believed." We mean the sign, the indication, the signal by which we are to know when our Lord is right at hand, has not appeared. "Let no man be guile you in any wise; for it will not be, except the falling away come first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition; he that opposeth and exalteth himself against all that is called God." That the great falling away has begun cannot be questioned, and the mystery of iniquity is also powerfully working which will, ere long, produce this lawless one. There is always a head to every system on earth, good or bad, but it is a problem, whether the Pope or Protestant bishop could ever change for better or worse, while the irreconcilable Jew can do most any thing. "Have I not chosen twelve of you, and one is a devil"; "A son of perdition," and again, "I have come in my Father's name and ye receive me not, if another come in his own name him ye will receive." Is the movement called Zionism the restoration of Israel spoken of by the prophets? They do not know the Lord, their eyes are not opened, they are returning under strong delusion and the people of God should have nothing to do with it; for the Jews will see worse days than did ever the crusaders when the abomination spoken of by Daniel the prophet is set up in that holy place. This man has numerous appellations namely: "Man of sin," "lawless one," "mystery of iniquity," "God," "working of Satan," by the apostle John he is called "anti-christ," the "beast"; by Daniel "the king," by Isaiah "Lucifer" personified; "antitype" of Pharaoh, king of Babylon and king of Tyre. Some are expecting the rise again of Assyria and Babylon, others of Rome, Greece and what not; but history does not repeat itself in this manner under existing conditions. These may all rise in their order of judgment but something new is coming in our day through the unspeakable Jew. It behooves us to know something of this man, surely as much as is given us in the inspired Word, it may be our Lord will save us from him, inasmuch as he deceives the whole world. "For the mystery of lawlessness doth already work; only there is one that restraineth now until he be taken out of the way." Many teach that this restraining power is themselves and when they are gone, then this wicked one will appear. This interpretation would make the apostle contradict himself. Had the apostle told the Thessalonians that they might be taken away first, then we believers of the present day could expect to be taken away first, before the man of sin is revealed. But the apostle says explicit, very distinctly and positively affirming, that, "The Lord will not come except the man of sin be revealed first." And surely there are no later revelations that would contradict the apostle which the apostle Paul failed to give us, as intimated by some in their ignorance. We pray the to banish such a thought as being the inspiration of Satan, which might lead to their destruction. 2 Pet. iii 15, 16. It behooves us therefore to inquire what is that that is taken out of the way? They say it is the spirit and they are taken with the spirit. But what is the spirit? or rather what gives the spirit? is it not "the Word of faith which we preach"? Believed and obeyed. We are exhorted to "Work while it is called day, for the night cometh when no man can work." And again, "Now while the bridegroom tarried they all slumbered and slept." Matt xxv 5.

This is what is taken away, the believer's inability to work or do anything but stand, so we perceive the condition of the times which reveals the man of sin. It works both ways, mystery of iniquity in the world, and the loss of the power of the gospel when the darkness is so great they cannot work and they are said to sleep. The restraining power is the Word of God, the gospel and the world's ballast. And not only will the gospel not be preached but the law by which crime is kept under will be removed to a great extent when our obedience is fulfilled and their iniquity come to the full—then shall the end come. Fear not timid one, God will not suffer you to be tried above that which you are able to bear. If you live, you will rejoice at the despoiling of your goods and being counted worthy to suffer for Jesus' sake or to glorify God by your death. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." We might inquire why their condition in the last end of the age is so deceiving that all are led astray except the elect? Our answer is found in verses 9, 10, "Whose coming is according to the working of Satan, with all power and signs and lying wonders, and with all deceit of unrighteousness for them that are perish in: because they received not the love of the truth that they might be saved." They believe a lie and come to judgment, instead of coming to the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. What is truth! And what is a lie? Scripture answers the former, "Thy Word is truth." The Apostle Paul says, we must spiritually discern and rightly divide it. When Pilate asked Jesus, "What is truth?" Jesus did not reply directly, but said to him, "They that have delivered me to thee have the greater sin." The truth in that day was for the Jews to acknowledge Jesus as the Christ, the Son of the living God. So the deceiver is always a greater sin than those deceived, the teacher than his class, the pastor than his people. This "man of sin" is a natural product of the conditions existing at the time of the end, and it is our business to discern him, lest we be deceived with the rest. Now, if it be true that the "manchild" embraces, not only the Lord, but all who endure with him and wear a crown with him and worship not the beast; so is the "Man of sin" comprehended in all who do worship him, and his image, receiving the mark upon their forehead and hand. As righteousness has come to the full in one man Jesus Christ the Son of God, the last man Adam; so must sin come to the full in one man, the son of the first man Adam.

There are many delusions in the world today, but the worst and most popular is the sin of Cain; first as to his bloodless sacrifice, not respected, which led secondly to the murder of his brother. We have in scientific Christianity so called, and the seeking of manifestations by the ignorant professors the beginning of the end. The "man of sin" is a usurper, a counterfeit, personating God; while he reigns, for a short time, over a counterfeit kingdom. He is not the only "man of sin" in his day; and not the only king, there are ten of them, but he is the worst for he is the head. May the Lord save us from the "woman," the "Dragon," the "Beast" and the "False Prophet."

Words of Appreciation.

They are not spoken as they should be. Every human being is responsive to words of encouragement. Words of approval carry with them spur and stimulus to new and better endeavor. Flattery is hollow, insincere, and may not be true to fact; but just and sincere commendation is always in order. I do not see how the latter can ever be followed by harmful results.

The point I wish to make in this article is this: Our words of appreciation for the merit and the real well-doing of others are too few and far between.

The pastor often longs to know if his messages are helping and bringing comfort to his hearers. Without spoken gratitude or appreciation we leave the church and the man of God knows not the good he may have done.

The teacher longs to know if her methods and her faithful school-room work are meeting with parental approval. She knows not how to interpret our silence. If we could only speaks one word or write the briefest message, it would wonderfully cheer a hard-working, nerve-worn toiler.

The editor puts both brain and heart into the weekly paper coming into our homes. Do we send brightness and cheer into the editorial rooms with some occasional encouraging word?

The maid in the kitchen does not need scolding as much as she needs appreciation. She may have her faults. Constant nagging will make them worse.

We need to strike the motive in the toiler's soul. The outspoken "well-done" when really deserved will be a tonic reaching on for hours and even days.

In the home there is a painful lack of the words of appreciation. The husband goes off to his work heavy-hearted because of a wife's dumbness when she should have spoken. The wife weeps in secret because a just measure of credit is not given to her well-meant endeavor. Children might not so often be bad if they were not so often told that they are bad. Oh mother! Try another way. When your boy does well, tell him so, and follow the word with a kiss.

Our loved ones will die some day. Let us not lay up an added sorrow to the pangs of bereavment by memory of our fault-finding or our cruel silence. Let us sweeten the hours with words that help and smiles that will cheer. Let us dismiss from our heart all unjust judgment and from our lips all words of unkind criticism. Then shall our lives indeed be a transforming agency helping to make the world better and get it ready for the coming of our Lord.—E. E. Rogers.

Personal Liberty.

One trick of Satan is to call good evil and evil good; light darkness and darkness light. Many a good thing is thus blackened and cursed by a bad name; and many a bad thing has a currency because it bears a good name to which it has no shadow of right or title. Antichrist takes the name of Christ; hypocrites steal the livery of heaven to serve the devil in; and Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light to deceive the people. We have heard of a pamphlet which those who read it pronounced a tissue of misrepresentations and false statements, but which its sanctimonious author dignified with the title of "Truth;" we have seen grog-holes which, with similar accuracy, were labled "Sample Rooms;" and now the right to sell rum, and scatter death and damnation through the land, is dignified by red-nosed politicians as "Personal Liberty."

The Texas Christian Advocate says that the trouble with this "Personal Liberty" business is, that its advocates apply it at the wrong end of the social series.

"See how it works: at one end of the series is Liquor Dealer Smith; at the other is Farmer Jones, an honest, industrious, law-abiding citizen. Guard, say these statesmen; and if you do not, liberty is gone, and the union of Church and State with all other imaginary evils will come; guard well Liquor Dealer Smith's sacred right, in consideration of the price of a bottle of whiskey, to convert neighbor Brown into a temporary maniac, and turn him loose with the murderous pistol upon Farmer Jones' honest, industrious son. That is ever so nice for Liquor Dealer Smith, and no doubt he will vote first, last, and all the time for these advocates of 'personal liberty.'

"But what about Farmer Jones in this theory of 'personal liberty?' Why, to him is left the sacred right to bury his noble, murdered boy; the sacred right to prosecute neighbor Brown, the murderer, and pay a lawyer a five hundred dollars' retainer, with the probabilities three to one against conviction; the sacred right to pay fifty dollars of his hard earnings annually in the way of tax to support a score of prisoners in the county jail and keep the criminal courts going, four-fifth of whose business is created by the liquor traffic; the sacred right to raise his children in the midst of a public sentiment debauched by the liquor influence; the sacred right, in spite of his painstaking anxiety, to marry his daughter to a young man that disappoints his raising by the use of whiskey, and develops into a worthless drunkard.

"In his relation to Liquor Dealer Smith, about all the additional sacred right Farmer Jones has, is the right to make a beast of himself, transfer his farm to Smith for whiskey, beggar his family, and then to commit suicide.

"What is there so lovely, so patriotic, so elevating in the business of Liquor Dealer Smith that his 'personal freedom' must be protected in the prosecution of a business that touches so ruinously Farmer Jones at every point? Would not these politicians be doing a nobler work if they would apply their theory of "personal freedom" at Farmer Jones' end of the social series? Liquor Dealer Smith can quit his business, ruinous to everybody but himself, and go to something more honorable and more honest; but Farmer Jones cannot quit footing the bill of taxation and general misfortune that Liquor Dealer Smith brings upon the country. It is fearfully one-sided—this theory of 'personal freedom' as expounded by ramsellers and their political advocates."

The Bible.

The Bible will stand the test of philosophy and the test of science. We need have no fear whatever of the result. The most philosophical nation of the world is now studying the Bible from a philosophical standpoint. There is no need to tremble for the safety of the ark of God. The Great Philosopher, who is also the Scientist, has given to the world this Book, and he knows how to reveal the harmony between his work, his ways, and his Word.

If all women would turn politicians and breathe their politics into the cradle, declaring on the strength of their mother love, and by their faith in Almighty God that their boys must become honest voters and incorruptible legislators they would accomplish more than a thousand civic federations.—F. E. Norcross.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 20.

I have given the dear readers of THE RESTITUTION Auntie Willard's version of how father and his wife surprised them during the Centennial, and will now let her tell of

THE SERMONS.

She says, "Would I could give them as they fell, warm from the living lips. As of old when the disciples came together to break bread and Paul preached to them, so did our brother, the occasion suggesting his themes.

On the first Lord's day, he dwelt upon the Passover and its successor—the Lord's Supper, as Memorial Institution of the two greatest events of Revelation, viz: The deliverance of God's ancient people from their cruel Egytian bondage, and the sufferings, death, resurrection and coming again of our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd and Bishop of our souls. This discourse made us glad that for over thirty years our house had been honored in the observance of these parting words of our Lord—'This doin remembrance of me.' O glory to the name of Jesus!

The next Lord's day on the same occasion, our brother preached to us, ready to depart on the morrow. In a running commentary on John vi. he traced the parallel between the typical manna and the true bread from heaven, of which, if a man eat he shall live forever. In this it was clear that the Lord's Supper is something more than a mere remembrancer; it is a setter forth of that vital union between Christ and his Church, as shown by these words:—'As the living Father hath sent me and I live by the Father, so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me.' This living union to Christ was shown to be wrought by the Holy Spirit of God, as it is written, 'It is the Spirit that quickeneth, the flesh profiteth nothing,' and Jesus, speaking of his own words, said 'They are Spirit (spirit—spoken) and they are life.' Thus is implanted in the believer, 'A well of water springing up into everlasting life.'"

We can partake of Jesus as 'the Bread of heaven,' only by a living faith in the Spirit—spoken words concerning himself, and his mission. "No marvel that the observance of the supper, is life-giving, when it is the very exponent of the believer's life. The view was both melting and inspiring and caused us to extol the God of heaven, and to most fervently pray that our brother may be helped to preach the Word as faithfully in the future as he has for the past thirty-five years.

By the Word, we grow and thrive and arrive at the perfect stature in Christ Jesus. It is here we find the green pastures and the still waters. It is here we learn while passing through this dark valley and shadow of death, —"Thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff, they comfort me.' It is here a table is spread before us in the presence of our enemies, our head is anointed with oil and our cup runneth over. It is here we learn that goodness and mercy shall follow us all the days of our life and that we shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever. Hallelujah to the name of the Lord! How we praise him that once again though it may be for the last time—we have been fed from this inexhaustible store from the living voice of our Brother Chaplin and have had the pleasure of greeting himself and companion in the faith of Jesus.

This visit, with the handiwork of our beloved sister,—a beautiful Grecian ornament that she left suspended over the center-table, form a most satisfactory crowning to our one hundred Centennial visitors.

AUNTIE WINCE.

To Be Continued.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

The Bible.

A DECLARATION OF ITS FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES, WITH EXPLANATIONS OF MANY DIFFICULT TEXTS.

The above is the title page of a book the Editor proposes to publish as soon as enough subscriptions are received to pay the printer. The subject matter of the book as now prepared consists of explanations of more than one hundred and twenty-six subjects; and to these will be added other subjects readers may send us while the book is being gotten ready for the press.

The primary design of the book is to teach aliens the truth. Selections from our writings in THE RESTITUTION, especially from the "Question Box," have been carefully made, and thoroughly revised. The only book ever published by our Church which formulates the fundamental principles of the gospel in propositions, and then explains all difficult texts, introducing every conceivable Bible subject—a variety most pleasing to the reader.

The price will not be less than 25 cents, and not more than $1.00. Do not send money now, but send us your pledges, and when we have received enough pledges to pay the printer, we will go to press, and will announce when our pledged subscribers can remit the money. In sending us pledges to take one or a number of books, be sure and give your correct address.

Send pledges to R. G. Huggins, at 10703 Hampden avenue, Cleveland, O.

Brethren of the Household of Faith in Michigan, Greeting:

At the Annual Conference in 1908, a committee was appointed to recommend a plan of raising more funds for the purpose of furthering evangelistic work in the state of Michigan. Their report has been published in these columns from time to time, as a great many of the brethren have responded nobly, and much additional work has been accomplished.

During the month of October we had some excellent help from Brother S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, with the result that eight dear ones were added to our number, and we have a promise from him that he will return and give Michigan some additional work during the winter, and we trust the brethren who have delayed sending in whatever they intended giving for this work will kindly respond with promptness, for on this depends how long we can keep Brother Lindsay at work. If we could send our offerings quarterly, it would no doubt be easier than to send the whole amount at once, and that would give us more to use during the year. We cannot afford to let this opportunity pass, so will expect the brethren to respond promptly. Forward offerings to A. K. Richardson, R F D 5, Hastings, Michigan, or the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette Street, Grand Rapids Michigan. We thank you in advance.

Yours in the service of the King,

F. V. BLAKELY, Sec.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publishar to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Berean meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 303 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. No stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, has neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application. Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise," "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10643 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Try Again.

If at first you do succeed,
Try again!
Life is more than just one deed:
Try again!
Never stop with what you've done,
More remains than you have won,
Full content's vouchsafed to none;
Try again!

If you've won on lower plane,
Try again!
Life's higher than one campaign:
Try again!
Bend your goodness to the fore,
Strive to seize one standard more,
Still unguined are gains galore:
Try again!

If at first you do succeed,
Try again!
Be future harvest now the seed.
Try again!
Rise with sacred discontent,
Realize that life is lent
On highest searches to be spent;
Try again!

The Crucifixion of Self.

"For thy sake we are killed all the day long; we are accounted as sheep for the slaughter." "For we which live are alway delivered unto death for Jesus' sake, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our mortal flesh."

"I am crucified with Christ; nevertheless, I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me."

"And if Christ be in you the body is dead because of sin, but the spirit is life because of righteousness."

"Mortify, therefore, your members which are upon the earth."

"Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death.....knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin.....Let not sin, therefore, reign in your mortal body . ...For sin shall not have dominion over you."

We read that if we be disciples we are to bear a cross and follow in the steps of the Master. Now the path he travelled from the waters of Jordan to the exaltation from Olivet led him through the wilderness of temptation, the sorrows of a priest of infirmity, the anguish of Gethsemane and the culminating agony on the cross of Calvary. He suffered hunger, weariness, tears and a mocking crown of thorns; the jeers of his enemies and worse, the ingratitude of his dearest friends. In becoming perfect he must reach it by the thorny, rugged path of pain, for there is no other. But he was made perfect, and beyond the cross was no more pain for him; he left that all in Joseph's tomb; no more weariness, for he was raised in power; no more tears, for eyes in glory cannot weep; no crown of mere thorns now, but one of glory at the right hand of the Majesty of the heavens; no more jeers from rebellious subjects, but the reverence and awe befitting those who in dread of judgment must bow before him and lick the dust; no more ingratitude from those friends whose sympathies are broadened now by suffering like things in privilege of following him "even unto death." From a cross into heaven; from flesh to spirit; through humility to honor; through death into life. The darkness first, then everlasting day. The present burden of grief, then an eternal and incomparable weight of glory. First King of righteousness, afterwards King of peace. After the weariness, the rest: after the labor, the reward. A Calvary for each member of his body, to which we carry our burden, but beyond which we are "free indeed." Through self-crucifixion to an overcoming life here and now in the flesh, and an eternity of joy at the right hand of the Father, where there are pleasures forevermore.

It shall be our purpose so to present the glories of a seemingly repulsive subject that you will desire your crucifixion, not for itself, but for the reward beyond it. To understand it, two doctrines need to be seen clearly; the identity of satan, and the nature of death. For it is evident that if sin inheres originally in a supernatural being, deathless because previously an angel, "fallen" to lower nature only morally, then God's universe must ever be blackened by the darkness of an eternity of sin somewhere in its otherwise fair domain; and that if the human beings deceived into sin by this immortal evil one be immortal in soul, then the promised eternity of bliss must inevitably be marred by indelible sin and its peace disturbed forever by the hideous shrieks of the damned. Then self could not be crucified; only its body, the tool of the immortal sin. But the Scriptures reveal flesh as the source of sin, and death as an utter extinction of being. Therefore, in death sin is ended, and in resurrection or translation of saints is accomplished the promised redemption from sin and death to an eternity unblemished by the hideous nightmare of everlasting misery. The redeemed thus changed from flesh to spirit are beyond temptation because beyond flesh, hence sin is forever banished from the holy and eternal Presence. The devil and all his works destroyed, God vindicated, and man's redemption a source of everlasting joy. That flesh is the source of sin we find in Jas i 13-15, "Every man is tempted when he is drawn away of his own lust and enticed." Lust, desire of the flesh. Eph ii 3. When I eat too much it is my hunger—"desire" that is at fault, not some malevolent, supernatural monster saying at my elbow, "Eat some more." When a drunkard totters into the saloon, no being is leading or pushing him, it is his thirst by which he is "enticed." Fornication comes from sex, not from the air above us. When "satan" filled the heart of Ananias with evil he did it himself. Acts v 3-4. His devil was covetousness, same one that "entered into Judas Iscariot." By "man" sin entered into the world. Rom v. For a further discussion of the devil problem see other publications.

That the nature of death is an utter extinction of being see the following texts: "Be as though they had not been," Obad 16. "Had not been," Job iii 16, "Know not anything," Eccl ix. Gone where all animal creatures go, Eccl iii 18-21, to "dust." Thoughts perished." Psa cxlvi 3-4. In darkness, Psa lxxxviii 10-12. In "silence," 1 Sam ii 9. "Asleep" and "perished," 1 Cor xv. "Destroyed," 2 Thess i 9. "Consumed," Psa xxxvii. They continue not, Job xiv 2, 10. When one is dead, he "is not," Gen xlii 36; Jer xxxi 15.

Therefore, since sin is all in flesh, and since death makes an utter end of flesh, crucifixion destroys all sin. The antediluvians have ceased to grieve their Father's heart. The Sodomites are no more defiling his footstool. They are not blaspheming and cursing One who cannot stop them. They are not in flames, but in darkness. They are "silent." They are dead.

So in the spiritual lesson of crucifixion of self: Beyond our Calvary when "risen with Christ," Col iii, our self is dead and he lives in us. No wounded "feelings," for corpses are insensible to pain. No inflation by flattery, for cold ears are deaf to praise. No sharp tongues, for "members" mortify. No feet that be swift in running to mischief or hands that shed innocent blood, for Jesus never did that, and the "Christ lives in me." No pride over what we do, for "there is no work nor device.....in the grave," for us to be proud over when we are dead. We are not doing the work, and therefore we merit no praise. The faith does the works. Gal v 6. Since faith is in him he works. We are dead. Corpses cannot work. He cannot sin, for since sin is all in flesh, and he is so "no more," 2 Cor v, therefore he "cannot sin." Our unmortified flesh does all that. Let it die and return to dust and we be free from flesh and so of sin in the resurrection of the sinless One. Risen out of the flesh which is "weak" into the power he then attained. Matt xxviii 18. Risen into his wisdom, Col ii 3, and not proud of what we know, because since "there is no.....knowledge nor wisdom in the grave" and we "are dead," Col iii, hence we "know nothing," 1 Cor iv 4, for "the dead know not anything." But he "revealeth secrets" and "knoweth all things" known in us. Risen out of the flesh of our sin into holiness, for he is holy. Risen unto perfect love, for he is the manifestation of the Father. Risen, in short, into everything, for since in him is "all fulness," Col ii 9-10, and he is then in us, we are "filled with all the fulness of God," Eph iii, and "complete in him." Oh, what a rapture of bliss! Oh, what fulness of peace, what "joy unspeakable and full of glory." "The unsearchable riches of Christ." The songs of springtime well up to lips that cannot but speak the things seen and heard. We then have his abiding fellowship. No pride over any merit in us, for it is fruits of the spirit, not of the flesh, for a corrupt tree cannot bear good fruit.

Do you seek health? Seek it in him who is in that condition where pain and sickness never come. Is it prosperity? With him the Father freely gives us all things. Rom viii. Do you want life? He is "the unspeakable gift," "for.....the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." In him is victory over all sin. He never loses his temper. He never gives way to the flesh, for he has no fleshly nature. He will be better than "No-To-Bac" or the "Keeley Cure," or the "Don't Worry Club", for he is God's Panacea for all our ills.

How shall you rise in him and he in you? We must die first, for no resurrection can be without a death, in this case, head and members, by crucifixion. Who will crucify us? Can we do it ourselves? He did not. We cannot. God led him to the slaughter. Acts iv 27-28. If we will submit and be led likewise we shall be conformed to a like death, Phil iii 10, through sufferings. 2 Cor i 1-10. Irritation will destroy the temper, loss will cure covetousness, pain will purge lust. Self can only torture self. You cannot crucify yourself, for crucifixion requires action and action is life, so as long as you are crucifying yourself you are alive; not crucified, and when crucified, dead, and not alive to complete your own crucifixion. We crucify the flesh, Gal v 24, only by submitting to the cross, vi 14, for if we be in him who was crucified we die in him by his cross, through this "weakness" of submission as sheep. 2 Cor xiii 4. Thus does the worker put Christ in as Adam goes out by this death, for we cannot serve both. And it takes time. There are many steps of pain from Jordan-baptism foreshadowing death to Calvary and the real crucifixion. But beyond that the glory! So do not wonder at the swearing, the various sins after your baptism. The struggle has just begun, but victory is sure for sheep. The transformation must be by knowledge, Col iii 10, and time is required to learn. We learn by the suffering. We have seen that sanctification is by this process of growth.

Since baptism is burial in water and water is a figure of the cleansing Word of truth, therefore immersion pre-figures this sanctification by truth. But since burial also shows death, when symbolically put into him by baptism we are put into crucifixion, for we are "baptized into his death," and it was one on the cross. And since these sufferings are called "fire," 1 Pet i 7, and we are baptized into death by suffering the trials of life, therefore it is called a baptism of fire, in his case, Lu xii 49-50, and that of his body members. Matt xx 22-23. For fire purifies metal from dross in the ore, Ezek xxii 17-22, and since this fire is sufferings, the baptism of fire destroys the flesh in the crucifixion of self. So we see that the "one baptism" is threefold; spirit, 1 Cor xii 13, water and fire.

Since baptism is a figure of burial, it is not surprising that believers in erroneous sanctification should frequently "lose their experience," believing as they do in the immortality of the soul, for with such a soul in such a person, it nullifies the meaning of baptism, for such are buried alive in symbol, so no marvel that the living, sinning, inner soul should still rise up and reassert his power. It is hard enough to submit to death with believers who do not claim to be still alive.

The second view of sanctification by crucifixion of self is thus seen to be like the first; it depends for accomplishment on two things on our part: submission and faith. For when the Master reached the lonely spot where he said, "Thy will be done," he was near to Calvary. So when his disciple's will is broken by adversity, he too is near his mount of death to sin and want, and near the glorious daybreak when the sun of righteousness will "rise" with healing in his beams for all infirmity, and he be risen with his Lord in a life by faith overcoming, a foretaste of the glory to be manifested when in real earnest the Son shall arise in the earth and the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father, in the glad new heavens and earth where the former unpleasant ones "shall not be remembered nor come into mind."

May you die to self and live in him.

That Blessed Hope.

The above is found in Paul's letter to Titus. What thoughts it awakens in the mind of one who has learned the purpose of Jehovah from the beginning. The race has always indulged in a hope but a very few of God's creatures have embraced in that blessed hope. Hope is made up of expectation and desire. When we acquaint ourselves with Jehovah's plan we have formed within us the hope of glory. That is we hope that when the Blessed One comes that our vile body will be fashioned like unto his glorious body.

"That Blessed Hope" is used in connection with the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus the Christ. The hope of the religious world has little to do with the appearing of our Savior. God's purpose concerning him runs like a golden thread from Genesis to Revelations. To him give all the prophets witness, that through his name whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins. Acts x 43. The Apostle tells us that we are saved by hope; but hope that is seen is not hope; for what a man seeth, Why doth he yet hope for. Acts viii 24. Our hope is for the redemption of our body. How different the hope of those around us. Their hope is that when death overtakes them that their soul is taken to heaven and they live in a disembodied state until the end of the world when Jesus will again unite the soul and body and take the entire man to heaven. This idea is gleaned from heathen mythology and not from the Scriptures. Jehovah's purpose is that this earth shall be filled with his glory. In order to accomplish this he must produce a glorified race. The "tree of life" was placed in the garden that Adam and his posterity might gain that glorified state.

Man's disobedience could not change his purpose. His purpose is to be accomplished through the seed of the woman. The serpent seed in the end will be crushed or destroyed. The Son of God was manifest that he might destroy the works of the adversary, the devil. Jehovah has given us assurance of this by raising his Son Jesus the Christ from the dead. He has been raised and glorified and now is seated at the right hand of the Father. As sure as he occupies this exalted position so sure will he come again to glorify those whom the Father has chosen and adopted as his children. Paul to his son Titus, writes, That Jesus gave himself for us that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. The pure in heart only have the promise of seeing God. As our fore parents were tested in the garden so must we to become adopted sons be tried. The dross of our nature is driven out through our trials. The apostle Peter writes, Beloved think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you as though some strange thing happened unto you. But rejoice inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's suffering. Jehovah chose to make his Son perfect through suffering. Should we expect that we could escape the same. This same apostle expresses Jehovah's purpose in these trials. Ye greatly rejoice though now for a season if need be ye are in heaviness through manifold trials. That the trial of your faith being much more precious than gold that perisheth, though it be tried by fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus the Christ. 1 Pet i 6-7.

This blessed hope is centered in and founded on the promise made to the fathers. The expectancy of this hope will be enjoyed when the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and with the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall be raised first. Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord. 1 Thes iv 17, 18. These are the words that comfort. Not a hint here that Jesus brings their souls with them. When his own resurrection was accomplished the Father sent an angel who rolled away the stone and gave life to the lifeless body of Jehovah's Son. Paul's hope is recorded in his letter to Timothy wherein he says, I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord the righteous judge shall give me at that day; and not to me only but to all them also that love his appearing. This is a very different hope as now expressed by the religious world.

Again we read from the pen of an inspired writer, When the Chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away. 1 Pet v 4.

Permit me to close this article with the hope expressed by the beloved Apostle John. Beloved, now we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. We shall see him then in his glorified state. Every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure. This hope is an anchor of the soul both sure and steadfast and which entereth into that within the vail, whither the forerunner is for us entered, even Jesus made an high priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec. Blessed be those who have this hope.

Your brother in Christ.

Announcement.

The Annual May meeting of the Church of God at Fonthill, will be held in their new church building on May 27th to 29th, 1910. Brother Joseph Williams of Hillsburg, Ind., is expected to be with us, also some other speaking brethren. We extend a cordial invitation to you all to come and enjoy our meeting. We are only 15 miles from Niagara Falls. Please correspond with me at Font Hill, Ont.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Obituary.

"Nancy J. Stewart, wife of John Pruitt, was born 1829, October 9, in the State of Kentucky, Montgomery County, near Winchester. Her mother moved to Indiana with eight children, to Bartholomew County, near Columbia. She had four brothers and three sisters. The two oldest brothers were in the West when her mother moved to Indiana. They are all deceased except one sister living in Kokomo.

Nancy J. Stewart married to John Pruitt November 9th, 1851 and moved to Clinton County, Nov. 18. She is the mother of nine children: Rebecca C. Kent, of Wabash County; William O. Pruitt, James W. Pruitt, deceased, Mrs. L. C. Merritt, Mrs. William H. Davis, of Forest, Mrs. B. F. Hillis, Mrs. B. Dunn, deceased, Mrs. O. C. Davis and a babe deceased. Her husband died 1898.

She joined the Church of God in year 1859 and was baptized by Brother Proctor. Later on in learning more about Scripture, became dissatisfied with her baptism, and some years after when husband was baptized she was rebaptized by Brother J. F. Wagoner and always went as often as she could to church. She believed in the things taught in the Scripture."

The above is in Sister Pruitt's own handwriting for her funeral. She fell asleep in the blessed hope April 9, 1910, at the home of her daughter, Sister Merritt, in Frankfort. We were sorry sickness at the home of Brother Wagoner prevented his speaking at her funeral as was requested, he having done the same for her husband. We laid her to rest by his side in the Swamp Creek cemetery on a beautiful spring day, suggestive of the great awakening, after reviewing before a large and attentive audience the consolation of the promises whereon we base that blessed hope. Besides the crowd of friends were a large number of relatives mourning the loss of such a good woman. Her simple comment on her own faith speaks volumes: "She believed in the things taught in the Scripture;" and her faith worked also, as the humble testimony scarcely would reveal without closely scrutinizing the words that show her faithful attendance at services. She was beloved by her children as their last kindness testifies, she having preferred the care of her daughters to that of a nurse.

Let us live so as meet again in the day of glory.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS.

Editor Restitution:

Brother F. L. Austin has announced to us that we cannot depend on his services after May 1, and has advised us to look for some one else to take his place as our pastor. We are in correspondence with some parties, but don't know what the result may be. We thought by announcing in THE RESTITUTION that we were in search of a good man, and requesting any of the brethren to recommend any such one, that they might know of, it would help us.

Brother Austin has been with us and the Niagara Falls Church for several years, and has given good satisfaction, and at our annual meeting we voted to have him remain.

Any one wishing to correspond with me on this subject, please address me at Fonthill, Ont.

EXAMINE Your account, and give us a renewal of subscription if you can do so.

We thank you for the favor.

The article on "Christ and Our Resurrection," signed by Brother John L. Wince, was penned by his wife, at his dictation. We learn incidentally that he is slowly recovering from his sickness, and hopes to be able to get out again soon. May the Lord grant it.

Regarding the expressed views of "Doctor" Cameron we are glad to see as is Brother Wince, that light is breaking in on the minds of some. The trouble is we are perhaps too anxious. We have watched men of the class represented by this "Doctor," and our observation has been that they are satisfied with just that little ray of light. They hold position in an "Evangelical" and "Orthodox" institution, with "Doctor" or something tacked on to their name. He has assented to the Church creed, but a few texts of Scripture cause him to announce an "opinion" varying somewhat from the usual interpretation of his brethren. His brethren allow him to hold his strange views, regarding them as simply his "opinion" of how God will work out his plans. For him to take one step more "into the light" would be to court disaster, so he remains content with having expressed himself. To go further will leave a comfortable Editorial chair at the office of Watchword and Truth for another to fill. It means taking off the "Doctor" from before the name, cutting loose from the popular denomination with all its associations and worldly advantages. It means "come out and be separate." It means association with an insignificant and despised "little flock," and with all this in view the heart of the man goes sick, and——well after all, what does it matter! These other "Doctors" with whom I am associated are good honest earnest men, and after all it is "only the way I view it," and so the little ray of light is not used to guide into brighter light, but is again enveloped in darkness. Perhaps this case will be different, and Mr. Cameron will have the "courage of his convictions" and step out on the Lord's side, but there has been so much of this sort of business, that we have small hope of anything more decided from him. If he does stop now, it would be better if he had never given expression to his views, for it is sure to add strength to the element of half-scoffers, styled "higher critics," who look upon the Bible as an old fiddle, on which any tune can be played. No, friends, unless you intend to fight for God's Word, and stand on its Truth regardless of consequences, you may as well keep your little "opinion" to yourself.

My Dear Co-worker:

Ever since I entered the evangelistic field I have felt that all true evangelism is that which carries the gospel into fields where it has never been heard before. There are a few places in the world where a gospel has not been preached, but there are few places comparatively where the gospel has been preached. My work is supposed to be that of an evangelist, but because of the fact that funds are scarce, much of my effort and energy are spent in the direction of raising funds. Necessarily, then I must do the greater part of my work in old fields where the gospel has been preached for years and where there are brethren who are willing to pay for work. These are not always the most profitable fields from the standpoint of converts. In many cases these fields seemed to have been worked out. I have in mind one such field where preaching has been regularly done for ten years in all of which time there has not to my recollection been one convert to the faith.

My family must live and Paul makes it my duty (1 Tim v 8) to provide for my own; therefore, I must see to the financial side as well.

It is my desire to inaugurate a system by which the finances can be assured, which will leave me only the evangelistic work to do, going into any new and untried fields where an opportunity may offer. My thought is to interest enough of the brethren in the venture to put me beyond the need of searching for money to pay my bills. With prices at the present high standard, I cannot well keep my family on less than seventy-five dollars per month. Before I can act independently of a conference or of the places where brethren are willing to pay for the work done, I must have pledges enough to make that monthly allowance. It is my plan to keep a list of all who subscribe to this work and send to each a monthly report of all work done, amount of free will offerings, expenses, baptisms, &c., thus making my report to those who share the expense of my going out so that they may share together the success which may attend the work. Whatever may be received by way of free will offering may be used to offset expenses or to conduct the work at another time or to deduct from subscriptions as may be thought best.

I could not begin this work before September 1st of this year, but would then be ready to go anywhere from whence a call may come whether they who call are able to pay or not. Do you care to bind yourself to pay a monthly amount that this work may be done by my hands in a test for a year? The manner in which it shall be paid may be determined later. I want no money now. All I ask for the present is a word from you stating what you think of the plan and, if favorable to it, how much you are willing to contribute monthly for the support of such a venture. If you think my present plan of both evangelizing and raising a large part of the salary is the better plan, do not hesitate to say so, but by all means let me hear from you. My address is at Oregon, Illinois.

Your brother in Christ,
S. J. Lindsay.

..... 1910.

Brother Lindsay:

Believing your plan to spend your efforts in new fields for a year worthy of support, I agree to contribute $..... c..... per month for a year from September 1, 1910, either monthly or as best suits my convenience, this agreement to be void unless a sufficient amount may be secured to insure the support of the work.

Signed: .....

The above is Brother Lindsay's proposition for work the coming year and a form for reply. Brother Lindsay is a good worker, as most of our readers know, and needs no recommendation at our hands. He has had experience, and doubtless has satisfied his own mind that among the older places, where the brethren have had much preaching, that little can be accomplished compared with results that new fields promise. While all may not see this exactly as Brother Lindsay does, he only asks that his plan be tried a year, that its merits may be demonstrated.

Brother Lindsay's proposition is a business one. In years gone by our pioneer preachers often went forth to proclaim the message of salvation, relying "on the Lord" to provide the means for the journey, and to care for the family at home. It often happened that while the preacher himself was well fed and housed, the family had to depend on neighbors for necessities. Bro. Lindsay believes that his family has a right to look to him for support, that it is his first duty to provide their comfort. He believes his family sacrifices enough when they do without him at home, and should not be asked to scrimp and starve. He believes he can earn them a good living at some other business. He knows there are plenty of men in our Church who can spare from their holdings or earnings enough to provide for him, and for all our ministers, if they wish. He therefore makes his proposition for a co-partnership with you in this evangelistic work for the coming year. Do you want Brother Lindsay to engage in this work? Of course you do. Who ever thought of turning such a proposition as this! Sure you want it. Then send him in the amount of your pledge, so his arrangements can be made.

Think what it is not to hate anything but sin, to be full of love to every creature, to be angered at nothing, to be sure that all things will turn to good, not to mind pain because it is our Father's will, to know that nothing—no, not if the earth was to be burnt up, or the waters come and drown us—nothing could part us from God who loves us, and who fills our souls with peace and joy, because we are sure that whatever he wills is holy, just and good.—George Eliot.

Sunday School Lesson.

May 1, 1910.

Two Sabbath Incidents. Matthew xii. 1-14.

Golden Text—"I will have mercy and not sacrifice." Matthew xii. 7.

The scene of this lesson is likely at Capernaum and near there, and about the middle of the second year of Jesus' ministry. Luke and Mark put these events earlier, but Matthew seems to group different things that relate to each other, and does not attempt to give events as they occur. Here he groups certain cases where the Pharisees were specially opposing Jesus to find some cause for working him an injury.

In this lesson the question of Sabbath observance is brought out. Jesus is criticized because his disciples, while passing along a path through a grain field, being hungry, plucked off grain and ate it.

What were the Pharisees there for? Were they making an effort to learn of Jesus that they might derive benefit and good?

It seems rather that they were at the fault-finding business again. The Jewish law did not say this act of eating the grain from a field was theft, but allowed it. The fault they found with Jesus was because it was the Sabbath day, and this act of the disciples was in defiance of the Sabbath law, in that it was a species of reaping, implying labor, and that violated the law.

What reason is given why the disciples of Jesus plucked the grain and ate it?

If they plucked the grain because they were hungry, and needed it for bodily sustenance, was it a work of necessity, or was it wilful disobedience of the law?

In making reply to the accusers, Jesus refers first to what David had done. In 1 Samuel xxi. 1-6 we have the account of David and those with him eating of the shew-bread that was for the priests. The Pharisees held David in high regard, and here Jesus turns the tables on them easily. If it was sacrilege for his disciples to eat a little grain plucked on the Sabbath because they were hungry, it was infinitely worse for David to take the hallowed bread, and eat that which was sanctified to the Lord's use. This shows that human need is superior to ceremony and form.

Next Jesus takes up the work of the priests, that they do work on the Sabbath, thereby violating its regulations.

Why were they guiltless?

The necessity of this work in order that the temple service be carried on was reason why they were guiltless.

Then Jesus declares boldly that he is greater even than the temple where these priests serve. He was the one for whom the temple was made. The sacrifices all pointed to him, and were fulfilled in him. God dwelt in him.

Next Jesus reasons with his accusers regarding the real requirements of the law. The value of sacrifice is as it symbolizes God's mercy to mankind. The manifestation of spirit shown by these hypocritical Pharisees, was far worse than failure to observe a form of any kind. Love and mercy, rather than sacrifice, show true and undefiled religion.

Next Jesus states that he, the Son of man, "is Lord of the Sabbath." Mark says, "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." The Sabbath was to be a blessing to man, a rest, an enjoyment. The idea of restriction and annoyance should be eliminated from this subject. The Sabbath meant freedom from toil and worry, a change, a resting time. Laying off the annoyances of worldly affairs, and employing the time to worship God and commune with him. There never was the idea in Sabbath observance that for the other six days of the week God should be forgotten. But while we are to remember God at all times, this time was specially devoted to his service, and worldly toil was to stop, that the mind and body might be fully given over to God.

The Sabbath then we see was established to benefit man, and Jesus being the only perfect, representative man, could claim lordship over it.

The Sabbath when established was for a benefit. God's kindness and mercy prompted it. The Sabbath was intended to be different from other days. There was to be a change. The principle of the Sabbath is what should be considered. God knew the constitution of man—that he needed to have rest and change. He knew that working all the time would stunt and dwarf the body. He knew the mind of man would likewise be affected by business cares and worry all the time. Bodily rest renews the life of man. Taking the mind from worldly matters, and for a season communing with the Father lifts man to a higher plane, and gives new vigor and animation.

This lesson need not go into the merits of the "Sabbath question" unless persons wish to do so. The Sabbath law was given to a people whom God had chosen for his own. They would have been benefited and become a blessing to the world if they had only observed his laws and kept his statutes. They rebelled against God, and this chance of being God's special blessing people was taken away from them, and given to One who was now come to show these rebels that he was superior to all of their institutions of form and ceremony. He was there to do away with these mere outward forms to which they in a measure still clung, and substitute a new and better way. His forerunner, John had told them of him, and urged them to prepare for his coming. Now that he was come, he was being rejected by the leaders of this people, who were abrogating the very principles of God's laws by their erroneous interpretations, by which they bind heavy burdens on the people.

The principle of the Sabbath was rest from toil, and ceasing from the worry about worldly cares to the service and worship of God. If God saw that man in body and mind would be benefitted by such an arrangement as devoting one day of the seven to this use, dare we object? The principle of the Sabbath means consecration of the day to God. Jesus taught that God's house was sacred, and drove out the money-changers. Jesus was regular in attendance at the synagogue services. He recognized the value of the place and appointed time of gathering for worship. Dare we do different?

The practical question in our lives is this: How would Jesus observe the "Rest Day" if he were here now?

Would he go to Sunday ball games, and Sunday theaters?

Would he run his business house or factory on Sunday?

We can only judge of what he would do now, by what he did when here on earth, and we have no record of word or deed endorsing any course that will interfere with a day of rest from labor, being spent in the service of God's house and worshiping his holy name.

The next part of our lesson tells of an opportunity to do an act of mercy and kindness.

Where did Jesus meet the man with the withered hand?

Was it Jesus' custom to be at the synagogue on the Sabbath day? Luke iv. 16.

Which hand was it that was withered? Luke vi. 6.

Here again the same class that had dogged Jesus' steps through the grain fields and found fault, were again watching a chance to accuse him.

They ask, "Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath day?"

They were not interested in having the poor suffering man relieved; they were not moved by pity, they did not want a miracle performed that their faith might be strengthened. What they wanted was to accuse Jesus of breaking a law, in order to have him brought to trial.

What question did Jesus ask in answer to the Pharisees?

Is there any man, worthy the name of man, who having but one sheep, just the one, and that poor sheep fall into a pit on the Sabbath, and his owner not pull him out on the Sabbath day?

These accusing fault-finders could make no answer to this, so Jesus says Is not a man of more value than a sheep?

Jesus was to die—be falsely accused, go through a mock trial, suffer crucifixion with thieves, have his side torn by a spear—die for man. These false leaders of the people would see that poor man suffer with his crippled hand, rather than extend aid, because of their ideas of a law, never seeking to learn the principle on which the law was founded.

What was the summing up of Jesus on the Sabbath question?

It is proper to do good, do well, at any time.

The poor man with a withered hand was told to stretch it forth. Instantly that hand could grasp that of his neighbor in friendly greeting. His wife and children could receive the caress of love, he could again labor and earn the necessities of life and home for self and dear ones. Do you suppose that man would care what the Pharisees said about the one who healed him?

Jesus did not break their Sabbath law. He did not touch, or anoint the withered hand—only told him to stretch it forth. So the Pharisees had no case against him, but were enraged still more, and went forth still plotting to catch him another time.

The Sabbath, or Sunday, or Lord's day, or God's rest day, when observed as Jesus would have it, is a day when we "lay aside every weight," of worldly care and labor, and looking to him who is the Author and Giver of all good, getting strength by rest for further duties of life on the morrow, and learning more of the blessings God has in store for us, helping others to see the beauty and excellency of our Lord.

Christ and Our Resurrection.

Doctor Robert Cameron, Editor of Watchword and Truth, successor of the late A. J. Gordon, has this to say:—

"It is becoming the habit to speak of those that die as having passed on—with being freed from the limitations of the body, as being in glory, etc. This is not according to Scripture. 'If Christ has not been raised, then they also that have fallen asleep in Christ have perished.' God made man spirit, soul and body. Death separates these three, and the organism has been dissolved. At the resurrection—at the standing up again—of those who have 'fallen asleep in Christ,' the man will be re-constructed in a sphere where death will never come. Christ was raised from the dead as the first fruit of a great harvest to be reaped from the human field when he comes again."

"God made man spirit, soul and body," the Doctor says, which is confusing and somewhat unscriptural, and does not tally with his other statements, but whatever he means by it, he leaves us to infer that the taking of these apart unmakes the man—disorganizes him—puts him out of being, and leaves him utterly dependent upon a resurrection for future being. This view of the nature of man, coming from the source it does, is somewhat surprising.

The statement is made contrary to his early training, and the creed of his church, and we rejoice that the truth has found expression from unexpected sources. It means a good deal. It means that the truth will prevail; that it has power to overcome prejudice, and that it must be plainly written on the pages of Revelation.

Daniel.

When Jehoiakim was king of Judah in Palestine, Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon took the children of Israel captives into Assyria. Nebuchadnezzar then commanded his servants to select young men from among these Jews for his servants. They were to be those nearest perfect, mentally, physically, and morally. Daniel was among these men who were chosen for the king's service. They were all commanded to eat of the king's food; but Daniel and three others refused to take of it. He said, "Give us pulse to eat and water to drink for ten days and then decide whether we are in any better condition than the others." So the king decided to let them do it and at the end of the ten days they were brought before the king, and they were fleshier and fairer than the children who did eat of the king's meat. So after that the others had pulse and waters. These four young men were given knowledge, skill in learning and wisdom by God, and Daniel had understanding in all visions.

One night Nebuchadnezzar had a vision and was troubled so he could not sleep. He called all those whom he thought could interpret it; but none of the wise men could tell it. He ordered that they should be slain. Daniel sent word to the king that he would relate the dream and give the interpretation. Daniel and his three friends prayed to the Lord, who showed him the dream and its interpretation. Daniel told the king that it was only because God had shown it to him that he was able to interpret the dream. Then he declared to the king as follows: The image which Nebuchadnezzar had seen in his dream, had a head of fine gold, the breast and arms were of silver, the belly and thighs of brass, and the feet were part iron and part clay. A stone cut out of a mountain, without hands, came and struck the feet of the image, breaking it to pieces and causing it to fall, and it was dashed into dust, which the wind blew away. The head of gold meant Nebuchadnezzar's kingdom, which was the greatest in the world at that time; while the silver, brass, iron and clay meant other and lesser kingdoms which should arise after he was dead. The stone meant an everlasting kingdom which God would set up.

After Nebuchadnezzar's death, Belshazzar his son reigned. He had a great feast with his lords. As they feasted, there came the hand of a man and wrote an inscription upon the wall, which caused the king to fear. None of the wise men could interpret the writing until Daniel was called. This was the inscription, "Mene, mene, tekel, upharsin." Daniel said that it meant that because the king was high and had forgotten God, that God had taken the kingdom from him and given it to the Medes and Persians. Then Belshazzar commanded that Daniel should be the third ruler in the kingdom. That night Darius the Median took the kingdom, slew Belshazzar, and reigned himself.

Darius made Daniel the first of three rulers who were over princes of his kingdom. The others, who hated him persuaded the king to sign a petition that whosoever should ask anything of any god or man for thirty days, except from the king, should be cast into a den of lions. When Daniel heard this he went into his room and gave thanks, and prayed to God three times a day. When the king heard this he was displeased with himself, and set his heart to deliver Daniel. But the decree could not be changed, and Darius commanded that Daniel should be cast into the den of lions, but said that God would deliver him. And Daniel replied that God had sent an angel and had shut the lion's mouths so that they had not hurt him. The king commanded that Daniel should be brought forth, and the men who had spoken against him were cast into the den of lions, with their wives and children; and immediately they were torn in pieces.

Verna Railsback.

Dear Bereans:

One and all, how I should love to meet all of you. I should love to clasp the hand of each individual member of the Berean Society. I should love to look into each face and see the gleam of intellectual satisfaction written there, which has been born of a true research into God's great storehouse of knowledge. Is it not a great satisfaction to become better acquainted with our heavenly Father, and his plan and purpose, for the future good of his children? How much more we love him as the truth unfolds to us the fact of his love. "We love him because he first loved us." 1 John iv. 19.

I know many of us have had prejudices, formed by earlier education to overcome; for like the Jews we thought we had within us immortality.

We had need of Jesus to tell us to "Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they that testify of me." John v. 39. Jesus had been trying to teach them that he was the Life Giver. He had told them, 24 v. "He that believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life." 25 v. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, The hour is coming and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they that hear shall live." At the 37 and 38 ve, Jesus had said, "The Father himself, which hath sent me, hath borne witness of me.....and ye have not his Word abiding in you; for whom he hath sent, him ye believe not." Then he commands them to "Search the Scriptures.....for they are they that testify of me."

Dear Bereans, let us remember that "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect, throughly furnished unto all good work."

May God help us to be noble Bereans in that we receive the Word with all readiness of mind, and that we may through believing be obedient unto all that is required of us.

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10708 Hampden Ave. Cleveland, Ohio Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

We cordially invite the brethren and sisters who live near Cleveland, to visit and join with us in dedicating our new Church, Sunday, April 24th.

A booklet by Brother Joseph Williams, entitled "The Origin of Sin," may be had of Brother O. J. Allard, Ft. Dodge, Iowa. Free to the poor; 10 cents per copy for others.

The last book pledge to hand is from Sister E. C. Poole. She says:—"I am a believer of the precious promises of the Scriptures. I feel that I can never know too much about the teachings of Christ and his apostles. I am a member of the Church of God in Newark, N. J."

Our book is still in the making process. The printer says again, "It will soon be ready." He will not at this writing definitely state when "soon" will be. The book is rapidly nearing completion, and we will be as glad as many of our readers to say the final word. Getting such a large book ready for the press means an immense amount of work—more work than the ordinary reader can realize. We thank all for their kind forbearance while we have by much labor day and night prepared "The Bible, Its Principles and Texts." The completed work within two or three weeks will relieve the strain now resting upon both author and readers.

Christ as the Heir to David's Throne.

"The Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David." Luke i. 32.

The throne of a nation is not a gilded chair on which the king sits; it is the position, the royal office of the nation's ruler, of which the throne becomes the symbol. The throne of David, therefore, is not "a wooden seat," as some have called it by way of contempt, but the position David occupied as the king of Israel.

No candid mind will dissent from this proposition, in view of the current use of the word "throne." "The throne of England," "the throne of Spain," "the throne of Russia," are well understood figures of speech representing the royalties of these respective States entirely apart from the mechanical accessories, which are, in every case, matters of individual taste. Why, then, should some novel sense be attached to the same phrase as applied to David in the Scriptures?

The evidence that it should be understood in the same way is abundantly furnished in the Bible itself. We select one or two instances. Jer. xxii. 2: "Hear the Word of the Lord, O king of Judah, that sittest upon the throne of David." These words were addressed to Zedekiah, who reigned over the kingdom of Judah upwards of 400 years after David, and when therefore the literal seat occupied by David must have long passed into oblivion. Zedekiah was a wicked king, and it was not therefore from any spiritual resemblance that he was said to sit on David's throne, but simply and purely because, as a matter of political fact, he occupied the royal position established by God in the person of David, his royal ancestor.

It is said of Solomon, 1 Kings ii. 12, "Then sat Solomon on the throne of David his father," while it is afterwards stated that he made a new throne of ivory and overlaid it with gold, 1 Kings x. 18, so that as regards the actual chair of state used by David, Solomon appears to have dispensed with it, and yet in the sense in which the Scriptures use the phrase, he sat "on the throne of David."

These truisms must be pardoned, because it is so important to understand the throne, kingly office, or position, of David, as affecting Jesus. It was unlike the position of ordinary kings, whose ancestors have at one time or other gratuitously assumed the mastership by the right of conquest or accidental might, and transmitted a title to their posterity valid only by usage, and not by original derivation.

David was divinely selected and commissioned. He was a contented shepherd boy when Samuel, by guidance of the Spirit, poured the anointing oil upon his head. He was elected to the position by God, and held it of "divine right" in the most absolute sense. He was not king from fancy, from liking, from natural masterhood, but by appointment; neither was he king for his own purposes: his office was a representative one. He was God's vice-gerent. He ruled as "king for God," as was said of Solomon after him, 2 Chron. ix. 8.

God was originally the King of Israel, communicating with the nation through the testimony in the tabernacle. Hence, when the people desired to have a king to go in and out among them like other nations, 1 Sam. viii. 7, he said to Samuel, "They have not rejected thee, but they have rejected me that I should not reign over them." The people were unable to appreciate the privileged government they were under, and were weak enough to wish to be like the other nations around them in having a human head. God yielded to their wishes in the matter, but did not surrender his prerogative as the nation's Ruler; he gave them a king, but only as a deputy. He was to rule—not for his own magnification, but "for God." Hence he was said to be but "captain over God's people," and the throne he occupied was styled "the throne of the Lord" 1 Chron. xxix. 23.

This was David's position, this the primary and distinguishing character of "the throne of David;" a God-constituted and God-representative royalty, occupied vice-gerently for God.

It has but to be added that this position was made hereditary in the family of David, Psalm cxxxii. 11, and the picture is then complete.

Now Jesus was the son of David by Mary, a virgin of the house and lineage of David, Luke i. 26-33. He was therefore "the son of David and the son of Abraham" Matt. i. 1. The testimony quoted at the head of this leaflet declares that as the son of David he will occupy the throne of David—a testimony which Peter confirms, saying, "God sware with an oath to David—that of the fruit of his loins according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne" Acts ii. 29 30. But the throne of David is lying in the dust. What follows, therefore, but that at the return of Christ to the earth, Acts i. 10, the kingdom will be restored to Israel (verse 6) and the fallen tabernacle of David rebuilt on the earth, Amos ix. 11, to be gloriously occupied by him who is at once the Son of David and the Son of God, Isaiah ix. 6.—Bible Finger Post.

The Restoration of Israel.

The Restoration of Israel according to the apostolic teaching, and in harmony with the prophetic teaching, will now be considered from that which is placed on record for our information: Now, if the fall of Israel be the riches of the Gentile world, how much more their fulness? Rom xi 12-15, and if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world—what the receiving of them be, but life from the dead." "Blindness in part is happened to Israel until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in." (25) "For this is my covenant with them when I shall take away their sins" (27) Result of the facts recorded, verse 26. God does not change his purpose 29 and 33.

It is the ones who were and are blind until a time mentioned (25) who will be saved. "Then all Israel will be saved" as recorded. Verses 26, 27, 29. Note the "them," the "when" and "their" verse 27, and compare Jer 1 20, and references.

We consult the records to ascertain what has been written concerning a "dispensation of grace after the Lord comes," and for what purpose: We have apostolic teaching and apostolic application of prophecy relative to this subject.

Consult Acts xv 15, 16, 17. Compare with the preceding context: I quote: "After these things I will return; and I will build again the tabernacle of David which has fallen down; and I will build again its ruins, and set it up—for a purpose, namely: So that the rest, or residue of the men might seek the Lord," as it is written: Zech ii 11 and viii 21, 22. Companies will be formed in different places to go up to Jerusalem to conciliate the face of the Lord." "Let us go speedily to pray before the Lord—and all this after some one "returns" who has gone away from home for a purpose. See Luke xix 12. This "arrangement" of things in the unfolding process of the dispensation of the fulness of times. Note the purpose of the "building again the tabernacle of David." Verse 17. After the returning, after the rebuilding the tabernacle of David. See Isa xvi 5. Here is where and when, and for what purpose—namely: a proclamation of grace, or divine favor, in order that peoples may fear the Lord, and worship him in Jerusalem. To pray before the Lord—even many nations will.

An opportunity is to be offered these men to obtain the divine favor, by turning to the Lord, and in "Seeking the face of the Lord." The restoration is for this, because the record so affirms. And farther: And all the Gentiles upon whom my name is (hath been) called." Another reading is: "Who call my name upon themselves." As to who the "residue" are, or who those are "upon whom the name hath been called," may be inferred from the context. It is affirmed that the time is after the returning; after the rebuilding, in order to accomplish the things mentioned, and which meets the requirements of the case. And besides, the statement is emphasized by a "Thus saith the Lord," he "who hath magnified his Word and his name above all things." Psalm cxxxviii 2.

The apostle quotes from the LXX version which differs in one particular from the Hebrew text "May possess the remnant of Edom;" instead of the reading; "The residue of men." The variation shows that the Hebrew from which the LXX translated was not the same as the modern Hebrew text. And therefore we adopt the apostolic quotation. We do this because we think that the apostle quoted accurately; and thus giving the LXX the preference. Verse 14 compared with Rom xi 25, gives the time which is marked out for the taking out from the Gentile world a people for the name of the Lord; and accords with that other statement: "The fulness of the Gentiles be come in;" the full number, completion.

The two classes or sets of people mentioned verse 17 will certainly have an opportunity to learn, and accept the conditions of the glad tidings of the age. The mass called the "residue," are to be distinguished from those upon whom the "name of the Lord has been called." In this invitation "The men" comes first—and it is proverbial in God's dealings with the race that the Jew is first.....and for them or on their account the tabernacle of David is to be rebuilt. So that they may seek the Lord in the Lord's appointed way. Compare with Zech viii 20 and on to end of chapter.

The other ones referred to are doubtless the professed Christian denominations, who will have an opportunity to obtain the divine favor by "turning to the Lord" from that blindness analogous to that with which the Jews have been deluded for centuries; and it may be inferred that very many of these people will gladly embrace the offered opportunity. Will cast their cherished creeds to the moles and to the bats;" will be delighted to obey the proclamation from mid-heaven. Rev xiv 6, 7. We know that there are many worthy, benevolent and splendid people among them, and they would make excellent civil service servitors in any, or, at least, some of the State departments under the supervision of the governing body politic.

The racial covenant made with Noah provides for hosts of such servitors. And of which, the rainbow is the pledge. The whole animal creation included Gen ix 17, compared with chapter viii 22.

Communicated.

To My Home Church.

Greetings. I know of no better words than those of Paul, "That the peace of God which passeth all understanding keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus."

How sweet is silent meditation, that shows us God is everywhere. Then we dwell in love's creation, far from discord, sin and care. How calm and pleasant every duty, paths that daily must be trod. Truth revealeth every beauty when we put our trust in God.

When I first came to Los Angeles they had been without rain for eight months, and people were looking forward to a refreshing time. How much I think of the refreshing time that's coming when all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord. And as I sit at my window this evening watching the beautiful sunset over the peaceful Pacific, casting its rays back over the mountains. I realize the beautiful creations of trees and flowers are all his work of God and I wonder what this earth will be when this curse is removed.

"Behold, he cometh with clouds and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him, and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him, even so, Amen." "Blessed is he that readeth and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep these things which are written therein; for the time is at hand." If the coming of the Savior was at hand when John wrote these words how much nearer is his coming today?

Among the numerous events that have occurred in human history of which the sacred writers have made mention, there is none so great and sublime as the second coming of Christ back to this earth again. It is one of the great fundamental truths of the Word of God. A truth from which comes the sweetest and most blessed contemplations, for that will be the grand era of eternal victory and deliverance and triumphs unending to the people of God. "Behold I come quickly and my reward is with me to give every one as his work shall be." And what shall the reward be? The sweet singer of Israel looked down the stream of time and saw what God had in store for his saints and it made his heart rejoice and from his pen came forth these words, "For the Lord taketh pleasure in his people, he will beautify the meek with salvation." This same salvation the Philippian brethren were told to work out with fear and trembling, for which a holy life is so necessary. Are we not to do like wise? It is certainly true that this salvation must be begun in this life, the preparatory steps must be taken, the conditions must be understood and complied with; but if at any time the saints neglect so great salvation (Heb ii 3) his final salvation goes by default.

The question comes, "How may we know God?" Prayer is the key that brings us face to face with the Holy One, and by the impartation of his grace we become a living creation. We sup from him the life element of the soul. We know God by him breathing his divine nature into our souls. As a tree draws her life and nourishment from the earth and transmits it by assimilation to the various parts, branch, twig and leaves, so must the church draw her life from God and infuse it into the life of every member. By this operation of the spirit every avenue of the soul is illuminated by his holy presence.

Brethren, this is a grand privilege and if we have the love for Christ that he had for us we will try to bring others to a knowledge of the glories in Christ Jesus.

Blessed Jesus! what boundless love! How we should long to see him. He said, he would come again and he will. We have a blessed and glorious hope. We must keep our title clear over a rough and thorny road,—but we have vast privileges as children of God and must avail ourselves of them and if we do we have the satisfaction of knowing it leads to life—life parallel with the life of God, life as shoreless as eternity and I think the redeemed will ever explore the depths and breadth of the grandest truth, that God is love.

My dear ones, I often think of our happy meetings and those good sermons I used to hear. I am so thankful I accepted Jesus as my Savior as I did. He has said, "He will not fail thee nor forsake thee," if we only trust him. We are weak and without him we can do nothing. The words of Paul come to me so much when I just try to count my blessings and name them one by one, "What is man that thou art mindful of him or the Son of man that thou visitest him." God is our refuge and our strength. To the young people of the church I would say, Be not weary in well doing, for we shall reap if we faint not. Sow the seed of truth as we go through life. It may fall in fertile soil and in due season, come forth and yield abundant fruit for the Master's harvest. To the older ones—strengthen the weak hands and confirm the feeble knees. I'm so glad you all are taking up the Bereau work. I feel it will do much good, will be the means of bringing more young people to a knowledge of the truth. Fathers and mothers, do you ever stop your daily routine of life and wonder where our church will be in the next generations? Why are not more young people proclaiming the name of Jesus? Are we teaching the Word of God in our homes, taking them in infancy and teaching them, "The love that Christ has for us and making the "Bible" an interesting study for them? Are we each one doing all in our power to hold up and forward the banner of truth?

To the ones out of the church—In Ebenezer a few months ago,—these words impressed me very much. "Lost, some where between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with sixty diamond minutes. No reward is offered for they are lost forever." We must work while it is day for the night cometh when no man can work. Come, let us all join hands and work for the Master while we have opportunity. Father gird us with gladness to the end that our souls may sing praise to thee and not be silent. O Lord our God, we will give thanks unto thee for ever and ever. Amen.

Your sister waiting for Jesus.

HAZEL MCCLELAND.

Don't Lie About It.

When the Apostle Peter arraigned Ananias and Sapphira for having lied to the Holy Spirit, he told them in substance that their property was their own, that no one had demanded it at their hands, and that after they had sold it the money which it brought belonged to them; they could have given half of it or none of it had they pleased; and it was under these circumstances that they might get credit for generosity which they did not possess. And he asked them why Satan had put it into their hearts to lie to the Holy Spirit.

There is a lesson here which others might learn with profit. There are constant calls and demands and solicitations for gifts and contributions. Some of them perhaps are worthy of but little attention, and in many cases it might be actually wrong to respond to calls and solicitations; but it is not necessary that men should falsify in order to avoid parting with their possessions. Let them have the courage to say that they do not choose to give; let them say they do not care to give to the object named; if they have reasons to offer let them offer them if they think it best. Let them act as faithful stewards, responsible to one Master, but let no man falsify or misrepresent, to avoid meeting his responsibilities to God and man.

Says Bishop Wilson, in the Arkansas Methodist: "The man of fifty thousand dollars who brings five dollars, twenty dollars, or one hundred to the altar of God, and says that is all I have to spare, if he does not lie to God, Ananias never did. Tens of thousands are living in luxury, spending millions for pride, vanity, gluttony, and sensuality, submitting a mere bagatelle to the use of the Holy Spirit, and yet flatter themselves they are on the way to glory. Beware lest a worse fate than that of Ananias overtake you."—Common People.

Going to School.

From my own years of experience I would advise all parents never to send their children to school, if possible, without warm shoes, mittens and wraps. Let style bow to comfort, and see that head, neck, wrists and ankles are well protected. Let the lunch be plain and plentiful, not so much cake and pie, but more fruit and bread and butter. Too much lunch makes dull students; for, as Shakespeare hath it, "Fat paunches have lean pates." See that the child is not driven crazy by long lessons in useless "ologies" and "isms." The present age needs good readers, people who can keep accounts and spell, and who can use sense, rather than Latin and Greek, to make the mule hauling ashes move faster. Be practical.

It is better to stand alone with God on your side than to have all the world for your friend and God stand against you.

Married

At the home of the bride's parents, Tampico, Illinois, April 14, 1910, Mr. Leo. H. Nokes of Sac City, Iowa, and Miss Daisy L. Seymour.

The contracting parties are both well known to the writer and it gives much pleasure to make a record of a marriage where those who are taking upon themselves such vows are both in the faith and both so well qualified from a standpoint of moral fitness. Leo is a son of Brother and Sister C. A. Nokes of Sac City, which is of itself a recommendation for any boy, since they are among the very best workers for the truth in Iowa. It is one of those homes where God's Word is the most important topic of conversation. Leo received baptism about three years ago at the conclusion of a meeting conducted at Sac City by Brother O. J. Allard and your humble servant. Miss Daisy worked herself up through school and has made teaching her profession having more than ordinary talent in that direction. Having some knowledge of the truth through relatives and helped on splendidly by our faithful Bureau President, Sister Anna Drew, Daisy came to our Bible School in the fall of 1906 and while in attendance was baptized. Though isolated, she has remained faithful and has proved her usefulness in many ways. We dislike to lose her from the work of our state conference but our loss is Iowa's gain. We recommend her to the brethren of Sac City and to the brethren of Iowa in general.

While such occasions are productive of much happiness, yet there is always an attendant sadness and in this in particular, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour gave up their eldest daughter with much reluctance. The home is one where parents and children are completely wrapped up in each other and the giving up of a daughter meant much to them. We add a blessing and a prayer that these young people as they walk the path of life together may ever be found walking faithfully in the direction pointed out to them by their Master.

Gold Nuggets.

We do not object to perfection but desire it. He that has a ready excuse for wrong doing, that he could have avoided, is in almost as great danger as he that hypocritically denies his faults.

The more we turn our eyes on our human weakness, the greater our desire becomes to reach perfection.

We know of only one example of absolute perfection,—Jesus, the saving name!

Love for friend or foe is the ladder that he erected for us to climb to a higher altitude and walk by his side, "even until the end of the age."

Judge not that ye be not judged is a worthy motto, for the fault-finder to heed, unless he hunts his own faults.

The magnifying glass is a good instrument if correctly used—from one side it magnifies from the reverse side it makes the object smaller. If you use it, in hunting for faults, or virtues, magnify your own faults and your brother's virtues. Watch! you will get tangled up, and reverse the method and find fault with the wrong fellow!

Prejudice obscures the vision as much as a splinter in the eye. Self-esteem and prejudice keep us from walking upright and cause us to lean sideways in studying discipline and applying it.

It is no wonder that Jesus was slow and careful in putting the power of the discipline of others in the hands of his disciples, after he saw, and experienced the effect of religious discipline among the pharisees, and foresaw that its use was as liable to become a means of injustice, as of purification. Both Jesus, and his disciples place the law of love as the rule and power of church discipline. It must be cultivated more, and criticism smothered or we will fail.

W. L. SKEELS.

It is related of George Peabody that when he was a very old man, sitting in his office one day in London, a boy brought him a New Testament for some purpose. The old man, looking up, said: "My boy, you carry that book easily in your youth; but when you are as old as I am, it must carry you."

Quaint old Hugh Latimer said, "Now, methinks we needs not to be partaker of other men's sinnes, we shall find inough of our own!"

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 80.

Sometime later than the Centennial Year, Brother and Sister Willard again visited their friends in Allegheny City, and "Brother Best entertained them by relating interesting incidents of his European tour in 1876. He had visited the "Orphan Houses at Ashley Downs, Bristol, England," founded by the late George Muller, had been to Paris, and in London, and had called upon his early friends and instructors in Christ—H. Grattan Guiness and wife. For it was to their teachings, when here in America, that he owed his enlightenment on the present truth of the age,—the second coming of Christ nigh at hand." (I think Mr. and Mrs. Guiness, when here, went as far west as Joliet, Illinois, and that they were the guests of a Mrs. Sarah Savage—a Baptist lady of that city, now 92 yrs of age and cared for at present by our own beloved Sister—M. M. Nichols.) Brother Best also saw and heard the renowned Charles Spurgeon, and on his return to this country took a trip to the west, going as far as Denver, where happening to attend service at one of the churches on Easter morning he was greatly surprised by the generous offerings made by the members for the erection of a new church in another part of the city—five large plates being so heaped up with silver, gold coin, and bills, silver brick and lumps, they could hardly be borne by the carriers."

"While in Allegheny City, Brother and Sister Willard received many precious letters, and among the rest, one from myself, which was indeed like gold because of the news it carried.

Brother Richard Corbaley had been to visit us sometime during 1880, when back from California, (and this, fixes the date of Brother and Sister Willard's trip to Brother Best's.) We had been very much interested in hearing Brother Corbaley tell of the results of his labors in that far away region and I said in my letter, "The Lord's hand was surely in the matter of taking him there, for in places where nothing was thought of but dancing and frivolity, dancing had ceased; the pleasure-seekers were serving the Lord, and patiently waiting for God's Son from heaven.

In one community the daughter of a prominent Catholic lady, was buried in the likeness of Christ's death, and was raised up to walk in newness of life, then the lady's eldest son, a college graduate followed the example of his sister, and later, another son confessed his faith in the gospel of the kingdom—a kingdom that is to embrace the whole earth and be ruled by Christ and his saints—and trusting in the atoning blood of Jesus for pardon, was baptized for the remission of his sins and took Christ—the Sinless One, for his Priest and Mediator, the mother clapping her hands when he gave his testimony for the truth and for God. So happy was she to have her children escape from the "cruel cage," of a priestly hierarchy, to become "free men and women in Christ Jesus."

The last named son said "he had come to Brother Corbaley's meetings out of curiosity, and at first thought the views he advanced were strange and preposterous,—but still there was a charm about them and he kept on coming, finding himself accepting one thing after another, in spite of all opposing views and, like his brother and sister, he believed now that no mortal man could stand between himself and God, for by 'the new and living way' he could enter directly into the holy of holies.

He no more loved his evil practices. He used to swear, but he could swear no more. He was one of God's children now. He was going to 'fight the good fight of faith' and to work in the vineyard of his Lord, striving to the utmost of his power to bring his poor, deluded people out from under the crushing power of the papacy into 'the glorious light and liberty of the gospel.'"

Another young man, not quite 21, and also a college-graduate and the best Greek scholar in all those parts, had also come into the truth through Brother Corbaley's efforts, and was intending to devote his life to the ministry."

Brother and Sister Willard knew Brother Corbaley in his youth and rejoiced over this good news.

"God bless Brother Corbaley, and give him much more fruit in his far-off home" was their prayer.

"The world is sick," Auntie Willard said, and Jehovah has undertaken its cure. He has felt its pulse, made out his diagnosis and has prescribed the remedy.

Sin is the disease, death the penalty; the prescription "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world."

Following this line of thought, I say to those who look to their confessor for the blotting out of their misdeeds, no need of pope or priest to absolve from sin for money, but "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy and eat; yea, come buy wine and milk without money and without price. Wherefore do you spend your money for that which is not bread, and your labor for that which satisfieth not?" There is no other name given under heaven whereby you can be saved, except the name of Jesus. Neither priest's name, nor pope's name will avail with God, for they themselves are sinners like the rest of men. The Word of God is free; false religion costs money, it does not satisfy the heart, is not bread, but only a stone, for it cheats us out of eternal life. An "idol is nothing in the world."

"As one who has taken this prescription, and been raised up to life by it," Auntie Willard said, "I can now recommend it to every sin-sick soul; and it shall be my business as nurse under this great Physician, to induce as many as possible to take the remedy, and be healed.

Nurses are wanted by the thousand. Who will enlist? The world is one great hospital. There is work for every recovered patient. Who can be idle when friend and foe alike are falling into hopeless tombs?"

I do not know how long Brother and Sister Willard stayed with Bro. and Sister Best while on this visit in 1880, nor where else they went, but doubtless they also called on their sons and other friends. Nelson had moved to some other point in the year 1876.

AUNTIE WINCE.

To Be Continued.

Brethren of the Household of Faith in Michigan, Greeting:

At the Annual Conference in 1908, a committee was appointed to recommend a plan of raising more funds for the purpose of furthering evangelistic work in the state of Michigan. Their report has been published in these columns from time to time, and a great many of the brethren have responded nobly, and much additional work has been accomplished.

During the month of October we had some excellent help from Brother S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, with the result that eight dear ones were added to our number, and we have a promise from him that he will return and give Michigan some additional work during the winter, and we trust the brethren who have delayed sending in whatever they intended giving for this work will kindly respond with promptness, for on this depends how long we can keep Brother Lindsay at work. If we could send our offerings quarterly, it would no doubt be easier than to send the whole amount at once, and that would give us more to use during the year. We cannot afford to let this opportunity pass, so will expect the brethren to respond promptly. Forward offerings to A. K. Richardson, R F D 5, Hastings, Michigan, or the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette Street, Grand Rapids Michigan. We thank you in advance.

Yours in the service of the King,

F. V. BLAKELY, Sec.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 803 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid is us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

BROTHER, If you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John I. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1 00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

When All is Paradise.

There things shall be—a better race
Than ever the world hath known, shall rise
With flame of freedom in their souls,
And light of knowledge in their eyes.

...ation with nation, land with land,
...Come ... shall live as comrades free;
In every land and clime shall throb
The pulse of one fraternity.

New arts shall bloom, of loftier mould
And mightier than the old the skies,
And every life shall be a song
When all the earth is Paradise.

Truth Sought and Found.

"Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth." Eph vi 14.

A girdle holds together, and a girdle of truth should and would hold together all churches of God but instead of denominations being held together by truth they are separated by error. In talking to people they seem to be afraid of the truth of God's Word and will more readily accept men's word instead of God's Word as revealed to holy prophets, and apostles and Jesus Christ. If we want to know the truth we must seek it fearlessly expecting to have a number of our pet theories and hobbies overthrown. If you accept it it cannot be overthrown.

Gamaliel advised the Jews to that effect in Acts v 38 39 as follows, "Now I say unto you, refrain from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought: but if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it.

Paul in his letter to the Corinthians says, For we can do nothing against the truth, but for the truth. If we lack the truth and seek for it earnestly God promises to teach you. Phil iii 15. Let us therefore, as many as be perfect, be thus minded; and if in any thing ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you.

Most people believe it is very important to seek gold, pleasure, position, fame and about everything else, but the truth, and that they figure will take care of itself for they say God is a just God and will take care of me, I don't know how, but he will. Some how or another his Word does not seem to carry out this idea if one will study it closely.

Hosea iv 6, My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge; because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee. Eph iv 18. Having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their hearts.

Others say I didn't know any better or he did the best he could with the light he had on the subject, but we find ignorance of the law does not excuse any one. Paul when persecuting the Christians though the was doing right but he was far from it, and had he not obeyed Christ he would have suffered the same as many more who have thought they were doing right but were doing wrong.

Christ in talking to his apostles about the Pharisees said, "Let them alone; they be blind leaders of the blind, both shall fall into the ditch. Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and the Sadducees; then understood they bow that he bade them not beware of the leaven of bread but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees.

Rom xvi 17-18, Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned; and avoid them. For they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own lusts; and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple.

2 Thes i 8 9, In flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ; who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power. If any man teach otherwise and consent not to wholesome words, even the words of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to the doctrine which is according to godliness; he is proud, knowing nothing, but doting about questions and strifes of words, whereof cometh envy, strife, railings, evil surmisings.

Thus we see, brothers and sisters, the effects of ignorance and error are not just as assuring for one's comfort and happiness and peace of mind as some would lead a person to believe.

Now, let us see a few of the effects of being enlightened in God's Word.

John viii 31-32, Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, if ye continue in my Word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.

John xvii 3, This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent. xx 30, And many other signs truly did Jesus in the presence of his disciples which are not written in this book: but these things are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name.

2 Cor iv 6, For God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

2 Tim iii 15-17, And that from a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus.

All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness; that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works.

2 Peter i 2 4, Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord, according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue; whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.

1 John v 20, And we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an understanding, that we may know him that is true, and we are in him that is true, even in his Son Jesus Christ. This is the true God and eternal life.

These passages of Scripture have a better ring to them than a great number of things you hear about God going to save us all, and give us a chance because he is just, and loves us, and will not allow us to suffer loss of eternal life.

It surely is important that we must find the truth, for Paul was impressing it upon the Galatians and could not have made it very much stronger than the following Gal i 6 9, I marvel that ye are so soon removed from him that called you into the grace of Christ unto another gospel, which is not another; but there be some that trouble you, and would pervert the gospel of Christ. But though we or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed. As we said before, so say I now again, if any man preach any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed.

Phil iii 8, Yea doubtless, and I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord; for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but refuse, that I may win Christ. Paul here does show the importance of having the truth, not some man-made theory, for he has given up every thing he had heretofore and counts it as refuse for the knowledge of Christ.

Then John shows how important it is to have the truth for in his second epistle he writes, ix 11, whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son.

If there are any come unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed. Christ's when he appeared unto the eleven after he had risen showed the importance of believing the truth as shown in Luke xvi 16. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned. Again in John iii 18 he says, He that believeth on him is not condemned; but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God. John xii 44-50, Jesus cried and said, He that believeth on me, believeth not on me, but on him that sent me. And he that seeth me seeth him that sent me. I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on me should not abide in darkness, and if any man hear my words, and believe not, I judge him not; for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world. He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him; the Word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day. For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I shall say, and what I should speak. And I know that his commandment is life everlasting: whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak.

John xx 31, "But these are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and believing ye might have life through his name.

We have been shown the importance of the truth and also of believing the truth, now we want to love the truth and understand the truth, and above all realize the need of obeying the truth.

Zechariah viii 16, These are the things that ye shall do: speak ye every man the truth to his neighbor; execute the judgment of truth and peace in his gates.

Matt xxiv 4 5, Jesus answered and said unto them, Take heed that no man deceive you, for many shall come in my name saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many. Paul in his letter to the Ephesians shows his thankfulness for their obeying and understanding the truth, for he says, Wherefore I also, after I heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus, and love unto all the saints, cease not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers; that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him: the eyes of your understanding being enlightened; that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints, and what is the exceeding greatness of his power to usward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power. Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of God is.

Col i 9 10, For this cause we also, since the day we heard it do not cease to pray for you, and to desire that ye might be filled with the knowledge of his will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding; that ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God.

The last few quotations I have given shows how much Paul loved the truth, and how we should love it, not only that we have gained a knowledge of it ourselves, but that we should be fired with zeal that others should know it and do our parts, that they do know it, for if they do not know it we have the Word that the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and obey not God, and obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power. Those that do know it are wise. Christ says in Matt viii 24, Therefore whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man who built his house upon a rock; and the rain descended and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock.

Isn't it wonderful when one learns the truth of God's plan of salvation, of his love for us, and the mercies we enjoy, and how insignificant we are, that he has overlooked the wickedness of sins we have all committed, and if we only acknowledge and obey his Word as given us by the prophets and apostles and Jesus Christ, isn't it wonderful what a foundation we do stand upon, and what a poor miserable makeshift we stood on before, and I pray that we, and many others may, speaking the truth in love grow up unto him in all things, which is the head, even Christ.

Thus far we have learned that it is important to seek the truth, the effects of ignorance, also the effects of enlightment, the importance of the truth, of believing the truth, understanding and loving the truth and obeying the truth.

After finding out all these things about the truth we surely want to find the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, for we are very much in the same condition as a person down in a deep pit with the sides caving in, and liable to bury him at any minute, and there being a cable there by which he may draw himself to light and safety if he only catches hold of it, but which will not wrap itself around his body and draw him to safety. If he does not avail himself of the way to safety he will perish; he may try to climb up the sides or some other way but the crumbling wall will crush him unless he lays hold on the cable and gives the signal that he is ready to be drawn to safety.

It is the same with us today brothers and sisters and friends, we are practically in the same position as the man in the pit, for we know not what minute our life may be taken away from us and with it the opportunity of catching hold of the cable, which is the gospel of the kingdom and Jesus Christ, which will draw us from the pit (the grave) and give us life eternal when Jesus comes. We want the true cable which binds us to God through Christ, we don't want any imitation ones made by man for this is a case where only the genuine will do, therefore we will try and find what the genuine is, the truth and only the truth, for there is only one truth, only one genuine no matter how many may represent themselves and resemble the true one we must have it alone. The truth must be what Jesus preached so we will see what it was he preached.

In Matt. iv. 23, we have the account as follows: And Jesus went about all Galilee teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom. Mark i. 14 15. Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying, the time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent ye and believe the gospel. Luke viii. 1. And it came to pass afterwards, that he went throughout every city and village, preaching and showing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God, and the twelve apostles were with him.

In 1 Timothy i. 11 it is called the glorious gospel of the blessed God, because it is a good message of a future glory, on account of which all that shall partake of it will call him blessed.

It announces a good time coming when the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea. Numbers xiv. 21, God says to Moses, As truly as I live all the earth shall be filled with the glory of the Lord. This is truly good news from God to every one who believes it.

We see by the preceding Scriptures, that it was the kingdom of God that Jesus was preaching, and that God is to cover the earth with his glory and knowledge, so it must be on the earth where he is going to establish his kingdom, and referring to Genesis xiii 12, and a few following verses, we begin to get some light on the subject. Abram dwelt in the land of Canaan, and the Lord said unto Abram, lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art northward, and southward, and eastward, and westward, for all the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed forever. And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth; so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbered. The Lord made a covenant with Abram, saying, Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river the river Euphrates.

Genesis xxii. 16 18, By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, that in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed as the stars of heaven, and as the sand upon the shore; and thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies, and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed.

Psalms cv. 8-11, He hath remembered his covenant forever; the word which he commanded to a thousand generations. Which covenant he made with Abraham, and his oath unto Isaac; and confirmed the same unto Jacob for a law, and to Israel for an everlasting covenant; saying, unto thee will I give the land of Canaan, the lot of your inheritance.

Psalms xxxvii. 5, Commit thy way unto the Lord, trust also in him, and he shall bring it to pass; for evil doers shall be cut off, but those that wait upon the Lord, they shall inherit the earth.

Matthew v. 5, Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth.

Galatians iii. 6, Even as Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him for righteousness. Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham; and the Scriptures foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying in thee shall all nations be blessed. Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, and to seeds, as of many, but as of one, and to thy seed, which is Christ. And if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promises.

Ephesians iii. 6, The Gentiles should be fellow heirs, and of the same body, and partakers of his promise in Christ by the gospel. Be ye all of one mind, having compassion one of another; love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous; knowing that ye are thereunto called, that ye should inherit a blessing. The God of Abraham and of Isaac and of Jacob, the God of our fathers hath glorified his Son Jesus; whom God has raised from the dead; those things which God before showed by the mouth of all his prophets that Christ should suffer, he hath surely fulfilled.

Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, when the times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; and he shall send Jesus Christ, whom the heavens must receive until the times of restitution of all things that God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began. It is Christ that died, yea rather that is risen again. Who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us. The hope of the promise of the kingdom to come, and be established with Jesus the king, and the ones who obey the gospel of the kingdom as his saints, and be raised unto life everlasting, is the hope we who know the gospel are contending for.

Paul said, now I stand and am judged for the hope of the promise made of God unto our fathers, also for the hope of Israel I am bound with this chain.

Paul was bound because he preached the hope of Israel, which was that they should be restored to their own land.

Ezekiel xxxvii. 21, Thus saith the Lord God, Behold I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side and bring them into their own land, and I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel, and one king shall be king to them all.

Daniel iii. 34, And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever.

Daniel vii. 13-14, I saw in the night visions, and behold, one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations and languages should serve him; his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that shall not be destroyed.

Psa. cxlv. 13. Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endureth throughout all generations.

Psa. cxlvi. 10. The Lord shall reign forever, even thy God O Zion, unto all generations. Praise ye the Lord.

Acts i. 6. When they were come together they asked him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel? And he said unto them, It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power.

When he had spoken these things, which they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight, and while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel, which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen them go into heaven.

Rev. v. 9. And they sung a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof, for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people and nation, and hast made us unto our God kings and priests, and we shall reign on the earth. And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away. He that overcometh shall inherit all things, and I will be his God and he shall be my son.

This, brothers, and sisters, and friends, has shown us the truth sought and found, and the results if we hold stedfast until the end, for if we do then will we be saints and dwell with God and his Son Jesus Christ. Let us all strive for the reward of life eternal through Christ.

Allurement.

An ancient oriental legend points out an inclined hillside covered with stone images, which were once youthful forms and amazing masterpieces. This hill was crowned with a concealed object of rarest value, which was offered to him who should ascend, without turning a backward glance. A forest covered the sides in which sang feathered songsters of brilliant plumage and of silvery notes. Other objects were purposely and craftily bidden to flash forth their attractions and prevent the contestant from winning the prize. These stone petrifactions of once hopeful youth attest the weakness of human purpose, and the giant strength of the temptation.

Life is a hill to climb, but how few reach the top to obtain the reward; and how many are the monuments of defeat.

Many are the afflictions of the righteous; but the Lord delivereth him out of them all.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

A. R. UNDERWOOD.

Plymouth, Indiana, April 27, 1910.

With the ending of the first quarter of 1910, a number of subscription have expired, and should be renewed at once. Also others that have been hanging since the first of the year, ought to be attended to now. The new post office regulations make it imperative that the list be kept up, and besides we need what is due us. Please give this prompt attention, as living expenses cannot be reduced under the present standard of prices, besides calls for papers and tracts come more frequently than formerly. We try to keep all going, but some times it is a hard pull. Brethren, your help is needed to keep the work going. We have confidence that you will respond now, so thank you in advance.

On Tuesday, April 19, 1910, our Brother Washington Tuttle, of this city, was 81 years old. On similar occasions years ago, the friends of the Plymouth Church were wont to call on him and spend the evening. It was six years since we had so visited him, and in that time many changes have taken place. Brother Tuttle now has his home at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Oliver G. Soice, and on invitation of her and her genial husband, the Church people met and spent the evening with him. Bro. Tuttle has been an elder in our local Church for many years, and is loved and honored by all. He is not very strong, and has had to use a crutch for years, but he manages to get to the Church services except in very bad weather. Many who have visited in Plymouth remember him, and we are sure all such will join with us in wishing he may yet enjoy a goodly number of these anniversaries. He received kind letters of remembrance from Brother L. E. Conner of Cleveland, Ohio, Brother and Sister B. W. Woodward of Dutton, Michigan, and cards from others, which added much to his pleasure. Mr. and Mrs. Soice were lavish in their entertainment of all, and none who were there will forget the pleasurable evening spent with Brother Tuttle on his eighty-first birthday.

Communicated.

Brother Underwood,

In The Restitution of April 20th is an appeal from Bro. S. J. Lindsay for a support to carry the gospel into new fields. Bro. Lindsay states facts when he says that there is little to be gained in the old fields. The presentation of the truth creates a prejudice in the minds of the alien world and we cannot get a hearing. Their minds and houses are closed against us. To go into new fields where the gospel has never been preached will give us a good hearing and a few may be influenced to obey the gospel of our salvation. Every church that has been founded on the rock and Bible principles should be able to care for themselves with an occasional series of special meetings. Four years of evangelizing among the churches has lead us to the same conclusion as that of Bro. Lindsay. Now Bro. Lindsay's proposition is a very fair one. His services are worth more than the price he states. To be successful as an evangelist requires fitness. He must be able in a scholarly way to defend the truth against the enemy. He must possess all the Christian graces. He must be the possessor of patience enough to pocket all the insults that come to him. Besides these he must leave his family for months at a time and travel from place to place, being exposed to the inclement weather. There is not a day that he is not exposed to dangers seen and unseen. Do you think that money can compensate for these? No, indeed. We are closing our last year with the Ohio Conference. Mrs. Robison and I have concluded to offer our services as general evangelists. We will not work among the established churches. We have no one depending upon us and will therefore not ask for a stated salary. After Sept. 1st, 1910, we will be prepared to do general evangelistic work. We will be pleased to make appointments after the above date. We hope that the response to Bro. Lindsay's request be very liberal. You cannot overpay him. Hoping to hear of success all along the line, we are your Brother and Sister in the service of the Master.

The Comets and the Earth.

It is unusal for a comet to take a trip through our universe. When a noted comet is being announced as soon to appear accompanied by the warning from some of "the wise men of the east" that earth and the inhabitants will be endangered by a bunt of the head or a switch of the enormous tail of this new visitor—or old visitor which is returning after many years. I had the privilege of seeing the "tramp comet" through the pure atmosphere and clear sky that stretch above the Territory of Arizona.

The question will soon be with us again, "Will it strike the earth?"

The astronomers were discussing this question through the newspapers lately. One of them gave warning of a possible catastrophe, but one who believed in God argued that the power who created the planets and formed the comets, gave them all fixed laws which prevent any collisions or danger or disaster or wreckage from swerving from their course or getting in each others way.

I will add to the argument that we should all know that the wonderful mechanism of this universe is neither constructed nor run by chance, but by an all-powerful Creator with design in his work. He gave us a Book revealing and determning this question.

"The heaven, even the heavens are the Lords, but the earth hath he given to the children of men." Psa. cxv. 16.

"Who laid the foundations of the earth that it should not be removed forever." Psa. civ. 5.

"One generation passeth away and another generation cometh but the earth abideth forever." Eccl. i. 4.

"Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth." Matt. v. 5.

If the Creator designs for the earth to become the territory of an everlasting kingdom and the Lord's Prayer more than implies it, we need not be afraid that the foot-stool to which it will come shall be pounded into planet dust by a comet batteringram.

If we may depend on these statements the Creator is using the power of his providence so that he is already fulfilling in a measure the prediction "The desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose." Isa. xxxv. This is being fulfilled in less than a stones throw of my window here on the desert of Arizona.

It was stated in the arguments between astronomers that the head of a comet consists of a bundle of meteors. It was also developed that a comet had in some remote day struck the Arizona desert. That it lost its head when it struck, which consists of meteoric stones driven deep down in the desert. If this be true, it was injured more than the earth. Fortunately it found the best place on earth to light. There is speculation in everything that requires thought, especially if there is any mystery to solve.

Notes by the Way.

Having visited my neice, at North Yakima, Washington, I then started for Sunnyside, Washington, the home of Sister McClelland, who is well known by many readers of The Restitution. Mr. McClelland met me at the depot. On at arriving at their home, I was heartily welcomed by our Sister.

Sunnyside is a prosperous place. It is attracting people all over the United States. Within one year the population doubled itself. And from present prospects, it seems likely to repeat it again this year. It has become notorious for the richness and productiveness of its soil, in both fruits and vegetables. As a sample of this, on the day of my arrival Sister McClelland said I am only going to cook two potatoes for dinner, to feed a family of five; three of them being hearty farmers. Everybody had all they wished and besides this, there was plenty left. Land has become very valuable, unimproved land being worth from $250 to $300 per acre while improved fruit orchards, vary from $1,000 to $8,000 per acre according to the age of the trees and variety of fruits. People are coming in so fast, that there are no houses for them to live in, while they build their own houses, and you will see tents pitched in every direction. These are arid lands which have been reclaimed by the United States government. They are irrigated by water received from the mountains. Their crops are surer than by lands which must depend upon rain. Sister McClelland drove me out to see the irrigation canal, and the camps of the United States Irrigation service. The flumes for conducting the water, are seen everywhere running along the sides of the mountains.

All nature is now smiling with the return of Spring. In the valleys, the fruit trees in these massive orchards are in bloom. Forest trees are clothed in beautiful green, in strange contrast with the snow capped mountains. There are ten church societies, and seven church buildings in Sunnyside. Since Sister McClelland's removal to this place, she has been very energetic in proclaiming the grand old gospel of the kingdom, which will doubtless sooner or later bring some to the obedience of faith. This has awakened the opposition of the ministers against her; consequently, no one would allow the use of their houses for me to hold services in. After about one weeks time she secured the school house, which was off on one side of the town, so that but few attended the services. However I preached ten times to those who did come. The seed previously sown by Sister McClelland, took a stronger hold. One Baptist lady desired me to baptize her, but her husband opposed it so strongly that she dare not provoke his hostility. She however is trying to soften his heart, so that he may relent, and allow her to become obedient to the faith. I think others will become obedient in the near future. I think Sister McClelland may take courage, although now she has a hard battle with the enemy. She is courageous, and is not easily silenced.

After the conclusion of these meetings I started for Wenatchee, to attend the Conference of Central Washington, which was to meet on Friday, and continue over Sunday. The Conference met in the Church building belonging to the Church of God, at Wenatchee, of which Brother N. D. Titchenal is Elder. They own quite a commodious building, which is brilliantly lighted by cluster electric lights. Members gathered in from different localities. The proceedings were presided over by Bro. Perrine, the Vice President; the President, Bro. Corbaley being absent in California.

I was given the privilege of presenting the cause of our young Bereans before the Conference. I showed them what a blessing they have proven to be in localities where they have been established and tried. How they have themselves advanced in Biblical knowledge, and also have been the means of instructing others, besides being the life of local churches to which they are attached. I warmly advocated the adoption of them by the Central Washington Conference. They gave respectful attention, and appointed a committee to investigate the matter, and report to the next Quarterly Conference which is to meet at Cashmere.

On Sunday morning Bro. Titchenal gave us a very able discourse. I preached at the night, but before the night service, Bro. Perrine conducted a social service, lasting one hour and a half. At the close of the preaching service, Brother Perrine administered the comunion service, after which the Conference adjourned to meet at Cashmere next June.

I continued the preaching services after the adjournment, giving in all nine sermons.

Among others, I met the Barnhill's and Hoffman's from Plymouth, Indiana. The Barnhill's have established a home in the Cascade mountains.

The Wenatchee Church I call a model church, they are sound in the faith, and wont stand for anything else. Nothing but sound speech will be tolerated there. Their Elder N. D. Titchenal zealously guards the flock against "wolves in sheep's clothing."

The country all about here is like one great fruit orchard, which is now in bloom, a veritable garden of Eden The Wenatchee Valley is said to rival the entire world in the production of apples. Stories that I hear, I could hardly credit as being true, were they not verified by brethren. Bro. O. J. France told me that he has now in cold storage in Chicago, thirteen carloads of bushel boxes of apples, which will bring from $2 00 to $2 50 per box. He said that he had one acre in his orchard, which yielded him last year, $3 924. One tree on Bro. Miller's place, yielded 82 boxes, which sold at $2 00 per box. One cherry tree yielded 200 gallons of cherries, which sold at 25 cents per gallon.

Bro. Titchenal, the Elder of the Church, tells me that he has two acres in his orchard which yielded him 1,700 boxes of apples, which he is now offered $2 25 per box for part of them. Bro. Tithrow, at whose home I am now writing at Cashmere, says, many of his trees, yielded between 25 to 30 boxes per tree. Fruit orchards are valued all the way from $1,000 to $5,000 per acre according to age of tree, and kind of fruit. This is said to be the highest priced fruit land in the world.

The mountain scenery which surrounds Wenatchee, is simply fine, and running through the city on the east is the beautiful Columbia River.

A great deal of the salmon fish is taken from this river. The fresh salmon is much superior to that which is canned.

The meetings closed by Communion service, after which Brother Stevens, of Wenatchee, took myself, Brother Titchenal and wife to Cashmere, a distance of twelve miles, through a mountain pass, in his auto car, we flew as on the wings of the wind. The entire distance was made in thirty-seven minutes, and would possibly have been made in thirty minutes, had we not been hindered by a team which was met in a narrow pass, close up to the side of a mountain. We were taken to the home of Brother and Sister Tithrow, where I made my home while preaching at Cashmere, Wash.

We had very encouragoging meetings at this place. The attendance was good and the interest in the Word spoken was fine. Two were baptized on Sunday afternoon, and on Sunday night at the close of the sermon, two more asked for baptism. They will be immersed next Sunday. Others are under conviction of the truth, who will doubtless obey soon. This church also have a good church building. The members here are also sound in the faith, like those at Wenatchee, and are under the care of Eld. Titchenal who is himself sound, and is also an able speaker, and able to defend the faith anywhere against those who would pervert it. He keeps a jealous eye over the flock to protect them against those who would lead them away from the strait and narrow way. Brother Perrine is also an evangelist, sound in the faith. We also have Brother Corbaley of Waterville, Wash. Many readers of The Restitution knew his Father, Richard Corbaley, who first planted the old gospel of the kingdom in Central Washington, and was the instructor of Brother Tichenal. Brother Richard Corbaley was a power for good.

Cashmere, seems to me, one of the most beautiful spots that I have seen west of the Rocky Mountains. The valley is as rich as rich can be. It is a mass of fruit orchards, now in bloom. Its perfume filling the air. The mountain scenery is grander than the pen can describe. I never tire beholding the magnificent views which greet my eyes at every turn. Note the valley with trees robed in beautiful fresh green, and bloom, and this is surrounded by mountains covered with green sage brush, fir, and pine trees, and yellow flowers, but beyond this is the great mountain peaks covered with perpetual snow, glistening like gems in the bright sunshine. I will tell you more of this at another time.

In about six weeks, I expect to do some evangelical work in California. Those desiring my services may address me, in care of Brother William Prosser, Route 2, Box 44, Laurel, Oregon.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.
W. H. Wilson.

Dear Restitution:

With broken heart and hopes I tell you of deep sorrow. See Job xvi. 8-12; xix. 10-14; Psalms lxix 18-20; Micah vi. 6 8. But we have some comfort in the Word. Romans viii. 28; xv. 4.

Our two oldest boys have gone to their long home, Eccl. xii. 5. William David, our second son and third child, died August 18, 1909, being 18 years, 3 months and 15 days old. Daniel, my first born, died April 7, 1910, being 16 years, 11 months and 21 days old. Both were born on Sunday, at 9:20 p. m., and both died on Wednesday night. They were praying boys and loved to read God's Word, and were forming characters worthy of imitation, and were thought well of and shown much kindness by our neighbors, both before and after their death.

Their Grandfather Muncrief conducted the burial services at their graves, first reading 1 Corinthians xlii. and ending with Job xiv.

We like Job (i. 2,) have seven sons and three daughters, and we believe that God will bring them back again, Job xlii. 18; Jeremiah xxxi. 15 17. Daniel had it in his heart to have been baptized if Brother W. H. Wilson had visited us some time ago. Their death reminds me of Brother Wilson's able article showing the fulfillment of the Scriptures, 2 Peter i. 21, to be in harmony with Jesus' words, Matthew xii 40. His ministry beginning on a sabbatic year, and lasting three and one half years, brought him to the midst of seven, a week of years as well. See Daniel ix. 26 27; Isaiah liii. 8 9.

Our sacred numbers are broken,
Our hearts are sad and lone,
Because our precious boys
Are gone to their long home.

See Zech. viii. 1-5; Eccl. xii. 5.

And shall I give my first born for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul? Micah vi. 6 8. Daniel my first born, thought that I ought to give more time to preaching, and I am glad I had the pleasure of preaching on Sunday before he died, and that he was so glad when I came in at night. I talked to them again the Sunday following, on April 10, and some interest was manifested, and I was requested to leave another appointment.

Pray for us. Your Brother in hope of life when Jesus comes.

R. A. Humphreys.

Obituary.

Mrs. Sarah Owen was born in Decatur County, Indiana, December 17, 1811, and died April 5, 1910, aged 65 years, 3 months and 19 days.

She was the daughter of John F. White. She is survived by a husband the writer of this, two children, four brothers and two sisters. She united with the Church of God when she was fourteen years old, and has ever since lived in the faith and hope of eternal life. She has been an invalid for the past five years with the exception of a few months. About a year ago she fell, breaking her hip, from which injuries she never recovered. She was a good true Christian woman, a good wife and mother, loved and respected by all who knew her.

A light is from our household gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

W. L. Owen.

Our dear old Brother B. F. Boyer, fell asleep in Christ at his home near Seven Fountains, Virginia, April 8, 1910, aged 74 years, 9 months and 3 days. The cause of his death was la-grippe and typhoid fever. During his short illness all was done for him that loving hearts and willing hands could do.

I freely confess my inability to do justice to one so worthy, and possessing so many Christian virtues, and bearing the fruit of our meek and humble Savior for so long a time, yet I will try.

B. F. Boyer was the son of Brother William Boyer, who brought up such an exemplary family of eight sons and three daughters, all being obedient to the faith, all of whom are living except this son and one daughter. In all my travels I have never met a family all so dutiful, so loving and devoted to each other, and respected by all.

But now alas, the enemy death has claimed our brother. Thanks be to our God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ, for he says I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live.

Brother Boyer was a worthy member of the Church of God, and a firm believer in the gospel of the kingdom and name of Jesus Christ, the royal heir to the throne of David, and as a minister of the gospel he has turned many to righteousness, and therefore can claim the promise of shining as stars for ever and ever.

He leaves a devoted and loving wife and six children, most of whom are in the faith, and a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn. Let us not sorrow as those who have no hope, for our Book tells us that the dead that die in the Lord are blessed, and their works do follow them. How sadly we shall miss him in the coming days. He has frequently visited our little body at Brownstown, and held forth the Word of Life. His labors extended far and near, so he will be missed by many. His last visit here was to see our much esteemed Brother Good who has been an invalid for ten years. We know our Brother has fought the good fight and was ready to be offered, and that a crown of life will be given him in that day.

Let all the bereaved ones look forward to the time when our loved ones will be brought back from the land of the enemy. Death could not hold our Savior, neither can it hold his friends, for he says I am he that liveth and was dead. Behold I am alive for ever more, and have the keys of hell and death. Then when he unlocks the tomb the dead in Christ will come forth and be clothed upon with immortality and live to die no more.

Dear friends, let us all patiently wait the coming day when we shall see our loved ones again, and behold the King in his beauty.

Sleep on, dear Brother, for a while,
May all thy friends be reconciled;
Until the Master calls for thee,
Then we again thy face shall see.

Then when the Savior comes again,
And takes to Him His power to reign,
May you among the number stand,
That will be found at His right hand.

And hear the welcome words "well done"
"Enter into the joys of God's dear Son."

Worldly Amusements.

It is a very peculiar fact that whenever there is a worldly amusement about which we are in doubt we invariably ask the question: "Is it wrong to do that?" "Is it wrong for Christians to dance?" "Is it wrong to go to the theatre?" "Is it wrong to play cards?" Always, "Is it wrong?"

It is very much the same as in the matter of eating. When there is something that we desire, we always ask ourselves, "Will it hurt me?" If we can satisfy ourselves that it will not do any serious damage, that it will not bring on indigestion or dyspepsia, or sleeplessness or cramps, we eat it. We never ask, "Will it help me?" "Is it just what I need to build up body and brain, to make good blood and strengthen the tissues, to increase my energy and improve my general health?" Never. It is always, "Will it hurt me?"

So it is with worldly amusements, "Is it wrong?" we ask. Does God forbid it?" "Is there anything in the Bible against it?" If we can satisfy ourselves that it is not wrong, we engage in it. Is that all that should be asked? Why not occasionally reverse it and ask, "Is it right?" Suppose it is not wrong, there is still the question, "Is it best?" "Is it what I need to be more effective in my influence for Christ?" "Is it going to make me nobler, truer, better able to fulfill my life work?" "No," must we say, "it will not do that?" Then hands off. Life is too full of that which is uplifting, helpful and character-forming, to spend our time on that which has at best only a neutral influence.—Baptist Commonwealth.

Prohibition Progress.

The following from an Ohio newspaper is pertinent at this time:—

"Men talk sometimes of a temperance wave that is sweeping over the country. They think it is a temporary excitement that will soon die down. They are utterly mistaken.

"The temperance movement that we see about us is part of the world's progress. It is a feature of the growth of education. It belongs to the upward trend of all things in church, jurisprudence and social life. It has come to stay.

"The days of a truer, higher citizenship are coming, and it is going to say its say in behalf of a public service uncorrupted by money or whiskey.

"This progress of moral purpose is as irresistible and constant as a glacier and it goes about as coolly and quietly, determined that moral conviction shall hold sway in public opinion.

"There may be little rebuffs here and there, but no matter, these always occur in great movements in behalf of noble ideals. But let us recollect that moral purpose never yet encountered a Waterloo."

Announcement.

To the Brethren in Michigan, greeting:

The Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Michigan will convene at Dutton, Michigan, commencing Thursday evening, June 2nd, and continuing over Sunday, the 5th. Program will appear in these columns later. Please make plans that will allow of your attendance as we are expecting an unusually interesting meeting and some important matters are to be brought up that demands your presence and interest, one of these relative to the change of time of our Annual meeting. At present it conflicts with the public schools, making it possible for many of our young people to attend. It is desired to change the Conference until the last week in June. It is from the young people that we must draw our recruits and we must therefore arrange meetings making it convenient for them to be present.

If unable to be present, please write the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette St., Grand Rapids, Mich., stating your views, and they will be presented at the meeting as your voice.

Yours in hope,
F. V. Blakely, Sec.

A Message.

With diligence use thy talents now,
For time is passing on the wing,
And the Scriptures they clearly show
That man in death knows not anything.

Eternal life is Jehovah's great gift,
But only comes through Christ the head.
When He comes here with mighty power
And the angelic host to raise the dead.

No more death, sighing or trouble then.
No more of anguish pain or woe;
For when Jesus the Christ returns
He will destroy death, man's great foe.

Sin and death came in through unbelief,
Eternal life comes by the cross—
If we lose that great salvation,
Then it will be our eternal loss.

Although our sins be red as crimson,
We shall be as white as snow,
Cleansed by the spotless Lamb of God,
Whose lifeblood did on Calvary flow.

Christ died that we might have life through Him,
But He rose again from the dead;
The saints will rise when He comes again,
And be new like their immortal head.

Then hail to the coming King of Kings.
The giver of eternal life.
We pray that He may quickly come
And put down all unrest greed and strife.

The years pass by like a tale that is told,
But they make the Christian like burnished gold:
The years fly as fast as swift and sure
To wear the crowns to those who endure.

Glories of the Age to Come.

We learn from the Scriptures that the next age will be characterized by the absence of almost all that characterizes the present evil world. There will be no war. It will cease with the disappearance of national quarrels, social and political strife and party animosities, together with all standing armies, fortresses, and engines of destruction. All the agressive and carnal weapons of modern and ancient warfare will then be destroyed, or turned to better and more profitable account in the peaceable departments of husbandry, etc. Isa. ii. 1, 4; Mic iv. 1, 4; Zech. ix. 10.

The age to come will witness the complete abolition of slavery and tyranny; the overthrow of bribery and corruption; the suppression of crime; a great diminution in the rate of mortality; the annihilation of drunkenness, lawlessness, idolatry, and debauchery; the uprooting of every unlawful and defiling institution under the sun; the downfall by conquest of every government but one; and the unconditional surrender of place and power to the one righteous King of all the earth, Zech. xiv. 9; Isa. xxxii. 1.

The coming age will remove ignorance, superstition, and error. It will suppress popular ecclesiasticism as a system of imposture; it will relieve the world of all popes and parsons of every order and degree; it will banish from creation all religions but one, chase from the face of the earth the thousand and one "reforms" of human history; and substitute for them all an invincible administration of order, justice, enlightenment, and good-will, yielding glory, honor, strength, and gladness in all the earth Psa. lxxii.; Zech. xiv. 4, 11; Isa. xxv. 10.

The future age will destroy the debasing relics of the "dark ages," bring down the mammoth edifices now associated with priestly imposition and spiritual barbarity, and grind to powder the sculptured monuments of human cleverness; for Jehovah alone shall be exalted in that day, Isa. ii. 17.

The coming day will be marked by the scarcity of juvenile depravity and infant mortality; it will be known also for the absence of theaters and all profligate places of amusement; and for the demolition of goals, dungeons, prisons, castles, and abbeys; with all their adjuncts of crime, torture, degradation, and misery, Isa. xxxiii. 6; Gen. xii. 3.

The day at hand will be noted for the disgorging and redistribution of wealth; the nullification of all leases and land tenures; the abrogation of all existing titles; and the disqualification of all humanly-appointed judges, magistrates, and national and local officials of Church and State throughout the world; that they may be supplanted by the friends of Christ—humble and meek, appointed by divine approval, and girded with righteousness and truth. My Dear Co-worker:

Ever since I entered the evangelistic field I have felt that all true evangelism is that which carries the gospel into fields where it has never been heard before. There are a few places in the world where a gospel has not been preached, but there are few places comparatively where the gospel has been preached. My work is supposed to be that of an evangelist, but because of the fact that funds are scarce, much of my effort and energy are spent in the direction of raising funds. Necessarily, then I must do the greater part of my work in old fields where the gospel has been preached for years and where there are brethren who are willing to pay for work. These are not always the most profitable fields from the standpoint of converts. In many cases these fields seemed to have been worked out. I have in mind one such field where preaching has been regularly done for ten years in all of which time there has not to my recollection been one convert to the faith.

My family must live and Paul makes it my duty (1 Tim v 8) to provide for my own; therefore, I must see to the financial side as well.

It is my desire to inaugurate a system by which the finances can be assured, which will leave me only the evangelistic work to do, going into any new and untried fields where an opportunity may offer. My thought is to interest enough of the brethren in the venture to put me beyond the need of searching for money to pay my bills. With prices at the present high standard, I cannot well keep my family on less than seventy-five dollars per month. Before I can act independently of a conference or of the places where brethren are willing to pay for the work done, I must have pledges enough to make that monthly allowance. It is my plan to keep a list of all who subscribe to this work and send to each a monthly report of all work done, amount of free will offerings, expenses, baptisms, etc., thus making my report to those who share the expense of my going out so that they may share together the success which may attend the work. Whatever may be received by way of free will offering may be used to offset expenses or to conduct the work at another time or to deduct from subscriptions as may be thought best.

I could not begin this work before September 1st of this year, but would then be ready to go anywhere from whence a call may come whether they who call are able to pay or not. Do you care to bind yourself to pay a monthly amount that this work may be done by my hands in a test for a year? The manner in which it shall be paid may be determined later. I want no money now. All I ask for the present is a word from you stating what you think of the plan and, if favorable to it, how much you are willing to contribute monthly for the support of such a venture. If you think my present plan of both evangelizing and raising a large part of the salary is the better plan, do not hesitate to say so, but by all means let me hear from you. My address is at Oregon, Illinois.

Your brother in Christ,
S. J. LINDSAY.

..... 1910.

Brother Lindsay:

Believing your plan to spend your efforts in new fields for a year worthy of support, I agree to contribute $..... c..... per month for a year from September 1, 1910, either monthly or as best suits my convenience, this agreement to be void unless a sufficient amount may be secured to insure the support of the work.

Signed: .....

[The above is Brother Lindsay's proposition for work the coming year and a form for reply. Do you want him to engage in this work? Of course you do. Who ever thought of turning such a proposition as this down! Then send him in the amount of your pledge, so his arrangements can be made.—ED.

Announcement.

The Annual May meeting of the Church of God at Fonthill, will be held in their new church building on May 27th to 29th, 1910. Brother Joseph Williams of Hilliaburg, Ind., is expected to be with us, also some other speaking brethren. We extend a cordial invitation to you all to come and enjoy our meeting. We are only 15 miles from Niagara Falls. Please correspond with me at Font Hill, Ont.

J. E. LENT, Sec'y.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

Editor Restitution:

Brother F. L. Austin has announced to us that we cannot depend on his services after May 1, and has advised us to look for some one else to take his place as our pastor. We are in correspondence with some parties, but don't know what the result may be. We thought by announcing in THE RESTITUTION that we were in search of a good man, and requesting any of the brethren to recommend any such one, that they might know of, it would help us

Brother Austin has been with us and the Niagara Falls Church for several years, and has given good satisfaction, and at our annual meeting we voted to have him remain.

Any one wishing to correspond with me on this subject, please address me at Fonthill, Ont.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

A friend	1 00

Brethren of the Household of Faith in Michigan, Greeting:

At the Annual Conference in 1908, a committee was appointed to recommend a plan of raising more funds for the purpose of furthering evangelistic work in the state of Michigan. Their report has been published in these columns from time to time, and a great many of the brethren have responded nobly, and much additional work has been accomplished.

During the month of October we had some excellent help from Brother S. J. Lindsay of Illinois, with the result that eight dear ones were added to our number, and we have a promise from him that he will return and give Michigan some additional work during the winter, and we trust the brethren who have delayed sending in whatever they intended giving for this work will kindly respond with promptness, for on this depends how long we can keep Brother Lindsay at work. If we could send our offerings quarterly, it would no doubt be easier than to send the whole amount at once, and that would give us more to use during the year. We cannot afford to let this opportunity pass, so will expect the brethren to respond promptly. Forward offerings to A. K. Richardson, R F D 5, Hastings, Michigan, or the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette Street, Grand Rapids Michigan. We thank you in advance.

Yours in the service of the King,
F. V. BLAKELY, Sec.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

Try THE RESTITUTION, $1.50 a year

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services.—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 308 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Roblson's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, has neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free; or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address Mrs. M. Joblin, 10648 Ashbury Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, MAY 18, 1910. NUMBER 19.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

When He Shall Come.

"When he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe, in that day." 2 Thess. i. 10.

O glorious day when He shall come,
Whose right it is to reign;
When sin-stained earth, in d from the curse,
Like Eden blooms again;
When the fair and fertile fields
Beneath the Christ shall lie,
No pestilence with poisonous breath,
No wild and stormy sea.

Then perfect health, and peace, and joy,
Shall bless the saints of God;
No funeral train nor sexton's spade
Shall crush the flowery sod;
No tomb will wait, with gloomy gate,
Our loved ones to enclose;
For Death himself shall die, the last
Of all our dread of foes.

The grave shall own the sovereign power
Of our Eternal King;
And all His saints who long have slept
In dust, shall wake and sing:
Then, from Machpelah's gloomy cave,
Shall Abraham arise;
To claim his vast inheritance,
God's new-made Paradise.

And all who are His promised "seed,"
Joint-heirs with Christ shall be,
To Eden's glories, in a land,
From sin's dark curse made free;
God haste the day when o'er the earth,
In righteousness shall reign
A King, whose scepter shall be love,
Whose kingdom shall remain.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 34.

"What a benignant face!" was the unexpressed thought of many who looked at the aged man, figuring as their host in the Holly Farm Anniversary. Not a trace of vice, not a single mark of hatred, or deceit or revenge was written there.

"What a difference it makes in the countenance, this living after the pattern laid down in the Book," said one young man to another, as they passed out at the gate. "I should think so," replied the other. "Just contrast Dr. Willard's looks with old drunken Hovey's down here on the corner, I hardly think I care to follow the leadership of the latter, do you?" "Indeed I do not, his face is growing more and more hideous every day, and besides he is actually influencing others to take the same downward road; Dr. Willard never did that; he always led them in right ways; it is dreadful to influence any body the least bit wrong, isn't it?" "I should think so," replied his companion. 'I'd rather die, than be the means of leading one of my friends where old Hovey is. Say Landon, let's take the Doctor's Leader for our leader; its the only safe way." "All right Ray, that is what I had already made up my mind to do; I believe the gospel, and I mean to obey it at the first opportunity."

This may be only an imaginary conversation in this particular instance, and yet it illustrates to the letter, what Bro. Willard's influence had been throughout the whole course of his long religious life. The interests of Jesus had been made paramount in all the concerns of mill, of store, of farm and of school.

And so of Auntie Willard. She seemed to the man who wrote the account of her golden wedding, "as angelic in her purity,"—a woman "of whom it might be said, a hoary head, found in the way of righteousness, is a 'Crown of glory.'" She had led no one into paths of sin, but always and everywhere had striven to bring the lost ones back to God.

But how close together come the sunlight and the shadow, the gladness and the gloom! Auntie Willard had felt when writing to father just before his centennial visit east, that Brother Willard's life was fast drawing toward its close, but more than seven years had passed when the summons came. He had written his last communication to THE RESTITUTION in 1881, when 85 years old, and had then laid aside his pen, content to work for the Master in the quiet sphere of home. Taken sick and feeling his end to be near, like Jacob, he called for his sons; the eldest first, that he might bless them before he passed away, kneeling with hand clasping his father's, Nelson was asked, "Is it still your purpose, my son, to go to England to make your home?"

"Yes, father, so far as I now know," was the answer.

"Then God Almighty bless thee, my son, and go with thee, and make thee a blessing and preserve thee unto his heavenly kingdom, through Christ Jesus our Lord, Amen and Amen!"

Then Lyman, Rowland, Auntie Willard, and the daughters in-law, and other friends pressed forward, each in turn, and received "the priceless boon" —a legacy to be prized high above rubies. The little sleeping grandchildren were not forgotten, but with failing strength be cried, "O yes, God bless the children? All then knelt about his bed and prayed that they might be kept faithful and meet him in peace when Jesus comes. Then the farewell kiss and another of earth's sad partings was over."

"Twelve hours later on Sunday morning praise was still upon his lips in these words, and they were his last.

"Bless the Lord, O my soul and all that is within me bless his holy name!" Auntie Willard "received these words as especially given to her, for they came in response to her morning salutation, and abode with her; so, that when tempted to mourn, they came as gentle reproof and example from him, and her mourning was turned to praise."

On Monday, at 6:55, March 10, 1884, Bro. Willard ceased to suffer, his age being 89 years, 7 months and 5 days. Cheerful trust was the characteristic feature of the last years of his life. He had no care for the future; 'he was in God's hands and all was well.' To lighten every one's burden about him was his greatest delight and his gratitude to God and to his family was unbounded. He had been the sunshine of the household and they knew not how to live without him."

Bro. W. F. Smith of Philadelphia, who had been a frequent guest at the Holly Farm, officiated at the funeral Bro. Willard had much prized the comings and prayers of his dear brother, and could he have ordered everything himself, he could not have had it more to his mind."

"After the reading of other Scriptures, Bro. Smith turned to the scene at Bethany and let it shine out before the mourners in all its simplicity and sublimity. "Was there ever a scene like it on earth?" thought Auntie Willard, "Did ever weeping friends have such minister, and such words of life spoken to them before, and such tears mingled with theirs? The Master himself seemed in their midst, speaking to them in the same tender tones of love and sympathy, that he spake to the weeping sisters at Bethany, and they received them as their own and sat in this atmosphere in perfect peace, and looked upon the face so beautiful in in death as soon to be made alive to die no more."

"The speaker was led to draw a favorable comparison of their home to himself in his weary rounds, with the home in Bethany to the Lord Jesus, as he resorted thither after his weary days in Jerusalem, adding 'I find no such atmosphere anywhere else'—a cup of Jesus' own mingling for this, the time of Auntie Willard's greatest need."

"In the peaceful shade, overlooking a placid sheet of water near Huddonfield, where Hudson sleeps, Bro. Willard was laid to rest and Auntie Willard was left alone.

"Dr. Rowland Willard was born in Westfield, N. Y., Aug. 4, 1791, he was a direct descendant of the Willards who were prominently and favorably mentioned in the Doomsday Book in the reign of Wm. the Conqueror in 1085-86 the unbroken succession coming down to Major Simon Willard who set foot on the shores of the New World in 1634, only 14 years after the landing of the famous Mayflower and her 'Godlie Crewe'. The prominent part taken by the Major and his descendants in the settlement and government of the infant colonies, followed by the great war with the mother country for independence, during which the late Doctor's father—Josiah Willard was taken prisoner by 'his Majesty's forces' at Newark, N. J., and confined in New York, constitutes him (Dr. R Willard) as the last link in his branch, personally familiar with the stirring events of nearly a century. Dating from a period so remote and his ancestry containing so many illustrious names makes his history a very interesting one, not merely because of this, but because, it links him, almost undoubtedly with the nation, chosen of the Lord, to be 'his Witness' to all other nations of earth—even to Israel, of the Ten Lost Tribes. It is not a trifling thing to belong to this people, for the promises made to them are as enduring as the heavens.

AUNTIE WISCE.

To Be Continued.

The Symbols of Rev. xiii.

In chapter xii. imperial Rome is seen in her acts of persecution against the Christian church under the figure of a woman clothed with the sun, etc. Michael appears to aid the woman and also the earth helps the woman so that the dragon is cast out of the heaven: the government of empire. And Rome being noted by Daniel as diverse from all the former kingdoms, in that it passes through different phases—different forms of government. First it was a republic; in John's day it was imperial—now it is papal, but it is Rome all the time. In chapter 12 it is symbolized by the pagan dragon, but on the passing of paganism and the empire adopts Christianity as the religion of the state, another symbol is used to represent Rome. This symbol like Rome seen by Daniel comes up out of the sea; has seven heads, ten crowned horns, and on his heads the names of blasphemy.

In verse 2 we read, "And the beast which I saw was like unto a leopard, and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion; and the dragon gave him his power and his seat, and great authority." Now it is a fact that Rome incorporated the territory and people of Greece into her empire; hence the symbol is said to be like a leopard. The same is true of Medo-Persia, and of Babylon. Therefore the feet of a bear—and the mouth of the Babylonian lion. It is also true that pagan Rome gave its seat and authority to Rome Christian.

Verse 3. And I saw one of his heads as it were wounded to death; and his deadly wound was healed; and all the world wondered after the beast. This beast being a symbol of the Roman empire, it is the empire that is wounded during the reign of one of the heads, or forms of government. It was the imperial head that reigned in John's day, and there was no change of heads until the fall of Rome A. D. 476; that event was in consequence of the invasion of the empire by the northern Goths and Vandals in 4th and 5th centuries. Here history confirms the vision, the repeated blows with the sword of the invaders gave the empire a deadly wound. But we read, "And his deadly wound was healed; and all the world wondered after the beast. Augustulus the last emperor of Rome gave his resignation to the senate; and Odoacer reigned king of Italy. Apparently the empire was at an end by the sword of the invaders, but Gibbon says, "During a period of 200 years, Italy was unequally divided between the kingdom of the Lombards and the exarchate of Ravenna .....and 18 successive exarchs were invested, in the decline of the empire, with the full remains of civil, of military, and even of ecclesiastical power. Their immediate jurisdiction, was afterwards consecrated as the patrimony of St. Peter."

After the deadly wound the life of the empire lingered with the exarchs, and their power and authority was merged into the rising power of the papacy; "And all the world wondered after the beast." "And they worshipped the dragon." The only way we can conceive of professed Christians worshipping the pagan Dragon is that they mixed pagan doctrine with Christianity. this we know to be a fact. Verse 5, "And there was given unto him a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies; and power was given unto him to continue forty and two months." By a reference to Dan vii 8 we find "I considered the horns, and behold, there came up among them another little horn, before whom there were three of the first horns plucked up by the roots; and behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of man, and a mouth speaking great things." It is easy to see that the mouth of verse 5 that is given to the beast is the little horn of Dan vii 8, and is the symbol of the papacy with its blasphemous mouth. Daniel says it had "a mouth speaking great things." John says, "there was given unto him a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies." Dan vii 21 says, "And the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them." John says, "And it was given unto him to make war with the saints, and to overcome them." Daniel says, "And they (the saints) shall be given into his hand until a time, times and the dividing of time." John says, "And power was given unto him to continue (margin to make war) forty and two months."

One more point should be noticed to complete the proof that the two prophets are giving a description of the same power, and that is the chronology of its rise in relation to the other ten horns, Daniel vii. 8, "I considered the horns, and behold, there came up among them another little horn, before whom there were three of the first horns plucked up by their roots."

This testimony teaches us to expect the rise of this power during the time of the fourth empire, that is Rome; and after the division of the empire, indicated by the ten horns that came into existence by the breaking up of the empire by the sword of the invaders.

In John's description we have each event given in the chronological order as they occur. First his rise, and his description, then the fact that the dragon gave him his power and seat is mentioned.

At verse 3 is the wounding of one of his heads, which caused the breaking up of the empire into ten divisions. In verse his exaltation is noted. Then comes at verse 5 the giving to him of the blasphemous mouth, which is after the rise of the ten horns, so Daniel and John are in harmony.

In verses 5 and 6 his blasphemy is noted, and in 7 and 8 his exaltation to universal worship. Then follows that oft repeated admonition by the Master, "If any man hath an ear, let him hear." This form of admonition is repeated at the end of each epistle to the seven churches.

Now at verse 10 comes a philosophical prophecy, "He that leadeth into captivity shall go into captivity." This is meant undoubtedly to be applied to the persecuting papal power, and how true has been the prediction. Napoleon took the pope a prisoner—and now the present pope confesses he is a prisoner in the Vatican.

GEORGE FRANCIS.

Dear Bro. Underwood:

I see by reading Heb. x. 25, that we are not to forsake the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is, but exhorting one another, and so much the more as we see the day approaching; and all that are watching surely can see that the day is fast approaching now. So I would like to write a few words (in my weak way) of exhortation for any that might need or appreciate it. I know that I have read articles of exhortation in THE RESTITUTION of which I thought that one letter was worth as much as the paper costs for a whole year.

Dear brothers and sisters, we are exhorted in Rom. xii. 16, to be of the same mind, one toward another, it is possible that there may be some differences of opinion on that Scripture, but when we read 1 Cor. xiii., we surely do all agree that love is indispensable to eternal salvation, but after it was so clearly defined in so short a chapter, what kind of love is here spoken of, yet I am sorry to say that some that have been so highly favored with a knowledge of the gospel, talk and act as though they believed that it meant the natural animal love, a love for the comforts and pleasures of this life the same kind of love that the infidel and atheist has, in fact, the kind of love that we can't help having, (without a great effort) that puts me in mind of what the Congregational minister here told his hearers a few weeks ago. He said that Jesus did not mean any kind of baptism when he said to Nicodemus, Except a man be born of water, but he meant a person's natural birth.

He said (in substance,) if a man fails to do what he cant help doing, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. How absurd. Dear brother or sister, it is possible for us to have lots of love, but the wrong kind. I do personally know of some, who have, (or did have) a good understanding of the gospel of, the kingdom, that read the Bible and THE RESTITUTION, and were active workers; but, alas, go to their home now and I see the story book, magazine, and novel, instead of the Bible and THE RESTITUTION; lots of love, but not the kind spoken of in 1 Cor. xiii.

The novel reader puts me in mind of the man that can take a drink or let it alone. The "let it alone" is apt to get weak and probably die. Then its "all take a drink." Paul says in 1 Cor. xiii. 11, "When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child; but when I became a man I put childish things away." As God had such direct dealings with Paul, in fitting him for the ministry, I think that it is more safe to pattern after Paul than most of our teachers nowa-days; but, do we, when becoming men and women, put away childish things as he did? I don't think it's good to indulge in too much story telling, but one here to illustrate:—While the mother was spreading a piece of bread, her little girl came to her side and said, Is all that great big piece for Willie? and the mother said, No, darling, this is for you. Then the little girl said, O what a little bit. Now, brethren (keeping the indispensable of love in mind) let us if we can draw the comparison; a man and wife after staying at home and working hard for a whole year or more, say, We need a rest, and have two hundred dollars that we can spare just as well as not for a pleasure trip to some resort, or visiting friends, whichever they thought self would take the most pleasure in. Now, suppose before they got started some good brother would come to them and say, Our brother, that is such a good and successful proclaimer of the gospel who has had to quit preaching and work at whatever he can get to do to support his family, though he is anxious to put in his full time sounding the good news to the perishing, and I have come to see if you wont give one hundred dollars toward keeping him in the field the whole year round, but he says, O no, we can't possibly spare that much for an evangelist this year, for I am not as well able to work as I used to be, and I don't know as we will get any price for our crop this year.

Now, dear ones, is that like Paul, or is it like the child, that a few dollars look so awful big when they are not spent for self-gratifications, and have we the kind of love that seeketh not her own, as in 1 Cor. xiii. 5? I fear not, if we spend all that we are favored to get on our lusts, being lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, the class that we are told to turn away from, in 1 Tim. iii. 4.

Dear friends, let us do that, especially if it is self that we have to turn away from, and be more like our dear Savior, having the love that seeketh not her own, as he had, even though we should be called cranks, as he undoubtedly was by some when he gave them to understand that his nearest relation were such as done God's will. Mark iii. 31-35; Matthew xii. 46-50. Some might say that it is impossible for us to have that kind of love, but I think not, for if we become rich in faith it will be easy for us to have the right kind of love, for we are told in James ii. 5, that the rich in faith are heirs of the kingdom. The important question is, how can we become rich in faith? Only one sure way that I know of, and that is by studying God's Word, to know of a certainty what he has promised the faithful, and talk to him often enough to become well acquainted with him. Then we will love him with the right kind of love, the kind we read of in 1 John iv. 18, for there is no fear in love, but but perfect love casteth out fear.

What a grand thing to have that kind of love, for fear hath torment, I will say again, how grand to have that love, for it is so easy for one that has it to do good that they don't think that they have done much. For proof of this see Matthew xxv. 34-40, when the King tells them on his right hand the good they have done, they ask when they did that good. He tells them when, and says Come ye blessed of my Father, and inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. Surely perfect happiness begins with that class right then. It makes me feel sad to think of the other class, when he tells them what they failed to do, and says Depart from me, ye cursed into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels. They no doubt had lots of love, but the wrong kind, the kind that they had who are spoken of Mat. vii. 22-23. Many will say unto me in that day, Lord, Lord, and go on boasting of the wonderful works that they had done, which seems big to them, for what they did was for the praise of men, or as a binding duty, instead of through the kind of love that makes it a blessed privilege instead of a duty to help spread the good news to the perishing.

Dear brethren and friends, my main aim and heart's desire is, that I may by words, example, and pen cause some one to be gloriously and gladly surprised when the King comes, instead of awful badly surprised. Then I would feel that my life in mortality had not been a total failure.

One item among many others that we would do well to keep in mind, is that the class spoken of as being badly surprised are not infidels or atheists (for they expect no reward) but them that believe they have done a wonderful Christian work. Their love is not the indispensable kind, that seeketh not her own.

One more profitable thing for us to remember is, that self is apt to be our very worst enemy, for though we are misused in many ways, or even killed, yet none but self can keep us out of the everlasting kingdom, for whether we get the crown or not depends on the earnest perseverance, or the easy carelessness of self.

So dear ones, let us each one that is spared this year, show by our works of love, in helping to rescue the perishing, that we are becoming rich in faith, and have that indispensable kind of love that seeketh not her own, then we will be absolutely sure of receiving the promises.

Written in love, hoping and believing that the time is near at hand to receive the promises.

This is the Christ.

After Paul's conversion it is recorded that he disputed with the Jews in their synagogue proving that Christ is the Son of God. He also proved that he is the Christ. Many who study the Scriptures fail to see the full truth of these two statements. To believe that the Christ is the Son of God is to accept the prophets as Jehovah's message bearers. Peter states in Acts x 43, 'To him (Jesus) give all the prophets witness, that through his name whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins. The first prophet stated that, A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me; him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you. And it shall come to pass that every soul which will not hear that prophet shall be destroyed from among the people. Acts iii 22, 23. This prophet here spoken of is the Christ the Son of God. He is the Messiah of the prophets. All are required to hear him. He was Jehovah's message bearer. Since we are required to believe him it is important that we seek for the message that he bore. The apostles state that, Jesus witnessed a good confession before Pontius Pilate. 1 Tim vi 13. Let us notice what this confession was. Pilate asked him, "Art thou the King of the Jews"? His answer was, To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I might bear witness unto the truth. Every one that is of the truth heareth my voice. John xviii. The truth herein confessed was that Jesus came into the world that he might become Israel's king. He that rejecteth this message rejecteth the promise made through the Christ which is life eternal. The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus the Christ the Son of God. It is plainly stated that he is to be King and that if we are of the truth we must accept this message.

Every question should be settled on the credibility of the witnesses. Our witnesses will be God given ones. His Son whom he raised from the dead must be heard. We now wish to submit the testimony of an angelic messenger. And the angel came unto her and said, Hail, thou that art highly favored (margin graciously accepted, much graced), the Lord is with thee; blessed art thou among women. Thou hast found favor with God. Thou shalt bring forth a son and shall call his name Jesus (Heb-Yahweh). He shall be great and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; he shall rule over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end. When we consider that this is the testimony of an angel is it not necessary that we give heed to it? First that he is Jehovah's Son brought forth by Mary. Made of a woman made under the law. Second that he (Jesus) will occupy the throne of David his father and shall rule over the house of Jacob, Israel, forever. The house of Jacob or Israel will be the kingdom of Israel. This kingdom which is now overturned will then be restored when he whose right it is comes to receive it. This is the message Paul bore when he declared that this is the very Christ. Philip preached this same message to the Ethiopian. He was undecided as to whom the prophet referred or speaketh. I pray thee, of whom speaketh the prophet this? of himself or some other man? It is stated that Philip began at the same Scriptures (Isa liii) and preached Jesus unto him. Please note the effect it had on his mind. When they came to a certain water the eunuch said, See here is water what doth hinder me to be baptized? Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart thou mayest. The eunuch answered I believe that Jesus the Christ is the Son of God. The confession is concerning Jesus the Son of Mary who is to occupy the throne of David and the kingdom of Israel. Also Christ the Anointed of Jehovah whom Peter declared God raised from the dead to sit on David's throne. We wish our readers to bear in mind that the above witnesses were all of God's Anointed. Not one human witness. All have spoken under the power of the Holy Spirit or as messengers direct from heaven. He that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses. Since this is true what will be the end of those who reject the testimony of God's only begotten Son. It is written that God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life.

The Adamic nature possesses only natural or animal life. To possess the life of the last Adam we must believe the message bearers and be immersed into the Yahweh name through the knowledge of the covenants of promise. Without this knowledge we would be without Christ, having no hope and without God in the world. Eph ii 12. This life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ who is our life shall appear, then we shall appear with him in glory. Not at death but when he shall appear.

Your brother looking for this appearing.

D. C. ROBISON.

Dear Restitution:

Christ says, "Behold I come quickly, hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown." Rev iii 11. I have seen a man in mid ocean fall over board; a large life preserver was thrown to him, he seized it and clung to it with the energy of despair, he was ultimately found after a long search and rescued, and we all rejoiced. Brethren, are we clinging to the life preserver with all our energy? Or are we having a good time, (socalled) enjoying the pleasure of the world more than the love of God? We are, so to speak, on a rock when we come into Christ that which at present is in mid ocean; around us in all directions are beautiful gilded rafts, but the rafts are made of rotten timbers, the rock is not popular with the multitude, "It is too slow and too poky." If you are on the rock you are never likely to be popular with the crowd, or get much of the "pickings" or be able to go with the fashionable crowd, hence the temptation to many to slide off the rock and get on to the fashionable rafts.

In Matthew xxv Christ speaks a parable concerning ten virgins, these ten virgins represents the whole household of God, and alas when the final reckoning came the half of them were found to be "foolish." I have been now for nearly fifty years watching over God's professed servants and as the years go by, more and more the conviction is being forced on to me that this parable is an actual representation of things as they will occur when Christ comes again, and calls to his servants to give an account of themselves. Only the half will be found to have been wise. Alas and alas, how many have I seen slide off that great rock of truth. Perhaps the most prolific cause of all is indifference. Gradually they frequent the house of God less and less, they take little time to study God's Word or his works, their minds become more and more engrossed with business, household affairs, or pleasure, and they consider themselves "just as good as any one else." When they get into this frame of mind they are sliding pretty fast off the rock.

Another takes offence at what some brother or sister has said, and they do not take the Scriptural way to remedy such difficulties, such a one is apt to slip into the deep. Another one thinks that the Church of God is too "narrow minded", they are not liberal enough. "There are many other churches just as good as that," and the liberal churches are always ready to pull them off the rock, and get them on to their rotten rafts for "they have a good time there," and they are fashionable you know, and besides all that by belonging to one of the fashionable churches you have a much better chance of getting on in the world. Another great cause for sliding off the rock is marriage.

I met a brother one day in a large city, whom I had not seen at church for a long time. I asked him why I had not seen him at church, and urged him to come next Sunday. He hesitated and stammered somewhat, but at last he said "My wife does not want me to go there." "He that loveth father or mother, wife or husband, more than me is not worthy of me."

I know a sister in that same city who has not been at church for many years. Her husband objects to her going. The poor girl has more excuse than the brother, for she has small children, but that brings an indifference and destroys in most cases I fear the Christ life.

Another is pulled off the Rock by the specious arguments of Christian Science--save the mark for it is neither christianity nor science. It is based on the old serpent's lie "Ye shall not surely die," but they all die and go to sheol. Another is pulled off by so-called Spiritualism, which is as full of tricks and deceptions as the priests were in the old heathen temples, and that is saying a good deal.

Perhaps as prolific a source of sliding off as any is the lust of the flesh in its various forms. "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you. If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are," 1 Corinthians iii. 16, 17. I have seen one who was at one time a great worker in the Church of God slide off the Rock into the depths of drink, that curse of humanity. I have seen a brother destroy his body with the use of tobacco, another one of the popular curses, and that same brother I believe (and I have carefully investigated that subject for many years) was the means of seriously injuring his unborn children, who are suffering today from his excessive use of tobacco. It is a poison of a deadly character that every child of God should avoid. Our bodies are the temple of the Living God, I cannot too strongly remind all the Household of Faith, and we should take the best care we can of them in order to be able to do the best work we can in the Master's service.

Others I have seen slide off into the depths of rank infidelity. "The fool hath said in his heart there is no God." When the evidences of the existence of a Supreme Being are so abundant that one would suppose, who had paid any attention to the subject, that a blind man could see them. Some I have known leave the faith and go over to Theosophy, which is simply another name for Hinduism. Surely that is worse than selling one's birthright for a mess of pottage.

Then there is Mammon who has had hosts of admirers in all ages, but he probably never had more enthusiastic worshipers than in the present age. "No man can serve two masters. . . Ye cannot serve God and mammon." Cling to the Rock of Ages, and in the end ye will receive eternal life.

Let no man take thy crown.

A. WALLACE MASON.

Notes by the Way.

In reading over my last "Notes," I find them not quite as complete as they should have been.

From communications received from Sister McClelland, I learn that interest in the work done at Sunnyside, Washington, is still growing since I left there, although efforts were made to prevent the introduction of the truth when we were hindered in getting a place in which the gospel of the kingdom could be proclaimed to the people.

Sister McClelland has determined that a plain house shall be built in Sunnyside in which she can hold Bible Classes, and preaching services. She has already a few who are pretty well advanced in the knowledge of the truth. One Baptist lady desired me to baptize her while I was there, but her husband strictly forbade her doing so. The Bible she had to study was a cheap one, without concordance or references, so she earned money enough to buy a better one, but when her husband learned about it, he forbid her doing so. I feel that I can scarcely use temperate language in denouncing such men. They are not worthy of having the companionship of any respectable woman.

Sister McClelland told me of a young man that she met, and asked him what his religious faith was? He said that he did not know as there was a person on earth that believed as he did. He said that he did not believe that people had immortal souls which went to heaven at death, but that the Lord was coming to set up his kingdom upon earth. He said that he learned this from the Bible alone, and that he never heard any one preach it or even read it from any book. She asked him if he had been baptized, but he said that he had not. He would have been baptized while I was there, but he was away from the city at that time.

As to the church house, Sister McClelland is receiving some financial encouragement out here, and may perhaps call on others to assist. May God bless Sister McClelland in the good work that she is doing.

At Cashmere, the interest is encouraging, as reported in last "Notes." Five applied for baptism. Four of them were immersed, and the fifth one is under further instruction that she may acquire a more accurate knowledge of the faith.

Brother Tetherow, with whom I made my home, is an old pioneer, who crossed the plains with an ox team in 1845. It took seven weeks. It is interesting to hear him tell of his early pioneer life.

One day a Sister took me on a drive along the mountain passes. The majestic mountains some of which were snow-capped, while the sides were covered thick with evergreen trees, sage brush, and mountain flowers, and the mountain streams were rushing down the gorges, and lashed into white foam as they dashed upon, and whirled around the rough rocks. My eyes never tire of witnessing such awe inspiring scenes.

My next appointment was at Seattle, Washington. Seattle lies to the west of the Cascade Mountains, upon the banks of the Puget Sound, a distance of a hundred and forty miles from Cashmere, which is in a valley fenced in by the Cascade Mountains. We immediately passed from the valley into the Canyon, along which the Great Northern Railroad runs. The scenery was too grand for me to attempt to describe. One becomes simply bewildered with amazement. We passed along quietly until we were within about four miles from the great Cascade tunnel, which pierces the heart of the mountains, near Berne. We then learned that a freight car was off the track at that place. Some hours passed before we could resume our journey. The passengers left the train and aired themselves in the warm sunshine, while the young people amused themselves by throwing stones into the swift current of the Wenatchee river. This river as it passes through Cashmere has a fall of fifteen feet per mile, and the current runs at about the speed of a railroad train. The obstruction being removed, we proceeded on our journey, and soon came in sight of the entrance to the tunnel. We then plunged into the darkness of hades, from which we emerged from this darkness into light and sunshine, and also into the beauties of life and gladness, as it was then. But alas! but a short time prior to this, it was the scene of death, destruction, suffering and sorrow. The place was Wellington, where a great snowslide, buried a train filled with passengers, with snow, fallen timber and rock. It was a scene too terrible to even think about. Some of the wreck was still visible. The mountains at this point were still covered with snow from top to bottom.

We pursued our journey until we reached Everett, on the west side of the mountains, when the picture here changes. At this point we come upon the Puget Sound, which is an arm of the Pacific Ocean, and we rode along by these waters until we reached Seattle, five hours late. Brother Dowle, of West Seattle, was at the depot to meet me. We then went by street car to his home in West Seattle, which is a peninsula running out into the Puget Sound. On the west side the water is called the Reget Sound, and on the east side is the Bay, which is about two miles wide. There are ferry boats running across to Seattle. To the east of Seattle is the Cascade mountains, and to the west of Puget Sound is the snow covered Olympic mountains, making a very pretty view. Pretty soon we arrived at the home of Brother and Sister Dowle, and was heartily welcomed by our Sister.

I find a small congregation here of some twelve or thirteen, led by Brother A. D. Eshelman, whom I used to meet occasionally some thirty years ago, when he lived at Canton, Ohio. I also met Sister Young and family, the widow and children of Brother George Young, who died some years ago, and also the Knapp family.

On Sunday I preached twice in First Day Advent Church. This is all the preaching I did at Seattle, there being no opening for week night services.

Brother Eshelman spent the most of two days in showing me points of interest in Seattle, of which there are many. It would occupy too much space to mention them.

Seattle is built upon three ranges of hills, which make it prominent and conspicuous. It is also a city of splendid residences and business buildings. Its beautiful water scenes adds greatly to the natural scenery of the City. The Bay is on the east side of West Seattle and Puget Sound on the west. There is also a series of lakes in different parts of the city, as Green Lake, Washington Lake, Lake Union, Lake Sammamish.

The late Exposition was held in the University ground, near Union Bay, where a number of the buildings still remain, such as Forestry Building, all built of massive Fir tree logs. Seattle is truly a delightful city, and also a progressive one.

Bidding farewell to the people, Brother Dowle accompanied me to the dock, where I took a steamboat to the City of Tacoma, where I was the guest of Brother L. G. Jaeger, wife and daughter. This was a visit that I shall long remember. Brother Jaeger is a brother of our Sister Bradley, Omro, Wisconsin, a place where I have done successful work in times past, having baptized some twenty-three people at that place. There used to be a church at Tacoma, but on account of hobby-riding preachers the church was ruined. There still remains some three or four who still hold to the faith. Brother Jaeger and family are sound in the faith.

Tacoma is an energetic city, second to none in the beauty of its natural scenery. On the lower part of the city is the Puget Sound. The city is built on one massive hill, rising like a mountain from the Sound. Where the streets are running across the hill it is cut out flat, giving it the appearance of being built upon a terraced mountain side. It is veritably true of Tacoma, that it is a city set upon a hill which cannot be hid. At night the city is magnificently illuminated, which gives a pretty effect. The lighting of the business streets surpasses everything that I have seen in any city. On each side of the street are stretched wires, upon which are hung electric lights about five feet apart, and at the end of each block a magnificent arch of electric lights span the street, the lights being about eighteen inches apart, and in the center, over this hangs a large arc light. I asked them what was especially going on to cause this illumination? They said nothing, it was their usual city light.

Brother and Sister Jaeger spent time with me to show me points of interest. Their system of parks is fine. Sister Jaeger took me to Point Defiance Park. This is a natural woodland park of 640 acres, situated upon Puget Sound; the natural scenery excells the art of man. A portion of it is however up-to-date in modern decorating which shows a vast expenditure of money to make a pleasant resort for the people of Tacoma. They have a pier in the Sound, where steamers bring and take away people.

The Zoo is quite extensive, animals and birds from the various parts of the world are there exhibited, making it a fine study for students in natural history. I saw two other parks, besides this park. McKinley park was built entirely upon the side of a hill, commanding a beautiful sight of the city, and also the Puget Sound, where vessels of commerce and travel were coming and going.

Their large and beautiful school buildings show that the people of Tacoma appreciate the value of an education.

They are proud of Mount Tacoma, which lies nearest to them of any other city. This mountain is also sometimes called Mount Rainere, but they claim that Mount Tacoma is the proper name. It is the highest mountain in the United States outside of Alaska, being over 14,500 feet high.

On Tuesday morning Bro. Jaeger took me to the depot, when I departed for Felida, Wash. The son of Bro. and Sister Hathaway met me at the depot. The next day I was taken to the home of Bro. and Sister Wolf, at Lake Side, near Lake Vancouver, which is a short distance outside of the City of Vancouver. Meetings are now in progress at this place, which will be reported in our next Notes by the Way.

Those in California who desire to have me preach in their neighborhood will address me immediately in care of Bro. W. Prosser, Route 2, Box 44, Laurel, Oregon.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

W. H. WILSON.

Dear Restitution:

Bro. S. J. Lindsay of Illinois commenced a series of meetings in the Cong. church at Eastport, Michigan, on Sunday April 24, closing Sunday evening May 15.

Much interest was manifested and as a result Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Blakely, (parents of our much esteemed Bro. F. V. Blakely, of Grand Rapids) Miss Alpha Coburn and Vera Stebbins were baptized into Christ. Mrs F. C. Stebbins and Sister Carrie Chamberlin being convinced they did not have a full understanding of the gospel necessary before baptism were re-immersed.

As an able speaker and expounder of the truth, being thorough in the work, Bro. Lindsay needs no recommendation as all who have been fortunate enough to hear him understand.

Bible study was held during the last two weeks and all feel much strengthened in the faith.

Hoping our brother may be with us again some time in the future. Your sister in Christ.

CARRIE CHAMBERLIN.

Editor Restitution:

The dear old RESTITUTION has been a visitor in our home since I can remember. I feel I could not do without it, as it has such good letters from sisters and brothers of the precious faith. No one can fail to be enlightened who reads the many good articles given. I have never written a letter to the dear old paper, and as I feel the need of all precious faith and a good word from all, I will do my part. Often I see an article in the paper from Letitia Murphy, a dear, sweet Christian girl. I like to see a letter every week from her, and I have looked for a letter from Mrs. Azorah M. Scrogge for this long time. Wake up, dear sisters, for the time is drawing nigh when the trump shall sound, and we all shall come forth to meet our great Master, and greet our dear beloved ones that have fallen asleep in Christ.

Dear ones, let us be faithful, watching and waiting, trying to improve our talents so that we may hear the Master say Well done, good and faithful servants. May we all be prepared to meet the Savior in his bright glory, and may we have the prayers of all the dear brothers and sisters in Jesus Christ. May God grant that we live to meet one another some sweet day, if not in this life, may we all meet in the kingdom.

Your Sister in Christ,

MRS. D. E. YOUNG.

NOTICE.

Following the Conference at Antioch Meeting House, Marshall Co., Ind., there will be a Bible School held in Plymouth, beginning Monday, June 13th, and ending Sunday, June 19th. John L. Wince of Pierceton, Indiana, S. J. Lindsay of Oregon, Illinois, and Joseph Williams of Hillisburg, Ind., will be the instructors.

There is promise of a larger attendance than ever before. Come to Conference prepared to remain for the Bible School.

It would help the Committee on entertainment if those intending to be present, would write soon to the Secretary, Sister Lydia Railsback, at 621 South Fellows St., South Bend, Indiana.

WITH the ending of the first quarter of 1910, a number of subscription have expired, and should be renewed at once. Also others that have been hanging since the first of the year, ought to be attended to now. The new post office regulations make it imperative that the list be kept up, and besides we need what is due us. Please give this prompt attention, as living expenses cannot be reduced under the present standard of prices, besides calls for papers and tracts come more frequently than formerly. We try to keep all going, but some times it is a hard pull. Brethren, your help is needed to keep the work going. We have confidence that you will respond now, so thank you in advance.

Announcement.

D. C. Robison will preach for the Church at Roll, Indiana, over the 4th Sunday in May.

Brother L. E. Conner is to begin a series of meetings at Roll, Indiana, on June 6, and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

R. A. FRAZIER.

Ebenezer. 1. Sam 7, 12

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10623 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

Coming of the King.

The King of kings is coming again,
Coming here to this earth to reign;
Coming to raise the saints from the dust,
Bringing eternal life to the just.

The Lord of hosts is coming again,
Coming with millions in His train;
Coming His righteous reign to begin,
Coming to cleanse the earth from sin.

The Son of God is coming again,
Coming to banish death and pain;
Coming to wipe the tears from all eyes,
Coming to give the glorious prize.

The Son of Man is coming again,
Coming to earth like gentle rain;
Coming to fill the earth full of joy,
Destroying those who now destroy.

The Lamb of God is coming again,
Coming to earth He who was slain;
Coming to give the earth to the meek,
Coming His lowly ones to seek.

David's Son is coming again,
Coming to save the tried and slain;
Coming to raise His throne from the dust,
Coming to give thrones to the just.

Abraham's Seed is coming again,
Coming to Zion, there to reign;
Coming as told by the saints of old,
Coming to bring lambs to the fold.

Jesus the Christ is coming again,
Coming not for sorrow or pain;
Coming with power from His Father's throne,
Coming then to gather His own.

The long promised Seed is coming again,
Coming to end the sin of Cain;
Coming to take the earth's curse away,
May He come soon, we hope and pray.
—Dr. Wallace Mason.

According to promise we now announce the name of the last pledged subscriber—Sister J. G. Wilder, of Phoenix, Arizona.

All who donate to "Our Book Fund" will be notified by mail of the name and address of the brother or sister whom their generosity supplies with a book. Donators have the right to know who benefits by their bounty, and they shall know.

Bro. Almus Adams writes, "I wish we could induce every one who has pledged to take one of your books to sell at least one to some one else. It would double your sales. I send money for my pledge and one to match. Who will be the next?" Good example, Bro. Adams. Let others do likewise.

In this issue the reader will find an article by Robt. Cameron, the successor of the late Dr. A. J. Gordon, as editor of The Watchword. He is a noted Baptist clergyman, and while in the dark concerning the gospel of the kingdom of God, he evidently sees a little crevice of light through the dark wall of God's future purpose in the earth. Although only in the twilight of the truth, his article entitled "Reasons for my Hope in the Nearing Advent," makes interesting reading.

A Sample Letter.

Brother Huggins:

I think your suggestion in the last issue of THE RESTITUTION, to place a copy of your book, "The Bible, Its Principles and Texts," in the Public Library, a good one; and I would ask you to forward a copy addressed to, "The Public Library," Norwich, Ont. And please put a slip in the book asking the Librarian to announce in the Village Paper that she has received it.

Also send under separate cover, two copies to my address, one copy to R. S. Day, Leroy, Mich, and one copy to Isaac Hogarth, Tillsonburg, Ont.

I believe this book, coming from your, clear convincing and devoted pen will do much good if placed in the hands of thoughtful readers, in search of "Truth."

I am inclosing $5.00 for the above order. Trusting that "The Bible, Its Principles and Texts" may have a ready sale, disseminate much gospel truth.

I am yours in faith.
J. D. HOGARTH.

Training the Will.

No one need fear in reading this little essay to find any metaphysical speculations as to the "freedom of the will," or the "determing motive," or anything else that is not of the plainest and most practical kind of talk. There are plenty of learned volumes in which these abstruse topics are discussed, and to such volumes the curious reader is referred. It is a fact that the will may be trained and only with this fact and some of the methods of accomplishing it we have now to do As this is a vital question with parents, no topic is more appropriate for discussion in this column.

Webster defines the will to be "the power of choosing; the faculty or endowment of the soul by which it is capable of choosing; the faculty of preferring or selecting one or two or more objects." Now the object of training the will is to enable it to choose rightly, wisely, justly, nobly. If we wish a child to choose virtue we must make virtue attractive, and whatever we wish a child or an adult to choose we must make attractive to them.

"We needs must love the highest when we see it," and loving it we must choose it, for the heart is kindled by the intellect, and by direct appeals to the sensibilities. Little children taken from the very gutters and subjected to the benign influences of the Kindergarten soon choose order, docility, cleanliness, gentleness and loveliness. Why? Because through appeals to the eye and ear and heart they are made to see the beauty of order, of docility, of gentleness, of loveliness. Forty years ago it was supposed by many that nothing but hickory and birch could subdue the wills of children. We have a most vivid recollection of seeing a row of boys adorn the school-room with toes at one crack, fingers at another, and backs forming a semi circle, waiting patiently for "Master Kane" with his hickory to break their wills and almost break their backs so they would be disposed to submit to his arbitrary behests. The trainer of the will must understand the various cababilities of the child whose will is to be trained. Some children are muscular, some are nervous, some are frail, some by nature love art, others science, others mechanics, others agriculture. No amount of training will make a boy of slender muscle and fine intellectual fiber choose heavy farming. It can't be done. The natural tendencies of a child must be carefully taken into the account in training his will. A father satisfied that in the love of the soil his son would find his best safeguard from the temptations of cities, determined to cultivate this love. But the son was frail in body and naturally inclined to books. All the more did his father stimulate his love for the soil. He hired the heavy work done, he interested his son in budding and grafting, in pruning, and in rearing domestic animals. He gave him his own trees and vines and horses and cows, and succeeded in developing such a love for rural life and rural labor that his son became an enthusiast in horticulture. The father had been almost ruined as an agriculturist by being set to solitary tasks of sprouting potatoes in dark and lonely cellar, of picking up huge piles of stones in a barren corn field, of hoeing long rows of potatoes with no companion to lighten the toil, and he didn't think when he got to be a man that that kind of discipline when a boy did him any good.

On a remote farm in New England six boys grew to manhood and successively on attaining their majority became sailors. There was no "nautical blood" in the family, but on the parlor mantel piece was a lovely model of a ship under a glass globe. This it was that captured their hearts and compelled each one to choose "a life on the ocean wave."

Fifty years ago a baby boy was rescued from the jaws of death, and because of his deliverance was consecrated to the Christian ministry by his clerical father and his devotedly pious mother. As he grew to manhood the ministry was constantly held before him as his final goal, but he was made a clerk in a country store to earn his living and then travelling agent for some prominent manufacturer, and while he was still exhorted to consider himself a candidate for the ministry, everything was done that could be done to make a merchant of him. And when he did finally become a wealthy and prominent wholesale merchant and importer his parents felt that he had voluntarily turned his back on the ministry, forsaken the cause of God and imperiled his soul. Strange as this may seem it is a fact, and the mother still sheds bitter tears over her "prodigal son." Neither children nor grown folks are any longer scourged into obedience. Compulsion in various ways must often be used, but only clumsy and stupid people depend on compulsion in its severe rigid forms. Love compels, interest compels, but in a very different way from fear and pain. When a child is won to virtue, to industry, to nobility of purpose, he is subject to no reactions. And summing all we have said the art of training the will is the art of winning.

My Reasons for Hope in the Nearing Advent.

The reasons for believing that we are within a very short time of the Advent and the end, are so many, that one finds it difficult to say what reason is stronger than the other. But first, let me say frankly, that I feel very much grieved when people talk about "the end of the world." So far as I understand the teaching of the Scriptures, the world will never end. The present order of things will soon come to an end. This is what our Lord referred to when he said the sin against the Holy Spirit would not be forgiven "in this age or in the age to come." When he spoke of "the age to come," he had no reference whatever to what we mean when we speak of eternity. Our Lord was simply showing the gravity of sin against the Holy Spirit, stating that it could not be forgiven during this period, which is characterized by the following facts:—

1. The blindness of Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles is come in. That is, as I understand it, until the full complement of the Gentiles, under the preaching of the gospel, has been brought to the acceptance of the Lord Jesus.

2. The calling out of a remnant of both Jews and Gentiles, to become members of the Body of Christ, so as to reign conjointly with him during the millennial period.

3. By governmental authority, or supremacy over the world, remaining entirely in the hands of Gentile nations, whose rule under the direction of "The god of this age," is compared to that of wild beasts. Instead of growing better, the governments are represented as growing worse, for the beasts descend from the kingly lion at the head, to the unnamed beast who trends down and destroys everything in his path at the end. Jewish rejection, election from among all nations to the obedience of faith, and, a ferocious rule of the world by its rulers, will characterize this present age. This will end when "the age to come," is put in subjection to the larger Christ, made up of the Church which is his Body, and himself, the Head, according to Heb. ii. 5. Remember that "world to come," means inhabited earth to come in this passage.

When we turn to Matt. xxiv. we have certain characteristics of this age which are to continue to the end. They are briefly: false Christs, wars and rumor of wars, nation rising against nation, famines, earthquakes, and hatred given to the saints by all nations, together with the cooling down of the love of the majority of professed believers. None of these things can indicate that the coming of the Lord is near, but they do indicate that we are still living in the present evil age, but we have not reached that glorious age to come.

With the year-day theory and the counting of years from various events that have happened in the past, I not only have no sympathy, but cannot endure them. Our Lord has said that no man shall know the day or hour, and I think that also includes the year. But he does say, when we see certain things begin to come to pass, we are to lift up our heads. He also says, "Immediately after the tribulation of those days.....and then shall appear the sign of the Son of Man in heaven." In other words, the advent will be preceded by a terrible tribulation, such as never was, and never will be repeated. Paul, in the same spirit declares to the Thessalonians that although the advent of the Lord will be like "a thief in the night" to the world, to us who believe, that day should not overtake us as a thief, for we are all sons of the light and sons of the day." Therefore there are events that unmistakably indicate the advent of the Lord.

Among these signs are, the general apostacy in the professed church of God, the spread of spiritism all over the world, the difficult times in which we live with its unnatural affections and crimes, the prevalence of the form of Godliness everywhere throughout Christendom without any manifestation in the daily life, the gradual formation of the ten kingdoms into which the Eastern and Western divisions of the old Roman Empire existed, the marvelous coming to the front of the four divisions of the Alexandrian Empire—which prophecy indicates shall re-exist at "the end of time"—the working of great combinations that indicate the possibility of having one great tyrannical ruler all over the world and the church called the "man of lawlessness," the mysterious vagaries of modern science, that all point to the deification of man, and the dethronement of God, the marvelous increase of travel and of knowledge as foretold by Daniel, the extraordinary zeal in preaching the gospel to every creature, side by side with the paradoxical decrease of Christian zeal, together with the marvelous accumulation of wealth in the hands of a few, all these point to the nearness of the end.

But to my mind, the present movements amongst the Jews are the surest signs that the end is at our doors. Israel was to be scattered amongst all nations, but, only "until the times of the Gentiles were fulfilled." These times began when the governmental supremacy over the world was taken from the hands of the Jews and put into the hands of the Gentiles under Nebuchadnezzar. Our Lord acknowledged that this sovereignty, or authority, existed in the Roman Empire when he stood before Pontius Pilate. We have only to open our eyes and see that the sovereignty of the world from the days of Nebuchadnezzar until now, has been, and still is in the hands of the Gentiles. Our Lord indicated to the apostles that the Father, in his own good time, would restore that sovereignty back into the hands of Israel again; for, although "the children of Israel shall abide many days without a prince, and without a sacrifice," yet "afterwards shall the children of Israel return, and seek Jehovah, their God, and David their king.....in the latter days." In other words, after this long period of desolation in Palestine and wandering in the world, God will again put into the hands of Israel, under their true king—that is, the true David, or, Beloved, the supreme dominion under the whole earth, and then we shall have the reign of righteousness upon the earth, so long promised and prayed for.—Robert Cameron, D. D.

Our Mail Bag.

Sister Ellen A. Ferguson, Sheridan, Ind., the first one to pledge for a book, and among the first ones to remit for same, says, "I am anxious to get my book. I am strong in the faith, but am isolated—have not heard a sermon in two years. I am strong in the faith, and am home sick to hear some one tell the truth. I wish to know more of the way of salvation. I am 73 years old. Would like to see the Lord come."

Brother Huggins:

I have for many years been a subscriber to THE RESTITUTION, and its tenets appeal to my convictions. You will therefore pardon my addressing you as Brother. I was brought up in the Presbyterian faith, and I am now a member of that body. It is needless to tell you that I have few sympathizers with my views. "The kingdom is within you" is the doctrine taught. The most devoted members of the church are the most unreasonable persons to argue with. Our pastor, however, is broad minded and takes THE RESTITUTION from me. He says that he likes many of the articles published therein. I see that your book is now ready, and I enclose P. O. order for $2 00. I want two copies, one to my own address and one for my only son now and for many years resident of Newport, R. I.

OUR BOOK FUND.

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." Psalm xli 1 4.

The amount set opposite our names is to help Bro. Robt. G. Huggins supply the worthy poor with "The Bible: Its Principles and Texts." For this purpose the book is to be sold at the reduced price of 85 cents per copy.

Gold Dust.

Faith is following truth even though no one sees you.

To persuade one soul to lead a better life is to leave the world better than you found it.

"Obedience is better than sacrifice. The greatest thing in all the world is a heart prepared to do thy will, O, God. Not silver, nor gold, nor the jewels of Ophir; but the love of a human heart, toward God and man."

"The wrath of hostile criticism in seeking to destroy the life of the Scriptures has but crushed its spices, sending forth their fragrance to the skies. The truth is indestructible. All flesh is as grass and the glory of man as the flower of the field that withereth. The grass withereth and the flower fadeth, but the Word of our God shall stand forever."

Sunday School Lesson.

MAY 29, 1910.

The Multitudes Fed. Matthew xiv. 13-21; xv. 29-39.

Golden Text.—"Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life." John vi. 35.

We have here the two miracles, one feeding the 5000 at the north end of the Sea of Galilee, in the spring of A. D. 29, and then a few weeks later the feeding of the 4000 down on the east side of the same sea.

We will remember that at the ending of our last lesson word was taken to Jesus that John was beheaded. "When Jesus heard of it, he departed thence by ship into a desert place apart."

Let us look at the existing conditions. The death of John must have been a shock to Jesus. They were cousins, and John's life work was to herald the coming of Jesus Messiah. Jesus knew John had faithfully done his work, and also knew he had been fearless as well as faithful in his labor, and that for this devotion to purity and truth he had suffered death. This foul murder of John would indicate the perils that beset the pathway not only of Jesus himself, but of those who were to follow on with the work. A number of Jesus' disciples had been out on a tour through Galilee, and had brought back word of work so far done, and they needed instruction and advice. This could be better attended to by taking a rest, and going off by themselves to a place where they could hold a sort of conference meeting, and make plans.

Did this plan succeed?

"When the people had heard thereof, they followed him on foot out of the cities." The multitudes followed, and bringing their sick interfered with the rest and meditation of Jesus and his disciples.

Did Jesus get angry at being disturbed and drive them away?

No. "He had compassion on them, and he healed their sick."

When evening came what did the disciples advise?

They saw it was a desert place, and it was time the multitude should disperse to the villages for food. Jesus said they need not depart, and tells his disciples to give them food; but they object stating they have but five loaves and two fishes. The idea of feeding all these from such a scanty supply, was out of the question so far as his followers could see, but Jesus said that all should sit down. Mark's account shows that they were arranged in order by hundreds and fifties. Then Jesus took the loaves and fishes, and after asking his Father's blessing, handed to his disciples and they distributed to the people, who ate till all were filled, after which they took up twelve baskets full that were left. The number of this multitude is given as 5000, besides the women and children.

Following the account given by Matthew we learn that Jesus sent his disciples away in the ship, while he dismissed the people, and then went alone to the mountain to pray. A storm arose on the sea, and the wind was contrary, alarming those on the ship. Jesus goes to them, walking on the water, and we have the story of Peter attempting the feat, his heart becoming faint, and he beginning to sink. He cried out "Lord, save me." Jesus put forth his hand and caught him, and reprimanded him for his want of faith. When he came into the ship the wind ceased and the sea was calm.

When they came to shore in the land of Gennesaret, and those on the ship told about what had happened, again the people worshiped Jesus and brought the sick, and "besought him that they might only touch the hem of his garment, and as many as touched were made perfectly whole."

Following up the account we see how again the Scribes and Pharisees of Jerusalem came and found fault with Jesus, declaring that his disciples transgressed the traditions by not washing their hands before eating. Jesus shows that it is not what goes into the mouth that defiles, but what comes from the heart. He tells them that "out of the heart proceeds evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornication, thefts, false witness, blasphemies." These defile a man more than what he may eat.

We have then the case of the Syrophenician woman whose daughter was possessed of an unclean spirit beseeching Jesus to cast it forth, and how after a time her great faith prevailed and her request was granted.

After this Jesus went toward the Sea of Galilee, only further down the coast, and as he sat down "great multitudes came unto him, having with them those who were lame, blind, dumb, maimed, and many others, and cast them down at Jesus feet, and he healed them."

How did the people feel about this?

They wondered at what they saw, and glorified the God of Israel.

Jesus spoke to his disciples, saying he had compassion on the multitude, as they had been with him three days with nothing to eat, and if he sent them away fasting they would faint in the way.

Again the disciples wonder, for there are 4000 men besides the women and children, and they have but seven loaves and a few little fishes. But Jesus commands that all be seated, blesses the food, gave it to his disciples to distribute, and when all had eaten their fill, seven baskets full were left.

There are many things to bring out in this lesson that will help us in our work for the elevation and enlightenment of others. We need to learn that Jesus can provide for all our wants, but he wants us to step out on the water with full confidence and faith in him. Our own strength will not suffice. It means reliance on God for all things. Human need supplies the object for performing a miracle. There was an emergency calling for extraordinary deeds. How can the situation be met? Jesus here gives a challenge to faith. Andrew asks "What are these among so many?" The appeal is made to God, and his blessing asked. We should bless his name for each and every meal supplied us.

Does Jesus, like some fakir, make his passes and command the loaves to swell until he has enough for the multitude? No. He simply breaks off pieces of the bread and gives to his disciples, making them partners with him in feeding the people. There was no great display of power, but a quiet, unostentatious distributing till all are filled, and then carefully gathering all that is not needed, teaching that nothing should be wasted.

The question comes to us each, How many loaves have you? Looking over your possessions, viewing your broad fields, fine houses, counting your bank account. Remember it is Jesus who says "How many loaves have you?" Even if you have but five, and they be small ones, by getting God's blessing to go with them, a wonder is performed. Alone you can do nothing. You will not take a class in Sunday school because you "are not fitted" for it,—you have no ability in that line. Think of it seriously. Don't it seem childest to say you are not called on to do what you have no ability for in yourself? If such an argument were good the multitudes would have gone away hungry. Jesus looked to his Father for blessing and increasing the loaves, and was not disappointed. We should learn to come "just as I am," and God will surely make us to increase more and more to be just what we ought to be.

There are fragments to gather. Moments of time soon make hours. Have you but one hour left? Don't waste it because it is only one. Let the fingers fly the faster, that your task may be done. Don't waste opportunities. The better one you hope for may never come. Don't waste money. A cent today, a nickel tomorrow—how quickly a dollar is saved. Gather them, for there are hungry ones today just as Jesus found long ago.

Jesus said "I am the bread of life." He is the life of the world. His is the only name whereby life can be attained. Are you his disciple? Then you are bound to distribute this "bread" to the multitude. Your time, your opportunities, your money is his, and you must account for the stewardship. This is a solemn thought, and should hold each heart close to him.

LET all make note of the change in Brother Huggins' address. It is now 10623 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. As many will be sending for his book which is just now ready, it is important that you have the correct address.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

JUNE MEETING.

The Annual "June Meeting" and Conference of the Church of God in Indiana, will be held at Antioch, in Marshall County, commencing Friday June 10, and holding over Sunday, June 12th. A Committee on Program has been appointed and the program will be published in due time.

We anticipate a good meeting and trust that all who can, will avail themselves of the privilege of attending. Come, brothers and sisters to this meeting. "Let us not forsake the assembling of ourselves together." Come in the spirit of the Master, and we shall be blessed.

We expect Brother Lindsay, Broth-Williams, Brother Wagoner and others, who will open to us the beautiful truths of God's eternal purpose in blessing the nations.

This may be the last meeting this side the kingdom. Come, bring your children and stay for the BibleSchool to be held at Plymouth, commencing Monday, June 13. We are expecting the largest class for our Bible School we have ever had. We hope to have children, young people and old folks from every congregation in the state. Bring your friends with you. Our friends outside the state are most cordially invited.

To the Brethren in Michigan, greeting:

The Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Michigan will convene at Dutton, Michigan, commencing Thursday evening, June 2nd, continuing over Sunday, the 5. Plan to allow of your attendance as we are expecting an unusually interesting meeting and some important matters are to be brought up that demands your presence and interest, one of these relative to the change of time of our Annual meeting. At present it conflicts with the public schools, making it impossible for many of our young people to attend. It is desired to change the Conference until the last week in June. It is from the young people that we must draw our recruits and we must therefore arrange meetings making it convenient for them to be present.

If unable to be present, please write the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette St., Grand Rapids, Mich., stating your views, and they will be presented at the meeting as your voice.

Dutton is situated in Kent County, on the Grand Rapids branch of the Michigan Central Railway, ten miles from Grand Rapids, a train leaving at 7 a m, and one at 4 p m. Ask railroad agents for information as to time of trains, and don't fail to come.

The Programme committee submit the following programme, subject to change:

Editor Restitution:

With heart and hope revived, I desire with ink and pen to thank the good Lord for your kindness toward us. Since April 7, I am disabled from doing manual labor, but the Lord has blessed me with strength to go and preach his Word boldly, and with "all confidence, no man forbidding," John vii. 26 28; Acts xxviii. 28-31.

Last Sunday, May 1, I had the pleasure of preaching twice in a new school house, and handing some Bible Pearls to interested men and women. Our first subject was 2 Timothy iv 1-8, and after taking part in their Bible lesson in Luke xii. I tried to handle 2 Peter i. 16 21

Please allow me to thank Sister Wince for that long story, which gets better as it grows older. Amen.

The world to come, alas, to some (Hebrews ii. 5; vi. 5) has no charm in it, (Luke xx. 35) but others hear it and hold it dear (Revelation xxii. 1-14) as soon as they embrace it, (Acts vii. 37 39)

Yours in Christian love,
R. A. HEMPHREYS.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Berean meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 303 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Roliston's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell him that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind, not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, but neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application. Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Symbols of Rev. xiii. No. 2.

Verse 11. "And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon." Here is where the expositors are at sea without a compass, not understanding the symbols used: some labor hard to identify it with the papacy; they make poor work because the facts are against their exposition. This being the most common view, I will cite some of the difficulties that present themselves when that view is taken.

First the papacy comes up from the sea; and this beast comes from "the earth." This is fatal to their contention. Now for the proof that the papacy came from the sea; Dan vii 8, reads in describing the fourth beast that he saw come from the sea; "I considered the horns, and, behold, there came up among them another little horn, before whom there were three of the first horns plucked up by the roots; and, behold, in this horn were eyes like the eyes of man, and a mouth speaking great things." All protestant expositors that I have ever read, apply this to the papacy: and it all has abundantly met its counterpart in every respect in that power. So the fact that the papal horn came upon the head of the fourth beast that Daniel says came from the sea, is proof that the papacy came from the sea; and therefore cannot be identical with the beast from the earth. In the second place, the papacy is represented in the leopard beast after he receives the mouth of verse 5 being the last phase of the Roman Empire as indicated by Daniel and by John. Now in the history of the rise of the papacy what do we find in relation to its origin: "Eighteen successive exarchs were invested, in the decline of the empire with the full remains of civil, of military, and even of ecclesiastical power. Their jurisdiction was afterwards consecrated as the patrimony of St. Peter Gibbon chapter 45, page 408. (Exarchate of Ravenna.) So we find that the remaining power of Rome was given to the bishop of Rome; that constituted him an eighth head or phase of the empire, "And of the Seven" Rev xvii 11. Therefore his genealogy is of royal extraction; he wears a triple crown. If the symbol of Rev xiii 11 was intended to represent the papacy it should have three crowned horns—not two crownless horns.

It is held by some that this symbol represents Charlemagne; on this head it is sufficient to say that this two horned symbol is a "last day manifestation: he is the false prophet that works miracles in the sight of the beast, and is cast into the lake of fire with the beast. Rev xiii 14 and 19, 20. The royal house of Charlemagne has disappeared long ago: Therefore this last day symbol could not represent Charlemagne. Charlemange and Napoleon both tried to unite the broken fragments of the divided Roman empire; both failed and their empires are no more ruled by their posterity. Now some one will say you have told us what the symbol does not represent; now tell us what it does represent.

In the metalic image of Daniel we find gold, silver, brass, iron and clay; each metal represents a government—and for some reason no wild beast is named as represented by the clay, but here in the two horned symbol of Rev. xiii 11 we have the full complement, omitted in the view given to Daniel; and indeed we may infer from what is there written that we may expect more to come in relation to the clay of the image.

In Dan ii 35 we read, "Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, broken to pieces together," etc. Now if there be no clay nation, or nations on the earth when the stone strikes the image in the latter day; how can the clay be broken to pieces if it be more than individuals in the iron nation. What I shall attempt to prove is that the two horned symbol has clay nation composed of the common people, republicans, democrats as contrasted with royalty; and as all the symbols used in the Bible have their roots in Moses and the prophets—there we go for the proof of our exposition. In Deut xxxii 1 we read, "Give ear, O ye heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth." In this song Moses addresses two classes The heavens are those officials in authority, the governing class, and the earth—the common people. In Hosea ii 21 it is made more easy to be understood: "And it shall come to pass in that day, I will hear, saith the Lord, I will hear the heavens, and they shall hear the earth; and the earth shall hear the corn, and the wine, and the oil, and they shall hear Jezreel." This testimony indicates plainly that the heavens are one class of men, and that the earth is another. And when we come to the book of Revelations it is necessary to understand the symbolism of the "earth," and of the "heaven." In the first verse of the 12th chapter a woman appears in the "heaven." Now if we say this is the heaven where God is; then we have the dragon, the old serpent, the devil and Satan making war on the woman. That will be an erroneous view surely. But if we say it is the heaven of the Roman empire where the war between the pagans and the Christians took place for the control of the empire, we find such a war did take place, and that the officials represented by the dragon was cast out of the heaven. And in that same chapter it is written that, "the earth helped the woman and opened her mouth and swallowed up the flood that the dragon cast out of his mouth." Verse 16. Before we can give a truthful exposition of the symbol that "comes up out of the earth," we must first understand what the earth is a symbol of Now I affirm that it is a symbol of the common people as distinguished from the royalty; the last mentioned occupying the heavens and the former the earth. Therefore we read that the dragon was cast out of heaven into the earth. he lost his royal position, and became a plebian—one of the common people at Rome. Now with this understanding of the earth as a symbol, how did the earth help the woman in her contest with the dragon? Constantius the father of Constantine was married to Helena, the daughter of an inn keeper. Constantine was about "eighteen years of age when his father was promoted to the rank of Caesar; but that unfortunate event was attended with his mother's divorce; and the splendor of an Imperial alliance reduced the son of Helena to a state of disgrace and humiliation. Constantius died about 14 years after being raised to the rank of Caesar. His death was immediately succeeded by the elevation of Constantine by the soldiers. The decent and even obstinate resistance of Constantine which he chose to affect, was contrived to justify his usurpation. .....In a letter to the emperor of the east he lamented that affectionate violence of his troops had not permitted him to solicit the imperial purple in the regular and constitutional manner.

Again Gibbon says, "The virtues of Constantine were rendered more illustrious by the vices of Maxentius. While the Gallic provinces enjoyed as much happiness as the condition of the times was capable of receiving, Italy and Africa groaned under the dominion of a tyrant, as contemptible as he was odious." Thus God in his providence controlled events so that the people—the symbolic "earth" anxiously desired Constantine to free them from the tyrrany of the pagan emperors. Constantine's military march from Brittan to Rome was one of continuous victories—and of the joyful acclamations of the people—hailing him as their deliverer from oppression. Then his giving freedom to the Christians from persecution by the pagans, "helped the woman." In the light of this prophetic symbolism and its exact fulfilment we may now have an understanding how "the earth helped the woman:" "and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the flood which the dragon cast out of his mouth." (verse 16). We can also readily understand what is indicated by the symbol coming up out of the earth.

In my next I will notice the beast of the earth and its counterpart.

GEORGE FRANCIS.

Abraham Believed God.

Paul in Romans says, Abraham believed God and it was counted to him for righteousness. This indicates that he was without righteousness naturally. Abraham the Chaldean possessed no righteousness and in order to become the friend of God he must acquire it. Paul declared (Rom iii 9) both Jew and Gentile are under sin. God hath concluded all in unbelief that he might have mercy on all. This mercy is extended through faith in his Son. The Scripture hath concluded all under (shut up unto) sin that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given to them that believe. Gal iii 22. In this we learn that God's purpose was that we should receive the promise through faith in Jesus the Christ. By this means we are to be counted righteous. We are by nature children of wrath. There is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God (while in our natural state.)

Abraham was counted righteous because he obeyed the voice of Jehovah. When he was told to get out of his country and his father's house he obeyed. For thus it is written, I will make of thee a great nation and I will bless thee and I will make thy name great, and thou shalt be a blessing. I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee; and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed." Genesis xii. 2 3. Abram departed as the Lord had spoken unto him. He came into the land of Canaan. When he and all he had came into this land, the Lord appeared to him and said, Unto thy seed will I give this land. There he builded an alter unto the Lord who appeared unto him. Abram believed the promise given, and honored the Lord by offering a sacrifice.

Previous to this Abraham was an idol worshipper. He has forsaken this form of worship, and has erected an alter unto the Lord that appeared unto him. This constitutes the call of Abraham. He believed that the Lord would give him the land and a seed to inherit it.

In tracing the seed here spoken of, we find two seeds in the promise, viz: the unit seed, which Paul declares to be Christ, Galatians iii. 16, also the numerous fleshly seed. The promise made to each was that it should possess the land as an everlasting possession, and that each should bless the nations. The unit seed was to produce a numerous seed which is to be spiritual, and will be the royal seed and be rulers in the kingdom. Jehovah has been selecting this seed since the call of Cain and Abel.

In the study of the promise made to Abraham, the lines should be plainly marked. This fleshly seed will be Judah and Israel restored. Under the old or law covenant, the numerous fleshly seed possessed the land under conditions of obedience. If ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people, for all the earth is mine. And ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests and an holy nation. Their continued possession depended on their keeping the law, which Paul said was a schoolmaster to lead them to Christ. The law made nothing perfect but the bringing of a better hope did. The law contained but the shadow of good things to come. It has vanished, but the original covenant was ratified by the blood of Christ. Now the God of peace that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant. Hebrews xiii.

The unbroken covenant made with our fathers concerning the two seeds, viz: th spiritual and fleshly, Ezekiel xx. 35 I will bring you into the wilderness of the people, and there will I plead with you face to face. Like I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so will I plead with you, saith the Lord God. And I will cause you to pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant. Thus will he purge the rebels out, and the obedient will possess the land forever.

In Jeremiah xxxi. 31. we read of the nature of this covenant, Behold the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house (kingdom) of Israel and Judah. Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt, which my covenant they break, although I was an husband to them, saith the Lord. (This was the law covenant.) But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel. After those days saith the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts. I will be their God, and they shall be my people. They shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother (as now) saying, Know the Lord, for they shall all know me from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord; for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more.

The continuation of the sun and the moon is given as a pledge of the perpetuity of this covenant. Under this covenant will Israel dwell safely. Amos says. I will plant them upon their land, and they shall no more be pulled up out of their land which I have given them, saith the Lord thy God.

The fleshly seed will possess the land forever, and will be beloved subjects for the fathers' sakes. The gifts and calling of Jehovah are without repentance. The covenant with Abraham was that this seed should inherit the land forever. They did not attain unto it under the law covenant, but will most assuredly under the new covenant. As subjects they will assist in blessing the nations. Isaiah lxv. calls them the seed of the blessed of the Lord, and their offspring with them. They will constitute a part of the kingdom of Israel restored.

Your Brother waiting for this great event,

D. C. ROBISON.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 86.

Can Auntie Willard be happy now that the ties of more than fifty years have been broken? We have seen her at the funeral, sitting in perfect peace looking into the face of her dead companion, "Soon to be made alive to die no more." But, will this peace abide? Will she be able to go on with the Master's work as before? Will there be no faltering, no quenching of the lamp of truth, no hiding of her talent in a napkin. "Though troubles assail her and dangers affright," we shall see. It will not be a smooth path that she will have to tread. There will be lions and doubting castles, and sloughs of despond on the onward journey, her heart will be pierced by many a thorn; she will see loved ones turned aside from the narrow way, and plunge recklessly into the abyss of death, and will shed bitter tears over their folly; some of her most earnest prayers will be unanswered; she will be crippled and imprisoned in her own little room, and nearly blind, will be deprived of the comfort of reading the Holy Book, and of writing to beloved friends; it will be indeed "a furnace of affliction," that she will pass through, but she will triumph in it all, and come off victor in the end. You will sometimes find her grieving over her own frailty and lack of self control, and crying out "O God, Thou knowest my foolishness and my sins are not hid from Thee." And yet, you will see her [illegible] "no compromise with sin and evil,—the world, the flesh and the devil, but having increasing fellowship with the apostle, in 2 Cor. xii. 10.

"Therefore I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions in distresses for Christ's sake; for when I am weak then am I strong." "This" she said "was triumph in Christ. 'My strength made perfect in weakness' saith the Lord. 'Most gladly therefore will I glory in my infirmities that the power of Christ may rest upon me.' I have felt glad of these fiery trials which alone could be productive of such joy—the pure fruit of the Spirit."

THE HALO.

"O! if ever the Sun of Righteousness looks beautiful, it is when he rises so bright over the gloom of the grave as to dispense its darkness and cause the believing heart to rejoice in hope of the glory of God soon to be revealed.

'My husband is dead!' cried out an earnest Christian—the stricken widow of the late Brother Shelby,—an honored member of the Police Department of Philadelphia. 'My husband is dead, and not as some believe, partly dead and partly alive. But he died in the Lord, therefore he rests in him and will be restored to me and I to him, where sickness and death can never come.'

As she uttered these words, her tears ceased to flow and a smile of joy lighted up her face that shed a halo over the scene. O! how my own heart swelled with praise at such a blessed consolation as the Bible pours into the wounded, bleeding heart in the awful hour of bereavement. Nothing short of the resurrection of the dead one, can in any way meet the case. The stroke is only bearable by the comforting hope that I shall see him again in a perfect state never to die any more." Thus Auntie Willard felt and wrote, even while the arrow was rankling in the recent wound.

She was not 'looking backward but forward,' as she had once bidden me, and there was joy in her look and happiness in her mien, because every onward step was bringing her nearer to the time when, as depicted by John Barber in "Christian Similitudes," the righteous dead would be seen rising from their bursting tombs, their faces uplifted, their hands outstretched toward the descending Christ; each and every one clad in a robe of ethereal brightness, outshining the splendor of the sun. And while her eyes were turned heavenward, watching and waiting for Jesus, her pen was still busy in an humble endeavor to instruct others. Readiness for the coming of the Master, was a favorite theme. As you see from the following exhortation—entitled—"Be Ready my Brother, my Sister." Are we prepared to meet Jesus? Are we ready? This is the great question of the day. To be ready we must cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God.' As counterfeits gather thick around us in the last hour of strife, I pray God that we be not deceived." The 'New Revelations' of these days, are but ignis-fatuus lights, and if we cast for these our faithful "away and discard" the Book that might have been our guide, we will sink down to death in the fatal quagmires of unbelief, where no hand will be stretched forth to save.

'God is not mocked, for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption, but he that soweth to the Spirit, shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting.' Gal. vi. 7,8.

O! what a blessed state is readiness. 'Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God.' Herein is readiness, 'Beloved if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence before God.' How blessed to be able to look up with a glowing face and an open heart. This is readiness, bless God! but it is not all; this pure heart, these living hands, feet eyes, mouth sensibilities, all;—soul body and spirit must be offered and kept on the altar, a living sacrifice to do his will, as if there were not another spirit within but his.

This is readiness. This is trading with the pound instead of keeping it laid away in a napkin, that when the Nobleman shall return, having received the kingdom. We may with joy, present unto him his own with a suitable increase. 'Occupy until he comes.'"

THE GIFT OF GOD.

Deut. xvi. 17, "Every man shall give as he is able according to the blessing of the Lord thy God which he hath given thee." "Give and it shall be given you, good measure pressed down and shaken together and running over shall men give into your bosom for with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again. Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give, not grudgingly or of necessity for God loveth a cheerful giver; for if there be first a willing mind it is accepted according to what a man hath." Paul says, "I have shewed you all things how that so laboring ye ought to support the weak and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive. Jesus said, I am the Good Shepherd. The Good Shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends. God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life. For by grace are we saved through faith and that not of ourselves, it is the Gift of God." What more could we ask?

ESTHER BURTON.

What is Needed Now?

We are nearing the end of the dispensation. The dark clouds are growing thicker and darker each day in our sky, and the Scripture of truth has announced that "In the last days perilous times shall come," and that "men shall depart from the truth," 2 Tim. chap. 3 and 4: 1 5. We need Calebs now, men who will wholly follow the Lord; Gideons, who keep close by the winepress, threshing out the grain to guard it from the enemy; Eleazars and Shammahs, who, single-handed, will defend and save the fruitful fields; Pauls and Peters, willing even to give up their lives for the truth; men like Timothy, as the others pass away, to commit the truth to others also, and not be discouraged by the repeated failures of men. 2 Tim. ii. 2.—"Help and Food."

WITH the ending of the first quarter of 1910, a number of subscription have expired, and should be renewed at once. Also others that have been hanging since the first of the year, ought to be attended to now. The new post office regulations make it imperative that the list be kept up, and besides we need what is due us. Please give this prompt attention, as living expenses cannot be reduced under the present standard of prices, besides calls for papers and tracts come more frequently than formerly. We try to keep all going, but some times it is a hard pull. Brethren, your help is needed to keep the work going. We have confidence that you will respond now, so thank you in advance.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D.C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

THE RESTITUTION is only $1.50 per year. Try it a year.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

LOOK! LOOK!

Brother or Sister:

When a blue pencil mark is by this notice, it signifies that according to our account your time has expired. Now, we are all liable to error, and possibly there is a mistake, and you have paid up. If such is the case we will cheerfully correct the account as soon as the error is pointed out. If on investigation you find you have not paid, we ask you to at once send us some money. We need it very much—indeed we have reached a point when we just must have relief at once. Please do give this attention right Now.

This is the week of the Fonthill, Ontario, meeting, and we are hoping they will have good weather, a large attendance, and an interesting and profitable meeting.

On Sunday, May 29, it being a fifth Sunday, the brethren of the Church at Plymouth are promised a visit from Brother D. C. Robison, State Evangelist of Ohio. Let all in the city be sure to get out, and all within driving distance also come. Hours for preaching are 10:30 in the morning and at 7:30 in the evening. Remember, next Sunday.

From present indications the Bible School at Plymouth after the June meeting at Antioch, will be largely attended. The committee in charge is arranging that all may be cared for, and with Brethren Lindsey, Williams and Wince as instructors, we are assured a profitable and enjoyable time. All who can arrange to be at the Conference and stay for the Bible school.

This office is in receipt of advance copies of Brother Huggins' new book, "The Bible: Its Principles and Texts." To undertake to describe this work is only to repeat what Brother Huggins has already said, so that we can only say that regarding the make-up of the book, he has told you faithful concerning its appearance in workmanship. As to the opinions expressed in the discussion of the subjects touched on, the author asks your careful reading of the book, and if his position is not well taken, kindly write him your views. Order of the author, or from this office.

"To the Unknown God."

I have chosen for my subject the address of Paul before the Supreme Court of Athens, an account of which is recorded in Acts xvii. 22.

Then Paul stood in the midst of Mar's Hill, or the Supreme Court of Athens, and said, "Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious. For as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, To the Unknown God. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you."

Then Paul tells them how that the God that they ignorantly worship was "the God that made the world, and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, and dwelleth not in temples made with hands; neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed anything, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath and all things; and hath made of one blood all nations of men, for to dwell on all the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation; that they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not far from every one of us; for in him we live and move and have our being; as certain also of our poets have said,

"For we are also his offspring."

"Forasmuch then as we are the offspring of God, we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold or silver or stone, graven by art and man's device." Heretofore God has overlooked this ignorance, "but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent; because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him, (Jesus Christ) from the dead; and when they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some mocked; and some said, We will hear thee again of this matter."

When these learned people of Athens heard the truth preached unto them, heard of the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, of the one true and living God and of Jesus Christ our Savior, some mocked, and others said they would hear him again.

Conditions, religiously, have not changed a very great deal from the time Paul uttered these words to the Supreme Court of Athens, until our own times; for today the people are very much like sheep, in that they follow their leader, and what he says, they believe, if he makes a big enough noise about it, or is rich or has a vast social influence.

Instead of studying the Word of God, the Bible, and following its teaching they would rather follow some popular ism, or set forth some cult of their own. The truth is too simple for the average person to see, then again, it is not liberal enough for them, so they erect their idols and worship them, and will not recognize the truth, as given by the Unknown God, for to them he is as surely unknown as he was that day at Athens.

Jesus, in Mark vii. 7, is recorded as saying, when the Pharisees and Scribes came to him, and asked him why his disciples did not walk according to the traditions of the elders and wash their hands before eating, "Well hath Esaias prophesied of you hypocrites, as it is written, This people honoreth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. Howbeit in vain do they worship me teaching for doctrines the commandments of men; laying aside the commandments of God." And he said unto them, "Full well ye reject the commandments of God, that ye may keep your own traditions. Every plant which my heavenly Father hath not planted shall be rooted up. Let them alone, they be blind leaders of the blind, and if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch."

Brothers and Sisters, and Friends: those were the conditions when Jesus was on earth and they are the same conditions today, and will continue to be the same until Jesus comes to set up his kingdom.

Paul in his letter to Timothy as recorded in his second letter, third chapter says, "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come; for men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, truce-breakers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof: from such turn away; for of this sort are they which creep into houses, and lead captive silly women laden with sins, led away with divers lusts."

"To the Unknown God." Many a person today is groping ignorantly, and as blind led by the blind in search of the Unknown God, and many there are who deliberately turn a deaf ear upon God's Word and say, I am satisfied with my own views of God's Word, Eph. iv. 18, 19, "Having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart; who being past feeling have given themselves to work all uncleanness with greediness."

Were Paul, or Jesus Christ, or any of the apostles today to go into any of our great cities, New York, for instance, they would surely find the city full of idols, idols erected to all the gods known to the lust of the flesh. The Stock Exchange wherein is worshipped money, Tammany Hall wherein is set up the idol of corrupt politics, where the worshippers would sell their nearest relative or best friend to gain the favor of this idol, the gilded palaces where the opera and actors are worshipped, the dance halls, the saloons, the gambling houses, the fine restaurants where the rich worshippers of money go where they worship the God of intemperance in eating and drinking, and then the places of worship of those who are groping after The Unknown God, they have their temples erected and their altars erected therein, but are like the Chinese in their joss house in Mott Street, they take their papers with their prayers written on and offer them to their idols, the god they believe in, but like those of Athens, they know not the one true and living God, the covenant making God, the God who made a covenant with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and sent Jesus Christ his Son to die that through his death we may have life eternal if we will obey his commandments until the end. Many ages have passed since Jehovah by Jeremiah said, "He that hath my Word, let him speak my Word faithfully." By God's favor we have his Word. Not only have we the volume in which God reveals himself to men, but we have the key to it. We do not say this boastfully but with profound gratitude. We do not possess the key to God's eternal purpose in regard to creation and redemption, because of superior wisdom or greater scholarship; but simply because we believe what God says.

In Genesis we are told how God made man, of what he made him, and what imparted life to him, and on what condition he could retain that life, and the course of conduct that would deprive him of that life. If God's Word is true, there was no man till he formed one of dust. If he told us the truth, the dust formed man was caused to live by the breath of life, and he causes man to die by taking away his breath. When man is deprived of breath he returns to his earth, the element he was made of and his thoughts perish that very day.

The Bible tells us the dead know not anything, do not praise God, go down into the silent grave, and without a resurrection can never live again.

Now if this is the truth, and the condition of man is as described, then this same God in making a plan of salvation for this man would make one that would be adapted to this kind of a man that he has made.

We believe man to be what God says he is, a dust man with the breath of life put in him, and when he dies he returns to the dust and the breath by which he lived, goes back to God, by whom we live and move and have our being. Therefore, when God sent Jesus to say to us, "I am the resurrection and the life," we see that life from the dead, by the resurrection, is the kind that suits the kind of man God says we are, for we surely die and need a resurrection from the grave, so we accept God's Word for it and lay hold on it.

The God we worship is to the majority of persons the same God which was unknown to those of Athens and unknown to those of today. The God which is worshipped by the masses is the one that man tells about, but God's Word is strangely silent about. Man's plan of salvation says their God has made man's body a dwelling house of clay to hold an immortal soul which will not die, and which goes to heaven or hell when the body of clay dies.

God's plan of salvation says, God only hath immortality, and that eternal life is the gift of God, unto the dust man, that does not have an immortal soul, through our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

God's plan of salvation is for his kingdom to be established on this earth, by his Son, Jesus Christ, when he comes again, to raise the dead saints from their graves and give them immortality, and therefore life everlasting in his kingdom, and make of them kings and priests and they will reign forever on this earth.

The truth of God is so simple, that once one gets the key to it, and fully understand it, it is as easy to unlock and drink deeply of the refreshing things therein as it is to open any door that you may have the right key to. If you do not have the key to it you then have as easy a task as if you were to try and unlock a safety deposit vault with a common door key and we all know what a task that would be. If we obey God's Word, search the Scriptures and obey them instead of cunningly devised fables, we will then know what has heretofore been to us, The Unknown God, and we will wonder at our blindness and will have the greatest cause for rejoicing, for then can be said of us, the same as Paul said to the Ephesians, "And you hath he quickened who were dead in trespasses and sins. Wherein in time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience; among whom also we all had our conversation in times past in the lusts of our flesh and of the mind; and were by nature the children of wrath, even as others; but God, who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherein he loved us, even when we were dead in sin hath quickened us together with Christ, (by whose grace ye are saved,) that in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Christ Jesus. For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God; wherefore remember that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh; that at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise; having no hope, and without God in the world; but now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were afar off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the Chief Corner Stone.

Brothers and Sisters had it ever occurred to you that we worship whom is to most people, The Unknown God?

What class of people, and how much of a following would Paul have today if he were to make a tour of America, and preach as he did when he was preaching before the Athenians, being as unknown to us as he was to them? I would venture to say his following would be about the same as then.

The people are too much of a pleasure, and ease loving people to study the Bible, they think it is too much of a mental effort to study it, they think too much of the idols of pleasure and money. The thing we put our money in is the thing we are interested in, and if we don't give the Lord's portion to his service we better look to our gods and see if we are not worshipping idols instead of the true and living God. We cannot serve the gods of this world, for if we do then we add wrath, covetousness, selfishness, pride and in the end eternal destruction to our lives, but if we worship the one true and living God, the Unknown God, to the world in general, then we must add to our lives according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue; whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises; that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust; and beside all this giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity, or love; for if these be in you and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall; for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

Having become acquainted with the Unknown God, I say with love to all of like precious faith: "Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord."

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

Sunday School Lesson.

JUNE 5, 1910.

Jesus Walks on the Sea. Matthew xiv. 22-36.

Golden Text.—"Then they that were in the ship came and worshipped him, saying, Of a truth thou art the Son of God." Matthew xiv. 33.

This incident in the life of Jesus is given by Matthew as between the two miracles of feeding the multitudes.

When the men who were present at the feeding of the multitude realized the stupendous miracle wrought, it seemed to grow on them, and they said "This is of a truth that prophet that should come into the world." John vi. 14. They began to lay plans to take Jesus by force and make him their king.

Does this plan suit Jesus?

No. His work was to be done differently, so he had His disciples get into the ship and go before him to the other shore. Meanwhile he sent the multitude away, and went by himself to the mountain to pray and commune with his Father. We get an example here that we would do well to emulate. Whenever there was a great question to be settled, or some matter that was of large importance, Jesus retired to a lonely spot for payer to and help from God. At this time his heart was sore, for the death of his cousin John was a shock to his sensitive nature, and he needed comfort such as only comes from communion with a higher power. Then temptation was laid before him. These men would elevate him to worldly position. They would make him their ruler, proclaim him king, and fight under his banner. To be chosen leader of the people, made king, would tempt the vanity of most men. Scarce a man living who would be able to resist such a call. However, this was contrary to the design of God, and must be set aside.

This lesson resolves itself into a study of the power Jesus had.

What was the power, and where did it come from?

This power had been displayed in the miraculous increase of the loaves and fishes, and yet the quiet and unostentatious manner in which this was done, so easily and quietly that perhaps few of the multitude realized what was being done till it was over. When they fully grasped the situation was when they desired to make Jesus king. He could care for and feed them in all places without thought of provisions, and with such a leader the fear of enemies would be nothing. He could strike them all dead with his power.

Satan had so tempted Jesus in the wilderness by offering him dominion, but he had refused the gift. So now he sends them away that he may be alone. Jesus needed another kind of power than that used to work miracles. He needed to compose his mind, to get strength for his life-work, and he realized that in secret quiet communion with God could he best get this.

Having been thus refreshed in spirit Jesus turns toward his disciples again. They were on the sea, battling with the storm, and winds and waves were contrary, so that they were in great peril.

Why did Jesus come walking on the water?

Perhaps there was no other boat, and he could go in no other way. At the time Jesus was tempted of the devil, he was taken to the highest pinacle of the temple, and told to cast himself down, and the angels would bear him up, as it was written of him Thou shalt not dash thy foot against a stone. Then Jesus refused to take advantage of such power for himself, but here we see him exercising a like power in walking on the water.

What did his disciples think it was they saw?

A spirit, a ghost, a phantom, an apparition, something not real.

How were the disciples affected by the sight?

How did Jesus reassure them when they were afraid?

"Be of good cheer; it is I, be not afraid."

Next we have a doubter. Peter says "Lord, if it be thou, bid me come to to thee on the water." Doubt and presumption both. Jesus tells Peter to "Come."

Why did Peter sink?

So long as he obeyed Jesus' word and looked to him, stepping out with trust and confidence, he was all right; but when he looked away and saw the boisterous wind, and feared that he would be engulfed by the waves, he began to sink. This should teach us that only by keeping our eyes fixed on Jesus can we hope for safety. By our own strength we can do nothing.

To doubt God's power to save is dangerous. We must step confidently out on his promises, not doubtingly but trusting completely. "Man's extremity is God's opportunity."

Did Jesus rebuke Peter?

Yes, but it was not a bitter rebuke. "O thou of little faith, wherefore didst thou doubt." Jesus put out his hand and helped him. If Peter could have persevered just a little, he would have succeeded.

How did this miracle affect those in the ship?

They were amazed, and worshipped Jesus, saying, "Of a truth thou art the Son of God." They recognized more fully than ever before the close relation between Jesus and that God of whom the Psalmist wrote saying, "Thy way is in the sea, and thy path in the great waters." Psa. lxxvii. 19.

Jesus went into the ship, and the sea became calm, and from John's account it appears that as if by another miracle "immediately the ship was at the land whither they went."

When the people of the place heard of all these happenings, what did they do?

They had likely been told among other things, of the woman of Capernaum who had the issue of blood, and who secretly touched his garment as he passed, and was made whole. So they brought their sick, and besought him to even let them touch the hem of his garment, and one of the most sublime sentences of the Bible is here recorded—"As many as touched were made perfectly whole."

Are we like Jesus in any degree? Does our "touch" as we come in contact with others soothe and calm the troubled heart—or the reverse? In so much as we have power with God, so may we in this degree affect those we are with for good or evil. If our lives are patterned after his perfect life, and we are striving to be more and more like him every day, we will be a blessing.

What was the source of Jesus' power?

It came from God. It came because Jesus went to his Father frequently for help. He received strength by asking the Father for it. Sugar dropped in a liquid sweetens it. Prayer and supplication dropped into the day will sweeten and brighten the life and give us grace to help those who come near enough to "touch" our garment.

The work for the month of April progressed nicely. The interest and attendance was above the average. At Holbrook one was added to the faith, and at Haigler two put on the Christ, and the prospect for starting a class is quite flattering. At Moorefield we held our meetings in the new Church, and such crowds and interest are seldom seen. Although none obeyed a good many seem to be close to that point, and we are hopeful.

To Which Class do You Belong.

There are two kinds of people on earth—I mean
The people who lift and the people who lean.

Wherever you go you will find the world's masses
Are always divided in just these two classes.

And, oddly enough, you will find, too, I ween,
There is only one lifter to twenty who lean.

In which class are you? Are you easing the load
Of overtaxed lifters who toil down the road?

Or are you a leaner, who lets others bear
Your portion of labor and worry and care?

Have I an Immortal Soul?

You say, "What a question!" Never mind: listen.

If I ask almost any minister or clergyman, he will say, "Yes." If I listen to almost any sermon, I gather the same answer. If I consult almost any religious literature, I am assured that I have "A never-dying soul to save, and fit it for the sky." I have met with a man who tells me it is all a mistake. You say, "Oh, he must be an infidel!" No; he is no infidel: he believes in God and in the Bible as his inspired Word; and yet he tells me there is no foundation for the idea of having an immortal soul. This has made me open my eyes and think. I have looked into the matter, and I find that what he told me is right.

1. I cannot find anything about "immortal soul" in the Bible. I read about "soul" often enough, and I read the word "immortal," but I do not find the two words joined as in popular preaching; and what the Bible says about the two things separately, is out of keeping with the idea that a soul is an immaterial thing as I have been taught, or that immortality belongs to anybody now.

Proof.—"The soul of every living thing." Job xii 10. "Satisfy his soul when he is hungry." Prov vi 30. "Levy a tribute.....one soul of five hundred persons, asses, sheep, etc." Num xxxi 28. Smote all the souls." Josh xi 11. "In thy skirts is found the blood of the souls." Jer ii 34. "The soul that sinneth it shall die." Ezek xviii 20. "Seek for glory, honor, and immortality." Rom ii 7. "This mortal must put on immortality." 1 Cor xv 54. "God only hath immortality." 1 Tim vi 15.

If every living thing has a soul, and a soul can eat, and be handled and can die, and if immortality be something that men have to seek for now, and to put on when Christ comes, it follows that the notion I have been brought up in—that the soul is an invisible thing that cannot die—must be a mistake.

2. I read that man is mortal now; that death has entered the world by sin; that where sin is, death must be, and that death will only be destroyed with Christ's final triumph upon earth.

Proof.—Mortal man." Job iv 17. "By one man, sin entered into the world and death by sin, and so death hath passed upon all men." Rom v 12. "The wages of sin is death" Rom vi 23. "The end of these things is death." vi 21. "To be carnally minded is death." Rom viii 6. "He (Christ) must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet. And the last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." 1 Cor xv 25-26. "All things new; no more curse; no more death. Rev xxi 1-5.

If this be so, how can the doctrine of the immortality of the soul be true? Because if man is mortal, then he is not immortal; and death has passed upon all men, then it must be wrong to say that he is never-dying and cannot die. And if death be not a fact, how can Christ take it away?

3. I read that the hope of immortality is to be realized by a change of the mortal body if alive when Christ comes, or by a resurrection of that body if in the grave for a similar change.

Proof.—"He shall change our vile body." Phil iii 21. "This mortal must put on immortality." 1 Cor xv 53. We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed." Ibid 50. "The Lord himself shall descend from heaven; and the dead in Christ shall rise first." 1 Thes iv 15 "They shall come forth, those that have done good to a resurrection of life." John v 30. "Clothed..... that immortality might be swallowed up of life." 2 Cor v 4.

How could this be if I were already immortal, and if that immortality resided in an invisible spirit which goes away from my body when I die?

4. I read that the dead are to be judged at the coming of Christ; that the righteous are to be rewarded, and the wicked punished at that time.

Proof.—"He shall judge the living and the dead at his appearing." 2 Tim iv 1. "The Son of Man shall come in his glory, and then shall he reward every man according to his works." Matt xvi 27. "We must all stand before the judgment seat of Christ." 2 Cor v 10. "The time of the dead that they should be judged and that thou should'st give reward to thy servants the prophets." Rev xi 18. "Those that know not God shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord." 2 Thes i 8.

How am I to understand this if I am to believe that when men die, they "go to judgment," and if accepted, enter heaven to be rewarded, or descend to hell to be punished? What is the meaning of a day of judgment if it is all settled before the day arrive?

5. Then I read that in the death state, men are without feeling, or memory or consciousness, and that they are incapable of exercising any faculty or rendering any praise; that in fact, they "know not anything."

Proof.—"In death, there is no remembrance of thee." Psa vi 5. "The dead know not anything; their love, and their hatred, and their envy is now perished." Eccl ix 5. "Man returneth to the earth; in that very day, his thoughts perish. Psa cxlvi 4. "The dead praise not the Lord." Psa cxv 17. "The grave cannot praise thee." Isa xxxviii 18.

I can understand this with the view that man is a poor mortal being, of a physical earth nature which dissolves in death, and who when dead, is really dead, and then I can understand the need for resurrection, and the suitableness of its happening at Christ's reappearing; but how am I to reconcile such teaching with the idea that when I die, I shall not be dead, but more alive and know more than I now do? I cannot reconcile the two things; and as one must be right and the other wrong, I conclude that the Bible is right, and popular teaching wrong, and that therefore I have not an immortal soul.—Bible Finger Post.

Excerpta.

THE IMMORTALITY OF THE SOUL, HOW AND WHERE IT ORIGINATED.

Orthodox Christians suppose that the Bible teaches that man was created an immortal being, and no amount of arguments or proofs will convince most of them that such is not the case, so strong is the effect of prejudice and early teaching. Yet the Book is most emphatic in all its declarations to the contrary; in fact it is the only ancient religious book extant that emphatically declares in all its teachings, that man in death knows not anything. Eccl v. Its whole teaching is to the effect that eternal life can only come to man through Christ by a resurrection from the dead, if they are laid away in the tomb. He declared that he was the resurrection and the life Jno xi 25

The Christian is to seek for immortality, eternal life. Rom iii 7. Paul was not so foolish as to exhort people to seek for a thing they already possessed, and he also declares, That the King of kings and Lord of lords only hath immortality. 1 Tim vi 15. Strange to see those wonderful higher critics who have dissected the Bible and resolved it into all its component parts to their own satisfaction at least have never discovered that it is most unique in its teachings in regard to life and death. If they have discovered it, they nearly all have kept very quite about it. Although Professor Driver of Oxford university has the courage to tell us speaking of Gen i 21 says, "A soul in the psychology of the Hebrews is not peculiar to man, it is the principle of life, sensibility in any animal or organism .....The rendering creature obliterates a distinctive characteristic of Hebrew thought. Here the term denotes all kinds of acquatic organisms including even the lowest." But the translators of even the revised version were careful not to let the people know that such is the case. These higher critics tell us that most of the early literature of the Bible was written in Babylon and copied from Babylonian documents about the time of the captivity, but they either do not know or they want to conceal the fact that the teachings of the two documents are entirely different, not only in regard to a plurality of gods, but in the matter of life and death to man. It was in the region in which Babylon is situated probably where the immortalizing of man was first started. It commenced in ancestral worship and in forgetting the true God who saved Noah alive and those who were with him in the ark. Them they deified and the first gods were eight, afterwards a ninth was added who was Nimrod the mighty hunter, who was known by the name of Gilgamas. Noah was known among the heathen nations by many names. The most common Egyptian name for him was Osiris. The apostle Hebrews worshiped him under the name Tammuz. Ezek viii 14. One of his names among the Babylonians was Nuthesis. Gradually the id a of men becoming immortal developed. Then not only were great men deified, but it was to the interest of the priestly class to deify many more, as the more gods there were to worship the more priests there would be required for the various temples and ceremonies until in Egypt for instance there were thousands of gods. As this went on the original ideas given by God to Noah and his posterity were lost sight of, although some of it can be dug out of Egypt in latter days. Dr. S. Ruppapit of Basel says in his history of Egypt, Page 128, "We learn that the Egyptians believed even at the earliest times in a resurrection from the tomb, a day of judgment and a future state of rewards and punishments.

Many persons who do not believe that the Bible teaches the immortality of the soul believe that it originated with Plato, but such is very far from being the case. Prof. Rappoport says page 21, Vol II, "The Greeks had at all times been foreward in owning the Egyptians as their teachers in religion and in the dog Cereberus, the judge Minos, the boat Charan and the river Styx of their mythology, we see a clear proof that it was in Egypt that the Greeks gained their faint glimpse of the immortality of the soul, a day of judgment and a future state of rewards and punishments, and now that Rome was in close intercourse with Egypt they became acquainted and ready to borrow thence their religious ceremonies.....Virgil taught the doctrine of the Egyptian millennium or the resurrection from the dead when the thousand years were ended. The cripples asking alms in the streets of Rome would beg in the name of the holy Osiris."

But this idea of man living after he was dead which had been gaining ground as the ages rolled on, did not culminate in thought till long after Christ, that all men were inherently immortal. For Plato who polished up the idea and put it in better shape than it had been before, did not teach immortality for all men, that was left to the apostate Christians to do in later ages. Plato says, We decree that when men die, who have lived well and done good, that they become immortal, the same we also decree to men who have died bravely in battle. Among the Egyptians even in latter times they had no idea that the soul, as we call it, could live on of an inherent right of its own. The priests never taught that idea. A great many precautions had to be taken after the person died to insure his continued existence, and the poor in all ages who have always been in the majority could not fulfill these conditions. The embalming of their bodies was one of the precautions required to be fulfilled for the continued existence of what we call the soul. Professor Maspro, the eminent French Archeologist says, "The Egyptians thought that life once begun might go on indefinitely, if no accident stopped it short, why should it cease of itself? And so men did not die in Egypt, they were assassinated. Often the murderer was of the unseen world." "It was important that during that last sleep, which for them was fraught with such terrors, the flesh should neither be decomposed, nor turn to dust, that it should be free of offensive odor and secure from predatory worms." "The gods were spared none of the anguish and none of the perils which death bestowed so plentifully upon men. Their bodies suffered change, and gradually perished until nothing was left of them. Their souls like human souls were only the representatives of their bodies and gradually become extinct, if means of arresting the natural tendency to decay were not found in time. Hence the immense pyramids built in Egypt to preserve the bodies of the kings, hence the embalming of the bodies, etc., to ensure continued existence. And here is Maspro's translation of a Babylonian record concerning the dead.

"The house of darkness
The house men enter but cannot depart from.
The road men go but cannot return.
The place where dust is their food, their nourishment clay.
The light they behold not; in darkness they dwell.
They are clothed like birds, all fluttering wings.
On the door and the gate posts the dust lies at deep."

This is translated from the Assyrian Descent of Ishtah to Hades.

In my next I will briefly show how the immortality of the the soul crept in to the Christian church.

Gold Dust.

"Right notions of the gospel would keep us to right methods of advancing it."

There never was a day that did not bring its own opportunity for doing good that never could have been done before and never can be again.—Wm. Burleigh.

The golden beams of truth and the silken cord of love twisted together, will draw men on with a sweet violence whether they will or not—Cudworth.

"The most beautiful feature of the Christian religion is its unselfishness. It teaches its disciples to practice humility and in honor prefer one another."

"Faith is the trolley that reaches upward and takes hold of the live wire of God's revelation to propel onward the car of Christian life."

ANNA DREW.

The Praise of Men.

Many men can endure the severest trials with fortitude; while few can bear prosperity, especially when it comes in the shape of praise. Every day's experience demonstrates this fact, yet how slow we are to profit by it. On the one hand, we court the applause of men ourselves, and on the other, we bestow the same on those who are equally frail. This necessarily applies more particularly to public men, and to none, more than the ministers of the gospel of Christ, who should ever have as their motto, "Whose praise is not of men, but of God." Many a humble laborer in the vineyard has been exalted so high by the foolish practice till he has lorded it over the heritage, and hence is worse than useless to the cause.

If brethren wish to show their appreciation of the faithful laborers among them, I would like to suggest but as it would perhaps cost a little more than to herald his name from one end of the country to the other, it may not meet with much favor were I to do so.—M. Joblin.

Abiding in the Lord.

It is not sufficient that we should occasionally come into fellowship with God. We must abide in him. "As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself," said Jesus, "except it abide in the vine, no more can ye, except ye abide in me." It is by abiding in him that we are kept from sin. "Whosoever abideth in him sinneth not." "He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also to walk, even as he walked."

"I have learned the wondrous secret
Of abiding in the Lord;
I have found the strength and sweetness
Of confiding in His word;
I have tasted life's pure fountain,
I am trusting in His blood.
I have lost myself in Jesus,
I am sinking into God."

"I'm abiding in the Lord,
And confiding in His word,
And I'm hiding, safely hiding,
In the bosom of His love."

"And now, little children, abide in him; that, when he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming."—Herald.

Dr. Torrey on Eternal Torment.

The strong point in Dr. Torrey's argument upon the punishment of the wicked is in what he says as to its duration—that it is unending. His argument in support of this view is simply unanswerable.

The weak point in his argument is what he says as to the nature of the punishment—that it is eternal woe. He cannot find a syllable in support of this idea in all the Old Testament not even amid the thunderings of Sinai, or the curses of Ebal, and God has in mercy explained the expressions in the New Testament from which inferences in support of this horrid dogma might be drawn. Everlasting punishment is synonymous with everlasting destruction or eternal death; unquenchable fire in every given instance in the Bible utterly consumes and never once torments eternally. Sodom and Gomorrah in being reduced to ashes, are set forth as an illustration of the effects of eternal fire; while smoke of torment ascending forever and ever finds an illustration in the destiny of Rome, which is to be "utterly consumed with fire" and "sink to rise no more".....

My heart went out in sincere pity to Dr. Torrey when he virtually told us that his better and nobler nature revolted against the doctrine he was preaching, but that he was compelled to do it from a solemn sense of duty toward those who were on their way to the awful hell he was describing. That sense of duty to preach this doctrine of eternal suffering, is based upon a misunderstanding of the teaching of the Bible upon this subject, and I am earnestly praying that his eyes may yet be opened to see that the love and mercy of God appears in his final disposition of the impenitent as well as in all his dealings with mankind, and that what seems to indicate to the contrary in existing conditions, can be traced to "the god of the world," and not to the God of heaven, the God of Love whose "mercy endureth forever," and that Dr. Torrey will yet unite with the writer and others in their efforts to disencumber the gospel of this beglooming nightmare of eternal torment.—C. H. Sweet.

Refinement Contagious.

In some manner not easily or entirely comprehensible the aged have almost always, or seem to have, singular refinement of manner and feeling.

The grandmother, no matter in what condition of life, is felt by those that come in contact with her to have that quality about her which is possessed by those to whom we apply the term lady.

It is not because she sits still with little to do, if that so happens, but because love, suffering, sacrifice and perhaps the near presence of death have so refined her and given her those qualities of ladyhood which are a happiness to all about her and a boon in any family.

For refinement is a contagious thing, and one lady in a family is apt to make another therein the course of time.

OUR BOOK FUND.

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." Psalm xli 1 4.

The amount set opposite our names is to help Bro. Robt. G. Huggins supply the worthy poor with "The Bible: Its Principles and Texts." For this purpose the book is to be sold at the reduced price of 85 cents per copy.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections. The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 809 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1 00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10628 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

A Credit to his Mother.

Where the carefully nurtured child learns bad manners is a standing mystery to its watchful parents. These anxious rearers of the young are often heard propounding this query, but generally without result. Once in a while, however, out of the deep silence comes an illuminating answer. Johnny, a Diamond Street lad, furnished one the other day. He had just finished a particularly toothsome dish of apple pudding, which he ate to the last morsel. Then, despite the fact that company were at the table, he deliberately picked up his saucer and licked it clean. "Johnny," exclaimed his mother, after a horrified gasp, "who did you ever see do a thing like that?" "Cats," replied Johnny.—Philadelphia Record.

Is Your Daughter Protected?

For the last two years Edwin A. Sims, United States district attorney in Chicago, has been making investigation of the evils known as the white slave traffic. Recently his officers have completed inquiry into more than two hundred cases of white slavery. Attorney Sims declares that it is absolutely a fact that thousands of innocent girls from the country are every year entrapped and forced into lives of hopeless degradation, simply because parents do not understand that such conditions exist, and fail to teach their daughters how to protect themselves from the vicious organization that makes their ruin its business.

Let it be understood that only a minority of the victims of this ring are girls of bad character. More frequently they are compelled into a shameful life against their will and because they had not been taught to recognize the danger before they were hopelessly entrapped. The white slave procurers make a business of inducing unsophisticated girls to come to the city. They offer them attractive employment at good wages. They picture the advantages and gayeties of city life in terms that allure but do not alarm. Only after it is too late do they discover that the place of employment to which they have been taken is a den of vice, that the pretenses that lured them from their homes are false, and their supposed benefactors are the vilest criminals that lurk in the vicious quarters of the great city.

On evidence obtained from questioning two hundred and fifty girls who have been rescued from disreputable resorts in Chicago, Mr. Sims estimates that not less than fifteen thousand girls have been imported into this country as white slaves during the last year. He declares that a much larger number have been lured from the country, and the infamous work is still going on.

With these facts before us, can we be too careful to see that not only our own daughters but our friends' and neighbors' daughters are warned against accepting too freely offers of employment in the city. It is a safe rule that no such offer should be considered until after it has been investigated by the parents. And even they may be deceived.

The girl who leaves home for the city cannot be surrounded with too many precautions. The vice ring is resourceful, and its agents have become skillful in deceit. Your daughter's innocence is no safeguard unless it is fortified with the knowledge that is best acquired at home.

Editor Restitution:

The Church at Blair, Nebraska, had the pleasure of a short visit from Brother Adams and wife of Omaha, Sister Brown and daughter Bessie of Saint Paul, and Sister Willard of Arapahoe, formerly Miss Rena Gordon of Saint Paul. They came Saturday afternoon May 14, and remained over Sunday. Brother Adams preached three excellent sermons, which we all enjoyed very much. Owing to the rainy weather, the attendance was small, but interest was very good. We were sorry the meeting could not have been longer, and hope for another soon.

QUARTERLY MEETING.

The Third Quarterly Conference of the Churches of God in Illinois will meet with the Camden Church at the Hale Ridge School house in Schuyler County, June 25 and 26, 1910.

It is our desire that as many go as can from the northern part of the state. All who can possibly go please write at once to the undersigned who will then write directions for reaching there by rail and all other necessary particulars. It will be necessary to inform the brethren there how many to prepare for, so let me know at once. Address me at Oregon, Ill.

S. J. LINDSAY.

LET all make note of the change in Brother Huggins' address. It is now 10628 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. As many will be sending for his book which is just now ready, it is important that you have the correct address.

WHEN YOUR TIME IS OUT PLEASE RENEW.

To the Brethren in Michigan, greeting:

The Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Michigan will convene at Dutton, Michigan, commencing Thursday evening, June 2nd, continuing over Sunday, the 5. Plan to allow of your attendance as we are expecting an unusually interesting meeting and some important matters are to be brought up that demands your presence and interest, one of these relative to the change of time of our Annual meeting. At present it conflicts with the public schools, making it impossible for many of our young people to attend. It is desired to change the Conference until the last week in June. It is from the young people that we must draw our recruits and we must therefore arrange meetings making it convenient for them to be present.

If unable to be present, please write the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette St., Grand Rapids, Mich., stating your views, and they will be presented at the meeting as your voice.

Dutton is situated in Kent County, on the Grand Rapids branch of the Michigan Central Railway, ten miles from Grand Rapids, a train leaving at 7 a m, and one at 4 p m. Ask railroad agents for information as to time of trains, and don't fail to come.

The Programme committee submit the following programme, subject to change:

Brother L. E. Conner is to begin a series of meetings at Roll, Indiana, on June 6, and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

R. A. FRAZIER.

In our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hillisburg, Indiana, or to this office.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 303 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has o be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, hen neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We think you will favor.

THE LAST CHANCE!

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JUNE 1, 1910. NUMBER 21.

Oregon Bible College
Oregon, Illinois

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

I'm Not Ashamed.

I'm not ashamed to own my Lord,
Who lives by angels now adored;
That Jesus who once died for me,
Who bore my sins in agony.

I'm not ashamed [illegible] His laws,
Nor to defend his noble cause.
The way He goes is lined with blood,
O may I tread the paths he trod.

I'm not ashamed to own His cross,
For what he found all things but dross.
Whate'er I am bid to do or say,
When Christ command do I will obey.

I'm not ashamed to be despised,
By those who ne'er religion prized;
Nor will I prove to Christ untrue
For all that men can say or do.

The world's vain honors will I shun,
The narrow way to life I'll run:
That this at last my joy may be,
My Savior not ashamed of me.

ANNA LINDSAYETT.

The above lines were written by our Sister a little more than a year before she fell asleep to await the coming of Him whom she loved and served, to bring her forth from the grave to life everlasting.

That we may be worthy to meet her is my prayer.

Symbols of Rev. xiii. No. 3.

The beloved John, the last of the twelve, standing on the lonely isle of Patmos; viewing the river of time as it passes before his prophetic vision, beholds the Roman leopard beast, "rise up out of the sea." Rome having incorporated into her dominion, the people and the territory of Greece; is therefore like a leopard. The same process in relation to Medo-Persia and Babylon gives the beast the "feet like a bear, and the mouth of the lion. John having seen the dominion pass from the pagan dragon, to the Michael of the Christians, says, "And the dragon gave him his power, and his seat, and great authority." John saw "one of his heads as it were wounded to death." That was by the sword of the northern barbarians; that wound was mortal to the imperial head that ended A. D. 476. Though the head died the beast continued, ruled by the exarchs of Ravenna; and the deadly wound was finally healed by the rise of the papacy. After the healing of the wound by the papacy, "All the world wondered after the beast." And by mixing pagan ceremonies with the Christian worship, it is written, "And they worshipped the beast." After the receiving of the mouth, which is the papacy, the beast "opened his mouth in blasphemy against God." See Dan vii 8

The time for this beast to continue in power is as here stated "forty and two months." And in Dan vii 25, "A time, and the dividing of time." And according to the opinion of the best expositors, and the facts of history, the time is 1260 years Starting that period at the rise of the papacy in A. D. 610 it would terminate in 1870. When the king took Rome, and the pope became a subject of the king. Not however without continual protest by him who claimed to be above all kings and priests. Thus ends this account of the papacy, leaving the pope in captivity. Then comes that oft repeated saying by the Master: "If any man have an ear to hear, let him hear." verse 9. Then mark what follows, "He that leadeth into captivity shall go into captivity. He that killeth with the sword must be killed with the sword."

All of which has come true in relation to the papacy as a civil power. Again it is written in relation to this power and his persecutions. "Here is the patience and the faith of the saints," written expressly in relation to their persecution by the papacy. In this connection I wish to call attention to verse 9, "If any man have an ear to hear let him hear." This saying is used by the Master at the end of many of his discourses, before taking up a new subject, we find it at the end of his discourse in Matt xi 15-43; Mark iv 9 and vii 16; Luke viii 8. And you will find the same words at the ending of each message to the seven churches in the revelation. chap 2 and 3. I have cited these passages to show the fact that it was the custom of our Lord to use this form of speech when through with one subject, and before the beginning of another; and in this 13th chapter of the Revelation they are used in the same sense, at the ending of what refers to the papacy, and the beginning of the description of another power. Therefore we read verse 11, "And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth: and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon."

Brethren, if we shut our eyes and our ears to the plain teaching of the Spirit and persist in mixing up things that the Spirit has separated, darkness is sure to follow the rejection of truth. The record says, "Another beast." Let us say amen. John in Spirit, standing at the ending of the time allotted to the papacy in A. D. 1870, when the first beast went into captivity looks out upon the river of time and "beheld another beast coming up out of the earth."

I wish to remark here that from the beginning of chapter 12 to the end of chapter 19 the events noted take place in successive order as stated in the prophecy. Therefore the time of the "coming up" of the two horned symbol is A. D. 1870, when the first beast went into captivity. Now is it not a fact that our country was at that very time receiving from Europe and Asia lots of emigrants, and thereby, "coming up" as a power, and more so than any other power. In the second place it received the material on which it grew from the democracy of Europe, not from the royalty. Therefore it came up out of the symbolic earth. The same earth that in chapter 12 "helped the woman."

Next we notice "two horns like a lamb." Horns symbolize power. In the third place was the power of this nation lamb like? The lion, the bear and the leopard are animals of prey, that devour the helpless. The lamb is inoffensive, harmless. This country proclaimed liberty as its motto, a country without a king, and a church without a pope; here liberty was to find a safe resting place. In the fourth place, "he spake as a dragon." To speak as a dragon is to speak proudly, haughty, imperially; see Ezek xxix 3, "Speak and say, Thus saith the Lord God; Behold, I am against thee, Pharaoh king of Egypt, the great dragon that lieth in the midst of his rivers, which hath said, My river is mine own, and I have made it for myself.

Again the dragon is the symbol of Imperial Rome. Therefore to speak as a dragon, is to speak like Egypt, or imperial Rome. In regard to the United States speaking as a dragon, I will give an item of what passed between this country and Great Britain in relation to a dispute between Britain and Venezuela in regard to a boundary line. Our country took up the question in favor of Venezuela, and said, "The United States is sovereign on this continent, and its fiat is law." That is the Monroe doctrine condensed in the forceful phrase of Secretary Olney of the Cleveland administration. Britain heard the voice and yielded the point. The Editor of a French paper, the LeGaulois, "One makes a great mistake who imagines that the Americans are disposed to resist the current that is drawing them with irresistible force towards imperialism." Verse 12, "And he exerciseth all the power of the first beast before him, and causeth the earth and them which dwell therein to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed."

The first or Roman beast exercised civil and ecclesiastical power; so with this one. And as the subjects of the leopard beast worshiped the dragon, so will those of this beast worship the first beast, by incorporating into its worship some of the doctrine of the first beast. The wonders of verse 13, "So that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth in the sight of men." It should be noted here that the record says, "He doeth great wonders, so that he maketh fire to come down," etc. No deception here, like the lying wonders of the papacy, but actual facts as said in verse 14, "Which he had power to do in the sight of the beast." This has and is being fulfilled before our eyes, and in "the sight of the (Roman) beast." We find its counterpart exactly in the wonders performed by electricity in which our country is in the lead; Franklin with his kite first; followed by Edison, Morse, and an army of electricians. And as we remarked the root of these things is in the Old Testament so we return to Job i 16, and read, "The fire of God is fallen from heaven, and hath burned up the sheep and the servants." Who doubts that this was the electric bolt that Prof. Franklin battled? These wonders are materialized before our eyes. What better evidence to the inspiration of the Scriptures could any man ask?

Verse 14, "And deceiveth them that dwell on the earth." Well, says one, here is deception; not necessarily, let us see how it is done, "by the means of those miracles that he had power to do in the sight of the beast. Man is liable to unintentionally deceive himself. "If we say we have no sin we deceive ourselves." 1 John i 8. See Jer xxxvii 9. "Thus saith the Lord; deceive not yourselves, saying, The Chaldeans shall surely depart from us; for they shall not depart." France was deceived as to her military power when she attacked Germany in 1870; and so was Russia in her war with Japan. In regard to the wonderful growth of the United States a writer in the Chicago Daily News of Sept. 5, 1908, says, "the rate at which the United States has been growing each minute during the last 117 years. He makes it 33 acres a minute, and the population grew at the rate of one and one-third a minute in the same 117 years. Now I conceive that it is a most natural consequence for a nation that has done the wonderful things that our country has done, to become self-deceived by its greatness. I am not prophet, nor the son of a prophet, but I will predict, taking what is written in Revelations xiii. as my inspiration, that in the memory of some now living, the United States will claim to be the "little stone" that smites the image on its feet, and becomes a great mountain and fills the whole earth.

The Orthodox churches now claim that the church is the kingdom of God on earth. The little stone is a symbol we know of the kingdom. Now let a religio-fanatical frenzy sweep this country from San Francisco to the Atlantic—and how long do you think it will take for them to conclude that they are the kingdom? Then of course they must put down all opposition. Then comes persecution, and our country becomes a false prophet, and goes with the beast into the lake of fire, chapter xix. 20.

The Christian statesmen are at work, agitating for a change in the law of the country, so as to acknowledge God, and Christ as his divine Son, laying particular stress on the full and complete divinity of Jesus Christ. Already they have shut the door against Unitarians. Speaking of the federation of churches, the German Evangelical body will continue in the federation as long as no church is admitted which does not believe in the divinity of Christ.

Further along in this 13th chapter the two-horned symbol makes an image to the leopard symbol, on pain of death causes it to be worshipped. Now the day of image worship literally is in the past; but an image need not be a literal or metallic one. An image is a likeness. Therefore when one state makes laws, and enforces them by capital punishment, that are exactly like the laws of another state, that would truthfully be an image to the former state, or if you please a likeness.

Now if we go back to the fourth century, the Christians of that time believed much as we do; and remember that the leopard symbol represents that time of the Roman empire. They then believed in the immortality of the human soul. So do we as a nation. They believed in the doctrine of the trinity—so do we. They believed in going to heaven, and to hell—so do we—all of which is a delusion. They were professed Christians—so are we. Tell me now what in regard to the Christian religion did they believe that we do not? I will answer that question; they believed that the state should enforce unity of belief by force. No sooner as we become like them in this respect, and make laws to that effect we shall be an image of, or a likeness to them of the 4th century.

For the orthodox edicts of Theodosius, A. D 380, Gibbon chapter 27, page 79, and will find them, as now, that the doctrine of the trinity is the "mark" of orthodoxy then as now, and all that we lack to perfect the image is to enforce our belief by the state

You may say, That will never come, in our free country. How much more corrupt must our politicians become than they are now, before they will do the bidding of an apostate church, who for the sake of power will join hands with Rome to enforce their false doctrine, especially that of the trinity.

In the 4th and 5th centuries, those men that denied the Godhead of Christ were denied an asylum in any of the Christian countries, and events are transpiring now like the touch of the artist's brush, designed to complete the picture or image.

Editor Restitution:

I received the tracts all right and was glad to get them and to read such good sermons. The people here refuse to give me their floor any more as I will soon start meetings in the school house, if I can get the use of the building, as I feel that some of the seed sown has fallen on good ground. I still go to their Sunday School, and in this way I have a chance to ask questions.

We had quite a time a few Sundays ago. I asked the Superintendent in what way were we better than sheep, and he told the school that man was an animal, but he had a soul that did not die, etc. When he got through I had my Bible open and read Eccl. iii. 18-20. Then he said according to that man had no spirit. I said yes; it returned to God who gave it, when a man died, Eccl. xii. 7. Then I showed them that Abraham was but dust and ashes, Genesis xviii. 27, that he is the father (to be) of many nations. Now Christ is that seed, Galatians iii. 16 The seed was but dust and ashes, as we see by reading Hebrews ii. 14, telling where he became flesh and blood, and died. Now it is this that died that must put on immortality, not the spirit that returned to God who gave it. So we understand Paul as speaking of the body in 1 Corinthians xv. 53. In the 39th verse it is explained all flesh is not the same flesh, but they all die alike. Man was made ruler over all flesh, and in this he is better than a sheep. Did I say ruler over all flesh? Yea, thou madest him a little lower than the angels, thou crownest him with glory and honor, and made him ruler over all. Remember, this was the body, not the spirit, and we (we who?) we that believe the gospel shall be like him, 1 John iii. 2 Then we will have the life that the Father has, for we will not be alienated from it by being ignorant, and not believing the gospel, Ephesians iv. 18. Now this is the life God says is his gift. Then they cannot die any more, Luke xx. 36.

So let us be content to be mortal, and seek for immortality in God's appointed way, and wait for his Son from heaven, who has this life hid in him with God, Colossians iii. 3, for ye (the body) are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God.

Table Lesson.

MARK XIII. 34-37.

"For the Son of Man is as a man taking a far journey, who left his house and gave authority to his servants and to every man his work."

I was impressed with these words, "And to every man his work." We know that this Son of Man is Jesus; for we find this name eighty times in the gospels, and in Matthew xxiv. Jesus speaks of himself as the "Son of Man coming in power and glory." We know that he has taken a journey, he has gone to his Father's house, and that he said, I will come again, and he said, Occupy until I come, not just wait until I come, but watch and work, not just work for the present life. The parable of the talents shew us that it is the Master's work that we are to do, and again, in Eph. iv. 7, 11, 12. "But unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the gift of Christ, and he gave some apostles, and some evangelists and teachers, for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the Body of Christ. This shows the work that the servants of the Son of Man are given to do. Until he returns from his far journey, there is no servant in the Master's household that can be idle, whatever our work, let us occupy till he come. Watch ye therefore, ye know not what hour the Master of the house cometh. Take ye heed, watch and pray, for ye know not when the time is, but he gives us our work and while we work we are to watch lest coming suddenly he finds us sleeping. He gave this parable unto his disciples. Now learn a parable of the fig tree. When his branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves ye know that summer is near. Just now this parable is full of meaning to us, for we see all around us the signs that summer is near. The beautiful blossoms, the trees with tender green leaves, and the grass so green and fresh. Yes, we know that summer is near. Now to those that are watching the signs of the coming of the Son of Man that has taken a long journey, are as plain as the signs of summer, to discern the signs we must watch. He says, As in the days of Noah, so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be. In the days of Noah God said the thoughts of man's heart was evil continually. Today they are striving for wealth and power and pleasure of this life. Man's thoughts are not of how they can work for the Master, his Word is not taken as a guide; the gospel is cast aside, the whole world is full of unrest, the truth is evil spoken of. The apostle Paul says, Scoffers shall come in the last days, saying, Where is the promise of his coming: for all things continue as they were from the beginning. Is this not true today? Just speak of the nearness of Christ's coming and you are laughed at—not by evil men, but by those that profess to know God. Is not this a fulfillment of the words of Paul, scoffers shall come in the last days?

"Wherefore, brethren, seeing ye look for such things be diligent that ye may be found in peace, watch and pray, for when ye see those things come to pass lift up your heads and rejoice, for the coming of the Son of Man draweth nigh." There are many signs that Jesus will soon come to fill the earth with his glory, that soon he shall send his angels and gather his elect, to call his servants from the work that he gave them to do, and may we be found among those to whom he will say, "Well done," is my prayer.

Editor Restitution:

Please find enclosed a money order for renewal of my subscription. Have enjoyed reading the good letters written by the brothers and sisters of like precious faith, which have been a great help to me in studying the Bible and living in accordance with its teachings. I am now fifty years old and was a member of the Christian Church for twenty years, but never understood the gospel until about one year ago my sister, Mrs. A. J. Martin, explained it to me, and my eyes were opened and I saw the lovely and beautiful plan of God so plain, and I wonder now why others cannot see it as I did.

I feel so thankful that I have been spared, and am able to see the strait and narrow way, and cry out for joy. Thanks be to God for his goodness and tender mercies to me. O praise the Lord, all ye nations; praise him all ye people, for his merciful kindness is great toward us, and the truth of the Lord endureth forever, praise ye the Lord, Psalms cxvii.

Dear ones, pray for me, that I may never be moved away from the hope of the gospel, for the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. First to the Jew, also to the Gentile, Romans i. 16.

Myself and daughter are the only two here that have been baptized in the faith, and we are trying to help others to see the truth as it is in Jesus Christ, and find some few who will read and listen. We are so anxious, and would rejoice if we could persuade people to take the Bible for their guide and let man-made theories alone. The blind lead the blind, and if the blind lead the blind both shall fall into the ditch together. Matthew xv. 14.

Your Sister in the Christ,
MRS. J. W. CRAWFORD.

Dear Bereans:

Revelations xxii. 7, 12, 14: Behold, I come quickly; blessed is he that keepeth the sayings of the prophecy of this book. And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be. Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city.

May we be among that number.

EDITH THOMPSON.

Dear Bereans:

The Prophet Jeremiah says, Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is. For he shall be as a tree, planted by the waters, and that spreadeth, and her roots by the river, and shall not see when heat cometh; but her leaf shall be green, and shall not be careful in the year of drouth, neither shall cease from yielding fruit, Jer. xvii. 7-8.

Christ is the living water. He is our hope, and in proportion as our hope reaches out to him, our thoughts our words and deeds become purer and better. 1 John iii. 3. Thus receiving spiritual strength by partaking of the living water, to faith is added virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness and charity; for if these things be in you and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. Being made free from sin and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life, through Jesus Christ our Lord. But remember, the wages of sin is death.

CYNTHIA THOMPSON.

Pray and Prosper.

A young man was leaving the shelter of a parent's roof, and was likely to meet with many temptations. But a friendly voice gave him three words counsel: "Pray and prosper." The words were addressed to one who knew by experience the value of prayer; and they were never forgotten. The counsel was thankfully received and carried out through a long life. Prayer became more than ever the element of the young man's spiritual life, and the truest prosperity was granted. Eventually he had a happy home with a Christian wife. A large family grew up around him, who walked in the footsteps of their parents.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

LOOK! LOOK!

Brother or Sister:

When a blue pencil mark is by this notice, it signifies that according to our account your time has expired. Now, we are all liable to error, and possibly there is a mistake, and you have paid up. If such is the case we will cheerfully correct the account as soon as the error is pointed out. If on investigation you find you have not paid, we ask you to at once send us some money. We need it very much—indeed we have reached a point when we just must have relief at once. Please do give this attention right Now.

BROTHER John L. Wince writes from Battle Creek Sanitarium that while not gaining in weight, his strength is coming back, and he hopes soon to return.

BROTHER Joseph Williams wrote us on May 26, from Cleveland, Ohio. He was on his way to the Fonthill Conference, where he was to be over last Sunday. He reports pleasant visits with the brethren of the Brush Creek, Springfield and Cleveland Churches.

ON last Sunday the Plymouth brethren had the pleasure of listening to Brother D. C. Robison deliver two excellent discourses. Brother Robison had arranged a sort of exchange with Brother Williams, and was with the Roll Church the Sunday before. Our brother has a clear and convincing way of presenting his subject, and one cannot but be benefitted in listening to him. In response to urgent calls to hasten home, Brother Robison left for Salem on a Sunday night train, bearing with him the good wishes of all who heard him, and our earnest prayers for his success wherever his lot may be cast, and a hope that we may enjoy other visits with him.

IT is an old saying that "politics make strange bed-fellows." This is strikingly illustrated in a situation we have now. The new Governor-general of Canada under the British crown is a Frenchman by race, and is Catholic in his religion. Again, the first Governor-general of United South Africa is Viscount Gladstone, a son of the great Gladstone, and next under him as first prime minister, is General Botha, who succeeded Joubert as the commander of the fighting Boers. He is now a reconstructed Boer, and a most loyal subject of the English government. So we have a Frenchman as ruler in Canada, and a Dutchman and former enemy as ruler in South Africa.

ON the last Sunday of April, it fell to the lot of the Editor to present to the Plymouth Church a paper entitled "A Glance at the Policy of Nations," in other words "The Signs of the Times." In the discussion of the subject we ventured to "guess" that in the arraying of the nations under the two dominant leaders, that Japan would most naturally be allied with the group that was opposed to Russia. That the "policy" of England and the United States and those nations that would stand with us, would attract Japan more than would the policy of Russia and her allies. In the light of the fact that just now Russia and Japan have reached an agreement defining the rights of each in the far east, particularly as regards affairs in North China, we are asked if we still think as we did in April. In reply we will say that we made no prophecy, only a "guess," and we see in this late compact between Russia and Japan no reason to change our "guess." Ever since the conclusion of the Portsmouth treaty, settling terms of peace between Russia and Japan, the representative of the United States at Peking has been able to really hold the check by playing Russia against Japan, and then Japan against Russia. Mr. Calhoun, who is now representing our government in China, has a more difficult task than ever, as this agreement stops the game, and other tactics must be used. Japan may yet learn to her sorrow the exceeding slimsiness of a Russian treaty. When Russia has affairs in hand, and arranged to suit her, she will not hesitate to put on the screws, and no compacts she makes but can be broken at will. The Japanese are smart and crafty, but making an alliance with Russia at this juncture is simply playing with the fire. We can only conjecture concerning the movements of the nations, but the watcher on the walls will do well to keep his face toward China for the next few days.

Watch, for the times are ominous.

———, Ill., May 26, 1910.

Dear Brother Underwood,

Since we are unable to determine, from your last letter to my father, whether you hold to the pre-existence theory or not, we have decided to drop your paper as we are taking several others that we are sure about.

When at Plymouth some years ago my father was credibly informed that you and other leaders, held to that doctrine, and never having seen anything from your pen to contradict it we fear you still hold it. We consider it a deadly heresy and know no other test of fellowship. At that time he talked with others there who held to that doctrine.

My time is out in June, and I think the $3.00 I sent you while I was in ———, leaves us square.

We will be glad to know if we are mistaken.

Very sincerely,
Miss ——— ———.

We give this letter in full in order that all may understand our remarks on it. In the first place if the brother referred to as the father of the writer of this letter was "credibly informed" that myself and "other leaders" (we thank you—we were not aware till now that we were worthy to be classified as a "leader"—thank you, very much indeed) held to the doctrine of the pre-existence of Christ, why such "credible" information ought to settle the matter. It may seem strange to some, but up to the time of the receiving of the above letter, there were members of our own family circle who never heard "my opinion" on this subject. Yet these relatives knew us well enough to be sure that we have quite decided convictions on most matters of this sort, and had never had occasion to ask concerning our views.

In order that all far and near may know our mind on this question, we will freely say that with the training of youth, and subsequent reasoning of more mature years, and what little study of God's Word we have been able to do, the theory that Jesus the Christ, the only begotten Son of God, existed personally as a being "before all things," never once had a lodgement in our little mind. We never did hold the theory, do not now, and (let us whisper it gently) never will. Just how this brother became "credibly informed" that we did hold the doctrine, is quite beyond us to understand. Either he was un"credibly informed," or else he did not "hear straight."

We sincerely hope this little statement will quiet the mind of our esteemed sister, and of her father, our respected brother. However, this is not written as a bid for a renewal of subscription, for while we value each one highly, still we do not wish them to take THE RESTITUTION if they do not want it. Such subscribers do not make or break a journal such as THE RESTITUTION is. What we want particularly to bring to notice is another matter.

The author of the above letter says "We consider it a deadly heresy and know no other test of fellowship." We give this to the brotherhood for consideration. It is a new one on us, we freely admit. With this father and daughter, brother and sister of ours, it would make no difference whether a person had become convicted of his sinfulness, and reformed his life, or not. It would make no difference with them whether a person believed the gospel of the kingdom—the good news that God was in due time going to send his Son Jesus Christ back to this earth to establish a kingdom, and with his saints subdue and finally govern in righteousness this whole earth—or the reverse. It would make no difference with them whether a person had been immersed, poured, sprinkled, or nothing—or whether he knew what it was for, or whether in infancy or old age. The test (no other test) of fellowship with them is "do you believe Christ pre-existed?" Yes. Then you are no brother of mine. If the answer be No, then welcome to my fellowship, nothing else matters.

Brethren, this is not jest, but sober earnest. It is a serious matter. We have among us some brothers and sisters whose lives come very near to the Pattern given. They have heard the joyful sound, their past lives were repented of, and complete reformation was the result. They have heard and accepted the tidings of a coming kingdom, they understand what manner of creatures they are, and by what Name they can be saved, and recognize no other. They have taken hold of the promises of God, and by faith look forward to the consummation of the Divine will. They have from the heart obeyed the injunction to "Arise and be baptized, and wash away thy sins." They live lives void of offense to God and man (question them how you will, and they will answer you clearly regarding the hope of Israel; will explain to you the plan and purpose of God in a coming age of bringing back this earth to an Edenic state, establishing his kingdom with Jesus Christ as King and the chosen faithful ones as co-rulers with him; will explain to you the office and work of the Christ; will give you a correct account of the condition of mankind, and what change must be wrought in him to make his state for future life eternally; they will be able to tell you what living a godly life means, and will exemplify the same in their lives.

You can find no fault with them—until you happen to stumble on to the question of Pre-existence. You ask, What do you understand upon this doctrine? At once the brother turns to Colossians i. 16 17, and reads "By him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers; all things were created by him, and for him: and he is before all things, and by him all things consist."

You say "Do you think that teaches pre-existence?" The brother knows the move you would make next in a like dilemma, and so reaches for his "Diaglott" and reads "In him were created all things—those in the heavens, and those on the earth; the visible and the invisible, whether thrones, or lordships, or governments, or authorities; all things have been created through him and for him: and he precedes all things, and in him have all things been permanently placed."

He tells you that he does not attempt to explain it all, that some things he does not fully understand, but is just simple enough to take them as written. You fling at him that if you believed in the pre-existence of Christ you would believe in the immortality of the soul. That one is as sensible as the other—in fact one is the counterpart of the other. That both subvert and nullify the gospel, and cannot be true.

He tells you that he does not believe in the immortality of the soul, that he does not recognize the similarity between the two. That his only reason for holding the theory is because Paul wrote it out, and the appeal to the other translation does not better it. He does not undertake to explain the matter—just simply takes it as given by the inspired writer, and leaves the explanation to come with a fuller understanding in a better time to come.

All his protestations are vain. You denounce him as unsound, a gospel nullifier, a heretic—no brother of yours. You drum him out of the camp and refuse him fellowship.

This applies also to another "all-important" question—the personality of the devil. We have here two—the writer of the foregoing letter and her father—who have pre existence as the only "test of fellowship." Who will start a little sect with the "devil" as their only "test of fellowship?" Don't wait too long. Here is an excellent chance, a really grand opportunity to become a "leader."

Report of Meeting.

Brother Almus Adams came to Moorefield, Nebraska, on April 23, and held a weeks' meeting in the church. The interest and attendance was splendid during the meeting, but no one took a stand for the gospel, yet we sincerely hope that those who so attentively listen in all our meetings, will soon see the necessity of not only hearing, but also of doing God's will.

While Brother Adams was with us we all (except four who could not come) met at the Church one afternoon and had our pictures taken in front of the building We are sending one of the pictures to THE RESTITUTION office.

things that they have learned, to grow in knowledge, faith, love and all good virtues, "that the man of God may be perfect, throughly (thoroughly) furnished unto all good works."

In this Christian growth we see and know ourselves more as the Heavenly Father does. The Word is a mirror which reflects back to us what manner of persons we are, "But we all with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the spirit of the Lord." 2 Cor. iii. 17, 18; 1 Cor. xii. 10-12; James i. 25.

In what attitude or spirit of mind must we receive the Word of God? Let the Word answer. James, "Wherefore lay apart all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness, and receive with meekness the engrafted Word, which is able to save your souls." 1 Peter ii. 1, "Wherefore laying aside all malice and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and evil speakings, as new born babes, desire the sincere milk of the Word, that ye may grow thereby. Rom. xii. 1-2. We should no longer be conformed to this world, but "transformed by the renewing of your minds." We should possess a meek and quiet spirit—not a proud and boastful one.

One having received the Word of God and accepted its joys and blessings would naturally have a desire to impart the same to others, and this may be done in many ways—by our teaching, influence, words and deeds, even by singing, for Paul to the Colossian brethren says, "Let the Word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord."

So let us who have realized the importance of the Word to us, continue in its precepts, the things which we have learned and have been assured of, following our great example, Jesus Christ, and in the end become joint heirs with him in the everlasting kingdom.

Announcement.

The Conference of the Church of God will be held at Falida, Washington, June 24-26, being Friday, Saturday and Sunday. We would be pleased to see a large attendance at this Conference as there are important matters that should be discussed and attended to.

Yours very truly,
LEWIS MONTGOMERY, Pres.

Willing to Wait.

Did you ever know boys and girls who almost every morning dug up the seeds they had planted the day before to see how they are getting along? You do not need to be told that the gardens of such little people do not amount to much. It is just as necessary to wait patiently as it is to work faithfully. No matter how hard we work, we spoil everything if we are not willing to wait.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1.00 each. Order from Robt. C. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

Sunday School Lesson.

JUNE 12, 1910.

The Canaanitish Woman. Matthew xv. 21-28.

Golden Text.—"Great is thy faith; be it unto thee even as thou wilt."—Matthew xv. 28.

This incident is supposed to have occured a few weeks after the last lesson, and was near the border of the country of Tyre and Sidon, northwest of the Sea of Galilee.

The reason why Jesus had retired to this country, of course is not given, but the refusal of Jesus after feeding the multitude so miraculously, to allow them to make him their king, and his teaching regarding the plan of God for him, had caused inquiry, and his disciples could not understand all that was meant. We know that many times when Jesus had these difficult conditions to handle, he would retire to the country where he could be by himself, or a few of his disciples with him. Then he would very naturally explain more in detail to them the plans, that they as well as he could be the better prepared to go among the people and proclaim the mind of the Father. By such means also he would get away from the opposition of the Pharisees who ever sought to injure him. On those occasions Jesus was in the habit of going off by himself, and spending much time in communion with God. He wanted to be rid of the crowd, and be alone for quiet and rest. He needed the strength that comes from prayer and supplication to the Father. We have in our late study seen some exhibitions of the strength and power gained by this direct intercourse with God, and have noted its effect on his disciples and the general onlookers.

Now we come to another case, different from all that has gone before. Here is "a woman of Canaan." Mark says "the woman was a Greek, a Syrophenician by nation." She was of the original races who inhabited the land, of the Greek speaking tribes. A heathen in every sense.

Why does this woman come to Jesus?

She comes to Jesus, interrupting his rest, because she is in trouble. She relates that she has a young daughter, a little girl, who is grievously vexed by a demon.

How did this woman approach Jesus?

Mark says she "came and fell at his feet," and besought him, or cried to him for mercy. She must have been terribly excited and wrought up. Her anxiety for her girl no doubt was so intense that the poor creature was all but beside herself.

It is said by Selah Merril, who was at one time United States Consul at Jerusalem, that women of the East are very persistent in their pleadings, and will not be driven away by rough words or manners, but will stay by an official hour after hour, and come day after day, not taking any refusal, and not wearied by delays. This woman who now comes to Jesus is one of that sort, probably only knowing that Jesus is said to be a wonderful healer.

How did she address Jesus?

"O Lord, thou Son of David." She uses the highest title she can conceive of him having, and likely has no idea of the true God.

Why did she ask for mercy on herself?

There was one thing clear to her mind. Her little daughter, so grievously tormented and torn by the evil spirit, would soon give out and die. Its suffering would soon be ended, but the unhappy mother would be left childless and alone. She wanted pity not alone for her child but herself as well. If the child could get relief, the mother would as well.

How was the woman tested?

She was not a Jew. She was an alien, and Jesus' work was with the Israelites. By race and nationality, as well as by religion—for she was a heathen—this woman was outside the pale so far as Jesus was concerned. So at first Jesus did not make reply to her at all, but as she persisted in her cries for mercy, the disciples were annoyed, and asked Jesus to send her away. It may seem to some that this was hard treatment for this poor woman. Others not more worthy had been cured. Finally Jesus makes the quiet statement "I am not sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel."

What did she do then?

Came and worshipped him, saying "Lord, help me."

Jesus then when she still persisted says to her "Let the children first be filled. It is not meet to take the children's bread and cast it to dogs."

How does the woman get around this argument?

She does not dispute the argument, but says "Yea, (or truth) Lord, yet the dogs under the table eat of the childrens' crumbs." She would be satisfied with any small measure of relief. She did not want to take from others what they needed, but would be content with what would otherwise be wasted. She was willing to be called a dog, if she could be treated as well as a dog. The dogs were not denied what the children would leave uneaten, and if she could even have that privilege she would be thankful and glad for it.

What was the result?

For the woman's great display of faith, and her persistence in pressing her suit, Jesus grants her request, and her daughter is made whole from that very hour. Jesus was pleased at such displays of faith. When the centurion at Capernaum manifested great faith Jesus marvelled at and granted his request.

When that poor mother returned to her home, what a change. Instead of her little girl being torn and tormented, worn and helpless in the grasp of the demon, she found peace and quiet, happiness and good cheer. The gloom all gone and bright sunshine reigning over all.

God is pleased with that prayer that is humble, acknowledging our unworthiness. He wants us to trust him, as he knows best. He is pleased when we come with a confident faith in him, knowing he is able to do us good. With persevering faith, when we realize that he is willing to bless us, and so we persist. God wants fervent prayers—yes, prayers that have heart in them, not mere words. Then he wants us to pray constantly. "Continuing instant in prayer." "Continuing with one accord in supplication," was the attitude of the disciples in the early church.

Such prayer was this in our lesson today, and as Jesus had gained power and strength from God by his seasons of prayer, so did this woman's prayer and supplication show power gained by persistent effort. This woman was victorious. She won not only her daughter, but she won the approval of the Master, and he commended her for her great faith.

If Jesus were here would he commend us for the degree of faith we are manifesting?

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

The Hunter's Compass.

I heard a story. Thus it ran:
A hunter, up in Michigan,
Off lost himself, and circled round
Amid the forest's depths profound,
Till anxious friends got on his route,
And sought, and found, and brought him out.

I cried one day inspired why
He didn't a pocket compass buy—
Its north, it would always point the way
So that with it he could not stray.
He bought it quick, continuing east,
Struck out, and soon again was lost.

When found, they asked him if he tried
To find his way with his new guide.
"Sure, I did it," he stoutly said,

NOTICE.

Following the Conference at Antioch Meeting House, Marshall Co., Ind., there will be a Bible School held in Plymouth, beginning Monday, June 13th, and ending Sunday, June 19th. John L. Wince of Pierceton, Indiana, S. J. Lindsay of Oregon, Illinois, and Joseph Williams of Hillisburg, Ind., will be the instructors.

There is promise of a larger attendance than ever before. Come to Conference prepared to remain for the Bible School.

It would help the Committee on entertainment if those intending to be present, would write soon to the Secretary, Sister Lydia Rollsback, at 621 South Fellows St., South Bend, Indiana.

QUARTERLY MEETING

The Third Quarterly Conference of the Churches of God in Illinois will meet with the Camden Church at the Hale Ridge School house in Schuyler County, June 25 and 26, 1910.

It is our desire that as many go as can from the northern part of the state. All who can possibly go please write at once to the undersigned who will then write directions for reaching there by rail and all other necessary particulars. It will be necessary to inform the brethren there how many to prepare for, so let me know at once. Address me at Oregon, Ill.

S. J. LINDSAY.

To the Brethren in Michigan, greeting:

The Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Michigan will convene at Dutton, Michigan, commencing Thursday evening, June 2nd, continuing over Sunday, the 5. Plan to allow of your attendance as we are expecting an unusually interesting meeting and some important matters are to be brought up that demands your presence and interest, one of these relative to the change of time of our Annual meeting. At present it conflicts with the public schools, making it impossible for many of our young people to attend. It is desired to change the Conference until the last week in June. It is from the young people that we must draw our recruits and we must therefore arrange meetings making it convenient for them to be present.

If unable to be present, please write the undersigned at 627 South Lafayette St., Grand Rapids, Mich., stating your views, and they will be presented at the meeting as your voice.

Dutton is situated in Kent County, on the Grand Rapids branch of the Michigan Central Railway, ten miles from Grand Rapids, a train leaving at 7 a m, and one at 4 p m. Ask railroad agents for information as to time of trains, and don't fail to come.

The Programme committee submit the following programme, subject to change:

Brother L. E. Conner is to begin a series of meetings at Roll, Indiana, on June 5, and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

R. A. FRAZIER.

WITH the ending of the first quarter of 1910, a number of subscription have expired, and should be renewed at once. Also others that have been hanging since the first of the year, ought to be attended to now. The new post office regulations make it imperative that the list be kept up, and besides we need what is due us. Please give this prompt attention, as living expenses cannot be reduced under the present standard of prices, besides calls for papers and tracts come more frequently than formerly. We try to keep all going, but some times it is a hard pull. Brethren, your help is needed to keep the work going. We have confidence that you will respond now, so thank you in advance.

IN our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hillisburg, Indiana, or to this office.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 303 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, has neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Ladies' Aid.

Hebrews x. 38. "The just shall live by faith"—not all works.

We've put a fine addition on the good old Church at home.
It's just the latest kitter, with a gallery and dome.
It seats a thousand people—finest Church in all the town;
And when 'twas dedicated, why we plerked ten thousand down:
That is, we paid five thousand—every deacon did his best—
And the Ladies' Aid Society, it promised all the rest.

We've got an organ in the Church—the finest in the land;
It's got a thousand pipes or more, its melody is grand;
And when we sit in cushioned pews, and hear the master play,
It carries us to realms of bliss unnumbered miles away.
It cost a cool three thousand, and it stood the hardest test,
We'll pay a thousand on it—the Ladies' Aid the rest.

They'll give a hundred sociables, cantatas too, and teas;
They'll bake a thousand angel cakes, and tons of cream they'll freeze.
They'll beg and scrape and toil and sweat for seven years or more,
And then they'll start all o'er again, for a carpet on the floor.
No; it isn't just the digging out the money from your vest,
When the Ladies' Aid gets busy and says We'll pay the rest.

Of course, we're proud of our big Church, from pulpit to the spire.
It is the darling of our eyes, the crown of our desire.
But when I see the sisters work to raise the cash that lacks,
I sense how feel the Church is built on tired women's backs;
And sometimes I can't help thinking when we reach the region's blest,
That men will get the toil and sweat, and the Ladies' Aid the rest.

I Have Made a Covenant with My Chosen.

The above is found in the eighty-ninth Psalm and relates to the covenant made with David concerning the kingdom over which he reigned for forty years. The covenant made with his chosen—David is concerning the perpetuity of his kingdom. It is the unfolding of the promise made to Abraham. The seed of Abraham and the seed of David who is to build up his throne and kingdom for all generations are identical. The promised seed is Christ. Abrahom was never given an inheritance in the land—no not so much as to set his foot on. Yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child. Acts vii 5. By faith he sojourned in the land of promise as in a strange country dwelling with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise. He looked for a city which hath foundation, whose builder and maker is God. Before Abraham can receive this he must be clothed upon with immortality.

Abraham believed the gospel preached to him that the nations should be blessed through him and his seed, Christ. The promise made to him after he had offered Isaac was that his seed should possess the gates of his enemies, and he shall bless all nations. First a subjugation and and then the blessing of peace. This can only be accomplished through the organization of the kingdom promised to David.

Peter said, Ye are the children of the prophets, and of the covenants which God made with our father, saying unto Abraham, And in thy seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed. David was one of the fathers with whom Jehovah made an everlasting covenant. While he was alive the prophet Nathan was directed to make this covenant with him which is recorded in 2Sam vii 12-18. This seed was to sit upon his throne after his death and was to establish the throne of his kingdom forever. His house and his kingdom are to be established forever. This kingdom is the one spoken of by the prophet Daniel that the God of heaven will set up, which shall never be destroyed. It shall not be left to other people. Christ and the saints shall possess it forever. It shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms and it shall stand for ever. Its location is under the whole heavens. The kingdom and dominion and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heaven shall be given to the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom and all dominions (rulers, marg.) shall serve and obey him. This kingdom is to be literal and universal. Jesus will be crowned king. The territory will in the end be the entire earth. The Lord shall be king over all the earth in that day. Zech xiv 9. Behold, a king shall reign in righteousness and princes shall rule in judgment. He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of the Lord. When Jesus shall come with all his holy saints with him, then will he sit upon the throne of his glory. Then will the nations be judged and blessed. David recognized the greatness of this promise made to him by the prophet Nathan when he said, Who am I, O Lord God, and what is my house that thou hast brought me hitherto? And this was yet a small thing in thy sight, O Lord God; but thou hast spoken also of thy servant's house for a great while to come. This promise could not allude to Solomon's reign, as some suppose, as this seed was to sit on David's throne after he had slept with his fathers. Solomon occupied the throne of the Lord over Israel while David lived. Under this promise the throne is to be built up forever. The prophet Isa lv 3 says, I will make an everlasting covenant with you even the sure mercies of David. In turning to Acts xiii we find that Paul identifies the one to whom this promise was made. It was not David, but his seed, Christ. As concerning that he raised him (Jesus) up from the dead now no more to return to corruption, he said on this wise, I will give you the sure mercies of David. In the margin of our Bible the "sure mercies" are called the "holy and just things." David during his life time had only the common things. He reigned in common with other kings except that he ruled on the throne of the Lord over Israel. This kingdom in the days of Zedekiah was overturned and is to remain in this condition until he whose right it is comes. Then will this kingdom be built up. Today Jehovah is choosing out of the nations a people for his name, after which he will return and build again the tabernacle of David which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof and I will set it up. Acts xv 14, 16. This is in harmony with all the prophets from whom I have quoted. Amos from whom this is taken associates this with Israel restored. I will bring again the captivity of my people Israel, and they shall build the waste cities and inhabit them. They shall plant vineyards and drink the wine thereof; they shall also make gardens and eat the fruit of them. Amos ix 14. Thus we see that the covenant made with Abraham and David relate to the same blessing. The perfect spiritual unit seed has been produced This seed will produce a bountiful harvest. It will be as numerous as the stars of heaven and the sands of the sea shore. To them will be given power over the nations. The nations shall be given as an inheritance and the uttermost parts of the earth for a possession. He shall have dominion also from sea to sea and from the river unto the ends of the earth. Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, who only doeth wondrous things. Amen.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JUNE 8, 1910. NUMBER 22.

The Gospel and its Hope.

I am not ashamed of the gospel; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth: to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. For therein is revealed a righteousness of God from faith unto faith; as it is written, but the righteous shall live by faith. Rom i 16, 17.

While in Rome, the apostle Paul, a prisoner in his own hired dwelling, received both Jew and Gentile preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching the things concerning the Lord Jesus Christ. Acts xxviii 30. And in Acts xx 24 it is recorded also, that he testified of the gospel of the grace of God. Verse 25. And went about preaching the kingdom. Preaching is a greater gift than teaching, it is prophesying by faith, and edifies or builds up the church to a greater extent than would teaching alone. While to testify of grace is necessary inasmuch as, "By grace (favor and mercy) are ye saved through faith, and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God." But grace would not avail without faith in the thing preached, and grace would not save alone. "But of him are ye in Christ Jesus who was made unto us wisdom from God and righteousness, and sanctification and redemption; that, according as it is written he that glorieth let him glory in the Lord." 1 Cor i 30. So all things work together for good to them that love God, to them that are called according to his purpose Rom viii 28

We find in the passage of Scripture first quoted many important points for consideration. The first and most important feature of the gospel is its power, while we are told the power is derived from its righteousness, and if lived by it will give salvation while the whole is set in motion by the proclamation, "By the foolishness of preaching." "Because the foolishness of God is wiser than men."

It is evident then that man's first needs are not money, nor advise, nor even human love or sympathy, but the gospel. "For godliness is profitable unto all things having the promise of the life that now is and also of the life to come. There are two ways of speaking recorded by the Apostle Paul namely, speaking according to the manner of men, and speaking according to God in the Spirit. "God is Spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in Spirit and in truth." "Even God maketh alive the dead, and speaketh of those things that are not as though they were." All alive unto him, yet the majority are quite dead; "Lazarus sleepeth, I go to awake him." "Lazarus is dead." All the preaching, all that is written, all that is done is to bring us to God, not back to God, not to Jesus, but to God himself; because the first man Adam was natural and not spiritual. We were all dead, we died in Adam, when he disobeyed God, we were in the loins of our father Adam when he sinned. Yet God made Adam a living soul, and so all live unto God. How can God be just, and justify the sinner, when he hath said, "The soul that sinneth shall die." How are these things to be accomplished? By believing and obeying the righteousness of faith revealed in the gospel. The Jew had a zeal for God, but not according to knowledge, and being ignorant of God's righteousness they sought to establish their own. For a man must do and live the law. But the righteousness which is of faith saith thus, Say not in thy heart, Who shall ascend into heaven? (that is, to bring Christ down;) or, who shall descend into the abyss? (that is, to bring Christ up from the dead.) But what saith it? The Word is nigh thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart; that is, the Word of faith which we preach; because if thou shalt confess with thy mouth Jesus as Lord, and shalt believe in thy heart that God raised him from the dead thou shalt be saved.

Now what is the Word of faith which the apostle Paul preached? for this is a matter of the greatest seriousness and importance. "For if our gospel is veiled it is veiled in them that are perishing." 2 Cor iv 3.

It is this, that Jesus Christ was born of a woman by the creation power of God's Holy Spirit, that he was pure, holy and without sin, that Christ died (ceased to live) Christ was buried, Christ rose from the dead. He went away to prepare a place for us, and is coming again to receive us unto himself, that we shall be like him in all his glory, and be raised from the dead, when he comes, or if alive have an equivalent change all of us together. That to those who believed and confessed that God had made Jesus both Lord and Christ (not made him God) should be saved. "For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation."

The heart of man is the seat of desire, affection and love; God's love shed abroad in man's heart; new desires created; and as Jesus was called, "The beginning of the creation of God," so this new life, the new creation has begun in the believer. Figuratively speaking this new life, this Holy Spirit, is called the inner man, and is said to never die; to commit no sin, being begotten of God, because his seed abideth in him; to need no teaching because of this anointing, etc. The fact is God has appointed anointed teachers, and some being babes in Christ are not responsible for many things they do which would be sin in others walking in greater light and understanding. "And if any man sin we have a Paraclete with the Father Jesus Christ the righteous."

Besides that which is perfect has not come, so we know in part, and prophecy in part; while God looks at the heart and not at many things we say and do; and our faith is accounted unto us for righteousness. Serving the Lord in the spirit, and not in the letter. For the letter can be as much of an adversary to some, as manifestation of tongues is to others. "For we are not bold to number or compare ourselves with certain of them that commend themselves; but they themselves, measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves with themselves, are without understanding, 2 Corinthians x. 12.

Thus the ignorant are constantly doing this very thing individually and collectively in every sect. The iniquity of the last generation of this age is fearful. Iniquity has come to the full, many wicked will be destroyed by the brightness of Christ's parousa, and will never rise again. "I have committed him to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, that his spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus." All Israel shall be saved, but not to the glory of the Church, all the nations shall be saved, but not to the glory of Israel. All are not Israel who are of Israel, and all of the nations will not obey the law which shall go forth from Jerusalem.

Is the hope of the Church earthly or heavenly? We ask not in relation to altitude so much as condition, state, glory, honor, immortality. Do any of those who are saved after the manifestation of the sons of God, ever attain to the glory and honor of "the Ekklesia which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all?" Eph. i. 23. The apostle informs us that as in the natural all flesh is not the same flesh, but men, beasts, birds and fish; so in the resurrection "there are bodies celestial and bodies terrestrial, but the glory of the celestial is one and the glory of the terrestrial is another. There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars; for one star differeth from another star in glory. So also is the resurrection of the dead. 1 Corinthians xv. 39-42. "For we know that if the earthly house of our tabernacle be dissolved, we have a building from God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." 2 Cor. v. 1. "The Lord will deliver me from every evil work, and will save me unto his heavenly kingdom." 2 Timothy iv. 18. "Wherefore holy brethren, partakers of a heavenly calling." Hebrews iii. 1. "Into an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you," 1 Peter i. 4.

Reward and penalty is a subject of itself, nevertheless we know that no reward is greater than that which is promised to the faithful worker in the gospel. The gospel that the apostle Paul preached consisted of righteousness, self control, and of judgment to come.

To preach the King is to preach the kingdom and its righteousness and judgment; for the inhabited earth is to be judged by the faithful; and the angels are to be judged; and the believer can make himself worthy by self control and living godly in Christ Jesus. While the apostle did not preach hell, as defined by some, he did preach that certain were lost unless they repented, vessels of wrath fitted for destruction; and others who had only a fearful looking forward to judgment which judgment shall devour the adversaries; and not only so but among the favored class were such as were deceiving themselves because they minded earthly things, their god was their belly, (the desire of the flesh) whose end is perdition. Many professed believers were walking in this way, after the whole truth had been preached to them. Phil. iii. 18. "How shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation." It would have been better for us never to have known the ways of righteousness, than after we have known it turn away from the holy commandment, said the apostle Peter. And Paul's gospel of righteousness, self control, and judgment to come, made Felix, a Roman Governor tremble.

Does the gospel we preach make those who reject it tremble? We have no promise for those who reject the gospel, but be patient with long suffering and they may lay hold of the Word of faith which we preach, in time. Judgment having begun at the house of God, what will be the end of those who obey not the gospel? Not what will be the end of those who have never heard it.

By the Spirit we are said to be translated into the kingdom, yet, "the time came when the saints possessed the kingdom." That time has not arrived. "In the days of those kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom," on the other hand the apostle says "Wherefore, receiving a kingdom that cannot be shaken, let us have grace whereby we may offer service well pleasing to God with reverence and awe: for our God is a consuming fire." Heb. xii. 28. Jesus said "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." Yet the apostle says we see not all things put under him. We have these things in spirit, and if we hope for those things we see not, then do we with patience wait for them. "Darkness covereth the earth and gross darkness the people." Men are ignorant and superstitious of God's ways. If one or two are healed, they begin to preach healing for gospel and imagine God is doing great and wonderful things through them. With great swelling words they deceive the people, and the people like it and pay well for it. But we imagine the death rate is as great among any band of healers as any other class, and perhaps greater, especially if they neglect certain sanitary laws; but if they want to establish a hospital and call it a faith healing resort it is none of our business. In our section many desire to die in one of the numerous Seventh Day Advent Sanitariums, and if you can afford it they are good places to die in. And so most of the sects have no excuse for existence, were it not for their idols. "But beloved, we are persuaded better things of you, and things that belong to salvation; for God is not unrighteous to forget your work and the love which ye showed toward his name, that ye may show the same diligence unto the fulness of the hope even to the end, imitators of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises."

SUMMARY.

Speaking in the Spirit of God.
Speaking after the manner of men.
Being in the Spirit of God waiting for the redemption of the body.

"In one Spirit were we all baptized into one Body."

This "Mystical Body" is Christ, or of which Christ is Head. The ekklesia of the first born whose names are written in heaven (not on earth.) This Body is sitting in the heavenlies with Christ, not reigning, but "at God's right hand of God." "I wish to God you did reign that I might reign with you."

No man can add to it or take from it. God adds to it such as shall be saved when the "Body" is revealed to the oikovmeue, (the habitable or inhabited earth) the mystery of God is finished; for then all men shall see the glory of God, the Mystery of the Body. Babylon is a great mystery—the mystery of iniquity, these things are only discerned in Spirit.

"Unto you is given the mystery of the kingdom of God: but unto them that are without all things are done in parables: that seeing they may see and not perceive; and hearing they may hear and not understand; lest haply they should turn again, and it should be forgiven them." Mark iv. 11, 12.

Dear Brother Underwood,

Your account is all right, and I am in arrears on the paper I am very sorry to say. I enclose one dollar, which is all I have. I think I will have to drop THE RESTITUTION, as I am an old man past 80 years, and in poor health, and means very limited.

I have taken THE RESTITUTION for forty years and more, and would be glad to have it the remainder of my natural life, were I able, but I cannot do so.

In hope of eternal life.

E. ——. ————.

[We give you this letter as a sample, that you may realize the importance of keeping up our "Helping Fund." Brethren, we cannot "turn down" an old man such as this brother because he is poor. It is not in our heart to do such a thing, and knowing it is not in yours either, we still send the paper to him, trusting God that you will "hold up our hands."—ED.]

Christ is coming—that much is certain. The time is uncertain. What can be more foolish then than to be unprepared.

Brother L. E. Conner is to begin a series of meetings at Roll, Indiana, on June 6, and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1.00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

"Lest we forget"—The June Meeting at Antioch, five miles south of here, will begin next Friday, and continue over Sunday. Then on Monday following the Bible School begins in this city and holds throughout the week. Do not forget.

THE world's periodicals are full of the "peace and safety" cry. From every civilized land schemes are constantly being suggested that will insure the permanent peace of the world if only adopted.

BROTHER John L. Wince came from the Battle Creek, Michigan, Sanitarium last Monday, stopping over night in Plymouth. He says he is better from his course of treatment, and if strength permits will be at Conference and Bible School.

BROTHER Joseph Williams came to Plymouth Monday evening, intending to rest up for Conference and Bible School, but in the course of the night a long distance telephone call summoned him to Michigantown, to attend the funeral of Brother Oliver P. Weaver. He will return in time for Conference.

AN uprising similar to the famous "Boxer" movement is threatened in the Nanking provinces of China. The government has been warned, and insulting placards have announced to all foreigners that they must leave or be killed. Meanwhile a spirit of unrest sweeps over India, and grave apprehensions are felt lest trouble break out there.

ON the pretext that Jews are living in forbidden districts, many thousands of these unhappy people are being expelled from their homes in Russia; compelled at a moment's notice to leave their businesses, their houses and all belongings. Numbers come to this country and other places, but the large majority are being guided to Oriental Turkey, where colonies are being established. Thus this task of the "return" goes on. Do we all note the "sign."

ON last Saturday at the "Hawkeye Fellowship Club" dinner held at the Grand Pacific Hotel in Chicago, Ill. Mr. J. M. Kantor, the speaker for the occasion said, "Without wishing to cast any aspersions upon religion or upon the undoubted good which the Churches accomplish, I would say that in most of the towns I know in Iowa the numerous churches have been a fruitful source of business stagnation. I think it would be wise for the business men of a town to come together and oppose the building of new churches. Let the Churches unite and work for the common good rather than split up the energy of the people in a dozen different unimportant ways." The account says that other speakers very generally agreed with Mr. Kantor.

This might be a good idea. Just let the "business men" decide the number and kind of Churches for a town to have. Then let the "common herd"—such as are not "business men," come together and vote on who shall keep the dry goods store, the clothing and shoe store, the grocery store, the meat market, the bank,—the lawyer and doctor likewise, and thus all will be regulated in proper "business" style. Fine idea!

However, this shows the disposition of some people. Freedom in the worship of God according to the dictates of your own conscience may yet be restricted in this country. Such has been in other parts of the world. Why not here when the time is ripe? This is just a "straw" indicating the direction of the wind.

Straws.

A lie once told is a link in a slave's chain, the wearer of which has to keep on forging others to complete it.

Committing one kind of sin is like marrying into a disreputable family: it makes a man akin to all manner of sin.

You might as well try to get rich swapping vest buttons, as to expect to grow in grace by boosting your own church up by running some other down.

Sunday School Lesson.

JUNE 19. 1910.

The Parable of the Sower. Matthew xiii. 1-9, 18-23.

Golden Text.—"Wherefore putting away all filthiness and overflowing of wickedness, receive with meekness the implanted word, which is able to save your souls." James i. 21, R. V.

Now that we have gone through the events of the Galilean ministry, we turn back for a few lessons to get an idea of the teaching of Jesus during this time.

What method of teaching did Jesus employ largely?

What is a parable?

The Standard Dictionary says "A brief narrative founded on real scenes or events such as occur in nature and human life, and usually with a moral or religious application."

Why did Jesus use parables in his teaching?

See Matthew xiii. 13-16. The enemies of Jesus were increasing. His danger was great. It was necessary to set forth matters concerning the kingdom of God, and his relation to it, that if spoken of directly would only intensify the hatred of his enemies, and cause turmoil. Jesus wanted to avoid this, hence taught lessons through these parables, or simple stories, that could be easily remembered, and if pondered over, one could easily find the meaning and make the application.

It has been said that an apt illustration puts barbs on truth, so that it cannot easily be pulled out. So that the use of parables was a wise precaution in more than one way.

The real subject of the parable we study today is Obedience to God's Word. Jesus had been busy this day as we learn from reading the previous chapter, and now as he goes to the sea side many people follow, and he gets into a boat near the shore, where he can be heard by the crowd. Luke tells that "much people were gathered together, and were come to him out of every city." They had followed the great miracle-worker, either to see more of the wonders, or to get some blessing for themselves, and now with Jesus sitting in the boat, where he could face his congregation, he began to tell them many things in parables. It is the first parable we have to do with today.

How many kinds of ground does the seed fall on?

In olden times they had no machinery for sowing grain, such as farmers have today, and the grain was scattered by hand fulls, the wind aiding to spread it more or less evenly, and of course some fell on ground that was not good.

As the fields were seldom fenced, and the roads were mostly paths leading through them, the grain would often fall on the trampled paths, and beasts of burden and passersby would tread it down if it sprouted up. The birds would easily find such grain too, and eat it. So that grain sown on such a place would yield no return, but be lost.

What was the next kind of soil?

Stony ground. Not so much where stones abound in the fields, but where stone underlies the soil at little depth. Shallow soil. The sun heats the stone through the thin soil, causes the grain to sprout quickly, but as there is no depth, and the roots cannot strike down to moisture, the tender plants are soon scorched and withered. So no good can come from such sowing.

What is the third kind of ground mentioned?

Hasting's Bible Dictionary tells us that in Syria and Palestine there are some 200 species of plants that have thorns and prickles, and in many places they take possession of the land. Thistles grow to a height of 10 or 15 feet. Grain that is sown in land that holds the seeds of such thorny plants, will not amount to much, as the thorns and thistles grow more rapidly than the grain, and so choke it out or tower above it, shading it and hindering the sunlight, which is necessary to ripen the grain. So grain in this sort of ground can do no good, but is lost.

What is the fourth kind of ground the grain falls on?

Good ground—rich soil that produces abundantly—some thirty, some sixty, and still other a hundred fold.

The disciples want an explanation of this parable. They do not understand how to apply it. Many thoughts would come into their minds. What is the field, who is the sower, and what is meant by the seed? All these will be brought out in the course of Jesus' teaching. The object in this lesson now that we have the seed sown on the four kinds of ground, and note the result, and remembering that the lesson subject is a parable on Obedience to God's Word, is to find the four kinds of persons that hear the Word of God spoken, and notice how they receive it.

What is the first sort of hearers we have to consider?

The careless person. The heart of man is the soil for this grain. If the heart is careless and thoughtless—not understanding and realizing the importance of the Word, engrossed in worldly cares, that press down the whole life, and make the heart hard and barren; this sort of life is like the wayside, and no harvest comes from it. Satan comes like the birds, and when a seed is sown it is caught away. Did you ever see cases of this sort? A minister preaches a good convincing sermon, but one of his audience who is self-appointed critic, hears only the mis-pronounced word, or some mannerism that can be ridiculed, and a whisper, a nudge, a look, nullifies the whole good effect of the discourse. A man who had been quite regular in attendance at Church said at the close of his life, that he had never heard a sermon. He was always planning his business as the minister was preaching. Such is wayside soil. The birds and Satan get the seed.

Who are stony-ground hearers?

They receive the Word gladly, with joy. They promise well at first. They never get below the surface. They never dig for hidden truth. Their day is short, for soon the pets of companions, little persecutions and troubles of the world come, and they stumble and fall. Herod heard John gladly, but died without reformation. Felix heard Paul and trembled, but made no change in his life. Rocky-ground hearers are the kind that would be content to "just get into the kingdom" but never can survive a struggle to gain an "abundant entrance" thereto.

Of what sort are the thorny-ground hearers?

Matthew gives "the cares of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches," and Mark adds another "the lusts of other things." Now a certain amount of care in business must be taken, but that over-anxiety that crowds out all else is where wrong comes in. Money is necessary for us to have to live, but when we risk all for riches, and make ourselves slaves to greed for gain, we choke out all else. The "lusts of other things"—when pleasure becomes a passion, and enjoyment the end of our life. These three—business, money, amusements—all well in their place, if allowed to take possession of a man will choke out the Word of God as effectively as thorns choke out the grain.

Of what sort are the good-ground hearers?

Those who take the lesson taught into good and honest hearts, hold all fast, and bring forth fruit. Not all lives are alike, but each one who obeys the truth, and continues in it, will undoubtedly bring forth a harvest worth while.

"Who hath ears to hear, let him hear." Accept the simple message that Christ brings honestly; act with confidence and fearlessness, hold to it with diligence.

Thomas Guthrie said: "What therefore though the heart by nature is like a stone? The finest soils of earth were once stone; and he who by the action of stormy waves and tremendous icebergs ground down the rocks which reared their naked, rugged heads high above the waste of waters into soil where now the plowman draws his furrows and flashing sickles reap their richest harvest, can work such changes on hearts of stone.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 30.

There might be trouble and danger ahead, but Auntie Willard heard a voice saying, "Nevertheless, I am continually with thee; thou hast holden me by the right hand. Psa lxxiii.

"I am continually with thee." Feb. 1885.

"The peace of mind these blessed words gave her," she said, was unspeakable. All care about the future, help and all, was cast upon the Lord and with his blessed companionship, what more could she ask? And how different from the infidel who wrote: "In the enormous machinery of the universe, amid the incessant whirl and hiss of its jagged iron, amid the deafening crash of its ponderous stamps and hammers; in the midst of all this terrific commotion, man, a helpless, defenseless creature, finds himself placed, not secure for a moment from any improvident motion. A wheel may seize and rend him, or a hammer crush him to powder. This sense of abandonment has something awful in it." "And sure enough it has, looking at it in that dismal light, but hear these words to a Christian, represented by the poet as coming right from the mouth of the dear heavenly Father. And indeed, the same sentiments do come from him in his holy Book."

LEAN HARD.

"Child of my love, lean hard, and let me feel the pressure of thy care.
I know thy burden child, I shaped it.
Poised it in my own hand, made no proportion
In its weight to thine own unaided strength:
For soon as I laid it on, I said
I shall be ever near, and while she leans on Me
This burden shall be mine, not hers,
So shall I keep my child within the circling arms
Of mine own love. Here lay it down nor fear
To impose it on a shoulder which upholds
The government of worlds. Yet closer come Nor art thou near enough, I will embrace thy care
So I may feel my child reposing on my breast.
Thou love st Me! I know it! Doubt not then,
But loving Me, lean hard!"

What a contrast to the thought of the infidel! No one to care for him, but the God of the universe to care for the Christian.

Auntie Willard loved to put texts together in this way.

1 "Unto him that loved us and washed us from our sins in his own blood." Rev i 5.

2 "Unto thee lift up mine eyes." Psalm cxxiii 1.

3 "The beloved of the Lord shall dwell in safety. Deut xxxiii 12.

4 "A faithful man shall abound in blessing.

5 "The Lord will go before you."

6 "Lead me in thy truth and teach me."

7 "My grace is sufficient for thee."

8 "Cast thy burden upon the Lord and he will sustain thee."

Whoever thus goes to the Word of Lord, and hides it in his heart, has the Lord continually with him. And is holden by the right hand in no uncertain sense. God talks with him and he with God. He leans on God and God cares for him.

Dr. Nelson L. Willard was living at Bradford, Pa., at the time of his father's death, Lyman, at Saratoga, N. Y., and Rowland at Haddonfield, but August 11th of the same year (1884) Nelson L. sailed with his wife for England, expecting to do better there at his dentistry work than he could in the United States, and in this hope he was not disappointed, until when, the last of July, 1888, a law was passed prohibiting any one from practicing in Great Britain who had not graduated in one of her schools. This unexpected turn of affairs threw him out of employment and into a very awkward dilemma. Fortune seemed determined to "slap him in the face" at every turn; he had lost everything he had in the Pennsylvania oil wells and now a second and still brighter dream had proved a failure. What does it mean? Certain it is that God has not marked out a career of worldly success for this child of so many prayers. As the firstborn son of such noted lineage with fondest hopes and ambitions centering in him, one would naturally have expected him to reach a place of renown either in the scientific or medical field, but the dear heavenly Father brings his children home to the city of gold by strangely devious ways, and answers a father's and mother's life-long prayers, and implored blessings through the very defeats and disappointments that seem so hard for both themselves and the child to bear. No one can have a part in the kingdom who has not passed through the refiners fire and come out pure gold.

But Nelson was bright and determined, and he had a perfect jewel of a wife, who was ready to stand by and help him to the bitter end. He could not go through school and get a diploma for the money was wanting, so he turned his attention, to the field of invention, the dear mother and kind younger brother, both assisting him principally as far as lay in their power. The invention was a telephone, that bid fair to eclipse everything of the kind that had as yet been put on the market. Auntie Willard had done her best, and all were jubilant with hope. It had been severely tested and seemed perfect. But just as patents were about to be granted by England, France, Germany and other countries, a rival telephone stepped in and won the race! Poor Nel had been left without even the means to get back to his own land.

Mrs. Sallie Rofer had visited him in July, 1886, but he remained in England ten years in all, coming home September 1, 1894, and settling in Washington city, D. C. He had been helped to this end in a most providential way. His own invention having failed, his second brother, Dr. L. M. Willard—sent him a simple little article of some kind that he had had patented, and wonder of wonders! it sold beyond all account, and the money was soon in his hands to pay steamer passage to the United States.

AUNTIE WINCE.

[To be Continued.]

In California.

I am at Brother John Helms, six miles from Pomona, California. He and Sister Helms had written to me to come here and make my home with them during the hot weather So in the Providence of him in whom we trust, I am here and feeling well and thankful.

If it did not seem like sameness, I might tell you of my time in Pomona since the hour of landing on May 20, but it would only be a repetition of a struggle with an adversary who seems intent on taking life by squeezing it out of a broken heart. Some men have even desired to die, because they have lost home and property; others have foolishly hunted for death because they loved objects more dear to them than home; but how much better to be able to increase our grip on life on account of our love for him, and a desire to help other mortals to gain the life and peace that has no end.

I am better—would say "am well" if such strong assurance had not been misleading heretofore. Nothing seems assured in mortal life but death. Yet hope is assured to the servant that desires to wait.

On arriving at this new temporary home I saw Brother and Sister Helms and their daughter Mary for the first time. I had heard from them several times during the past year. There is something good about "the faith," and I had not been here long till Bro. Helms talked intelligently about the return of the Jews to their own land, showing that he believes in the restoration of the kingdom to Israel, and we are nearing the time when it shall be restored. Acts i. 6.

I want to tell you that what was said in praise of the article written by Mary Helms published March 9, was none too much. Whether she writes frequently or not we can be assured that so much natural ability and talent in childhood cannot be chained for long, and I am glad to write as an example for both parents and children, that she has learned the prayer that Jesus taught his disciples, and repeats it with the faith of childhood, when the family of three—four now—assemble to talk to "Our Father which art in heaven," to engage in their morning and evening humble talk to the One we can with confidence call "Our Father." No parents can repeat the prayer, or teach a child to repeat it with faith, without being assured that the King will come when the kingdom comes and his will is done as obedient angels are doing it in heaven. The prayer and the faith purifies the heart, and the language; makes life sweeter by erasing the bitter spots.

I have spent a few days at Brother and Sister Osborne's, at a pretty village near by called Lordsburg. They have a church of Advent Christians at that place, and if I am given the ability of being as wise as a serpent and harmless as a dove, I may have the opportunity of telling them of the age to come, when I may feel sufficiently strong.

Before leaving Arizona I gave a talk on "What shall be the destiny of the earth" to an attentive audience.. I proved by many quotations from the Book that it would be the everlasting home of the righteous. After closing my discourse a prominent member of the Baptist Church came to me and said "I believe every word you said—it is Bible."

Is there not danger of becoming so dogmatical that we will appear to have the monopoly of all truth, and so push people away instead of winning them to more light by more love.

I did not like to leave a prospect of telling more gospel in Arizona, but felt that prospect may be as good in California, and better if the change should be more favorable as regards health.

With love for all,
W. L. SKEELS.

Contentment abides with truth. You will generally suffer for wishing to appear other than what you are—whether to be richer, or greater, or more learned. The mask soon becomes an instrument of torture.—Arthur Helps.

Report of Meeting.

The time of our May meeting has come and gone again, and we think they get better every year.

Brother Joseph Williams arrived on Thursday, and we could not let him rest till Friday, so he preached for us Thursday evening on the Gospel Mirror. The rest of the programme was carried out as per announcement.

I must say right here that Brother Williams is a workman who needeth not be ashamed. We only wish there were hundreds like him, so that they could go all over the land and preach the gospel.

Well, we had a fair-sized audience at the start, but it kept increasing, and by Sunday our Church building was full all day, and every one seemed to be much interested. We felt sad that some of those who are accustomed to being with us every year, could not attend this time; however, we hope they with many more may be with us next year.

Dear ones from far and near, do try and come, for you are missing a feast of fat things.

Brother Williams left on Tuesday morning for Michigan to attend their Conference. All hope he will come again.

Yours in hope,
J. E. LENT, Sec'y.

The Gospel of Christ.

I challenge any man to show me anything better, anything more suited to man and his wants, than the gospel of Christ. It is better than philosophy. Philosophy can only disclose, only describe and classify. It cannot heal—it cannot cure. It is like a physician who knows the disease, but has no remedy; while the gospel of Christ not only lays bare the malady, but prescribes an infallible and universal cure.

Education can only call out and develop what is in fallen man; but the gospel re-creates man's heart and nature, and then lifts him up to the fullness of the stature of Christ. Education stops at the surface; the gospel, which is the power of God unto salvation, penetrates to the center of man's necessities. It is better than morality. Morality is conformity to law. When perfect it is a star rolling on in its God-appointed orbit. But man has broken law—the star has swerved from its orbit. Morality cannot get it back and keep it in its course. The gospel can. It brings man back to God—makes him at one with God—gives man a new start and keeps him in the right course.—F. A. Noble.

Just Testing.

Annoyance and irritation can never come to the person who declines to be annoyed or irritated. It will help us to maintain this consistent declination if we realize that every unexpected and interrupting demand upon our time, our plans, and our good-nature, is simply an opportunity for us to show how we are living.

Sometimes the telephone bell rings at a very inopportune time, and, on answering it, we get the reply that an inspector is just testing, to see whether our instrument and its connection are in condition to give us the kind of service that the company seeks to maintain.

That is one mission of the things that break in on our life, with a jangling and an insistence that try us so sorely, yet that we must respond to—they are "just testing." The kind of response they get from us reveals the condition of our instrument and its connection; we show at once whether the kind of service that is expected is being maintained. Upon our satisfactory and undisturbed answer to these "test calls" depends our ability to answer the really great demands of life. —S. S. Times.

The idea that kindness is always imposed upon in this world is not true. It may be misunderstood at times, but even in this world of malice and hatred, kindness is a conquering power. It succeeds when everything else fails. Often, persistent kindness toward an enemy has won him for a friend. Men of fierce passions, men desperate in nature, that have overridden every consideration, have been subdued by the touch of kindness. There is nothing animate on earth that is impervious to it. If then we would possess more power, let us cultivate kindliness of heart.

Ebenezer. 1. Sam 7, 12

The copy for this department of THE RESTORATION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10028 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

The first candidate immersed in our new Church was Miss Bessie Bullock, May the 22nd.

Sister Martha Satterfield, formerly of Bismark, Mo., has now moved to 3227 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo. Brethren in or near the city, please take notice.

Sister Jennie Page supplied a poor minister in S. C. with a book. He thus gratefully writes: "I am much pleased with the book. I had prayed that I might be able to get a copy. I am very poor. I think the Lord has answerd my prayer."

We are receiving more funds to send our book to the poor than applications to take the bounty. We have had means to supply all who have made their desire known, and have a balance of $8.75. Again we request Bereans and Churches everywhere to send us names of the worthy poor.

Princes in the Earth.

Give an exposition of Psa xlv 16.—G. L. Mumciil.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

"Instead of the fathers shall be thy children, whom thou mayest make princes in all the earth." In the first verse of this Psalm the writer says by way of introduction that his statements are "touching the king." From the first verse to the tenth he describes the King—his beauty, grace, justice, majesty, throne, righteous, and garments. As he is soon to be married, the writer begins in the tenth verse to describe his bride, the saints of God; and because they are to be united in marriage to Christ they are appropriately designated as a "daughter." V. 10. He urges her to consecrate herself wholly to the Lord, that he is her "Lord," and deserves her worship. V. 11. That she may appear before the Master and Husband in unblemished purity, he asks her to "forget her people," even her "father's house." V. 10. Presuming that she obeys these conditions he dilates upon her riches, favor, clothing, raiment, needle work, companions, and consummates the narrative by picturing her entering the "King's palace" where the marriage of the Lamb occurs with gladness and rejoicing (verses 10-15). Then "instead of thy fathers," whose house thou left when thou wast espoused to thine husband (verse 10), "shall be thy children." The church, the bride, when married to the Christ, the bridegroom, will be "fruitful, and multiply, and subdue the earth;" she will become the mother of a host of children;" and these, instead of being the serfdom of that age over whom saints lord it, as Russellism teaches, are to be honorable and princely—all of them "princes," and having a name "better than of sons and of daughters." Isa lvi. 5.

Precision and Brevity in Divine Statements.

"This generation."—Mark xiii.

All through the ministration of our Lord, we note with admiration the wonderful brevity and precision of his statements and predictions. We wish to call your attention to the synopsis of historical events that were to intervene between the destruction of Jerusalem and the "signs" that were to herald the coming of the Son of Man in the clouds, with great power and glory, as recorded in Mark xiii. Matt. xxiv. and Luke xxi. The objective point in the narrative is the meaning of the term, "this generation." Does it mean in this instance the same and have the same application, as to time, that it does in all the other places where the "this generation" is found? In looking up all the passages where "this generation" is found, I seem to discover a vital difference, or exception, to the general rule of application.

For instance, see Matt. xxiii. 36, "All these things shall come upon this generation." Ch. xi. 16. "But whereunto shall I liken this generation?" Ch. xii. 41, "The men of Nineveh shall rise in judgment with this generation." In these instances it appears "this generation" naturally meant the people then living, while in Mark viii. 38, "Whosoever therefore shall be ashamed of me and my Words in this adulterous and sinful generation," takes in the entire dispensation, even to the coming of the Son of Man. For surely the application does cover the entire day of probation. In Luke xi, 29, 30, we find this statement: "This is an evil generation; they seek a sign, and there shall no sign be given it but the sign of Jonas the prophet. For as Jonas was a sign unto the Ninevites, so shall also the Son of Man be to this generation." And verse 31: "The queen of the south shall rise up in the judgment with the men of this generation, and condemn them." Here the application seems to cover only the then existing times, or generation specifically, for the living people had the advantage of sight, and seeing the wonderful works done as foretold by the prophets, which was never before accomplished.

Now for the application of the text in Mark xiii. 30: "Verily I say unto you, that this generation shall not pass till all these things be done." Note the fact that the entire chapter covers the history and experience of the church from the time the Lord spoke those words until he comes again "with great power and glory." Is not the church personified by the pronoun ye? "When ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars." And "Ye shall be brought before rulers and kings for my sake." And "Ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake." "But when ye shall see the abomination of desolation." "Pray ye that your flight be not in the winter." "But take ye heed; behold I have foretold you (the church) all things." "Now learn a parable of the fig-tree. When her branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, ye know that summer is near. So ye, in like manner, when ye shall see these things come to pass, know that it is nigh, even at the doors." Now follow the text: "Verily I say unto you, (the church) that (and here note a fact, that the word that is nowhere else prefixed to the term "this generation") this generation shall not pass, till all these things be done." Therefore "Take ye heed, watch and pray. Watch ye therefore, lest coming suddenly he finds you (the church) sleeping. And what I say unto you (personally) I say unto all (the church) watch."

That the church is personified by the pronoun ye I am led to believe, from the fact that the then existing disciples to whom he spake lived to see a small part of the Lord's predictions fulfilled, for none of them lived to see the "abomination of desolation," much less the tribulation ended, after which the special signs were to be seen, and by which the ye (the church) were to know that her warfare was nearing the end, and that amid the perils of her last day conflicts she must watch, not knowing the day or hour, but that "this generation," in the watching time, "shall not pass till all these things be done." And the assurance given is "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." The significance of the statement, "That this generation shall not pass," is found in connection with the signs, the darkening of the sun, the moon, and the falling stars; but whether the generation commences with the signs or at the close, or with the "going forth to meet the Bridegroom," is a question of interest and a matter to watch for.

Surely the Master knew that the disciples to whom he spake would not live to see the signs spoken of; so it would seem superfluous to give them to understand that he meant the generation of their day should not pass away till they saw him "coming in the clouds with great power and glory." There is precision in his statement, and we may look with confidence to witness his return before the last of the aged pilgrims goes down in death who are now living in the hope of speedy redemption. The waiting bride (church) may respond, "Amen, even so come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly."—G. W. Gillespie.

The Higher Life.

Edgar L. Vincent whispers of the Shepherd care, the strength which the Master gives as we press through the way:

"Draw your arm up close to you, laddie! Draw it up. Get your load close to you. It will make it a great deal easier!"

"The old man had been watching a boy as he gathered up in his arms a heavy load of wood and started for the kitchen. The lad tugged away manfully at his burden, but it was hard work, and the kind Scotchman gave him this encouraging word.

"A little while afterward the lad came back to grandfather, his eyes beaming brightly.

"'It was so, grandpa!' he exclaimed. 'I did it as you told me. I just drew the sticks up as close to mess I could, and then I could carry them. I could have carried a good many more, too! What made it so? I don't see.'

So the old man told the lad how it was that the nearer one gets his burden to him the easier it is to carry it.

"It is the load carried at arm's length that wearies us and makes us long for the end of the journey. And so many are trying to do it in just that way.

"Just look at this lesson, father! All this page, and that, and that. And a review besides. I never can get it for tomorrow—I know I can't.

"But the father knows that the burden is away at arm's length. He helps his boy to get it up closer to him. He sits down by his side and points out that there is not so very much in that long lesson that is new. It lays back on the work that has gone before in such a way that the advance is not so great that it may not be mastered by patient endeavor. All that was needed was to bring [illegible] work up close.

"Tomorrow there will be a hard thing to do. We dread it so! How can we ever do it? We stand in the evening of today and shrink from the task. How long its shadow seems! And it is so dark—that shadow! If we might only go around it somehow! But that is not the right thing to ask. Work that has been shirked is work that was meant for good, but which failed through our weakness.

"How shall we meet the hard things that he in store for us? Get very close to them. The nearer we are to them the more bravely we grapple with them, the easier they are to do.

"The hardest things that ever come to us, and the ones we shrink from most, are the ones that are away out yonder in the dark. Look through the mist of our fears, it does not seem as if we ever could go out there to face those spectres of the night. Who knows what they will have in store for us? Surely they have terrible shapes, and they seem more than mortal man could endure. But let us get the load closer to us. With a prayer in our hearts and a strong will to do and to brave, let us go straight ahead. And lo! we find, when we get where we thought the fearful enemies were, that they are in truth friends, waiting to make us better and stronger and truer. So let us get close to our load, wherever it is.

"That load was given us to carry. No one can carry it for us. I am glad that it is so, for then we would fail to get the strength that surely comes to him who bears every burden which is placed upon his shoulders."—Selected by Sister Joblin.

Nebuchadnezzar's Image.

DAN. II. 28 45.

Nebuchadnezzar's image is a chart of time. Five distinct periods are traced upon it. These periods span the history of four universal kingdoms, viz: Babylon, Medo Persia, Grecia, Rome, and of Rome divided, and utterly annihilated by the kingdom which the God of heaven shall set up.

1. The Head of Gold represents Babylon.

2. The Breasts and Arms of silver represent Medo-Persia.

3. The Belly and Sides of brass represent Grecia.

4. The Legs of Iron represent Rome.

5. The Feet and Toes represent Rome divided, see verse 41.

This same history in advance is outlined, in the 7th chapter of Daniel, by Four Beasts; each beast representing one of the Four Kingdoms represented by sections of the Image; and the divided state of the fourth is represented by ten horns, corresponding to the ten toes of the image. And the Spirit's word for it, "the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise." Dan vii 24. This is infallible proof that the ten toes, in Dan ii 41, 42, represent kings, and in the nature of things imply kingdoms. In the divided state of Rome, then, there existed a number of kingdoms, where formerly there was but one of fierce countenance, Dan viii 23. This weakened it, because the toe kingdoms were partly clay, and these substances cannot be welded together, Dan ii 42, 43. We now proceed with the chart.

6. "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed, and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, (as were those kingdoms preceding it) but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever."

"It shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms." All what kingdoms? Does it refer to Babylon, that was broken to pieces and consume by the Medes and Persians? Does it refer to Medo Persia, that was broken to pieces and consumed by Grecia? Does it refer to Grecia, that was broken to pieces and consumed by Rome? Or does it refer to the fourth kingdom with all the toe, or horn-kingdoms developed upon its territory? It seems to me that this question might be safely left either to the common sense of the honest reader, or to the grammatical sense of the Scripture in hand, so plain is it. But the Spirit has left no room for guess work, or mistake. John saw this fourth beast kingdom, and its ten horns, and the angel explained to him that the ten horns "are ten kings;" and adds: "These have one mind (at the time of the end) and shall give their power and strength unto the beast; these make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them," as Daniel had predicted.

History is outlined no further by the [illegible] The grand purpose of the im[illegible]ered; it was to reveal the establishment of God's kingdom "In the latter days;" see Dan ii 28; and this event is to put an everlasting end to the kingdoms of men.

Believers of truth in every age since Daniel could tell their whereabouts in the world's history, by means of this image; but to none could it be so intensely interesting as to the believers of the present day. We are certainly living "In the days of these kings," when the next grand event will be the setting up of God's kingdom, for which they have so long prayed "Thy kingdom come."

Reader, should you ever be told that the kingdom of God was set up at the first Pentecost after the crucifixion of the Lord Jesus, your answer should be impossible;

1. Because the Stone is to smite the image upon the feet of iron and clay, see verse 34. The image had no feet at the Pentecost referred to, therefore they could not have been smitten.

2. Because if the image had been smitten at Pentecost, it never could have had any feet.

3. Because it now has feet that have not been smitten by the stone; and no kingdom of God could fail to do what he promised it should do.

4. Because the One anointed to be King of God's kingdom is gone to a far country to receive a kingdom and to return, see Luke xix 12. He returns when he has received the kingdom, he has not returned therefore he has not received the kingdom.

5. Because the saints—the members of Christ's Body 1 Cor xii 27—are joint-heirs with Christ, (Rom viii 17) and will reign with him, (2 Tim ii 12) on the earth (Rev v 10) and take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even for ever and ever, (Dan vii 18) and are installed in this great authority and power by Jesus when he comes with the clouds heaven (Dan vii 13) and all the holy angels with him, and sits upon the throne of his glory, Matt xxv 31; he will confer upon his resurrected, glorified and crowned saints the honor of smiting the image upon its feet, for the Spirit in David has said: "To execute vengeance upon the heathen and punishment upon the people, to bind their kings with chains, and their nobles with fetters of iron. To execute upon them the judgment written (in Dan ii 34-35) this honor have all his saints, Praise ye the Lord." Psa cxlix. And none of these events have yet transpired.

6. Because such an idea compels the wilful disregard of one division of the image, the feet and toes, or a wilful transposition of the order of events as arranged by the Spirit in Daniel. In fact it makes verses 41, 42 and 43 entirely superfluous, which, alone stamps the doctrine of the Pentecostal kingdom as man-made.—M. Joblin.

Gold Dust.

"They are loyal to truth who live it."

"The way to do a great deal of work is to be continually doing a little."

"Disbelief in God's promises is a forfeiture of the benefit of them."

The way of truth is like a great road. It is not difficult to know it. The evil is only that men will not seek it.—Mencius.

"There is no good in praying for anything unless you also try for it; all the sighs and supplications in the world will not bring wisdom to the heart that fills itself with folly every day.—H. VanDyke.

"His own medicine and balsam for the wounds and fever heats of life: 'Be still and know that I am God.'"

ANNA DREW.

Pre-Existence.

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made. John i 1 3.

The advocaters of the pre-existence theory continually resort to this statement to prove their theory. The whole theory hinges on the meaning of the preposition "by." "All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made."

The Greek word "dia" (or by) with the accusation, "by means of" during as the end, occasion or cause of, for, on account of, e.g., panti di auton engeto. "All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made." This makes it plain that all things were made "for him," not "by him." Again we read: "So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Babylon unto Christ are fourteen generations." Matt i 17.

Here are forty-two generations between Abraham and Christ, just as the fourteen generations between Abraham and David. If language means anything, David did not pre-exist through those generations. Neither did Christ pre-exist through the forty-two generations. But the objector says, 'before Abraham was, I am." Thus we believe that Christ was before Abraham in the promise or "Logos," but not in personality.

Another class of people say that he was begotten by Joseph and born of Mary. They have a little controversy to settle with the angels before we believe their theory. We read: "Now the birth of Christ was on this wise: When his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost." Matt i 18. Then Joseph, her husband, being a just man and not willing to make her a public example, was minded to put her away privily. But while he thought on these things, behold the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream saying, Joseph thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife; for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost." Matt i 19.

The Greek word "Ek," from which the word "of" comes, means 'out of." Hence we have it, the things that were conceived came out of the Holy Ghost. Not from Joseph. Again we read: "Then Joseph being raised from sleep did as the angel of the Lord had bidden him, and took unto him his wife: and knew her not till she had brought forth her first born son: and he called his name Jesus." Matt i 24 25. This forever settles the question that he was not the son of Joseph.—John L. Winningham.

Influence of Temper on Health.

An English paper, Capital and Labor thinks that, while excessive labor, exposure to wet and cold, deprivation of sufficient quantities of necessary and wholesome food, habitual bad lodging, sloth and intemperance, are deadly enemies to human life, none of them are so bad as violent and ungoverned passions. Men and women have survived all the former, says the writer, and at last reached an extreme old age; but it may be safely doubted whether a single instance can be found of a man of violent and irascible temper, habitually subject to storms of ungovernable passion, who has arrived at a very advanced period of life. It is, therefore, a matter of the highest importance to every one desirous of preserving "a sound mind in a sound body," to have a special care, amid all the vicissitudes and trials of life, to maintain a quiet possession of his own spirit.

Do You Know One?

A friend and classmate of former years was for a long time the object of my earnest solicitations to become a Christian. But in all our conversations his final refuge was the trite remark: "There are no real Christians. It is only a profession, nobody lives it."

But one day I asked the direct question, "Charles, do you know among all your acquaintances of one true Christian?" "Precious few, was his reply. "No," I said, "I do not ask how many, I only inquire if you know of one." "Why, yes," said he, "my mother is a Christian."

"Then," said I, "the religion of Jesus Christ is true as exemplified in the life of your mother. You need no further testimony." And so I say to you, my hearer. One is enough. True once, it may be true 10,000 times, and it may be true for you.

Do you know then, one made truer, better, nobler by the power of the Christian faith? Did you ever stand in the presence of one who was filled with love to God and man and whose greatest delight was to do the will of God? That one is enough. The lie that you have given Christianity ought to drop from your lips unspoken, and your heart ought to melt in the presence of this living witness to its truth.—Church Calender.

OUR BOOK FUND.

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." Psalm xli 1-4.

The amount set opposite our names is to help Bro. Robt. G. Huggins supply the worthy poor with "The Bible: Its Principles and Texts." For this purpose the book is to be sold at the reduced price of 85 cents per copy.

Jonah in the Whale.

An old whaler, who is a devout Bible student, writes in the Sunday Journal about Dr. Lyman Abbott's sermon on Jonah and the whale. He is Mr. George A. Lord, of No. 327 Main street, Springfield, Mass., and he proceeds to show just how Jonah might have been swallowed, and lived in the whale, as follows:

"Being an old whaler, I have had more and better opportunities of studying the habits and characteristics of the whale than those who have never assisting in capturing one. In the first place, the whale is not a fish. The whale is a warm blooded animal, and is classified among the mammalia. It suckles its young, and the sex is spoken of among whalers as the bull and cow whale.

"The whale referred to in the Book of Jonah is the sperm whale, which is found mostly in the tropics. This species is different from the right whale, which is found in the colder localities.

"The sperm whale has a large throat and can swallow large pieces of squid; often times two feet square, and as long. It has a formidable set of teeth with which to cut the squid. The right whale has a very small throat, and therefore has to subsist upon small fish.

"Another peculiarity of the sperm whale in connection with the story is that, being warm-blooded, it must have oxygen. Now the sperm whale has the means of taking enough air to allow him to sound, that is, to descend to the depth of 250 fathoms, and remain there for 30 minutes for a time. He does this only when harpooned. After the boat is fastened to the whale, and he has sounded, all the men have to do is to quietly wait until he starts to rise. The line or rope is drawn into the boat, and when he arrives at the surface the officer at the head of the boat is ready, lance in hand to pierce his heart before he has time to recover.

"I have given in detail the method of capturing a sperm whale to show that, as the whale has no difficulty in swallowing a man, and, as a man in his stomach would not suffer from the cold, at the same time a provision has been made whereby the whale can store up sufficient oxygen to sustain life for a long period, much the same as a camel can store up water.

"About two years ago there appeared in the columns of the Boston Globe an article describing the experience of a sailor belonging to a French whaler, who, when the boat had been broken to pieces by the whale's flukes had been swallowed by the whale. Everyone on board supposed the man was dead. But after having removed the blubber from the carcass they opened the stomach to get the man and give him a Christian burial.

"To the surprise of all, the man was found alive, having been in the stomach of a dead sperm whale for 36 hours. The sailor was delirious, but the doctors stated that he would come out all right. Now, if a person could live 36 hours in the stomach of a dead whale, is it not possible that a man could live 72 hours in a live whale?"

JUNE MEETING.

The Annual "June Meeting" and Conference of the Church of God in Indiana, will be held at Antioch, in Marshall County, commencing Friday June 10, and holding over Sunday, June 12th. A Committee on Program has been appointed and the program will be published in due time.

We anticipate a good meeting and trust that all who can, will avail themselves of the privilege of attending. Come, brothers and sisters to this meeting. "Let us not forsake the assembling of ourselves together." Come in the spirit of the Master, and we shall be blessed.

We expect Brother Lindsay, Broth-Williams, Brother Wagoner and others, who will open to us the beautiful truths of God's eternal purpose in blessing the nations.

This may be the last meeting this side the kingdom. Come, bring your children and stay for the Bible School to be held at Plymouth, commencing Monday, June 13. We are expecting the largest class for our Bible School we have ever had. We hope to have children, young people and old folks from every congregation in the state. Bring your friends with you. Our friends outside the state are most cordially invited.

J. H. WILLEY, Pres. Ind. Con.

NOTICE.

Following the Conference at Antioch Meeting House, Marshall Co., Ind., there will be a Bible School held in Plymouth, beginning Monday, June 13th, and ending Sunday, June 19th. John L. Wince of Pierceton, Indiana, S. J. Lindsay of Oregon, Illinois, and Joseph Williams of Hillisburg, Ind., will be the instructors.

There is promise of a larger attendance than ever before. Come to Conference prepared to remain for the Bible School.

It would help the Committee on entertainment if those intending to be present, would write soon to the Secretary, Sister Lydia Railsback, at 621 South Fellows St., South Bend, Indiana.

QUARTERLY MEETING.

The Third Quarterly Conference of the Churches of God in Illinois will meet with the Camden Church at the Hale Ridge School house in Schuyler County, June 25 and 26, 1910.

It is our desire that as many go as can from the northern part of the state. All who can possibly go please write at once to the undersigned who will then write directions for reaching there by rail and all other necessary particulars. It will be necessary to inform the brethren there how many to prepare for, so let me know at once. Address me at Oregon, Ill.

S. J. LINDSAY.

The Conference of the Church of God will be held at Felida, Washington, June 24-26, being Friday, Saturday and Sunday. We would be pleased to see a large attendance at this Conference as there are important matters that should be discussed and attended to.

Yours very truly,
LEWIS MONTGOMERY, Pres.

Editor Restitution:

Please announce in THE RESTITUTION that the Annual Conference of Iowa will convene August 20-28 inclusive, at Waterloo, Iowa. Programme will appear later.

Yours in the truth,
O. J. ALLARD.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, post paid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

With the ending of the first quarter of 1910, a number of subscription have expired, and should be renewed at once. Also others that have been hanging since the first of the year, ought to be attended to now. The new post office regulations make it imperative that the list be kept up, and besides we need what is due us. Please give this prompt attention, as living expenses cannot be reduced under the present standard of prices, besides calls for papers and tracts come more frequently than formerly. We try to keep all going, but some times it is a hard pull. Brethren, your help is needed to keep the work going. We have confidence that you will respond now, so thank you in advance.

In our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hillisburg, Indiana, or to this office.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the donors request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

WHEN YOUR TIME IS OUT PLEASE RENEW.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will send it for the next two months. Make up a list of those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order. NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, has neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" Till the Morning.

Do the cloud-shut out the light?
Does no star appear in sight?
Just keep toiling through the night,
Till the morning!

Let some fall a brother's arm
Help fulfil some special plan:
Do you think the all you can
Fill the morning?

Like a dark eclipse here,
Sometimes one we love must bear
Then the pure noblest of her
Will be morning!

The Promise Made to the Fathers—What Was It?

Gen xii 1, 2, 3. Now the Lord had said unto Abraham, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will show thee.

And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing; and I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee; and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed.

And I will give unto thee and to thy seed after thee the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession, and I will be their God.

This covenant first made to Abraham was also made to Isaac, Jacob and David. Did God fulfill this promise made to the fathers, or he did not, they had temporal blessings, became great nations and were rich in cattle, gold, and silver, but the inheritance of the land was to be everlasting and as they did not possess eternal or everlasting life they could not receive the promise. But died in faith, that through a resurrection from the dead they would receive it. David was promised an heir who should occupy his throne forever. This heir is clearly shown to be Christ.

In Luke i 29, 34, we find the angel appears to Mary and promises her a son, and that he should be called Jesus. 32. He shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end. This takes us back to the promise made unto the fathers. But Christ like Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and David had only temporal life. So Christ died and was raised from the dead to eternal life, that he might become the first fruits of them that slept. Psalm lxxxix 28, 29. My mercy will I keep for him forever more, and my covenant shall stand fast with him, his seed also will I make to endure forever; and his throne as the days of heaven. My covenant will I not break nor alter the thing that has gone out of my lips. Once have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David.

Going back to Gen iii to Abraham it was said, and in thee shall all of the families of the earth be blessed. But as the whole world was under sin through Adam's transgression, and the penalty of sin was death, there was provided a way whereby the Gentiles might become fellowheirs of the same promise made to Abraham. In Heb xi 39, 40, we find these words, And these all having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise; God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect. (So they must wait until the Gentiles are brought in through Christ.) Gal iii 7, 8, 9. Know ye therefore that they which be of faith the same are the children of Abraham (Ie children then heirs). And the Scriptures foreseeing that God would justify the heathen (or Gentiles) through faith preached before the gospel unto Abraham saying, In thee shall all the nations be blessed. So then they which be of faith are blessed with faithful Abraham.

I wish every one could realize the importance of believing the same gospel that was preached to Abraham. God has always fulfilled his promise whether to save or destroy. God sent word to Lot's sons-in-law, if they came out of Sodom with Lot that they would be saved, but they laughed at the idea of the city being destroyed, so they perished with the others. Noah preached to the people and warned them of the coming flood, but they took no heed. God did not say, Well, they did the best they knew, or they were honest in their belief. But the flood came and only Noah and family who had followed God's instructions were saved. God is taking out a people now who are willing to follow his plan of salvation. Not only do we study the New Testament but from Moses and the prophets. The whole book was left for our instruction. Christ and his disciples preached from Moses and the prophets. We can scarcely read a chapter in the New Testament that does not in some way refer to the promise made to the fathers. Now these promises will be fulfilled when Christ comes. Jer iii 17. At that time they shall call Jerusalem the throne of the Lord. And all nations shall be gathered unto it to the name of the Lord, to Jerusalem, neither shall they walk any more after the imagination of their evil hearts. Zach vi 13. Even he shall build the temple of the Lord; and he shall bear the glory; and shall sit, and rule upon his throne. This is the throne of the Lord, and his promise to all who are faithful is, Rev iii 21, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I have overcome and am set down with my Father in his throne.

As this verse shows, Jesus after suffering death as a lamb, obtained a resurrection sat down with his Father on his throne, acting as high priest for those who would be adopted or come into covenant relation with the ancient worthies. When the Gentile times are fulfilled then Christ comes as stated in Daniel ii. 44. And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever. Zach ii 12. And the Lord shall inherit Judah, his portion in the Holy Land, and shall choose Jerusalem again. And Abraham, Isaac, Jacob and David shall also receive their portion that was promised to them for an everlasting possession. What a glorious time when this prophecy shall be fulfilled. No wonder the Lord told us to pray, Thy kingdom come thy will may be done on earth. And that John finished his writing by saying, Even so, come Lord Jesus. When we read the beautiful description of the New Jerusalem which comes down from God out of heaven, of the heavenly rivers, the trees, the gates made of all manner of precious stones, and best of all no sickness, sorrow or death. It is no wonder that God tells us he will come and dwell with men Rev xxi 3. And I heard a great voice out of heaven, saying, Behold the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them and be their God. Even so, come Lord Jesus.

MARY KNOWLES.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SEVENTH SERIES. NUMBER 37.

The years from 1884, and onward to 1890 have little recorded save the happy incidents connected with the dear grand children, and these we will skip for the present.

In Sep. 1887, the W. C. T. U. of Camden Co., N. J. held their semi annual convention at Haddonfield with the "local" there, 24 delegates present, making over 50 in all, and in Oct. 25, same year, Auntie Willard met with 300 delegates at Millville, N. J. to help forward the grand temperance cause, and the coming of that glorious day when no little son or daughter of Israel's chosen race will be doomed to death by the saloon. Those women were working to protect their children; they were working in the cause of righteousness and against debauchery and all manner of crime, and in the words of Geo. Finch, they bade their husbands, "Remember, no party will ever do right, if you give them your vote while they are doing wrong."

In [illegible] that Auntie Willard wrote and published to [illegible] a little book that was widely circulated both in this, and in the following year, or in 1888.

She still kept up her Bible studies and here is an outline of one of these written out for Bro. and Sister Conley, of Allegheney city, she says, "May I tell you of the pleasure I have enjoyed the last week in reading and committing to memory our adored Savior's last prayer? John xvii.

I was so struck with the light that flashed upon the second verse, 'As thou hast given him power over all flesh that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him

Hear his definition—And this is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent.'

As we proceed in the prayer, it is made manifest what the life burden of the Son of God had been, viz: to make known his Father to those whom he had given him out of the world, and also to make himself known to them as the Messiah of their Prophets. This triumph had just been gained as we read it in the 30th verse of the 16th chapter, "Now are we sure that thou knowest all things and needest not that any man should ask thee; by this we believe that thou camest forth from God."

Jesus answered them, Do ye now believe? Then follows that wonderful prayer to his Father, 'As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world.' In these words he commissioned his disciples to take his place, 'And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth.'

And now follows most wonderful words, 'Neither pray I for these alone, but for those also which shall believe in me through their Word, that they all may be one, as thou Father art in me, and I in them, that they also may be one in us; see the object—'that the world may believe that thou hast sent me.'

Does the work of the Messiah, and the work of those whom he sent, span the Gospel Age? If so, the presentation of Christ and his people, or bride, so as to convince the world must be in the ages that are to follow the Gospel Age; for never yet was this presentation made so as to convince the world Christendom, as the ages roll on, is yet more and more divided! Listen to what Jesus says of the character of the 'gospel age;' 'Fire I came to throw into the earth, and what do I wish,—If it were already kindled? Why this pressure upon him, that this fire be kindled? 'Because I have an immersion to undergo; and how am I pressed, till it may be consummated.'

This immersion was the agonies of Gethsemane and the death on the cross. He must needs die to kindle the fire. 'Do you imagine,' he says 'that I came to give peace in the land? I tell you, No, but rather division, for from this time, five in one house, will be divided; three against two, and two against three; a father against a son, and a son against a father, a mother against a daughter and a daughter against a mother,' etc; anything but the world being convinced in the gospel age! 'Behold the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye shall be scattered every man to his own, and shall leave me alone, and yet I am not alone because the Father is with me.'

His life-work was now accomplished in his begettal of faith in the hearts of these disciples; and he was ready to be offered. And here in this remarkable second verse is a summary of this faith, 'As thou hast given him power over all flesh that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him; and this is life eternal that they might know thee the only true God and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent.'

Here is the inception into the world of that renovating influence * * * the spirit of truth * * * which dominant in his room to sanctify hearts, and fill the new heavens and earth with righteousness, or the righteous."

This letter was evidently unfinished but it gives us a pretty clear idea of what Auntie Willard's faith was in regard to the Ages Coming, that Jesus by making himself and the Father known to the disciples, and they in turn to others, was but fitting these to carry the precious light of truth to other peoples in the millennial age—peoples who have not heard of the Lord nor seen the glory of Christ. Missionary effort in this Dispensation can only carry the gospel of the kingdom to the nations "as a witness;" it can only touch the outskirts as it were, of the ignorance, the barbarism, the sin, in heathen lands. This heathen world must hear of Christ before they believe, repent and be saved. It cannot believe in a Savior of whom it has never heard, nor accept a gospel of which it knows nothing. To believe this is not to accept universal salvation—nor to give a second chance to those who have had the Bible in their hands all their lives, and yet refusing to believe and obey it have died in their sins. The terms of salvation are inexorable and unalterable, whoever does not accept them must perish.

AUSTIN WINCE.

(To be Continued.)

What Think Ye of Christ, Whose Son is He?

MATT XXII 42.

If I received a letter from one that made these assertions, can I answer them?

1. He holds that Jesus was of human parentage and therefore a mortal being until his resurrection.

2. He claims a divine being would have a divine nature and so could not die and see corruption. 1 Cor xv 3 4.

3. That Jesus came in the flesh and if God had not intervened he would have seen corruption.

4. He concludes Jesus was of the seed of David according to the flesh, but the Son of God according to the Spirit.

5. In the promise to Abraham, Moses and David there is no room for a divine begettal, etc.

That the Word of God is truth, was written by the inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect. 2 Tim iii 16.

That being the fact, it is wrong to assume any thing not written in the Book, the Book nowhere declares that Christ is the Son of any one but God, and it is so recorded over 30 times before his resurrection. God was the Father of Adam, and he both sinned and died. Jesus died but did not see corruption, just as God said he would. Acts ii 31. If Christ had been of human parentage. He would have sinned, for we have before proved both Jews and Gentiles that they are all under sin, there is none righteous, no, not one. For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God. Rom iii 9, 10, 11, 23.

God sent his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin condemned sin in the flesh. Rom viii 3.

Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin, for his seed remaineth in him, and he cannot sin. Why? Because he is born of God. 1 John iii 9; v 18.

And ye know that he was manifested to take away our sins, and in him is no sin. 1 John iii 5. Christ also suffered for us who did no sin. 1 Peter ii 22; Isa liii 9.

Pilate said, I find no fault in him. Jesus said to Pilate, Thou couldest have no power at all against me except it were given thee from above. John xix 11. Christ said, To this end was I born and for this cause came I into the world. John xviii 37; vi 38, 40; v 17, 27, 30; viii 16, 23, 28, 42, 49; xiv 28.

Christ knew the power of his Father and told the Pharisees that God was able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham. Matt iii 9. All things are possible with God. Luke i 37; xviii 27; Matt xix 26; Mark x 27; Jer xxxii 17. If any man shall add unto these things God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book. Rev xxii 18, 19.

The Bible says Christ was conceived [illegible] power of the Holy Spirit. You must admit that God's power is sufficient from the texts given to prove that with God nothing shall be impossible. There is nothing in the whole statement that looks like forgery, indeed it looks like inspiration. The whole New Testament confirms the record as it stands. When the fullness of the time had come God sent forth his Son born of a woman. (It does not say his adopted Son.) This Son is many times represented as the Only Begotten of the Father. And furthermore God acknowledges him as such. When he was made manifest to the Jews through his baptism by John, This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased. Is there nothing suggestive in this miraculous voice from heaven? It ought to have some weight in confirming the record of his conception and birth. The star in the east, the wise men, the heavenly host, the promise made to Simeon, the fear of Herod, all should have great weight in determining whose Son he was. And I saw and bare record, that this is the Son of God. John i 34; Matt xvi 16. God so loved the world that he gave his Only Begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life. John iii 16, 36. God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through him might be saved, he that believeth on him is not condemned, but he that believeth not is condemned already. Why? Because he hath not believed in the name of the Only Begotten Son of God. John iii 17, 18. iv 42; xvi 28; xvii 8; 1 John iv 14, 15.

Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin, for his seed remaineth in him and he cannot sin. Why? Because he is born of God. Christ never sinned. Christ asked his disciples, But whom say ye that I am? Simon Peter answered, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. Jesus himself said, I am the Son of God. John x 36; ix 35, 37. John in the last of the 20th chapter says, These have been written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and believing that ye might have life through his name. All these plain statements, and there are many more, prove to any unprejudiced mind that all these inspired writers believed that Christ was the Son of God from his birth of the Virgin Mary. You quote Abraham, Moses and David, and assume that there is no room for a divine begettal. I quote God through inspired writers and affirm there was a divine begettal. Christ speaks of a class that draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoreth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. Why? Because they teach for doctrine the commandments of men.

Dear brother, you are drifting. Beware; you know the doom of those that deny the power of the Holy Spirit. Accept God's Word as recorded, for it is sustained by Prophets, and all writers that were personally acquainted with Christ. He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God shall not see life.

Yours in hope.

Commands to Forsake Sin.

In Isaiah lv 7 we read: Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. God is ready to forgive all those who come to him seeking pardon. But all must bring forth fruit worthy of repentance.

After Jesus had healed the impotent man he commanded him to sin no more lest a worse thing come upon him. In Acts xix we read where people who believed on Jesus showed their faith by their deeds, by destroying their heathenish books.

Paul preached first to the Jews and then to the Gentiles that they should repent and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance. Matt v 23-24. Therefore if thou bring the gift to the altar, and there remembered that thy brother hath ought against thee; leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift. Matt vi 34. But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.

As I live, saith the Lord God I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live.

Win Your Boy's Confidence.

Whoever does not impress your child, his playmate does. He is educating in the street, at the game, in the post office, and in the schoolroom, as certainly as in your household. The next bigger boy whom he adores because he is big and strong takes a hand on the boy's molding. Every association he forms leaves some trace upon him, for good or for ill. You can't throw him into the gulf and bid him sink or swim. He must be guarded and looked out for, and you must know whom he walks and talks with, whom he plays with, who sits beside him at school. He will not be especially hurt by a lad who eats with his knife, but a lad who is profane, or immodest, or furtive, may do him irreparable injury.

Far more than she prizes pearls and diamonds, should a mother prize her boy's confidence. Not merely when he is a little golden-haired cherub should she give him herself at the bedtime hour, for a nightly chat, but when he is older, at fourteen or fifteen, when he has trials and temptations, let him feel that he can tell her everything and that she will not be shocked, nor censorious; that she will understand and advise.

His friends of every degree should be encouraged and invited to the home, and as they share the boy's pursuits, the mother may be quietly observant, and see where she can help; she can do much to prevent the ascendancy of an unprincipled lad, and her doors should be shut against one who is unclean in speech and behavior. Under God, the mother holds her boy's life in her hand.

Nor is the father free from obligation. A boy's father epitomizes to him the whole story of manhood. A boy reflects his father's opinions, accepts his modes of thought, and aims to be as much like him as he can. A father is as sacredly bound to be his boy's chum and comrade as to be his tutor and governor, and to provide for him food and clothing. If a father keeps pace with the boy, suiting his long steps to the shorter ones, there will be small danger that the little fellow will make a serious blunder in choosing his associates.—Margaret E. Sangster.

Bad Manners.

I know a girl who is always sweetness when in a strange house and far from it when in her own. All her bad tempers are vented on the family. She will sit through meals without speaking a word, save to snap at some one who ventures to address her.

Lots of people are like that. They are sweet in public because they don't dare to be anything else, but to the poor home people they show a vastly different side.

Don't have two sets of manners. One is all you need, but let that one be a good one.

Speak well of the absent whenever you have a suitable opportunity. Never speak ill of them, or of anybody unless you are sure they deserve it, and unless it is necessary for their amendment, or for the safety and benefit of others.—Sir Matthew Hale.

The Restitution.

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JUNE 15, 1910. NUMBER 23.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JUNE 15, 1910.

BROTHER R. A. Frazier writes from Roll, Indiana, saying that "The series of meetings by Brother Conner at that place closed on Thursday night with four additions to the church—J. C. Swindler, Bertha Swindler, Ellen Baisley and Sylvia Baisley—another, two daughters and a son-in-law. May the good work continue in the Master's cause."

IT will be noticed that the date of this paper is June 15. Our apology for being late is hereby given, and an excuse offered which we trust will be accepted. We had some company and with them attended Antioch conference. Then last week we kept busy with matters that seemed to require attention regarding the Bible School held in this city. All who have ever had the pleasure of entertaining at their homes those who attend these gatherings will understand the duties of one who undertakes the role of a "handy man" at such a time, and we feel sure they will pardon the delay. Inasmuch as there are five Wednesdays in this month, the delay will be bridging over the time, and all will straighten out again.

Conference Report.

The Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Michigan for 1910 has become history, and we believe will be long remembered by those present.

Thursday evening June 2nd only a few brethren had arrived, due no doubt, in a large measure, to the inclement weather. There was no question of the warmth of the greetings accorded, and those who came were well repaid for the effort.

Brother Decker, president, not having arrived, the undersigned acted as chairman of the meeting, and after the words of greeting by Brother Woodward and Brother McCrodan, Brother Joseph Williams gave us a most instructive and helpful sermon on "The Bible or God's Mirror." Brother Williams was not in the best of health, but filled his appointments most creditably.

No small amount of disappointment was felt generally, on account of Brother Lindsay not being able to attend as announced, being called home a few days previous by the serious illness of his father, but his share of the program was ably supplied by Brother Nim Tichenal from the Wenatchee Valley, Wash. Indeed it was a pleasure and profit for us all to meet him and his good wife. Brother Tichenal preached Friday morning to the entire satisfaction of those present. In the afternoon following the Sister's Tithing Society meeting, Brother C. Winchester gave a rousing gospel sermon. In the evening Brother Williams again addressed us again on the subject of "Salvation". During the day a goodly number of other brethren had arrived, in fact some that had not attended in years. Saturday was given over very largely to business meetings. The proposed change in time of Conference was lost, it being voted to stay as it now is, first week in June. At the election of officers in the afternoon, some changes were made, the officers for the ensuing year being as follows: President—F. V. Blakely, 627 South LaFayette St., Grand Rapids, Mich. Vice-President—J. F. Richardson, Hudsonville, Mich., Treasurer—A. K. Richardson, Hastings, Mich., Secretary, Mrs. F. V. Blakely, Evangelists Brother and Sister Woodward. A commendable spirit that prevaded the entire Conference was that more and greater things be accomplished than in the past few years, and we hope this may be realized. Saturday evening Brother Tichenal gave another excellent discourse from Eph vi.

Sunday brought a full house and much "food for thought" as well as stomache. Brother Williams preached in the morning on "The Sabbath," Brother Woodward in the afternoon on "Signs of the Last Days," and in the evening Brother Tichenal on "God's Plan of Salvation." Each of these are deserving of more than passing mention, but space forbids. Communion service followed the afternoon service.

Preceding the morning services, a special service was conducted to perform the sacred duty of baptism on the candidates who had made application, and we now have the pleasure of introducing to the "household of faith" everywhere, and commending to your care Brother Eddie Good, son of our much esteemed Brother Joseph Good, now of Tennessee, and indeed it did us all good to see the noble desire in this young man's heart that would prompt him to come so many miles for such a service. Sister Shirley Kaye, of Custer, Mich., and Sister Bessie Nehron, of Mendon, Mich. It causes us to rejoice when we see the young people taking such an important step, particularly in this present age, when there is so much "falling away", and being willing to renounce the world, with its glitter and gloss, to "Seek the Kingdom of God and His righteousness."

The arch enemy of life had cut off some of our faithful brethren during the past year, and many were detained at home on account of illness, and prayer was often made for the sick and the families of those who had fallen asleep. Let us continue so to do.

Yours to serve,
F. V. BLAKELY.

My Trip.

By request I report the things of interest for the benefit of the brethren "scattered abroad."

At the request of Bro. Robison for the church at Brush Creek, Ohio, he and I arranged to exchange appointments as I was on my way to the May meeting at Fonthill and the Michigan Conference at Dutton, where I had also been invited. So on May 16 I went direct from my point in Warren County, at the Pleasant View Church to Kessler, Ohio, Bro. J. J. Snodgrass handing me my mail through the car window at Hillisburg as I passed through. Bro. Geo. Knife met me at Kessler and took me home with him, then to the church after supper. I stayed here a week for evenings and Sunday, except that I stopped Friday and Saturday evenings to rest. The people attended well and showed increasing interest. We look for some to be added there soon. The brethren are active, studious and self-reliant in church work, and gave me every kindness in their power. I regretted not being physically able to visit among them more. Bro. Clyde Pearson took me for an all-day ride in his auto while selling cream separators. Sister Helen Curtis was visiting relatives in the old home neighborhood during the meetings.

Next evening from there I spoke for the church assembled in Springfield at their hall. They were even more alive and earnest than ever before and gave me a warm reception. Bro. David Beck is doing good work for the church there.

I next went to Cleveland where Bros. Conner and Huggins met me at the depot. The first night I enjoyed a good, old-fashioned visit and the hospitality of Bro. and Sister Conner. Any one who knows them need not be told I had a good time. He took me through his church building and to the lake front in the park. Next evening I spoke before Bro. Huggins' congregation and spent the afternoon and night with Bro. and Sister Huggins. We had been firm friends since our first meeting at Oregon four years ago. We are glad to see him happy in a home of his own. They were also very kind, and the church people were, if possible, more generous in their appreciation of my efforts than at Conference in Springfield last August. I met many new faces.

I arrived in Fonthill Thursday and promptly one of the first things I did was to mail some cards with American stamps on them. But when I asked about it later it had not been noticed, consequently the eagle and the lion will need to fight out a few pennies' worth. Here I enjoyed the hospitable home of Bro. and Sister Railton, with every convenience and kindness at my disposal. It was a pleasure to see Mattie and John so early in life entering on life in the Christ. Bro. and Sr. Austin had hoped to entertain me, but her sprained ankle prevented. But as it was I spent considerable time with them. Their family of children seem models of obedience and filial love. I had often heard of Bro. Austin and had some correspondence with him, but the man has to be seen to be appreciated, a bundle of hustle and kindness. Much of the success of our good meeting was due to his good management. The services made a good impression for the cause there. The prejudice is more bitter there in an old-established religious system than in our own country. I met many precious ones in the faith there from surrounding Canada and New York. The sight of Niagara was a treat and worth much to one for sake of the vision of God's power and beauty.

I then took the boat from Buffalo to Detroit and went to Dutton where Sister Woodward proved a mother indeed to care for me. We had a good conference and here again I met many new ones as well as others I had learned to hold dear in the past. Brother Woodward was able to speak once, which pleased his old friends greatly.

I accompanied Bro. and Sister Pressley to South Bend where Bro. R. C. Railsback met us at the train and took us to their hospitable home for dinner. Bro. Wince among the number, who was on the train from Battle Creek, unknown to us. In the evening he and I came to Plymouth, from where I was immediately called to the funeral of Bro. Weaver of the Hillisburg Church.

Next come our meeting at Antioch. We were disappointed that our three old veterans, Brothers Halstead, Wagoner and Wince were absent.

I am now in Bro. Underwood's office writing this. Our Bible school was successful even above our expectations. May its usefulness grow.

The coming year I hope to get to all the places in the State more than I have in the past. Our greatest need is workers. Another need is holiness of each member. Let us put away all strife and selfishness and pull together. Indiana should do the greatest work of all the States. But the few of us that preach makes it necessary that one church must not selfishly desire too much preaching, but be willing to pay something even for souls due else to enjoy. Let us get to work and keep at it.

Conference Report.

The June Conference convened at Old Antioch June 10, and closed the following Sunday evening.

The ministers present were J. H. Willey, Joseph Williams and S. J. Lindsay.

The Conference opened at 10:30 on Friday with an address by the president, followed with a sermon by Joseph Williams. Subject, "Nature and Operation of Divine Love."

At 3:00 o'clock a Memorial Service was held. This was conducted by our Brother R. C. Railsback, one of the number who first attended at "Old Antioch."

At 7:30 the Social Meeting was led by Brother Wm. Huffer. This was followed by an address by Brother S. J. Lindsay, on "The Law of the Gospel."

Saturday morning at 10:00 the Social Meeting was led by R. C. Railsback. This was followed with a Sermon by Brother J. H. Willey.

The Bereans held a meeting at 1:30 conducted by Brother Wm. Huffer. The subject of the lesson studied was "The Heart." Bible references on the heart were discussed in their physiological and psychological uses as expression of emotions and intelligence. The ancient and modern views of these texts were ably contrasted.

At 7:30 Brother Lindsay led a Song Service and then called for Scripture quotations, which was given a hearty response. The Sermon at 8:00 o'clock was by Brother Lindsay, on "Spirit."

Sunday at 10:00 o'clock Brother Asa Roose led the Social Meeting, using twenty verses of Matt. v. for a lesson. The morning address was given by Brother Williams, his subject being "The Mediator." Brother Lindsay again spoke at 1:30, his subject being "The Law of Love." This Sermon was followed by the Communion Service conducted by Brother Willey.

At 7:00 the Social Meeting was led by the President. The lesson used being John xv.

The closing sermon was by Brother Lindsay, on "Prayer."

Two Business Sessions were held, one on Friday afternoon, the other Saturday afternoon. The following churches were represented, viz., Argos, Antioch, Burr Oak, Plymouth, Pleasant View, Rensselaer, South Bend and Hillisburg. The principal business transacted was as follows:

The following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, that we, the State Conference of the State of Indiana, in Conference assembled, this the 11th day of June, 1910, do believe that Jesus Christ is the "Only Begotten Son of God."

Resolved, that this Conference is opposed to legalism in the sense that the Church is called upon to keep the Seventh Day Sabbath.

The General Conference to be held at Waterloo, Iowa, was discussed. As the delegates had not been instructed on this subject, the appointment of a delegate was postponed until the delegates could get the voice of their individual churches. The report of the delegates to be in the hand of the President, J. H. Willey, Plymouth, Indiana, by Aug. 1.

TO THE MEMORY OF BROTHER JAMES A. BURNHAM.

In consequence of the disobedience of Adam man is pronounced mortal, subject to death. With this came the promise of life on condition of obedience. The nature of man being mortal, this nature must be changed, and the promise was that One should come through whom this might be brought about. The history tells us that this Mighty One who was to accomplish this is Jesus Christ, our Lord and Redeemer. That only by a resurrection out of the death state can this be brought about.

Therefore, as we look upon the faces of our dear ones who lie cold in death, it is with longing desire, and if they have made wise use of the opportunity given them to prepare for the hereafte there is a mingling of hope with our sorrow.

Brother James A. Burnham has met with the brethren in Conference many times, and was ever willing to serve as best he could when called upon. At the last Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Indiana, he was chosen Second Vice President and held the office at the time of his death.

It is with sorrow tinged with a ray of hope and gladness, that we express in these few words the respect that animates our hearts when we consider the memory of our departed brother. He was a wise counsellor, a true friend, a faithful brother, a good man. To say more is to merely multiply words that can express no more. Our hearts go out in sympathy to members of his family in being thus deprived of his companionship, and we trust they will ever serve God as faithfully as he did, and meet him in the Bright Morning.

We miss our Brother Burnham, and realize that if the Master delay his coming we too must follow him to the silence of the tomb. May we each live so as to meet him with all the faithful, when the herald angel shall come from the Courts of Heaven, and at the command of God wake the sleepers and change the mortal to immortality.

Committee appointed at Antioch Conference June 11, 1910.

LYDIA RAILSBACK.
WM. HUFFER.
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

The meetings were all good, a larger number than usual were in attendance from a distance. But our hearts ached because of the absence of three of our honored ones, viz., Brothers Halstead, Wince and Wagoner.

Brother J. L. Wince passed through Plymouth on his way home early in the week preceding the meeting, and then hoped to be able to attend, but could not do so. He was missed by all as this is the first time Bro. Wince has been absent from June meeting at Antioch since the house was built.

Brother Halstead was unable to attend on account of age and sickness, and Brother Wagoner was kept at home by the sickness of his wife.

A feeling of sadness pervaded the meeting at the thought of these noble veterans of the Cause of Christ being unable to attend, but we remember their faithful service of the past, and hope they may recover and again be with us another year, should the Lord not come before that time.

MRS. LYDIA RAILSBACK, Sec.

Berean Business Meeting.

The Indiana Berean business meeting was held Wednesday afternoon at Plymouth during the Bible School. All reports from our seven societies were indeed encouraging. God has surely blessed our efforts during the past year.

We feel that the Berean organization is now on a firm basis in this state. There are many young people of the faith in our various churches, and our efforts the past year have shown that what they need is to be enlisted in this work. We hope and trust that an organization will be effected in every church during the ensuing year. The Berean officers are willing and anxious to help you accomplish this. The following officers were elected, Evelyn K. Harsch, President, Emma C. Railsback, Vice-President, Glenn O. Logan, Corresponding Secretary, Minnie Rouch, Recording Secretary, Flora Harris, Treasurer.

MINNIE ROUCH, Secretary.

I Am the Resurrection and the Life.

The above statement is not accepted by the socalled orthodoxy of our day. If it were they would not teach inherent immortality. The time was in the history of the race when there was one voice or lip. Jehovah saved Noah and his family and destroyed all who lived upon the earth. After Noah came out of the ark he offered a sacrifice unto the Deity. At this time he made a covenant with Noah and set the rainbow in the heavens as a sign of this covenant.

There was but one man to preach the one gospel. There was but one lip. As long as they remembered the rainbow promise so long was there but one lip. The time came when men forgot this and began to build for themselves. Then came the confusion of the message taught and many tongues came into use. Jehovah's message has always been of the one lip. Noah was a preacher of righteousness. All others were of the many lips. This condition has prevailed since. However men have ever been found who have been willing to preach the one message. The fathers belonged to this class. The prophets spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit. They all spake with the one lip. Jesus the Christ was anointed to preach the gospel in which was found the text, I am the resurrection and the life. Those of the many lip preached another gospel. This life through the resurrection is of the one lip. The beneficiaries of this resurrection are named, whosoever believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live is the first class.

Again whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. (Those who live at his coming) are the second class. Paul speaks the same truth to the Corinthian brethren when he says, Christ the first fruits and afterward they that are Christ's at his coming.

Again in 1 Thes xi. He writes that Jesus will descend from heaven. The dead in Christ shall be raised and the living shall be changed. These texts emphasize the truth that Christ will raise the dead and quicken the living. When Jesus said to Martha, Thy brother shall rise again. Martha answered, I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day. She expected that he would remain in the grave until the resurrection. She had no thought that her brother was in heaven. That doctrine belongs to the many lips. Again in answering the Sadducees Jesus said, But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world and the resurrection from the dead, neither marrying nor are given in marriage. Neither can they die any more; for they are equal to the angels; and are the children of God being the children of the resurrection. This life that makes them equal to the angels comes to them at the resurrection which will take place when Jesus comes to this earth again. The confused tongues teach another doctrine. If the dead are conscious there are hundreds of texts in the Scriptures that are unintelligible, Such as the dead know not anything. There is no knowledge nor device in the grave whither thou goest.

The doctrine of the resurrection is not so plainly taught in the old Testament as it is in the New. Yet we who believe it see that truth very plainly taught. In Mark xii, 26 as touching the dead that they shall rise have ye not read in the book of Moses how in the bush God spake unto him saying, I am the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob. Thus connecting this expression with the doctrine of the resurrection taught in the New Testament. Again, the covenant made with the fathers embraced it as they could not possess the land as an everlasting possession without a resurrection from the dead. It is recorded in Acts vii that Abraham had not as yet received so much as to set his foot upon. But God promised it to him when as yet he had no son. As surely as Jesus was raised so will Abraham and his numerous spiritual seed. We look as did Paul for that glorified body.

Yours in the hope,
D. C. ROBISON.

They Object.

One of the big arguments against saloons in Wisconsin is that Captain Pabst, of Milwaukee, petitioned the legislature to have Grand Avenue, on which he has a fine residence, set aside as a boulevard, and saloons forever prohibited from the avenue. Every one of the big Milwaukee brewers live in sections of the city where there are no saloons.

Obituary.

Oliver Perry Weaver was born in Rush Co., Ind., Sept 3, 1840. Died at Michigantown June 6, 1910, aged 68 years, 9 months and 3 days.

He was married to Eve Huffer Feb 15, 1872, and to them eight children were born, of whom two died in infancy. Three are still at home, Roscoe, Ivy and Grace. Mrs. Ernest Morgan lives in Indianapolis, Mrs. Alton Seagraves in Kokomo and Mrs. Chas. Reese in Kempton. His wife also survives. He was a useful citizen, a good neighbor and a man of more than ordinary ability. Those who lived near him often sought him for advice and counsel. He was ever ready to lend a helping hand to the needy. In his home he was a kind and loving husband and father.

He united with the Church of God in December, 1900, being baptized by Bro. Geo. Smith of Culver, his wife being baptized at the same time. Since then he has been a faithful worker in the church and was always one of its liberal contributors.

In his last illness, lasting several months, he was patient and never murmured or complained, but was sustained and soothed by an unfaltering trust that he had lived as he stated, "a life consistent with that of Christ." He cherished the hope that the trumpet would sound and the dead in Christ rise to immortality and that he would be among that number. The funeral service was held in the Christian church in Michigantown before a full house, by Bro. Williams on "The Hope of Release." Burial was in the Whiteman cemetery.

Cain's Wife.

We got a little item from a newspaper the other day that we pass on to our readers, expecting that it can be used to advantage by them. The query has often been propounded as to where Cain got his wife. Dr. John McNeil, while holding a revival at Cardiff, Wales, recently had the following question handed to him:—

Dear Dr. McNeil: For the sake of a young man interested in Bible Study, will you say who was Cain's wife?

There was a smile went over the congregation as he read the note aloud. He then replied: "I love all young men, especially such as are searchers after light. Therefore I shall make this note the text of a brief sermon to the young man who sent it. Don't lose your soul's salvation looking after other men's wives."

Smash the Saloon and Save the Boy.

Look at that boy. What a manly fellow he is. What wonderful possibilities are wrapped up in him. He may become a blessing to his community and the State.

The saloon is after him. The devilish traffic would destroy his life and damn his soul for a few dollars. This traffic must have business, else it cannot exist.

Is that boy the saloon is trying to trap, your boy? If he is not your boy, he is somebody's boy. He is worth saving. He has in him the making of a good citizen. If the liquor traffic ensnares him, it may make of him a burden to society, perhaps a criminal.

Does not sound wisdom decree that we smash the saloon and save the boy?—The American Issue.

Sleeping in Church.

A minister had in his congregation two men who troubled him by sleeping in church. He said privately to one of them:—

"Mr. A., did you ever notice that Mr. B., had fallen into the habit of sleeping during services?"

Mr. A. had not noticed it and was pained to hear it.

"Well, might I ask you to sit beside him next Sunday and nudge him in case he falls asleep."

Mr. A. would certainly do so. The minister then sought Mr. B. and asked him the same question regarding Mr. A., and requested him to nudge the latter if he showed any sign of drowsiness. He eagerly promised; and the spectacle of the two men keeping watch on each other the next Sunday almost upset the dignity of the clerical plotter.

"Let us put on an attractive, lovely armor, as well as a strong one."

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

Ebenezer. 1. Sam. 7, 12

Put on the Whole Armor of God.

Christ's soldiers to the cross must go,
And thus stand up and face the foe,
In the army of the Lord.

The gospel truth is bought and sold,
Trampled down in the rush for gold,
By people, priests and preachers.

And then comes now the critics high,
Who soar above both earth and sky,
And boast of their great wisdom.

They cannot see they do not know
That God is working here below,
Just as the Book has foretold.

As time goes on from age to age,
God's hand is seen on every page,
Writing new Truth clean and large.

But these wise men are both blind and lame,—
They will be overwhelmed with shame,
When the King comes to his throne.

The years roll on, the time draws nigh,
When the King will come from on high,
And gather his loved ones home.

A. WALTER WESTON.

We thank our pledged subscribers for remitting money so promptly for our book. There are about one hundred who have not sent us their orders. Lest some of them feel embarrassed because they have not responded promptly like the others, we wish to say that our printer has agreed to wait until July 1 for the 10th for his pay. We intimate this so all can send when most convenient, though it would be a personal and much appreciated favor if all would remit in time to help us discharge our obligation to the publisher.

In this issue the reader will find an article under the caption, "Baptized Into Christ." It was written by our lamented Bro. Neill about a week before his death. Reader, in this article you hear our brother speak and conclude appropriately with "Amen," for the last time. Soon God will appear for the deliverance and salvation of the "poor and needy," and then, Oh blissful thought, Brother Neill can resume his work of teaching the truth in blessed and faultless immortality. His sleep in the dusty bed of earth will be short—then an eternal throne of gold. Oh God, that hast roofed our world with rainbows of mercy, and gemmed it with morning stars of glory, hear this our prayer.

From a brother in Cairo, Ill., we have received a marked copy of The Gospel Trumpet, published at Anderson, Ind. It blows a very strange and discordant "trumpet," as witness the editorial page: In one column the Editor tells of preparing a new book; and then solicits "testimonies" for its subject matter. "One of the last testimonies received," he says, "was from a sister who was raised from the dead in answer to prayer." Quite a trumpet blast this! Yet not withstanding this remarkable "testimony" of miraculous power, in another column on the same page, the Editor apologizes for being late in getting his paper published "this week," and gives this reason, "We have been rushed with work on account of scarcity of workers." Several of the workers have been confined to their rooms by sickness, but is hoped that all will soon be able to report for their duty." An Editor that can raise people from the dead (!) should never let his workers fail at their posts of duty through sickness. He should have healed them all, put them at their tasks, and got out his paper on time. Too bad he never thought of doing this, for then he would not only have conferred an inestimable blessing upon the "workers," and got out his paper on time, but he would have had another dazzling "testimony" for his new book! But he just forgot! !

Baptized Into Christ.

"For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ, have put on Christ." Gal iii 27.

From the time that Paul wrote the above until now. Many thousands have been immersed professing a sincere belief in the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ." How many have been baptized into Christ? This is a very serious question. It requires profound thought, and close self examination. Any one old enough to understand the simple truths of salvation, can profess to believe them; but profession and immersion may not be baptism into Christ. An apparently serious man may profess and be immersed. Is he immersed into Christ? If a man by exercise of intelligence hears, and professing to believe the gospel desires immersion, is he baptized into Christ? A man may be morally good, professedly religious; he hears the gospel, professes to believe it and is immersed: Is he baptized into Christ? or has he just changed his religious belief?

It will be noticed that Paul does not say to all Galatia, in the Church of God, You have all been baptized into Christ and have put on Christ. He says, "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ."

Now then, what would really constitute baptism into Christ? Can this be positively determined? Yes. Each one of us who have been immersed in the name of the Lord Jesus, believing—making confession of our belief in the glad tidings of the kingdom of God, can truly and firmly decide whether or not we have been baptized into Christ.

The first thing necessary, on hearing the gospel—is an "honest and good heart." Luke viii 15. Every one of us can instantly tell if we have an honest and good heart, also we can tell when we heard the "exceeding great and precious promises." 2 Pet i 4. We have gladly accepted them as the words of God, the words of "mercy and truth," and have bound them about our neck, and written them upon the table of our heart. Prov iii 3. The exceeding great and precious promises that the Apostle Peter refers to, were the promises to Abraham and his seed, Christ. These promises can only be received, cherished, lived and effectually told by an honest and good heart. They can only be bound about the neck—as a valued ornament—of the new man or woman of an honest and good heart. They cannot be written on any kind of a heart. All such know they are baptized into Christ, and have put on Christ. They not only have been baptized into Christ, but have been buried with him by baptism into death. Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Christ were baptized into his death. Rom vi 3, 4. As they were buried with Christ, so they rose with him. Col iii 1, 2. Those who are buried with Christ, rise with him, and they seek the things which are above—above what? Above all earthly considerations. Before being converted—before hearing the glad tidings, their affections—desires—were set on some thing or things, that would add comfort or pleasure to the present life The gospel revealed a kingdom to come, a Lord to come, a life to come; a powerful, universal and a righteous kingdom. The Lord Jesus Christ as king, and a resurrection by him to eternal life. This charms the honest and good heart. There is not longer anything on earth desirable, nothing worthy of permanent consideration. As "Christ sitteth on the right hand of God," there the affections of those who are baptized into Christ are centered. The continual longing and prayer of such is, that—this Christ who is sitting at the right hand of God, will soon come in like manner as he went into heaven. Acts i 11.

My dearly beloved brethren, let us make sure that we are baptized into Christ. Let us examine our heart. If it is honest and good, it will not condemn us, and we will have confidence toward God. "Let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth. And hereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall assure our hearts before him." 1 John iii 18, 19. And hereby we shall know that we are baptized into Christ, have put on Christ. If we are suffering some form of persecution or ostracism, it is because we are living godly in Christ Jesus. 2 Tim iii 12. And by this we know we are batized into Christ. "If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye; for the Spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you." 1 Pet iv 14. Being baptized into Christ, the law of the Spirit of life makes us free from the law of sin and death. Rom viii 2. Amen.

Temptation.

The lesson is based on Heb ii 18: "For in that he himself hath suffered being tempted, he is able to succour them that are tempted." I chose this lesson as I thought it one which is of most vital importance to each one of us who have put on the name of Christ, as temptations cross the paths of us all, and we come in contact with them every day of our lives. Jesus, as we learn in the verses I have just read, "suffered, being tempted," and thereby became our example and knows how to help the tempted. As an example he succours us by showing us how, and by inciting us to use our powers to do, as he has done. We all know how Jesus was tempted and how he overcame his temptations. The temptations which befall us from day to day are the things which lead us to sin, and at last to death, if we do not overcome them. James i 13-15.

We see then it is not God who tempts us but it is when we are drawn away of our own lusts and enticed.

Suppose we have a very dear friend whom we think a great deal of and if he or she should say to us, sometime let us go here or let us do this, and although we as children of God know that it is not right for us to go here or do that, we are afraid of offending our friend and we give in and do as he or she wants us to. When we do this then what are we doing? Why we are being drawn away for our own lust and are being enticed by sinners. This is where the trial of our faith comes in, for James says, "My brethren count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations; knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience." James i 2, 3. Who is it then, that we must please, God or our friends? If we prefer life then it is God, but if we prefer death, then it is our friends. If we are enticed once, it is an easy matter for us to be enticed a second time. Trials, tribulations and temptations are a part of a Christian's life and are things which we must expect. James also says, "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him." James i 12. Although Jesus was the Savior of the world, he suffered, being tempted of Satan to commit sin, and as a man trusting and obeying God, just as we may, He overcame every temptation and never sinned. Every soldier going into battle needs a good weapon and skill in using it. No soldier can fight and win without a good weapon, nor can he win even with a good weapon if he knows nothing about how to use it. Every one of us are soldiers going into battle. What should our weapon be? The Bible or the Word of God. In the wilderness where Jesus met his great temptations, love and selfishness fought for the supremacy. Satan, cast out for his selfishness and pride, has gone about ever since man came into the world, to culture the spirit of selfishness in the human heart. Wherever he has succeeded there has followed a harvest of wickedness and misery. But Christ, the messenger of God's love, gained the victory, and wherever his Spirit wins an entrance, are brought forth the fruits of righteousness, peace and joy. The weapon of his own conquering was the Word of God. If we will follow Jesus' example and when temptations overtake us, we take the Word of God as our weapon, we also will come out conquerors in the end. Jesus is more than our example. He is our All-wise, Almighty, loving Friend and Guide. Such a Friend and Guide succors us by taking us by the hand when we are weak, and by lifting us in his arms when we faint. Jesus our example who has been tempted in all points like as we are, and our never failing Friend and Guide invites our utmost confidence that he may become unto us our Divine Savior, one who is willing to lift us up when we fall. I think we can derive a good deal of consolation from 1 Cor x 13. "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man; but God is faithful who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it." This goes to show us that God will not suffer us to be tempted more than we are able to bear, and he stands ready at all times to help us if we but look to him for protection and put our trust in him. "Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need." Heb iv 16. Let us remember that we cannot have too much gentleness, too much humility in dealing with the sins, the sorrows, the needs of others. Are we be touchy, contentious or self-willed? How did Jesus advise his disciples to provide against temptation? We find the answer in Matt. xxvi 41, "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation; the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." I trust that each one of us will follow the advise of Jesus.

Sunday School Lesson.

JUNE 26, 1910.

The Parable of the Tares. Matthew xiii 24-30, 36-43.

Golden Text—"Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father."—Matthew xiii. 43.

We study today another of the parables set forth by Jesus which marked the new manner of teaching made necessary by the opposition to him as manifested by the Pharisees and others. After the multitude was sent away Jesus gave his explanation of the parable to his disciples.

There is much that might be brought out in connection with this lesson, and several sermons could be preached and not exhaust the subject. It is therefore evident that a short hour of study will only serve to outline the matter. The gist of the teaching contained herein is to show that two essentially varying characteristics exist. Tares represent one, and wheat the other. One is good seed, the other bad seed.

Another feature is the two eventually varying destinies that await the ones represented by tares and wheat. Then the all-important question, Am I a tare, or am I wheat? Following this comes with equal force another question, If I am wheat, can I be changed to a tare? and if perchance I am a tare can I be changed to wheat?

The discussion of these questions may be profitable in some cases, and if so teachers may present them to their classes.

This lesson shows us the forces of good and evil opposed to each other, and how finally the good will be victor.

The Kingdom of Heaven—What is it?

Our brethren generally are so conversant with the kingdom subject that it is not likely any will err in this. God's kingdom, the good news about which Jesus and his disciples preached. The kingdom that has its origin in God, and which would have been established by Jesus when here had conditions been right. But conditions being wrong, Jesus went for a period of time to his Father's throne to there wait the will of God, and when sent again to finish the work begun he will set up a kingdom which will subdue all the kingdoms of men, and fill the whole earth. It will be a righteous administration, and all laws and rulers be just and holy—truly heavenly.

The good seed of the kingdom is to be sowed. The field is the world. The world belongs to Jesus through his Father. Jesus, and all who are his, are good seed sowers.

Who sows the tares?

The enemy, the wicked one, the adversary, the devil.

Did he have any right to sow tares in this field?

God made the world, and put man in it to care for it, the purpose being to have a fit abode for the enjoyment of a proper man. The whole Bible, the Word of God, is a description of how the earth was created, and the working out of God's plan to finally make both earth and man suitable for use in his original design, the ending up showing this realized, and the kingdom of heaven established on earth, where God's will is done as it is in heaven.

The devil is a usurper. He has no right here, and will finally be banished. But now he is busy sowing the evil seed, the tares in the field of God.

Jesus explains that the "Good seed are the children of the kingdom." Good seed is living seed—not dead seed. Seed to be worth anything must contain the principle of life. There will be no increase unless there is life. Dead seed will yield no increase—will not grow. A dead church will not grow; a dead Christian will not grow. A most fortunate condition, because God has no use for such to increase. Imperfection tends to multiply imperfection. You cannot increase kindness unless you are kind. Love will not increase only as it is manifested. If you would increase goodness you must be good. Faults injure not alone our self, but others also.

The commission given the disciples was to scatter the good seed everywhere, and persecution even was made a means to this end. The love of God and our fellows implanted in the heart is the best propelling motive. Go tell it—spread the news abroad—sow the good seed.

What condition were the men in when the enemy came and sowed the tares?

Sleeping. Not apprehensive of danger. Not realizing that there was any thing to fear. Off their guard. How many are in this condition—unconscious of approaching evil, until they are fully in the grasp of the arch enemy.

What are tares?

Are they wheat that has become degenerated?

No, tares are weeds that are essentially different from wheat. "Darnel" is the name given, and it bears a poisonous seed, that produces stupor.

What did Jesus say the tares sown were?

"The children of the wicked one." Those who are filled with the principles of evil. As tares are not degenerate wheat, so these tares of the wicked one are not degenerate virtue, but are the opposite—vice. They mingle with the wheat. In all the avenues of life, wherever good principles are being instilled, there come in the evils, the sins. There are passions, and lusts, falsehood, evil thoughts, selfishness; mingled with high ideas, devotion to good, pious thoughts, and noble principles. The vital question is, Which is victor?

They grow together. Where ground is prepared for the good seed and made rich and productive, there is where Satan finds the best ground for his tares.

Why did the householder advise letting the tares grow until the time of harvest?

There was a resemblance between the young stalks, and it was not easy to tell the difference. Then when the distinction was apparent the roots had so entwined that there was danger of pulling up the good grain with the tares.

As the seed of the darnel was poison it was necessary to get it out of the wheat, lest the bread be poisoned. There were three ways of doing this: First by weeding them out; then the stalks of tares could be gathered when the grain was cut, and another way was with a sieve after the grain was threshed. The darnel seed was smaller and would go through, so leaving the wheat.

The householder knew that it was useless to gather the darnel from the wheat and throw it to one side, so he gave orders that it be burned—totally destroyed.

In the explanation of the parable Jesus likens the tares to children of the wicked one. He says that as tares are burned up in the fire—destroyed—so shall it be with these children of the wicked one in the end of the world—the harvest time. God's messengers will gather all that do iniquity, evil doers, vicious persons, and they shall be destroyed from the presence of the King. All that offend, and cause others to stumble, will be utterly banished and made way with. Be as if they had not been.

What about the righteous?

They shall shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Daniel says "shall shine as the brightness of the firmament." As the sun bursts forth from behind the cloud, with gladness and cheer, life and glory, so do the faithful and true ones hail the King and receive the blessing promised of the Father.

Practical questions: Am I living so that the messenger of God will recognize me as wheat; or am I tares?

Am I ready, waiting for the harvest—judgment day?

What am I doing to help others get ready for that day?

It will be noticed that there is no Review lesson this quarter. The lesson for July 3, is taken from Matthew xiii. 31-38, 44-52. Then on July 10 comes the Review lesson, followed on July 17 with Peter's Confession, Mat. xvi. 13-28.

Obituary.

Levi Marsh was born in the town of Barre, Worcester County, Mass. May 16, 1817, died at Irving, Iowa, June 7, 1910, being 93 years and 20 days old.

He was united in marriage to Matilda H. Whiting of Rochester, N. Y., August 19, 1848, who died November 1858. To this union was born four children, three dying in infancy, Geo. F. of Kansas still survives him.

He was again united in marriage to Emma E. Royce at Irving, Iowa, on September 9, 1860, and to this union was born two sons and two daughters, one daughter died in infancy, and Carrie E. at the age of six years. Frank L. and Elmon F. still survive him.

As a young man he followed the trade of a carpenter until 1847, when he came west and located at Plainfield, Will County, Illinois, where he followed the occupation of a farmer, moving to Tama County, Iowa, in June, 1853, founding the town of Irving, Iowa, near the old homestead where he died. Here he engaged in the mercantile business until 1886, when he retired and spent the balance of his days upon the old homestead at Irving, with his sons Frank L. and Elmon F.

In early life he was a member of the Methodist Bible Class at Worcester, Mass. He became an active member of the Church of God in 1870, at which time, because of persecution by the sects, he erected the Church at Irving, donating all the material himself. Unlike a great many men, he deemed it as necessary to have a house for the worship of God, as to have buildings for himself and stock.

His life has been a living epistle, known and read of all men. Strictly honest in all his dealings with all men he closed a life that fulfilled the Scripture recorded in Proverbs xiii, 22; xxi 1. He leaves a name unsullied, both as a business man and a Christian, leaving his sons and grandsons a name to be proud of. The Church has lost a Father in Israel.

After a few words of comfort by the writer from Proverbs xiii. 22, we laid him away to await the morning of the resurrection, in which hope he found much comfort in his last days.

May it be said of all of us, as can be said of him when he fell asleep, I have fought a good fight, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto all those who love his appearing and his kingdom.

O. J. ALLARD.

Sister Hattie J. Ford, of Dixon, Illinois; born at McConnelstown, Pa., March 3, 1845; died June 8, 1910; age 65 years, 3 months. She leaves to mourn her loss, the husband, John B. Ford; two daughters, Mrs. Lillian Filson and Mrs. Ella Loescher; two sons, Harry B. and Wm. G. Ford, and the dear old mother now 86 years of age, Sister Julius B. Anderson. Sister Ford was Sister Anderson's only surviving child and this leaves her alone except for the loving and kindly ministrations of grandchildren. Sister Ford has for many years been a faithful member of the Church of God at Dixon, Illinois. She was sound in the faith and she died firm in the hope of a soon coming King and a glorious resurrection. It was along the line of this hope that the writer spoke to an audience which filled the large house over which our Sister had so recently presided. Interment was made in the beautiful and well kept Oakwood cemetery in South Dixon. Here she lies asleep in Jesus awaiting the morning of glad reunions.

LET all make note of the change in Brother Huggins' address. It is now 10628 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. As many will be sending for his book which is just now ready, it is important that you have the correct address.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

Danger of Becoming Morbid.

Thousands of people actually think themselves to death every year by allowing their minds to dwell on morbid subjects. The idea that one has some insipient disease in one's system, the thought of financial ruin, that one is getting on in life without improving prospects—any of these or a thousand similar thoughts may carry a healthy man or woman to a premature grave. A melancholy thought that fixes itself upon one's mind needs as much doctoring as physical disease. It needs to be eradicated from the mind or it will have just the same result as a neglected disease would have.

Every melancholy thought, every nagging worry should be resisted to the utmost, and the patient should be carefully protected by bright and cheerful thoughts, of which there ought to be a bountiful store in every one's possession. Bright companions are cheaper than drugs and plasters. A morbid condition of mind produces a morbid condition of body, and if the disease does happen to be in the system it receives every encouragement to develop.

Gems of Thought.

I hope I shall always possess firmness and virtue enough to maintain what I consider the most enviable of all titles, the character of an honest man.—Geo. Washington.

Thousands go over the rapids of intemperance every year through the power of habit, crying all the while, "When I find out that it is injuring me, I will give it up."—John B. Gough.

True eloquence does not consist in speech. It cannot be brought from far. Labor and learning may toil for it, but they will toil in vain. Words and phrases may be marshalled in every way, but they cannot compass it. It must exist in the man, in the subject, and in the occasion.—Daniel Webster.

Announcement.

The Conference of the Church of God will be held at Felida, Washington, June 24-26, being Friday, Saturday and Sunday. We would be pleased to see a large attendance at this Conference as there are important matters that should be discussed and attended to.

Yours very truly,

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 300 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1.00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

WITH the ending of the first quarter of 1910, a number of subscription have expired, and should be renewed at once. Also others that have been hanging since the first of the year, ought to be attended to now. The new post office regulations make it imperative that the list be kept up, and besides we need what is due us. Please give this prompt attention, as living expenses cannot be reduced under the present standard of prices, besides calls for papers and tracts come more frequently than formerly. We try to keep all going, but some times it is a hard pull. Brethren, your help is needed to keep the work going. We have confidence that you will respond now, so thank you in advance.

IN our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hillisburg, Indiana, or to this office.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or In. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

ONE YEAR FOR ONE DOLLAR.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

T. J. DANIEL.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 30 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

Student's Text Book, a cloth bound book 200 pages. It is designed as a guide to students to a right comprehension of the teaching of the Holy Scripture, as made plain upon the Sacred Page. It deals specifically as How to study the Bible, and why people fail to rightly understand God's Word. Price 50 cts.

Pine Wood's Bible Class, a book of 480 pages bound in cloth. Studies are carried on as between a Class and its Teacher. This method not only makes the teaching plain, but interesting and attractive, like reading a story. Price $1.25.

Cunningly Devised Fables, 28 pages Price 10 cts.

Where Will You Spend Eternity? 4 pages, 25 cts per 100.

Are You in Need of Money? 4 pages 25 cts per 100.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory, and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Courage.

He said: I hold it sinful to despond.
And will not let the bitterness of life
Blind me with burning tears but look beyond
Its tumult and its strife:

Because I lift my head above the mist—
Where the sun shines, and the heaven becomes blue,
By every ray, and every raindrop kissed
That God's love sent it to me too

Think you I feel no bitterness at all?
No burden to be borne like Christian's pack?
Think you there are no ready tears to fall—
Because—I keep them back?

Why should I hug life's ills with cold reserve
To curse my friend who love me? Nay,
A thousand times more good than I deserve
God gives me every day.

And, in each one of these rebellious tears
Kept bravely back—he makes a rainbow shine

Grateful, I take his slightest gift—no fears
Nor any doubts are mine!

Dark skies must clear! And when the clouds are past,
One golden day will redeem a weary year;
Patience—I listen and wait, sure that sweet at last
Will sound his voice of cheer!

Then we are not with chidings—let me be—
I must be grateful to the end;
I grudge not others their cold darkness—me
The power of light befriend.

Selections.

Faith as a Force.

"Faith is the confidence of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Heb xi 1—Dean Alford's translation. When we speak of faith we mean faith in God; the assent of the mind, and firm belief in the revelation of God, given to us in his Word, of himself, and of his purposes with man and with the world. When we speak of "Faith as a Force" we mean the reaction of faith in God on our characters and lives, the effect our belief in God has on our own lives, and on the lives of those with whom we consort. Faith in God is the means by which frail mortal creatures lay hold on the hand held down from above, to lift them from the limitation of their human nature, and open to them the boundless possibilities of the Divine life.

We come first into touch with God through faith in his Word, and acceptance of his mercy; then we explore the wonders of his grace, and experience his beneficent rule in our hearts. This we may call faith passive: the receptivity of our minds and hearts to the benign influence of God's spirit working in us, purging us from evil thoughts and desires, and making us fit vessels for the Master's use. Then we have faith as a force, or faith active,—the outward expression of our faith in God—of the new standard of life set up within, whereby we desire the highest thing—that is the service of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Master.

If faith in God and in His Son be real, it must re-act on all the business of our daily life, for no act of public or private life is without its scope. We must bring everything into the clear light of his presence; if it is against his holy and just law it at once raises a barrier between him and us, which nothing but repentance and confession can sweep away. The sooner we realize this, and make it make it the rule of our lives, the better, for it will save us much sorrow in the time to come.

An eminent man was once heard to remark, on leaving a church where the preacher had been insisting upon the necessity of faith's control of all action, to the effect that "Things have come to a fine pass, when religion is to be allowed to interfere with one's private life." Now this is just what faith in God must do, if it is to have any value at all. Religion is first of all belief in God's promises, and personal acceptance of them; afterward a rule of life and conduct. If it has taken a hold of our hearts and minds at all, there will be no question about it.

That which a man really believes interests him greatly, and dominates his life and conversation. In many lesser things this is abundantly evident. When men play a game, they abide by the rules so long as they are at it, and often afterwards it forms the subject of much enthusiastic conversation. How much more, then, should this thing which has to do with our eternal welfare, dominate our thoughts, control our actions, and form the theme of our earnest conversation. Having kindled our lamp we must not put it under a bushel. It will then be of no use to others, and of less use to ourselves. Faith, like the flame, will not burn if withheld from the air. Contact with other minds will strengthen and discipline it; opposition will test its foundations. "No man has a right perception of any truth who has not been re-acted upon by it, so as to be its martyr," says Emerson, and this is the supreme test.

Think of the sublime faith of Stephen, of Peter, of Paul, and of many more since their time. Think of what a force it was in the cause they had embraced. They counted their lives as of no value, if by any means they might win Christ, and not disgrace his name. Faith had done its perfect work in them. To them, God and Christ were so real, and so near, that everything they did was done with the immediate sense of their presence and approval. There seems to us something heroic in the stand which these men took against the beliefs and practices of their time, and yet it was the logical outcome of the faith that was in them, of the doctrine they had learned.

It is surely a wonderful argument for the truth of the Christian doctrine that it impelled men to devote their lives to a service which seemed to hold so much of hard labor and bonds and imprisonment, and even death, as its rewards. Yet these things were not its rewards—only the incidents in the day's work. Why, we read of them actually glorying in bonds and sufferings, for thus they knew that they were following in the steps of their Lord and Master. Behind all this, with the eye of faith, they could see him who endured the Cross, despising the shame, and who was at the right hand of God, their great High Priest. His approval was their secret strength, upholding them in the direst perils. Well they knew that man's power over them ended with this human life; their eternal salvation was safe; their real life was hid with Christ in God; so entirely had they appropriated to themselves the promises of God.

There never was a time when living of this kind was more needed than it is now. Every day we meet with persons to whom religion is but a name; and they scoff at those to whom it is precious. It requires some courage to let it be known that, to you at least, it is a reality,—a rule of life and conduct. The Bible is no longer looked to as the pure word of God: literature and life are full of blatant scepticism and infidelity. To believe in the Bible is to earn the reputation of being supremely old-fashioned. But if we have experienced the goodness of God, and the beneficence of his rule in our hearts, we will not quarrel with that title. For, after all, those who criticise are small men compared with the intellectual giants who served God, and passed away, leaving behind them splendid examples and great encouragement to those who follow after.

I we ask those who sneer at religion and its power in the world what they can give us in its place, they have no answer: they have no constructive alternative. They will try to destroy our faith, and give us nothing in return. Shall we not rather listen to those men who sealed their testimony with their blood, giving up life cheerfully, in the certain knowledge that it was safe in God's keeping? Take the great roll-call of heroes in Hebrews xi. After touching upon the great works of Abraham, Moses, Joseph, etc., he breaks out: "And what shall I more say? for time would fail me to tell of Gideon, and of Barak, and of Samson, and of Jephthae; of David also, and Samuel, and of the prophets; who, through faith, subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of the fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens. Women received their dead raised to life again; and others were tortured, not accepting deliverance, that they might obtain a better resurrection. And others had trial of cruel mockings and scourgings, yea, moreover, of bands and imprisonments: they were stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword: they wandered about in sheep-skins and goat-skins, destitute, afflicted, tormented, (of whom the world was not worthy): they wandered in deserts and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth."

This is how the world treated its benefactors; men who endeavoured to turn the people's hearts from evil ways to righteous living. God offers no bed of roses to those who seek after righteousness. It is much easier to let things alone, and be as others, unheeding if many perish: through lack of knowledge. These men call to us from the past: call us to the noble life which, if need be, shall cause us to sacrifice ease and pleasure for the truth's sake. They call to us to be of like faith, to value it above all earthly things. It will not be easy; perhaps, as we grow in years and experience, we will come nearer to it. When David went out against the mighty Philistine, his trust in God was not new-born. Doubtless on the lone hillside he had learned to look to him for protection against the lurking dangers of the wilderness. Under the wide canopy of heaven, on starlit nights, his mind and eyes to God in silent communion; and when the wind howled and the thunder shook the earth, he had sought and found strength and freedom from fear in the God of his fathers. So, when the testing time came, it was no new experience for him to trust in the arm of Jehovah. And so, here and now, our achievements in the realm of faith must go from higher to higher, and each step upward will give us courage to take one higher still. Development comes with constant endeavour, in spiritual as in natural life. The Christian's life should be a progression God-wards, so that, when the end comes, the world to come will be very near to him, because all his life he has been living towards that end.

We could help each other more if we talked together oftener on these subjects. We meet, and we talk about everything and anything but the things of God, which should interest us most. If we really are children of God, and are looking for his great salvation, we are bound to speak to one another about it, and compare with one another our experiences: not in the way of dragging it into all conversations, but as the result of its bearing on our outlook, from the fact that it is a part—a great part—of our scheme of life. If faith is a force in our lives, it is bound to find expression in our conversation, and in the things which really interest us. In this we find a magnificent example in the apostle of the Gentiles. He was so absorbed in his great work that he counted every worldly thing worthless, by comparison. This is the spirit in which all great work is done. We may not be as great as Paul, but we can see that our daily life is ennobled through our faith in God, that all the common tasks of life are done as in his sight, in singleness of purpose, as unto him.

Christianity is sometimes spoken of as if it were a series of negations. This is not a high platform from which to view the position. Christianity is mainly constructive. Long ago, Dr. Chalmers spoke of "the expulsive power of a new affection." By its power, it expels all that is mean and unworthy. "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature."

Probably one of the greatest temptations of modern times for the Christian is that he may be drawn into the vortex of worldly pleasure seeking, and by its siren voice drawn away from the high pleasure of God's service. God does not condemn pleasure or amusements, but he requires that they shall be clean and innocent—void of offence. And moreover, he requires that they shall not be chief things to us. All of us seek happiness in some form or other. God teaches us that there is something higher than mere happiness, namely, blessedness. This may [illegible] through quite other channels than happiness, through much suffering. Yet even suffering itself may give a certain sense of high happiness. It was Paul who rejoiced in being accounted worthy to suffer for Christ's sake. If faith be a force in our lives, suffering will have the good effect on us that God intends; it will work for the purifying and uplifting of our character. It must be observed that the finest characters, those who feel and most quickly and sympathetically to the cry of distress, are those who themselves have passed through the fires of affliction.

Emerly has said, "The finest piece of artistry in the world is the spectacle of faith working upon a personality, and producing its results. These phenomena of the moral responsibilities, of prayer, love, sacrifice, of mighty hope of sustained enthusiasms, all energizing in a human interior, are, we say, the greatest sight the world has to show." Is it not also faith working in the world that makes this earth habitable at all? What sort of society should we have if God had withheld his revelation from men; if no saints and prophets had revealed to men their Divine message; if there had been no Christ; no Paul; none of the long roll of saintly men, who have given dignity to history? The mind refuses to conceive the blank utterness of such a world. Without them, man would have exiled himself from the face of the earth. If there is in us any tendency to pessimism, when we look around at the sin and the misery abounding, let us think on these lives; above all, let us emulate their character, for assuredly, as God lives, error shall not prevail. Truth, though crushed to earth, yet shall rise again; though burned in the fire, shall ascend phoenix-like from the ashes.

Let us be staunch in our allegiance to God, and he will use us as beacon lights to guide others to harbors of safety. We do not appreciate as we ought this high and holy calling to be co-workers with God in the redemption of the race. 'Tis true that every man is responsible for his own fate, but it is our duty to present to the world around an example of a pure and consistent life—every day, every hour, we are being read of men, and example is mightier than precept.

Life is not a plaything. It is a great gift to be wisely used. Blessed are they who, realising this, find their chief delight amidst its engrossing duties, in seeking first to do the will of God. God has called us to be partakers in his divine nature. To rise to this height is the perfect work of faith. Behind this common life of ours stands the world to come. Do we see it on our horizon? or are the passing things too much for us? Life must not be viewed as a fragment. Rightly lived, it is a glorious whole, in which death appears only as a short suspension, a refreshing sleep. Shall the awakening find us rejoicing in the presence of our Lord, or shall we be blotted out from the glorious kingdom? The choice is ours. Surely, it were madness to allow anything to stand between us and such a splendid result. The glories of this world are not permanent; they perish in the using, and are speedily forgotten.

Faith in God will carry us through the valley of the shadow of death to the realization of all the great promises spoken of by his holy prophets since the world began. Faith in God will make us of the number of those who "subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises," for the apostle tells us that "they without us should not be made perfect." Faith in God will bring us at last to that heavenly city, the New Jerusalem, which is being prepared for those who love God, and walk in his ways. He that is wise will choose now, and set his heart on those eternal things whose brightness never fades, whose rewards are sure to him who endures faithfully to the end. Our Association and Church life would enter upon a term of increased usefulness if we would throw our minds thoroughly open to the faith of God; if we would really allow God to work in us good work. We have visions of an Association where each member is seen to share the labor; anxious to do what is possible to promote its ends. If we are all animated by a keen desire to keep each other in this heavenly path, those outside will soon be drawn by the attractive power of good to throw in their lot with us. We have visions of a Church life charged with the electric force of Christ's Spirit, where all is harmony and mutual helpfulness. The nearer we approach it, the greater will be our usefulness to our generation, the more sure shall we be of receiving from our heavenly Father the commendation, Well done, good and faithful servant. —James Brownlie in Messenger.

Religious Inventions.

Lo, this only have I found, that God hath made man upright: but they have sought out many inventions. Eccl vii 29.

The Israelites, rather than follow and obey God's command, done wickedly and provoked him at the Red sea; made a calf in Horeb, and worshiped the image; thus they provoked him to anger with their inventions. So in the Scripture, when people choose some other way than the one God commands, it is called inventions. And we find today there are many inventions in the so-called Christian world. In Paul's day the Sadducees said there is no resurrection, neither angel nor spirit. Acts xxiii 8. Christ called them a generation of vipers! Another class have invented two kingdoms one located in heaven, and the other in hell, we are not assured where the latter place is located, but it must be immense and horrible and is to endure forever. And they live here in a clay house, which they leave at death, and if good go to heaven and sit on silver lined clouds and shout glory hallelujah for ever and ever. Oh no, they quit for a season, at a certain time, and come back to earth after those clay houses, after getting them, they are so much larger than they were before, that if they still follow their occupation of shouting, those silver lined clouds will have to be enlarged, to make room for them. Oh! Fie on such an invention.

Another has read Christ died for all. So he invents the doctrine that if Christ died for all then all will be saved. But listen to inspiration. Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God. 1 Cor vi 9. He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life, and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life. John iii 36.

Another invents the theory that Christ will come at the commencement of the 7000th year, and so studies and puzzles his brain to find out the time. Christ says no man nor the angels know the day and hour. Another invents the doctrine that no one will be saved unless they keep the Mosaic law, especially the fourth commandment. Paul says the just shall live by faith, and the law is not of faith. The law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ that we might be justified by faith, but after faith is come we are no longer under the law or schoolmaster. Another invents the gospel of pre-existence. How can anything exist before it is conceived? Another invention it makes no difference what you believe, if you are only sincere, you will be saved. Were not the 450 prophets of Baal sincere? Then why did Elijah kill them? Did that save them? Christ said, Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven. Who is going to enter? He that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Some pretenders told him they had prophesied in his name, cast out devils, and done many wonderful works, and he says, I never knew you, depart from me ye workers of iniquity. Christ says this people draweth nigh unto me with their lips; but their heart is far from me. But in vain they do worship me teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

Another invention, the kingdom was set up at Pentecost. Daniel in interpreting Nebuchadnezzar's dream said it was certain to come to pass, and the earth was to be divided into ten kingdoms, when the God of heaven set up his kingdom. And at Pentecost, was the Roman Empire, so God's kingdom could not have been set up at that time. And a church is not a kingdom, so that invention is false. And now we hear of another invention, part of the New Testament is false and should not be believed. Why? Because it records the birth of Christ as the Son of God. This is a very dangerous invention as it denies the power of the Holy Ghost. Matt xii 32. So they have farther invented, that Christ was the Son of David, until his resurrection, after that he became the Son of God. Let God be true, and every man a liar. Christ said God was able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham, and with God all things are possible. The many passages in the New Testament where God calls Christ his Son, his only Begotten Son, and Christ always calls God his Father, and no one else. At 12 years old he knew who his Father was, and from that time until his crucifixion, never acknowledge any one else as his Father. Think you he would have answered John at his baptism the way he did if he had been any one else? Would the baptism of any other person fulfilled all righteousness? Could he have cured the sick; cast out devils; raised the dead; fed 5000 on 5 loaves and 2 fishes; given his 12 disciples power to cure; and given those same disciples the promise of setting on 12 thrones and judging the 12 tribes of Israel when he should sit in the throne of his glory? And at the transfiguration, he told the three with him to tell the vision to no man, until he was risen from the dead; and we might go on, showing what a glorious being he was before his resurrection. But this is sufficient to prove to any unprejudiced person, that Christ is the real true Son of God from his conception. All these inventions, and many more we might mention, have never been granted a patent. We pray God the followers of these inventions may accept the true gospel and be saved.

Yours in hope,
E. W. KNAPP.

Report of Meeting.

The Church of God at Immanuel and in the Fort Valley of Virginia, recently enjoyed a feast of good things spiritually from Bro. H. V. Reed of Chicago. We also had the pleasure of having Sister May Page Appleyard of Waterloo, Ia., visit us at the same time. After listening to one of Bro. Reed's most excellent sermons she remarked: "Ask me if H. V. has lost any of the earnestness of his younger days? And I shall answer, Indeed he has not." The brethren have unanimously expressed their appreciation of his visit among us and all hope in the not far distant future to have the privilege of hearing again the silver tongue orator of our faith.

VIRGINIA RITENOUR.

If we are to live after death, why don't we have certain knowledge of it? said a skeptic to a clergyman. "Why did'nt you have some certain knowledge of this world before you came into it?" was the caustic reply.

PLEASE don't send to this office for W. H. Wilson's works, nor for John Foore's tracts, nor for D. C. Robison's tract. We do not keep them in stock, as they are handled by the authors direct.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief in the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JUNE 22, 1910.

AGAIN correspondents demand our space, and we give way for them.

WE are glad to note that quite a number noticed that we were late with last week's paper. By this time they will have read their paper and understand the cause.

This paper bears date of June 22d, but is mailed June 27. The delay of last issue naturally affected this. No paper will be issued for June 29, and next number will be dated July 6

AT Antioch meeting two made the good confession before witnesses and asked for baptism, which was attended to on Monday at Plymouth, by Bro. S. J. Lindsay. They were Brother J. M. Snodgrass, who will be with the Church in Clinton County, and Brother Lawrence M. Howell, whose home is at Northup, Ohio, but who is at present engaged in this state. As there is no organization near where he lives, he will have a membership with the Plymouth Church. Our young brother is sound in the faith, one of the kind who has studied the matter out, and can give a reason for his hope. On Wednesday two Sisters, Mrs. Millie Vanderweelle and Miss Bessie Emigh, who were at the Bible School, were immersed by Brother Joseph Williams. They will be connected with the Burr Oak Church. On Saturday we had an added pleasure in witnessing Brother Willey immerse two more—Sisters Clara Switzer and her daughter Edna. Sister Switzer has been for years an attendant at services here, and Sister Edna has been a member of our Sunday School from early childhood. Naturally our hearts go out to those near us, and while we pray for God to bless each of these new Brothers and Sisters, we cannot be censured for asking an especial portion of his protecting care to be with the last two lambs of the flock. May we with them be found faithful and true ever, and when Jesus comes be accorded an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of God with the redeemed of all times.

Table Lesson.

HEBREWS XII 1, 2.

"Wherefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us. Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God."

The Tree of Life was once the Mediator between God and man, but the flaming sword guarded its sacredness after man was tainted with sin. Then came the sacrificial system with the first-fruits of the fields and of the flock. Man became a priest, to offer up sacrifices for his own sins, and to obtain mercy from an offended Father. The altar of stone in the day of Jacob was the House of God, and the gate of heaven. The tabernacle in the wilderdess was the temple of worship during the pilgrimage of Israel, and was succeeded by the Holy house at Jerusalem, where the Shekinah blazed, emblem of mercy and love of God.

The temple is no more, the altar in ruins, the host of Israel scattered from their fathers and God no longer makes known his law through the temples made with hands, neither at Jerusalem, nor on the mountains of Samaria does the Infinite show forth his power. The ancient ceremonies have ceased to be offered while the temple is in ruins. The Sabbath, new moon, memorials and solemn feasts of Israel, are buried in the ruins of their nation.

God has a temple yet on earth, where offerings are made, and over whose threshold the pure in heart meet for worship. Christ is the way, the truth, the life, and as a High Priest over the House of God, whose house are we, if we hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering.

Could we be compassed with a greater cloud of witnesses, even "Beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded, to them in all the Scriptures the things concerning himself," and over and over again we hear, "This is the way, walk ye in it." The living way is the sublime truth of the New Covenant, and none of the ways of approaching God can compare with the living way. It was consecrated by the blood of Christ, and to enter within we find the bread of life.

After giving some requisites he says, "Let us run the race that is set before us," again, "Know ye not that they that run the race, run all, but one receiveth the prize. See now what ye may obtain."

How beautiful and how vivid is the comparison of life to a race. Christ is the author and finisher of our faith. Paul says, "Holding forth the Word of Life, that I may rejoice in the day of Christ, that I have not run in vain, neither labor in vain." Christ as our example, has made known the way and has proven well-pleasing in all God's ways, and entered into heaven and is on the right hand of God, angels, and authorities and powers being made subject unto him.

At times the way, (or race) seems long and weary, and our bleeding feet indicate its sorrows; but beyond we behold the portals of peace and the eternal city. Who would not endure the conflict for the crown? We must conquer or be conquered; but how bright the crown if we conquer. The war however is for life, but the victory or defeat for eternity. How faint the brightest hope compared with the realization of the glories of the coming age when God's rule shall be established—when the mighty of earth shall tremble in the presence of the Lord. How sweet to share in the victory over sin and exchange our armor for a robe of righteousness.

The love of Christ dying for us constraineth us from evil and invites us to good. We cannot help feeling that to each one of us it is a personal matter. "He died for me." I, therefore must honor that kindness by my best endeavors to follow his example and precepts. "Lay aside every weight and the sin that doth so easily beset us." This only can we do by keeping our eyes fixed on our True Pattern and the goal at the end of the race, where shadows and stumbling blocks shall never be known, "Even as Christ who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despised the shame," pointed to the crown of life that does not fade away, that will be sure to be given in that bright day.

MRS. ELLA LONG.

Notes by the Way.

My last notes closed with the opening of meetings at Lakeside. This is a farm settlement, situated upon the shore of Lake Vancouver, which is a clear placid lake, surrounded by picturesque bluffs and woodland scenery, which is beautifully mirrored in its silvery waters, leaving an impression upon the mind not soon to be forgotten.

I was entertained by Brother and Sister Woolf, while the services continued, and made to feel at home with these kindly hospitable people.

The audiences were not large, but fairly well attended, and gave good attention to the preaching of the Sacred Message. This is Springtime when the husbandman is busy in his field, and fruit orchard, caring for his anticipated fruitage. Were it not for this, the audiences would doubtless have been much larger.

Bro. Woolf took me on a drive past Lake Vancouver, to the City of Vancouver. In passing this lake, I could exclaim to myself, Oh, how beautiful! Fringing its borders, were large irregular bluffs, and these were clothed with shrubs, and a great avalanche of pine and fir trees, with their dark green foliage, which appeared in the distance like huge dark clouds, which were reflected in the water, as though it were a looking glass. These forest trees climb the rocky gorges, beside the rippling streams, transforming the landscape into a thing of beauty. What a beautiful world we have to live in, if the curse was only removed?

After a drive of some three or four miles, we arrived at the city of Vancouver. The lumber interest seems to be the principal industry.

He drove me over to the United States Garrison, where the regular troops are quartered. This is a permanent post, where permanent barracks, and officers headquarters are built. The officers have handsome homes, and well-kept grounds. The great brass cannon were stationed at different parts of the grounds. When we arrived there, the soldiers were being drilled in the art of war. This is the time to "Prepare war, wake up the mighty man, let all the men of war draw near; let them come up: beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruning hooks into spears: let the weak say I am strong."

But bye and bye the storm will cease, and then the proclamation will be reversed, "Beat your swords into plowshares, and your spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war anymore."

After viewing the different points of interest in Vancouver, we drove up to the residence of a married daughter of Bro. Woolf, and stayed for dinner. We then drove home in time to attend preaching at night.

At the conclusion of the series of meetings held at Lakeside, we bid good bye to the folks, and Bro. Woolf drove me to Vancouver Junction, where I took the train for Portland, Oregon, on my way to Scholls Ferry. Had a few hours to spend in Portland, so I walked about the city. Here you notice a difference in nationalities, so many Asiatics are seen. Chinese and Japs are there in large numbers. A good many Hindoos are seen in their native costumes, with turbans on their heads. Roses were very prolific in their gardens. They grow to perfection here. Portland at this writing, (June 6) is preparing for a several days Rose Carnival, which will be a sight long to be remembered.

The time having come, I took the train for Reedville. Our good faithful Bro. Wm. Prosser met me at that place, and took me to his home on the Laurel Route, near the Ferry. I was again warmly welcomed by Sister Prosser. I made my home with them during the services held in the church belonging to the Church of God at this place. The meetings were not large, but fairly well attended, on account of the press of the Spring work. On Sunday noon I went home to dinner with Brother and Sister Groat. Sister Groat is a daughter of Brother Hoffman, of Bosworth Mo., whom my Uncle Benjamin Wilson baptized over forty years ago. In the afternoon Bros. Wm. and James Fisk and families came up to visit me, and we spent a pleasant afternoon together. While at Bro. Prosser's, Sister Brooks came to visit me.

This sweet communion with saints is a blessed privilege we can enjoy while traveling the narrow way together unto the Beautiful City of Light. Oh, what a sweet comfort it is to talk over the bright prospects we have pictured to us in the "Blessed Hope". I think that we are now blessed above all people in having the assurance that we have, in positively knowing we are not following "cunningly devised fables." Stick close to the "narrow way;" the broad guage road is dangerous.

At the conclusion of these meetings, Brother Prosser took me over to Reedville again, where I took the train for Corvallis, Ore. Bro. Wm. Darby met me at the depot. While at Corvallis this time I made my home with him and his wife, and was hospitably entertained. They are in love with the "Blessed Hope", and live rejoicing in it day by day. They are not of those who deny that the blessed Lord is the Son of God.

Meetings were held in the Church of God where I preached before.

I visited around some among the members. They were very busy. Many are engaged in boarding the students attending government Agricultural College at that place. There are some twelve hundred students. These young men are trained in the art of war as well as agriculture, mechanics, chemistry and a general college education.

At the conclusion of the services at Corvallis, Bro. Wm. Darby escorted me to the depot, when I left again for Portland, on my way to Eden, Wash. I went to a hotel and remained over night, that I might get a train at eight o'clock in the morning for Astoria, Oregon. I intended taking a steamboat up the Columbia River for Astoria, had it left in the morning instead of the night.

Astoria is about one hundred miles north of Portland, on the Columbia River. The ride up the river, upon its banks, was simply lovely. The Columbia is a very picturesque river, it is a moving panorama, all the way up the stream. It is one of the greatest rivers of the world. It is navigable for over two hundred miles. Near its mouth large ocean steamers sail with safety. The largest tributery to this river, is the Willamette River, which is itself navigable to Portland.

All the way up the Columbia River, there are islands of various sizes and shapes which ornament the river, like so many beautiful parks, covered with evergreen trees. It is also the case with the bluffs on either side of the river. At about 11:30 a. m. we arrived at Astoria. It was founded by John Jacob Astor of New York. There was old Fort George. Astor established a block-house here in 1811, for the purpose of protecting the first white settlement west of the Rocky Mountains. There is an historic river, named after the historic explorers Lewis and Clark. This lies south of the City Park, on the crest of the Peninsula. From this point is visible the Bay, the Pacific Ocean, Saddle Mountain, and the forest covered hills.

About ten miles away from Astoria is the great Columbia River jetty, which extends into the ocean for about five miles. From this point can be seen Fort Steven, Fort Canby, Fort Columbia, Cape Disappointment, Tillamook and North Head Light House. If we climb to the top of the hill, we can see Astoria's fresh water harbor, which covers about twelve square miles. The Columbia River at Astoria is about seven and a half miles wide. This is where a fleet of fish boats catch the great salmon fish, which are canned here. Large quantities are frozen and sent to Germany, France and England.

Eden, Washington is the place I was bound for. Brother Smalley, of Eden said he would meet me here with his gasoline launch "Eddie." I went to the Fisher Dock, and found the launch tied up to the dock. I put my things in the cabin, and then went on shore to look for Brother Smalley, whom I had never seen. After a while a gentleman came along, whom I took to be Brother Smalley, and on enquiry I found I was correct. We went to a restaurant for dinner, and soon after we went aboard and started sail for Eden, a distance of some sixteen miles away. We crossed the river, a distance of near eight miles, and entered a creek called Crooked Creek, which connects with the river, and then sailed that some eight miles. We can only sail when the tide is in.

Surely that creek was rightly named for no one could possibly make it more crooked than nature has made it. It penetrates the heart of a dense forest, thick with undergrowth, so thick in fact, that it is impossible for sunshine to enter it. I think it would rival any jungle in Africa.

In due time we arrived at "Eden our home." The description of Eden would of a truth be of interest to the reader, but I must reserve that for my next Notes, as it would make this article too lengthy. I can assure you that you will be pleased to hear all about it.

Meetings started here about two weeks ago (June 6), and have had satisfactory attendance, and may be here a week longer. I leave the report for next notes. I will say that the people held Decoration Day services. Previous to the exercises I gave them the Decoration Day address. In two weeks I may attend the Northwestern Conference, and then visit several places in California, and get home about the last of July.

My next post office address will be in care of Mrs. C. W. Russel, 76 Third St. Chico, Cal.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.
W. H. WILSON.

Baptism.

Wednesday afternoon, June 8th, a few of the brethren of the Church of God in Oregon, Illinois met on the bank of beautiful Rock River when the writer inducted into the body of Christ through the waters of baptism Mrs. Margaret Ellen Smith. Mrs. Smith is a daughter of Sister Sigler, one of our most faithful workers in the Oregon Church.

May God's blessing so abide with our new sister in the faith that when the Master comes she may have an abundant entrance into the kingdom of God.

Sunday School Lesson.

JULY 3, 1910.

Pictures of the Kingdom. Matthew xiii 31-33, 44 52.

Golden Text.—"The kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost." Romans xiv 17.

This lesson divides into four parts.

1. The Mustard Seed likeness.
2. The Leaven hid in the meal.
3. The Hidden Treasure and the Pearl of great price.
4. The story of the Net.

We have had the parable of the Tares, with the kinds of soil that received that is sown, and what the field is, and who is the sower of good seed, and who sows tares. Now Jesus likens the kingdom of heaven to some other things, that we may get some idea of its scope.

A grain of mustard seed. The least of all seeds, yet it was a good seed, a living seed, and one that would yield a good harvest.

What is the result of the growth of this small seed?

Jesus says that, while it is a small seed, it grows to be the greatest of herbs, even a tree, and birds come and lodge in its branches.

There is much in the parable that inspires and comforts the child of God. It is an assurance of growth and success. It points to a Golden Age in the future. It inspires hope and courage, and gives strength. With this powerful assurance we can struggle on against all difficulties, knowing that eventually we shall see victory come. The work we do, the battles we fight, the sacrifices we make now, are as nothing compared to the promised glories that are beyond compare.

Birds of various kinds find lodgement in the branches, and so may people of all times and all climes find shelter and rest under the shadow of Christianity. In Jesus Christ there is rest for the weary.

The parable of the leaven shows how the kingdom grows. Leaven produces fermentation in dough, and makes it light. The bubbles of gasin the sponge, expand and puff it up, or lighten it. This the woman puts into the meal and soon all is changed by the contamination.

The meal represents the field where the seed is sown, the world of mankind, and this is to be transformed as the leaven permeates the whole. Each particle of the mass to be leavened must come in contact with the leaven, else it cannot be changed.

The growth of the mustard seed into a tree is visible to the eye, but the working of the leaven, while not so apparent, is none the less sure. Silently, with increasing power, till all who come in contact, are transformed.

As leaven works by personal contact, so it is by personal work, individual to individual, that the best work for the cause of Christ is done. Heart to heart. The power of the teacher is increased by close acquaintance with the taught. Leaven in a vessel on a shelf will not transform meat.

Living Christianity spreads Christianity. Where it touches it transforms, hence we should have a care that the leaven we use be pure—that we find truth and live truth.

The finding of treasure gives occasion for another parable. In times of trouble people often buried their treasures as a means of security, and perhaps the loss of life prevented a return to recover it, hence it was left for the chance finder who might happen to dig there.

The pearl that was so pure that it was worth all a man had. There is no amount of wealth, not money or lands, that is worth so much as the "Pearl of Great Price"—the opportunity to have an heirship in the kingdom of God. Wisdom is shown by parting with everything to gain this one possession. The price to be paid is ever the same. This treasure must be first in the heart and life. It can recognize no competitor. There are other treasures, but the command is "Seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness," and other things will be added. Get the "Pearl of Great Price," hold to that, and others of less value will come to you.

In the parable of the net we have a sad warning. Not every one who says Lord, Lord, will enter the kingdom of heaven. Only those who do God's will can enter. There is no good reason why you may not be among the number. Only your own acts can keep you out, only your own acts can gain you entrance. What is your choice?

JULY 10, 1910.

REVIEW.

Golden Text.—"The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life." John vi. 63.

A review lesson depends largely on the teacher, and according to time and circumstances it can be made longer or shorter. Some will prefer one method, and some another, in handling classes at review, so it is useless to attempt to give a set rule for all.

The lessons may be referred to in a brief manner, and the main teachings brought out. In a general way the chief aim should be to bring out what the lessons of the quarter teach.

What lessons should Christ's disciples have learned from the incidents gone over? What should the Pharisees have learned? Take each one as named, Herod, John the Baptist, the Canaanitish woman, the people at Capernaum, the boy with the loaves and fishes, and others: what should each have learned from their contact with Jesus during this period?

Then in going over these lessons, find out the modern application—how do these events and teaching in the life of Christ apply to our daily lives, and society in general?

Then there are subjects that may be discussed in some classes with profit. What was the miraculous power possessed by Jesus? Where did it come from, and to what extent was it limited, if at all? What characteristics of the Christ are manifested in these lessons? What does Jesus teach in these lessons of our duty to one another, and to God? How is the love of God and of Christ shown to men by these lessons? What events mentioned show courage in Jesus? Pick out the most helpful verse in each one of the lessons.

Impress on the mind of the scholar some point that specially fits the individual need, and the review will not be irksome.

The next lesson is Matthew xvi. 13-28, the subject being taken from Peter's Confession.

Editor Restitution:

Day before yesterday, Saturday the 18th of June, the principal streets of our city, New York, were ablaze with flags and bunting, about half a million people lined the curbs along Broadway and Fifth Avenue, civic and military organizations tramped hither and thither through the streets to the stations assigned them, bands by the hundreds played martial and popular music, factory whistles blew, church bells rang, men, women and children hollered, shouted and cheered till they were hoarse, thousands of small flags were waved, places of business were closed and a general excitement prevailed. And why? Was it because God had a great message to deliver to mankind regarding their present and future welfare? Was it the return of "The Prince of Peace? No, it was none of these, but it was the return—from a mission of slaughter—of one who, pretending to believe in peace, preaches the doctrine of larger armies and stronger navies. It was hero worship. It was such another case as we read of in Romans i 25, where men worshipped and served the creature more than the Creator. These things are to be regretted, yea more, they are to be deplored. Still, they may be unto us as one of the signs of the times. For we are told that in the latter days, just such things will be, that in the hearts of men, man shall be exalted and God shall be abased. Then let us take the lesson, let us trim our lamps, filling the vessels with oil, and await the coming of the Bridegroom, having that faith in God, and his promises that our minds will be lifted above the things of this world, that we will walk in the footsteps of our glorious Redeemer, being—as He was—about our Father's business.

"For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men. Teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteous and godly in this present world. Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior, Jesus Christ, who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works."

"Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly, even so, come Lord Jesus."

In His name, and to the Father's glory. Sincerely,

ALEX. D. DONALDSON.

The Philosophic Chicken.

In introducing our little feathered philosopher we desire our readers to imagine it just out of its shell, one-half of which it is intently looking at while the other half still clings to its back.

Most strange!
Most queer—all the rarest excellent a-changes!
The lot of the proud-house, ye disappear!
My withered thoughts have won a wider range.
And, like my legs, are free:
No longer huddled up so pitifully;
I love how to pry, and probe, and peep, and pore.
And make these mysteries out.
Shall a free-thinking chicken live in doubt?
For now in doubt undoubtedly I am:
This problem's very heavy on my mind.
And I'm not one to either shirk, or shun.
I won't be blinded, and I won't be blind!
Now let me see:
First, I would know how I got in there?
Next, where was I of yore?
Besides—why can't I get out before?

Bless me!
Here are three puzzles—out of many more—
Enough to give me pip upon the brain.
But let me think again:
How did I know I ever was inside?
Now I reflect, it is, I do maintain,
Less than my reason, and be-saith my pride
To think that I could dwell
In such a paltry, miserable cell
As that old shell.
Of course I couldn't. How could I have hair—
Body and beak and feathers, legs and wings,
And my deep heart's sublime imaginings—
In there?
I meet the notion with profound disdain;
It's quite incredible, since I declare
(And I'm a chicken that you can't deceive)
What I can't understand I won't believe.
Where did I come from, then? Ah! where indeed!
This is a fiddle-me-strings hard to read.
I have it! Why, of course,
All things are molded by some plastic force
Out of some atoms somewhere up in space,
Fortuitously concurrent, anyhow—
There now!
That's plain as is the beak upon my face.

What's that I hear?
My mother cackling at me! Just her way,
So prejudiced and ignorant, I say:
So far behind the wisdom of the day!

What's old I can't revere.
Said of her: "You're a little fool, my dear.
That's quite as plain, shucks!
As is the piece of shell upon your back!"
Also hinted! Upon my back, indeed!
I don't believe it's there,
Or I can't see it; and I do declare,
For all her fond deceivin',
What I can't see I never will believe in!

Resurrection of the Wicked—What For?

Ezekiel 16 chapter is often quoted by Russellites to prove the restoration of Sodom and other cities. What are your views on this chapter?—G. W. Smith.

EDITOR'S REPLY.

The use to which the above Scripture is put by the Russellites we learn from the "Old Theological Quarterly, Number 41," and dated April, 1898. In this booklet the writer, Mr. Russell himself, says he submits a "partial list of Scriptures which we understand to teach 'Restitution of all things' and future probation." In only a "partial list" of proof-texts, naturally the strongest and not the weakest "Scriptures" would be given. Now in this list Mr. Russell gives Ezek xvi 44-63, and then says, "God saw fit to slay the Sodomites (v. 50); yet our Lord said (Matt xi 23) that they would have repented under such a ministry as had been granted to Capernaum, which repented not. Does not this course on God's part indicate that, since he is no respector of persons (Acts x 34), and since it is his will that all should come to a knowledge of the truth, the death-imprisoned Sodomites shall be brought forth (Jno v 29) to their "former estate" (Ezek xvi 55), and in "that day" be given an opportunity to believe in the only "name * * * whereby we must be saved?" Acts iv 12 * * * In selecting an extreme an example of clemency our Lord evidently intended that we should see that the sacrifice which he gave was unquestionably "a ransom for all." In a word, Mr. Russell understands that "death imprisoned Sodomites," "extreme" as their case may be, are to be raised from the dead, and afterwards have an "opportunity" to be saved.

That the Sodomites, or at least many of them, will be raised from the dead we are certain from express statements of Holy Scripture. Ezek xvi 55; Matt xi 23. That they together with all others who have "done evil" will "come forth" (Jno v 29) is not questioned. The point of controversy, the point to be "proved" by the "holy city," will have an "opportunity to believe" and be saved after they are raised." Mr. Russell seems to be laboring under the false idea that the Sodomites were engulfed in death unwarned, and that God unjustly withheld from them an "opportunity"—that if God had only granted them "such a ministry" as Capernaum enjoyed, many of them would have repented and accepted salvation. That they would have repented we grant, for the Lord says so. But the Ninevites repented and yet were lost. Judas repented, yet "went to his own place." Because the Sodomites would have repented is no proof that they would have been saved. God knows the heart; he makes no mistakes. B. C. 605 he had not yet repented that he overthrew the Sodomites. Jer xx 16. And he never will change his mind about this, though Mr. Russell thinks he will.

Leeser's translation of Ezek xvi 55 is, "Sodom and her daughters shall return to their former state." Granting that they are raised from the dead, into what "state" or condition are they introduced? Just the same "state" they were in "former"-ly. They were "extreme" sinners then—Russell writes because they had no "opportunity to believe" then. Yet he quotes this text to prove that when these Sodomites are restored by resurrection they will be better and have better opportunities for salvation than ever they had in their "former state." Logic, art thou gone mad? They are to "come forth" he quotes (Jno v 29); what for? Hesays to be "given an opportunity to believe in the only 'name * * whereby we must be saved,' Acts iv 12." God's Word says: "Unto the resurrection of damnation." Jno v 29. Is it possible that "damnation" is an "opportunity?" Hardly. The "resurrection of damnation" is in contrast to the "resurrection of life." Damnation in opposition to "life" must be death. From such an "opportunity", dear reader, let us pray to be delivered.

What They Think of It?

Dear Bro. Huggins, Your book is of the highest merit.—R. M. Reynolds, Osseo, Wis.

Your book is fine. I have surprised myself selling it. Shall soon send in another order. Kathryn Townsend, Lebanon, Ill.

I think your book is one of the best ones I ever read. It is just the book for those who are seeking the truth. —P. J. Graham, Fredricktown, Mo.

An advertisement of this book appears in another part of our paper. Upon an examination of the book itself we find that fifty-three pages of the first part are devoted to a treatise on the Bible, its teaching and requirements, etc. Also "Fundamental Principles: A Declaration, containing a brief outline or statement of the doctrines most surely believed among us." The balance of the book (250 pages) is occupied with Expositions of Texts and the solving of knotty questions on a great many different subjects.

The author has explained many points; and many things which seemed dark are made clear, and many questions that puzzled those who asked them are well-answered. Of course it would be going a little too far perhaps to say that all the work is complete, as no one man knows everything, but while there is still room to ask more questions, yet there has been a labor performed that will well repay those who invest the sum asked for the book—$1.10. Send to the author. —Thomas Wilson, Editor Last Days.

God's Beautiful Poem.

"FOR WE ARE GOD'S POEM." EPHESIANS II: 10.

Many delightful ideas are obscured by the continual use of a familiar term, and do not appear until the term is etymologically traced. An illustration of this may be seen in the above fraction of a familiar Bible verse. The Greek word for "workmanship" is also the word which gives us the English word "poem." There is something in the term "workmanship" that makes a profound appeal to and impression upon the intellect; but there is something in the term "poem" that appeals to both intellect and emotions. Intellect is cold, the emotional is something warm. There is something delightful in the poetic thought of the text; the writer wishes he were able to make it appear so to others.

First. Poetry springs from love of the beautiful. Of course there is some weird poetry. One may go through the infernal regions with Dante; the melancholy person may go through "The City of the Dreadful Night" with James Thompson, or through the "Vale of Tears" with Jeremiah, but although the image of the poet's thought may be weird, the poem may not lack for the finer qualities or love for the beautiful in the author.

Those who do not regard the world as a gloomy sepulchre of fear, but rather a city of delight, who thank God for the privilege of living these wonderful days, some happier strains, like those, for instance, from Walt Whitman, will be more acceptable:—

"To breathe the air, how delicious!
To speak, to walk, to seize something by the hand!
Oh, contact of things—even the least particle!
To touch, cleave the sun, unbeard or of noon, to anew setting!
To run, climb to the brain and beauty of the earth and all the eyes of the earth!
I praise with electric breath!"

God loves the beautiful: he has "made everything beautiful in his time." He loves Jerusalem, for "beautiful for situation is Mt. Zion, the joy of the whole earth." He loves his servants, for "How beautiful are the feet of those who preach the gospel of peace!"

As the poems of David, Burns, Tennyson or Holmes are the beautiful creation of these men, so the Christian is the beautiful creation of our God who loves the beautiful. To change the figure to another realm of art, just as love for the beautiful makes the task of the sculptor a fascinating engagement, transforming the rough block of marble into angels, heroes, statesmen or representations of other characters of renown, so God loves, perchance more than he does to create worlds, to bring out the most exquisitely beautiful in the contrast of earth's sinful children; and he does.

Transformed, how I love to proclaim it!
Transformed through the blood of the Lamb!
Transformed through his infinite mercy;
His beautiful child I am!

Second. Poetry springs, we say, from a certain love and regard for order. Poetry is an orderly setting of thought, set according to the rules and measurements governing the class of poetry in which those thoughts are expressed. Much license is allowed in the placing of words, and use of nouns and pronouns, but certain rules and measurements are recognized by those who are truly poets. Without this regard and love for order in composition, the poem, if indeed it should chance to be one, might look like anything.

So God loves order. The term for "world" in John iii 16, is cosmos, which means order. Hence, "God so loved order" that he sought to remove the disorderly in men by giving his Son for their redemption. That which was once a perfect poem had been distorted by sin till it had no resemblance of a poem. Poetry aims at the ideal; so God has given to the world his ideal of what man should be. He who is like his Son, is a perfect poem; a poetic gem. Jesus is the strongest illustration of order; sin, the producer of disorder and discord is absent in him.

Third. The poem has a certain purpose. Some poems are of lyric character, and are intended for song. Others are elaborate versifications expressing a variety of sentiment called "odes." These are not intended for song, though "odes" is derived from the Greek word for song. There are elegies and sonnets which are classed as certain kinds of lyrics.

The Christian, God's sweet poem, is no purposeless creation; on the contrary, the exalted purpose of his creation in Christ Jesus, is good works. The writer inclines to think, that the poem that does the most work is the lyric poem, the poem that is set to music; that lifts and brightens, and helps men with its lively, rythmic form and music. Let me think of the Christian as God's sweet lyric poem, set to music, a verse in Jehovah's great oratorio of redemptive creation, are essential parts to his symphony orchestra, whose chief engagement is to show forth the praises of him who has called us out of darkness into the marvellous light.

May we all aspire to be what this little change in the translation of a word may indicate. Such will be a holy and lofty aspiration.—A. H. Ericsson.

Stop That Thought.

It was in your mind all day yesterday and it made you perfectly miserable. Over and over again you passed through all the unpleasant scenes, heard all the cruel words that were spoken, suffered again all the pain and feelings, and succeeded in spoiling the day, unfitting yourself for your work, and destroying all happiness out of your heart. Are you going to continue it all day today, and by so doing waste more of your life in the foolish, if not insane, habit of tormenting yourself now because someone or something made you unhappy in the past?

That thought has no more right in your mind than a bug has in your parlor, or a black snake has in your bedroom. You may think you cannot stop it, but you can, as it is only a bad habit you have fallen into, and you must break it, or it will break you. You must get the mastery of your own mind, and the control of your own thought, and, while it will be the hardest battle you will ever have to fight, it will be the most glorious victory you will ever win.

Our Mail Bag.

Editor Huggins:

I read with much interest your comment in THE RESTITUTION, on 1 Peter iii: 18-21. For years that Scripture has been a puzzle, especially to our people, as there has been column after column written upon it, yet no one seems settled. Now let me offer a word or two upon that text. Suppose you begin to read at verse 18, and stop reading at the word "disobedient" in verse 20. Suppose the 19th and 20th verses were divided right here. That is, instead of the 19th verse being, "In prison," it ended at "sometimes disobedient." Now turn back to Mark i, begin reading at 21st verse and read to the 27th inclusive, noting especially verse 27. Do you not get the idea that the doctrine mentioned had something to do with Jesus' preaching; now turn to Mark v, begin 1st verse, read to verse 8, noting especially verses 3-5, and I ask, What kind of a Spirit was this; "obedient or disobedient?" Now go to 1st Peter iii, read verses 18, 19, and stop at the word "disobedient," and what does it look like to you, and what has Noah and the ark and the figure of baptism to do with the spirits in prison?

To make my meaning clearer: If it only read or rather was punctuated; verse 18, For Christ hath once suffered for sins. The just for the unjust that he might bring us to God being put to death in the flesh but quickened by the Spirit. V. 19, By which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison which sometimes were disobedient. Now verse 20. It looks to me if we rightly divide the Word of Truth there need be no confusion and so many explanations on the spirits in prison. What think you?

I shall be glad to see my letter in THE RESTITUTION.

Yours in the work.

O. J. ALLARD.

Excerpts.

HOW THE IMMORTALITY OF THE SOUL CAME INTO THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH AND CHANGED THE WHOLE FORM OF BELIEF.

Early in the second century, Clement of Rome (he is classed by the papacy to have been one of the early popes) wrote in what is called his second epistle "And let not any one among you say that this flesh is not judged neither raised up. Consider in what were ye saved in what did ye look up if not while ye were in the flesh? We must therefore keep our flesh as the temple of God. For in like manner as ye were called in the flesh, ye shall also come to judgment in this flesh receive the reward. Let us love one another, that we may attain unto the kingdom of God..... Wherefore let us every hour expect the kingdom of God in love and of righteousness; because we know not the day of God's appearing."

Gnosticism was however spreading rapidly in the second century and we find Ignatius combating it in many of his epistles to the Smyrnians. He says "Now all these things Jesus suffered for us that we might be saved. And he suffered truly, as he also truly was raised up and not as some unbelievers say that he only seemed to suffer, they themselves only seeming to be. And as they believe, so shall it happen unto them when being divested of the body they shall become mere spirits." In Cheetham History of the Christian church he says, Many, perhaps most of the early Christians regarded the second coming of Christ and his final victory over all that opposed, as rapidly approaching, and to most of these the coming of the Lord presented itself in the form of Chiliasm, the expectation of a thousand years reign of the Redeemer, with his risen and glorified saints, upon the earth, as a preparation for the final consummation of all things.

Probably the contest against gnosticism tended to strengthen the belief in a material aspect of the kingdom of God which the gnostics denied..... At the end of the second century these opinions, when they were propagated at Rome by Cerinthus were strongly opposed by Caius the presbyter.

In Alexandria they met still more vigorous opposition, and under the great influence of Origen came to be regarded at any rate as fanatical, if not heretical."

As Origen played the most important part in moulding our so called Orthodox Christianity, it may be valuable to give some account of the man and his doings and belief. Chambers' Encyclopedia says in part of him "Origen called Adamantios or Chalcenteros, both epithets expressive of his liveliness of purpose and iron assiduity—one of the most eminent of the early Christian writers, the father of biblical criticism and exegesis, was born 185. A. D. at Alexandria, where his father Leonidis seems to have held some superior office in the church. Origen received a most liberal education. While at an early age, he was instructed in Hellenic science and art, the teachings of Christianity were instilled into his mind by men like Pantaenus and Clemens of Alexandria."

These two teachers were both leaders in the mode of interpreting Scripture allegorically, and were the founders of the Alexandrian school of theology which aimed at the reconciliation of Christianity with philosophy, and a pretty mess they made of the Bible as we will see.

Professor Schaff says, The Alexandrian theology is intellectual, profound, stirring and full of fruitful germs of thought, but rather unduly idealistic and spiritualistic, and in exegesis, loses itself in arbitrary allegorical fancies. In its efforts to reconcile revelation and philosophy, it took up, like Philo, many foreign elements, especially of the Platonic and gnostic stamp, and wandered into views that a later and more orthodox, but more narrow-minded and less productive age condemned as heresies, not appreciating the immortal service of the school to its own and after times.

Origen's fame survives for all time as the father of that Bible criticism which is the scientific foundation of [illegible] truth.....Also in regard to [illegible] of the divinity of Christ, though he powerfully supported it, and was the first to teach expressly the eternal generation of the Son."

Well might Irenus say of his day (the end of the second century) that gnosticism sprung up like mushrooms out of the ground.

These are some of the things that Origen taught according to C. Robertson, M. A. Canon of Canterbury, and professor of ecclesiastical history in Kings College, London. "Origen taught that the number of souls originally created was final, there had been no addition to it; but the same souls continually reappeared in an endless variety of forms. All were at first perfect and well endowed with freedom of will. By abuse of this they contracted a guilt which required purgation, hence the worlds were created that the beings who had sinned might be awakened to a sense of their estrangement from God, and a craving after blessedness that they might be purified through conflict for restoration to their first estate. The disobedient souls were treated according to the measure of their offense. Those who had least sinned became angels, living in the planets, and occupied in works of ministry for men, the worst of all became devils, while for such as were confined in bodies of flesh, the whole complication of their being and circumstances was arranged in proportion as they had sinned more or less grievously. Some however were plunged deeper than the degree of their guilt deserved in order that they might help in the instruction and deliverance of their fellows, and thus Origen supposed that the death of a righteous man may have a redeeming effect for others.....He allowed Adam to be a historical person, the first of the sinful spirits who was embodied in the flesh, but like Philo he regarded the history of the fall as an allegory. One soul only there was which had not sinned. This by continual contemplation of the Divine Logos had adhered to him, or been absorbed in him, and thus had made the way for that union of Godhead with a material body, which but for such a medium would have been impossible.

He considered the death on the cross as representing something which is spiritually repeated in the higher world, and which has its effect toward the deliverance of the angels. All punishment he holds is merely corrective and remedial, being ordained in order that all creatures may be restored to their original perfection.

In the resurrection all mankind will have to pass through a fire, the purged spirits will enter into paradise, a place of training for the consummation; the wicked will remain in the fire, which however is not described as material, but as a mental and spiritual misery. But the condition of these spirits is not without hope, although thousands of years may elapse before their sufferings shall have wrought its due effect on them.....Every reasoning creature, even Satan himself may be turned from evil to good so as not to be excluded from salvation. At the final consummation the soul will dwell in a glorified organ, the germ is in the present body."

We see in this belief of Origen the germs of nearly our modern theology. Origen was the main leader in the beginning of the third century in destroying the truth taught in the Scriptures, by his great ability and determination he rendered it out where ever he could find it, and set up this allegorical system of expounding the Scriptures, by which method and system any belief can be got out of it.

OUR BOOK FUND.

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." Psalm xli 1-4.

The amount set opposite our names is to help Bro. Robt. G. Huggins supply the worthy poor with "The Bible: Its Principles and Texts." For this purpose the book is to be sold at the reduced price of 85 cents per copy.

Married.

The marriage of Mr. Daniel Icely of Leaf River, Illinois, to Miss Emma D. Lindsay of Oregon, was solemnized by the writer Tuesday morning, June 7, 1910. Owing to the serious illness of the bride's father, Brother T. H. Hadsay, the ceremony took place at my home in the presence of Miss Lily Lindsay, the bride's sister, and Mr. Earl Koontz of Adeline.

Mr. Icely is a highly respected and energetic gentleman, and his wife is possessed of that Christian faith and character that insures for them a happy and prosperous future.

We extend to them both our heartiest congratulations.

Evil Speaking.

The subject of evil speaking covers a broad field. I wish to mention one phase at this time. Evil surmising gives birth to evil speaking. Do not give place to thoughts of this kind. There are people who perhaps have been accustomed to burning wood all their lives, for they seem to enjoy raking over the old dying embers and starting a blaze if possible. Such people are sometimes very annoying in the church or community and are capable of doing much mischief.

If you have this habit, stop it at once. It is not Christlike, and God's Word speaks strongly against it. There is nothing more contemptible than to bring up unpleasant things of the past about a person, and to be continually throwing out something detrimental to them. Learn to say only kind and good things. If you can't do this, pray for the grace of silence and "keep your mouth as with a bit and bridle."

I would not be willing to trust a person who is always willing, and seemingly glad, to tell some bad thing about another they may know, or perhaps don't know and have only heard. If there are sores and wounds use some healing balm, but don't knock off the scab and irritate.—H. Alonzo Mitchell.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

A LETTER TO A FRIEND.

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1859. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

WE wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not a subscriber, tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth one paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1.00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, and we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

BROTHER, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to THE RESTITUTION for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of twelve articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton; Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $2.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

Works of Bro. Wiley Jones.

TWELVE WORDS, or the true meaning of Hell, Soul, Spirit, Ghost, Paradise, Incorruption, Incorruptible, Immortal, Immortality, Forever, Everlasting, Eternal, and their originals as learned by their uses in the Bible. A tract of 40 pages, sold formerly at 10 cents a copy.

THE GOSPEL OF THE KINGDOM, an 8 page, double column tract, sold formerly at 10 cents a dozen.

These works are excellent for use by those who wish to do missionary labor, and we offer them at such a low price that they should be out in a short time.

Assorted package 80 cents per pound. Gospel of the Kingdom, alone at 25 cents per pound.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office, as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Brethren, this whole edition of this work ought to be in the hands of the readers in the next sixty days, and if proper energy is used this will be accomplished. Send orders in this very day.

SOWING SEED.

I recently was informed of a lady who has been brought to a knowledge and obedience of the faith by handing her one of those small tracts offering "Five hundred dollars reward" to a person finding certain pulpit phrases, which most people suppose are in the Bible

This lady felt certain that she could find them, and so took her Bible and concordance, and searched diligently in order to find them. She failed to find them, but found in their place, the Pearl of Great Price, which was much better.

The following publications are doing much to enlighten the people:

The Restitution.

"THE RESTITUTION OF ALL THINGS WHICH GOD HATH SPOKEN BY THE MOUTH OF ALL HIS HOLY PROPHETS."

VOLUME LIX. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 6, 1910. NUMBER 25.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortalsaints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance, and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, prerequisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

A Song of Rest.

O weary hands, that all the day
Were set to labor hard and long,
Now softly fall the shadows gray,
The bells are ring for even song.
An hour ago the golden sun
Sank slowly down into the west.
Peace, weary hands, your toil is done:
'Tis time for rest! 'tis time for rest!

O weary feet that [illegible]
Have trudged along a stony way,
At last ye reach the lily-strewn isle
No longer fear to go astray.
The gentle herding, resting free
Rock the young lambs within the nest,
And softly rings the spirit bell:
"'Tis time for rest! 'tis time for rest!"

O weary eyes from which the tears
Fell many a time like a thunder shower,
O weary heart that through the years
Bent with such bitter [illegible] pain,
At close of race forget the strife
And know what heaven's Lord was best.
Now cast on him the cares of life
And find sweet rest—and find sweet rest.

The Seed of Abraham not Counted.

The subject of the seed is one of great importance. There are two seeds. The one counted, and the one not counted.

Abraham was counted righteous because of his faith. When he was called to go into a strange country he with his family went. He came into the land of Canaan. There the Lord God made a covenant with Abraham. He promised him an inheritance in the land and everlasting life. It was years before Abraham learned to understand the full meaning of this promise.

He knew that the promise was sure, but just how it was to be accomplished was not certain. Abraham seemed to be impatient about its fulfillment and suggested to the Lord, that, "One born in his house was his heir." Jehovah's time had not yet come to reveal the means by which that seed should be promised. Abraham's faith was on trial. So far he had been faithful. He was informed that the seed must be of his own body. He must wait patiently. Again he becomes impatient and takes Hagar as his wife. This suggestion was received by Sarah. The result was the birth of Ishmael. They thought now that the promise was sure. The seed through which the promise was to come was now produced.

Their impatience led them to commit an error. The promptings of the flesh has a tendency to lead us astray. We are commanded to walk not after the flesh, but after the spirit. The Lord had not appeared unto Abram since he was told that the seed should be of his body. The birth of Ishmael was to Abraham and Sarah the fulfillment of this promise.

In due time Abraham was visited by the Lord who revealed to him that Sarah was to be the mother of that seed and not Hagar. God said to Abraham concerning Sarah, I will bless her and give thee a son also of her. Yea I will bless her and she shall be a mother of nations; kings and people shall be of her. My covenant will I establish with Isaac whom Sarah shall bear unto thee. It was said, "In Isaac shall thy seed be called."

In tracing this seed through the prophets, we find it to be Jesus, the Christ. Through him is promised eternal life to the spiritual seed through the resurrection. And they shall be kings and priests unto God, and they shall reign on the earth. They will be the princes who shall rule in judgment.

There is another seed that will be counted worthy of an inheritance in the land as subjects. They too must be counted through Isaac. They will be gathered from among the nations and planted in their land and shall not be rooted up again. Their inheritance will be an everlasting one because they are beloved of the Father. There will be a remnant of Israel saved as there will be the "saved of the nations." Both will be honored subjects in the kingdom of the future. In this age Jehovah is calling out of the nations a people for his name. These will be the rulers in that kingdom. In the age to come God will arrange for the subjects of that kingdom.

Let us preach the gospel that Paul declares is the power of God unto every one that believeth. Let us recognize the call for this age. Our title implies that there is a seed not counted. This seed was not promised eternal life. Their inheritance was of a temporal character.

Abraham was greatly grieved when he learned that Ishmael could not inherit that blessing promised to his seed. Abraham said unto God, O that Ishmael might live before thee! Then Jehovah said, As for Ishmael, I have heard thee. Behold I have blessed him and I will make him fruitful, and will multiply him exceedingly; twelve princes shall he beget and I will make him a great nation.

Again he said, Because the son of the bondwoman is thy seed, I will make him a great nation. We must observe that this promise did not include the blessings of all nations. Only that he should become a great nation. The only blessing promised to this seed was of a temporal nature. The resurrection unto eternal life can only come through the Isaac seed. Ishmael and his posterity could only possess the land during their natural life. They were flesh.

The Psalmist says that they were flesh; a wind (spirit) that passeth away and cometh not again. They were dust and returned to dust again. We find another seed of Abraham that is not counted. Even the son of Isaac and the grandson of Abraham was given the earthly blessing. According to the law he would inherit the spiritual blessing. Jehovah purposed otherwise. Paul states that God made the choice before the sons were born. That the purpose of God according to election might stand not of works, but of him that calleth.

Esau sold his birthright for a mess of pottage. Paul called him a profane person. The blessing given to Esau was but a temporal one. He was to rule in the land and not to bless nations. Isaac said, Thou shalt live by thy sword and shalt serve thy brother. To Jacob he said, Let peoples serve thee and nations bow down to thee, be lord over thy brethren and let thy mother's sons bow down to thee. One ruler as a temporal ruler, the other as a universal ruler over the entire earth. Jacob is of the Isaac seed. Abraham's seed by Keturah is of the seed not counted.

In comparing Exodus iii. 6 with Luke xx. 36 to 38, we learn that the resurrection was promised to Abraham and his seed through Isaac. Christ was the first fruit of that resurrection. Afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming.

Therefore we believe that the scriptures plainly teach the resurrection to eternal life of the Isaac seed. The resurrection cannot apply to those not counted. This includes the Abrahamic seed above mentioned; also the nations with whom Jehovah never made a covenant. He has used them as instruments to further his purpose.

From the nations He is choosing out a people for his name. Those who have apostatized will be raised into condemnation. The balance of the race are of the dust. They have no promise of a resurrection.

Your brother of the Isaac seed,
D. C. ROBISON.

The Future of Our Bible School.

The Bible School work in Indiana is just beginning to be understood by our people. They are just beginning to realize the importance and need of it. I, myself have never realized its worth before. This, the fifth annual school is the first one I have attended from beginning to end. I had thought before that it was impossible for me to do so, but now I can see that my interest had not been fully aroused. The attendance this year increased so much over that of last year, that the committee in charge was surprised and greatly encouraged.

Everything moved off in the most satisfactory manner. Our young people are willing to be taught and ready to take up any work assigned to them when once enlisted in the cause and shown that we are interested in their spiritual welfare. The growth of this work demands that we begin now to lay plans for better accommodations in coming years.

Brother Lindsay stated at the close of the school, that he had enjoyed th[illegible] year's work more than on any [illegible] vious occasion in Indiana. He also stated, as a means of encouraging us to still greater efforts in the work, that he had a vision of a small tract of land just outside of town, shaded, and bordering on the river, on which were located an assembly hall, and another commodious building, with cooking, eating and sleeping apartments.

If our brethren would make this thing a reality, he would do all the teaching, which we invited him to do, free of charges until we were out of debt on the undertaking. Of course we should not permit Brother Lindsay to make such a sacrifice as this. He has already made more sacrifices for the cause than many of us understand or appreciate.

But his willingness to do so should be a strong inducement for us to put forth our best efforts in this our most effective means of teaching and spreading the Gospel.

I believe that we, as a church organization in Indiana, are abundantly able to enter immediately into this project. And I also believe that our brethren who have been blessed with this world's goods are willing to give freely in th[illegible]pport of this work when they once understand the need and know that there is judicious management at its head.

Those who have given the plan any thought, think it an excellent idea, and some have expressed a willingness to donate work on the construction of the necessary buildings. Let all who are in any way interested in the matter communicate with Sister Phebe Willey of Plymouth. If you have any good suggestions to make send them in, but don't, please don't, say discouraging things.

Your sister in Christ,
EMMA C. RAILSBACK.

Prayer.

"Ask, and it shall be given you; seek and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you." Matt. vii. 7.

This is the injunction, also the assurance of the Master in the greatest of all sermons, his Sermon on the Mount. David comforted himself in God's preservation of him, and the confusion of his enemies, saying in Psalms lv. 17, "Evening and morning and at noon will I pray, and cry aloud; and he shall hear my voice." So also may we seek the Lord in prayer, and like David have perfect assurance that he will hear us and answer our prayer.

"Now we know that God heareth not sinners; but if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth." St. John ix. 31. God sees and hears us as he did our Master when he prayed for the power that he might raise Lazarus. However Jesus prayed that those about him might witness his power was from the Father. We in our humble station may not receive direct answer as did Jesus, but many times our prayer is answered in such a way that we are unable to discern it.

We are also told in Matthew vi. 6, "When thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret, and thy Father which seest in secret shall reward thee openly." Jesus bade his disciples to go into a ship and go away to the other side of the water, while he sent the multitude away; then he went up into the mountain, and when he was alone he prayed to the Father.

I Thessalonians v. 17-18: "Pray without ceasing. In everything give thanks, for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."

ESTHER MCCHESNEY.

The Bereans Column.

THE LAND OF PROMISE.

Dear Bereans:

The Abrahamic promise involves one of the most important themes of the Bible. It is God's plan of salvation and is the only unconditional promise ever made. The Lord God [illegible] Arise, walk through the land [illegible] thine eyes and look from the place where thou art, northward and southward and eastward and westward. For all the land that thou seest, to thee will I give it and to thy seed forever." Gen xiii. 14-16.

This same promise was renewed to Isaac and Jacob—direct seed of Abraham. Gen xvi. 1-5 and Gen xxviii. 10-15. Now these were the promises of the land of Canaan made to Abraham and his seed. Are these promises fulfilled; and if they are not, do they concern us in the least? Let us see; in the seventh chapter of Acts, Stephen, in addressing the men, brethren, and fathers at Jerusalem, spake of the promise made unto the fathers (third verse). Also he says, "he gave him no inheritance in it, no not so much as to set his foot on, yet he promised that he would give it to him for a possession and to his seed after him." Acts vii. 5. Are his seed now dwelling in the land? It is a desert land, and the Jews are scattered all over the world. Amos ix 8-9. Though they are scattered, not the least grain shall be lost "and so shall all Israel be saved." Rom xi 26. "And they shall seek the Lord their God, and David, their king and his goodness in the latter-day." Hos iii 5.

"And so that Abraham should be heir of the world, was not to Abraham or to his seed through the law, but through the righteousness of faith. For if they which are of the law be heirs, faith is made void, and the promise of none effect." But it is of faith that it might be of grace that the promise might be made sure to the end to all seed. Rom iv 13-17.

Abel, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Sarah, Enoch, Moses. "All these died through faith not having received the promise, God having provided a better way that they without us might not be made perfect." The Gentiles have a part in this promise through the obedience of faith by adoption into Christ.

"Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not and to seeds as of many but as of one and to thy seed, which is Christ." Then Jesus was the one, long-waited seed of Abraham, who confirmed or made sure the promise made unto the fathers, through his resurrection from the dead. And this covenant which was confirmed before of God in Christ; the law, which was four hundred and thirty years after; cannot disannul that it should make the promise of none effect. For if the inheritance were of the law it would no more be of promise, but God gave it to Abraham by promise.

The law was added because of transgression till the seed should come to whom the promise was made. Then the law was not against the promise of God, for if there had been a law given, which could have given life, righteousness would have been the result.

The law was then the schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ. "The scriptures hath concluded all under sin, that the promise by faith of Jesus Christ might be given them that believe. We are no longer under the schoolmaster. For we are children of God by faith in Christ Jesus." Gal iii 25 26.

"For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond or free, there is neither male or female, for ye are all one in Christ Jesus. Gal iii 27.

Now let us suppose Abraham received the promise, what good does it do us to put on Christ, for if we are not baptized into Christ, then we have not put on Christ. Remember that ye being in time past, Gentiles in the flesh, who are called uncircumcision by that which is called the circumcision in the flesh made by hands that at that time ye were without Christ being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers from the covenant of promise having no hope and without God in the world. Know ye not that so many of us as are baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death. Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life, and if we be Christ's, then are we Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise.

Therefore the promises to Abraham are essential. They are the foundation principles of salvation, and if we are not adopted into them, then we are not heirs, having no hope and without God in the world.

Yours in the "Berean Work," ALMA ROOSE.

REPENTANCE.

To repent means to be sorry; that is, sorry for our sins. Therefore to repent means that our sins should be blotted out. Acts ii. 38, "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of the Lord Jesus for the remission of sins." Then if we repent, according to Scripture we must be baptized, which means the washing away of our sins. When we have once repented of our sins we should try to bring others to a knowledge of the truth. Matthew iii. 8. Christ says "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance."

NINA FISH.

Dear Bereans:

We should be very careful not to leave the things God has promised us on conditions slip our memory. "Therefore we ought to give the earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip." Heb ii 1.

If we strive daily to do our best, we will be given our reward. It is so easy to let worldly cares come into our lives crowding out the time we should give to the study of God's word, and when once begun, how easy to slip away from the study to worldly pleasure.

Let us not be like the man who built his house on the sand for "the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell; and great was the fall of it." Matt vii 27; but let us build on Christ, the solid rock. Then when trouble and sorrow come, we will be safe. "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." 2 Tim ii 15.

"Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises; that by these ye may be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world thru lust." "And besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virture knowledge." "And to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience, and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity."

"For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ." 2 Pet i 4-8. "Then let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; (for he is faithful that promised.)" Heb x 23.

ALMEDA C. N. WERTZ.

AN OPEN DOOR.

"I have set before thee an open door." Rev iii 8. This is the Lord's message to you. Behold I stand at the door and knock. If any man hear my voice and open the door I will come unto him, and will sup with him, and he with me. Rev iii 20.

Here we have an opportunity for companionship with Christ. The highest honor awaits those who open the door for the Royal Guest. I am the door; by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out and find pasture. John x 9.

This is an invitation to enter the fold where there is food and shelter. Jesus is a door. The voice of Christ has brought hope to every heart and we can sing for gladness because of the hope within us. Now is the accepted time to enter into the open door. Now is the day of Salvation. God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son. That whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life. John iii 16.

MRS. EMMA ICELY.

A Tribute to Hattie J Ford.

Some loving memories that cluster around her life and mine, and the earliest organization of our little Church at Dixon, Illinois.

My first recollection is of myself, a tiny girl, and my older friend, dear Hattie, busy about our childhood plays and interests, and always having dear, kind Sister Anderson—Hattie's mother—among us dispensing her cheerful words, pretty cakes and toys to delight us, and leave a fragrant memory for after years. My precious mother was with us then. At that time Brother H. V. Reed came to Dixon to preach, a little Unitarian church received him and the congregation that came to hear. I can still see him going about with his Bible always under his arm, and the genial smile, the pleasing personality that charmed us all. He said "The gospel in its purity has never been preached in Dixon." Those who heard him were interested and aroused and a number were immersed, of whom a number have fallen asleep, faithful to the last, sustained by an unfaltering trust in the promises of God. Dear Sister Anderson was intensely interested, and every night I went to keep Hattie company, while she and some of the neighbors, Sister Lizzie Brookner among them, went to the hall to feast—on the good things, the precious bread of life. Of course she was among the first to obey and her husband shortly after. From these dear ones Hattie learned the blessed truths of the gospel and in time became obedient. Hattie and I were much to each other. Together we talked about the deep truths of God's Word, and now, I seem to hear you say "Oh, Allie, I would like to live always. How much I long for eternal life." Your wish seemed, above all things, to live eternally in God's kingdom, and as your son Harry expressed it, you wanted to be like the perennial plants, you will always live in our memories, you were so kind to me and how I shall miss your dear presence in the hospitable home to which you ever welcomed me; but Hattie is not there now, she is sleeping peacefully awaiting the summons of our Heavenly King.

ALICE KERR.

Obituary.

At Winchester, Va., May 9th, 1910, Brother Stanley Anderson fell asleep in Jesus, aged twenty-one years, six months and fifteen days.

He, like the youthful Timothy, revered the Scriptures; and with the help of a pious mother early learned the truth as it is in Jesus. Wishing to become obedient, his desire was made known to Elder J. D. Boyer of Woodstock, who came a distance of 30 miles to answer his request. In the Opequan, on September 3d last, he baptized him into the name that saves.

His piety and devotion to the cause of truth, as well as his upright moral character won for him the love and esteem of all who knew him; especially those who knew him best.

Funeral services were conducted at the home of his sister, Mrs. Hamilton, with whom he had made his home for some time, by Bro. H. V. Reed of Chicago, who was visiting and preaching for the Church of God in Christ Jesus in the valley. Interment in Mt. Hebron.

E. R. BOYER.

Our neighbor's faults are magnified seven fold, but as to our own shortcomings we cannot see them with a microscope.

JOSEPH H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD.

Plymouth, Indiana, July 6, 1910.

Word has been received here saying Brother T. H. Lindsay, the father of Brother S. J. Lindsay, died at Oregon, Illinois, on June 24. An obituary will appear later.

On June 25 a baby boy was born to the wife of Brother R. G. Huggins, of Cleveland, Ohio. This may be one reason for not supplying any copy for "Ebenezer" this week.

The continued hot weather of the past few weeks has not had a good effect on Brother J. L. Wince, but has rather tended to weaken him than to build up. We hope he will soon take a turn the other way, and be able to visit the churches again.

On July 1, 1910, official notice was given by the Japanese government that Port Arthur is an open commercial port, ready for the trade of the world. On the same date the statement is made that at an early date Japan will annex Corea.

Among the out of the state friends who attended the Bible School this year, we want to mention Sister D. K. Lehman and her two daughters, Mrs. Brewer and Miss Ethel. These Sisters are members of the Brush Creek, Ohio, Church, and came in time for the conference and school both. We enjoyed their company very much and say, Come again, our home is open for you always.

During the week of the Bible School at Plymouth, it was our pleasure to have with us Brother and Sister E. F. Randolph of Oklahoma, and their daughter Mrs. G. W. Long of Texas. They had been east visiting, Sister Randolph being a sister in the flesh of Sister Nancy Robison, of Salem, Ohio. On their way home they stopped off and visited the school. We hope they will come again when there is more opportunity for home association, that we may get better acquainted. You will be welcome any time to our homes.

When but a boy the Editor was acquainted with Miss Mary Page of Illinois, who afterward became the wife of our lamented Brother John W. Appleyard. They moved later to Iowa, and it has been long years since we met, though correspondence has kept memory green. The years have put wrinkles in our faces and whitened the hair on our heads. On Tuesday last week, Sister Appleyard, in company with her daughter, Sister Longlager, passed through Plymouth, and we visited for a few moments as the train stopped at the station. The meeting though brief brought a flood of memories more or less pleasant, and other days are remembered and other faces pictured before us. Many of the company of young folks of that time are now sleeping; all are scattered to the ends of the earth. There will soon be a gathering day, and our prayer is that each life will be such that the band can meet unbroken in the resurrection morning when Jesus comes and the angel calls the sleepers and the living are changed.

While at the Antioch Conference over the 2nd Sunday in June of this year, Brother L. M. Howell had his camera, taking pictures for his own collection, and on Sunday morning he got a very good view of the Meeting House. He gave the film to us, and we have had a cut made which we give to our readers this week. This old church has stood for some forty-six years, and has become an historic spot. A very few of those who aided in its construction were at the annual gathering this year, and should the Lord delay his coming for a few years the last one will have succumbed to the power of the enemy. Among this number and present this year we note Brother William Railsback, of Argos, who at the time ran a saw mill and made the lumber for the building; and Sister Amanda Thompson, of Plymouth, who then lived near and boarded the men who constructed the building. Many who have attended meetings at this place will be interested in the picture, and we are glad to give so good a view of it. On the 2d Sunday in June each year this Church is the scene of a great gathering of people from various points, and as it is in the country, every livery rig in the adjacent towns is engaged weeks in advance for this meeting. Of course many go for a good time and to visit, but at the Communion Service Sunday afternoon some over three hundred partook.

The question of the objectionable expressions in the oath taken by the king of England at his coronation, which has been an offense to the twelve millions of Catholic subjects of the crown, has been settled. The House of Commons on June 28, voted by 383 to 42 to alter the form. The old oath declared the sovereign did not believe in the doctrine of transubstantiation, and denounced the adoration of the Virgin Mary or any other saint, as is practiced by the Church of Rome, as superstition and idolatry. There has been an objection to the oath since king Edward took the throne, and nearly all the Protestant members have asked was that in the proposed change it be so fixed as to secure Protestant succession to the throne. The argument made by some who favored doing away with the declaration altogether was that there were already three distinct statutory safeguards for Protestant succession. But the change as voted on this particular reads as follows:—"I do solemnly and sincerely and in the presence of God profess, testify, and declare that I am a faithful member of the Protestant Reformed Church, by law established in England, and I will according to the true intent of the enactments which secure Protestant succession to the throne of my realm, uphold and maintain said enactments to the best of my power, according to law."

Conference Report.

The Third Quarterly Conference of the Churches of God in Illinois was held with the Camden church at the Hale Ridge School House in Schuyler County, June 25 and 26, 1910.

Brothers G. Eldred Marsh, William Hardesty and Sister Grace Williams of Oregon Illinois, were present, also Sister Anna Drew of Dixon, Ill.

The meeting was well attended, members being present from the following places, Macomb, Kewanee, Vermont and Ripley.

Brother Marsh delivered three beautiful sermons which were greatly appreciated by all who were present. We certainly enjoyed the Brothers and Sisters being with us for the two days, and yet our hearts were sad because of the absence of Brother S. J. Lindsay, who was unable to be present, owing to the serious illness and death of his father, T. H. Lindsay. Brother Lindsay has the heartfelt sympathy of the Brethren and Sisters of this place, in the sad hour of his bereavement.

Brother Marsh departed early Monday morning for Oregon, to attend the funeral. Brother Hardesty left for St. Louis to visit his brother. The Sister left for Ripley, Sunday afternoon for a few days visit at that place. May God's rich blessing be with us all until we meet again.

A Cure for the Blues.

If you have the 'blues' read the twenty-seventh Psalm.

If your pocketbook is empty read the thirty-seventh Psalm.

If people seem unkind to you read the fifteenth chapter of St. John.

If you are discouraged about your work read the one hundred and twenty-sixth Psalm.

If you are 'all out of sorts,' read the twelfth chapter of Hebrews.

If you are losing confidence in men, read the thirteenth chapter of 1 Corinthians.

If you cannot have your way in every thing, read the third chapter of St. James.

A Creed for the Discouraged

I believe that God created me to be happy and to enjoy life.

I believe that the trials which beset me to-day are but the tests by which my character is strengthened and made worthy to enjoy the higher things of life.

I believe that I am the architect of my own fate; therefore,

I will not yield to discouragements; I will trample them under foot and make them serve as stepping-stones to success. I will conquer my obstacles and turn them into opportunities.

I will not waste my mental energies by useless worry. I will learn to dominate my restless thoughts and look on the bright side of things.

The morrow will bring new strength, new hopes, new opportunities and new beginnings. I will be ready to meet it with a brave heart, a calm mind and an undaunted spirit. In all things I will do my best and leave the rest to the Infinite.—Virginia Myers.

Favor is deceitful and beauty is vain, but a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised.—Proverbs.

In Memoriam.

Deeper than all other mysteries is the mystery of life, grander than all other opportunities is the opportunity of living, and sadder than all other things is the sadness of death; but greater than all other blessings is the blessing of a glorious resurrection.

The great stream of life, however peacefully its currents may flow, sooner or later must succumb to the arch-enemy and be swallowed up by the grave. Into the dark regions of corruption and decay all creation is doomed to pass; but great praises be to God, for he has shown us light beyond this horror of great darkness, "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead." 1 Cor. xv. 21.

Just as the evening sun was bidding farewell to the 18th day of April, 1910, death claimed for its own the life of Virginia Catharine Boyer. This was indeed a sad occasion of mourning in the home of George Alva and Mary Susan Boyer, of Woodstock Virginia. Their [illegible] the fullbloom of [illegible] is laid away in the vault to await the sounding of the last trumpet when the dead in Christ shall rise to meet the Lord in the air.

Our loved cousin and sister in Christ was born March 11th, 1878. On reaching a comparatively early but mature age she was immersed into the all saving name of Jesus, and united with the little flock of the Church of God in the Valley of Virginia. Her love for the truth was strong and abiding. This was especially manifest in her conversation during the last lingering days of her illness. She requested her parents to have her music Professor play "Asleep in Jesus" on her piano just before leaving home for burial, and also to prevent the popular orthodox views concerning the death state from being voiced in any obituary which might be written for the county newspapers. After the funeral services in the Christian Church she was laid to rest in the family vault in the Woodstock Cemetery. She is gone from us. We who are left to bow our heads in grief have had an example of a sweet, patient, lovable Sister to emulate, and may it be our happy lot to meet her again on the resurrection morning.

Oh, loved and lost, and yet not lost,
But calmly resting in the tomb,
Till Jesus calls his blessed host
From dust to share immortal bloom

Oh Sister dear, thou wast so pure,
Fitted to dwell in regions bright.
Where gates are gold, and streets are pearl,
Surrounded by the saints in light.

Oh hasten Lord, the changing years,
When sorrows shall forever cease,
No more for loved ones the briny tears
Shall flow; but calm in sweet peace.

Announcement.

Editor Restitution:

Please announce in The Restitution that the Annual Conference of Iowa will convene August 20-28 inclusive, at Waterloo, Iowa. Programme will appear later.

Yours in the truth,
O. J. Allard.

The Annual Conference of the Church of God in Ohio will be held August 17 to 21 inclusive in the new church 10623 Lee Ave. Cleveland, Ohio.

The church is located in the East end of the city near East 105 Street, a short distance from the street cars.

Please communicate with the Pastor R. G. Huggins and arrangements will be made to meet you at the Depot.

The program will appear later.

J. C. Thompson, Sec.

The next Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus of the State of Illinois will be held in Oregon, beginning Wednesday, August 17 and continuing over Sunday the 21.

This Conference will follow immediately the annual Bible School conducted at that place.

We are expecting a greater meeting than ever before. Come.

Emma L. Smith, Sec.

The precept, "Watch" bids us act as if salvation must be accomplished by ourselves; the precept, "Pray," as if that salvation would be accomplished entirely by God. Both are essential. To watch and not pray would imply that without divine help we can ourselves secure the victory. To pray and not to watch would imply that we expect God to crown us without any conflict. Watching without praying is sinful pride.—Newman Hall.

Brother, if you have not yet renewed your subscription to The Restitution for this year, will you please do so now? We thank you for the favor.

Peter's Confession. Matt. xvi. 13-28

Golden Text.—"Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Matthew xvi. 16.

As we have learned in past lessons, the Jewish authorities were finding fault with Jesus, and endeavoring to trap him. He had warned his disciples to beware of the leaven or doctrine of the Pharisees, as the false teaching of this sect would change all truth, and make it a lie. Jesus then leads his followers away from this contention and strife, across to the east side of the Jordan, and up into the region of the Lebanons, where they can be alone and talk over matters. The time of his work with them was getting short, as this is about six months before his crucifixion, and he had many things to tell them.

From Luke ix. 18 we find that this conference with the disciples was preceded, as on other occasions, by Jesus resorting to private prayer. His followers are now to get a nearer view of his nature, to learn more of who he really is, and to bring this out the question is asked "Whom say the people that I am?"

In one of our lessons of the quarter past, we had it that Herod regarded Jesus as being John the Baptist raised from the dead, and this belief had gained ground, but others said he was Elias—Elijah—who was to be the forerunner of the Messiah, and others said he was Jeremiah or one of the old prophets risen again.

The next question—"Whom say ye that I am?" was designed to bring out their ideas. Were they influenced by these varying opinions as to his nature? How do you who have been with me so far in my work, and witnessed the power manifested in me, seen the wonders and miracles—what do you think of me? Who do you say I am?

As usual Peter's impulsive nature makes him the spokesman. He is a man of quick insight, and ever ready to respond. His answer is "The Christ of God," the Anointed One, Messiah—the Messiah for whose coming the Jews looked and prayed. They do not recognize you, but we do, and declare that you are the very Christ—"the Son of the living God." We see you as the Savior of the world, the Redeemer, the Supreme Leader, the King of God's kingdom. You are a special creation of the Eternal God, and we see in you the only Being who is favored, endowed and empowered by the Father to redeem and save mankind.

Did this conception of who he was suit Jesus?

His reply shows he was satisfied.—"Blessed art thou." The fleshly nature could not have revealed this to you. With natural eyes you could not have discerned it. Your heart has been opened to the truth, and my Father has entered and revealed to your mind these precious things. You could not have learned this by tradition; and the customs or education of the times could not have fitted you to state this belief. God had enlightened Peter's mind, and he was enabled to recognize in Jesus, with whom he had been in daily association, the divine Son of God, the Anointed King, the fulfillment of the Messianic ideal. For this declaration "Blessed art thou."

The vital question is, What think ye of Christ?

Do not hurry your answer—take time to consider well, for on this depends all.

With this blessing for Peter and those whom he represented, came a new trust. An obligation is placed on them. On this foundation rock—this truth, this revelation from God, that Peter and the other disciples have assented to—Peter's declaration of confidence and assurance—upon this fundamental principle the Church of which Christ is the head, will be built.

Then there comes a declaration from Jesus that is worth to us all of the world. "The gates of hell." Though I may be put to death, though you may be tortured and persecuted and killed, though brethren prove false, though all the powers of the wicked one with death as his assistant be invoked, yet I promise they shall not prevail. Trial and trouble will come, but through it all, even beyond death, there is victory, and the truth that you have stated will conquer in the end. Do not be discouraged. Truly it looks dark now, but morning is coming with the light. My Father who has given me the power to do all the wonders you have witnessed, and whose Son you have now acknowledged me to be, will protect and keep you, and in his own good time you will be crowned victor. Sure "blessed-happy" is he who has this promise.

Meanwhile there is a work to be done. Jesus tells them that he must go to Jerusalem, and suffer many things, even to being killed, and be raised up on the third day. This is not all clear to their minds, and Peter said it shall not be, and is rebuked by Jesus. The work to be done is shown in giving the keys of the kingdom to the disciples. Peter is the representative merely and the obligation is with all. Keys open locks. One who tends the gates and carries the keys must be faithful. The safety of the house and treasure depends on his being trustworthy. The custody and care of the affairs of the kingdom of heaven are in a sense in the keeping of the few faithful followers of Jesus, and if we aspire to be of this company, we cannot be too careful of our conduct. Not only have we the moulding of our own character, but we have a duty to those about us that we are bound to discharge. We have before us an awful responsibility, and at the same time a magnificent trust. How are we discharging our duty?

Much has been made of Jesus' rebuke to Peter, calling him Satan, etc. Now Jesus recognized in what Peter said regarding not allowing these things to befal him, his old adversary who had tempted him after his baptism. He was offered temporal power then, dominion over men, and here is a hint in Peter's words that force will be used to prevent harm coming to him. Was it a temptation to Jesus to resort to might, and so avoid the suffering awaiting him? He would put behind him Satan, the adversary, the tempter, the temptation, and submit to God's will, for anything else would savor of the ways of men. Peter was not a "rock," but the declaration he made, and for which he stood, was the underlying principle, the foundation, the rock, on which the Church should be built. Likewise Peter was not "Satan," but what he said savored of the adversary, the tempter. Jesus would put this all away—behind him.

The crown Jesus was to wear, the crown he would have his disciples win by faithfully discharging the obligation placed on them, was by way of the cross, through suffering and trial. Worldly pleasures, fleshly desires, the praise of men, earthly honor, riches and glory of this world, all must be denied, and the cross taken, as following the footsteps of their Master. Loss of this life, was gain of the eternal. No profit was in this, but when "the Son of Man shall come in the glory of his Father, with his angels," then every man shall be rewarded according to his deeds.

Jesus then assures his disciples that some standing there shall not taste of death, till they see the Son of Man coming in his kingdom. Luke says "Till they see the kingdom of God." The Diaglott says "There are some standing here, who will not taste of death, till they see God's Royal Majesty."

Various explanations of this verse have been given. The next event spoken of in this connection is our next lesson "The Transfiguration." It may be that the Lord had reference to this when he gave the promise contained in verse 28.

Should advanced classes care to take up general study, these questions may be helpful as starting points:

Peter's confession—What was it?

What were Peter's reasons for believing Jesus was the Messiah?

What does it mean for us to "confess Christ?"

Discuss the symbolism of "rock."

What is it to take up our cross?

The gaining of the world—Why is it a bad bargain?

Verse 28, What is the promise here given?

The Image Dream.

"There is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets and maketh known to the king Nebuchadnezzar what shall be in the latter days."

The king was a great conqueror, he had built a great empire and city, Babylon, "the lady of kingdoms." Would his empire continue? Would his city ever become "a labyrinth of ruins spread o'er the blasted plain?" One only could tell, and he took or made the occasion to inform the king, and the world "what shall be in the latter days."

A statement of the time of fulfillment of a vision or prophecy is always useful and often necessary for understanding the vision, those statements of time are explanations and are always literal.

In the dream the king saw "what shall be in the latter days," the culmination and end of human political power. The interpretation added some thing namely, it informed the king of the kingdoms that should rise between his time and the latter days

The king did not see these kingdoms singly as they succeeded each other, he saw them only as they will exist together just before being "broken in pieces together." The image as he saw it consisted of the four empires which had preceded it, and the clay element all united in one organization in the latter days. The metals were all man-made, the clay was common earth, a good figure showing the mingling of royal power with modern parliaments elected by the people. When thus complete and unified this image, this world man-power, will be terrible, especially to those "who keep the commandments of God and have the testimony of Jesus Christ."

"Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out without hands which smote the image upon his feet that were of iron and clay and brake them in pieces. Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver and the gold broken to pieces together. "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom.....it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms."

"All these kingdoms." What kingdoms? The list of their symbols, repeated again in the next verse, (45,) makes their identity and their presence positive and emphatic. The iron Rome, brass Greece, clay, seed of men, silver Persia, gold Chaldea. Daniel informed the king that this which he saw is "what shall be in the latter days." It is then that the image exists, it is "in the days of these kings," when these four kings are united together in one system, that God sets up a kingdom that shall "break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms," it is then that the image is "broken to pieces together." "These kingdoms" could not have been broken to pieces together in any past time for they have never yet existed together.

The Beast of Rev. xiii. 1; xvii. 3; xix. 19, is identical with the image, he is composed of the same kingdoms, he rises at the same time, "in the latter time of their kingdom" and is destroyed by the same power.

"In the days of these kings." What days? The dream begins with the image, not in sections one succeeding the other, only one at a time and ages apart, but with the image complete every part present, then it is broken to pieces together, blown away and its place occupied by the kingdom which destroyed it, that was set up in the days of these kings.

"The latter days." This phrase locates the time of these several events, namely:

1. When the image exists together.
2. The setting up of the stone kingdom.
3. The breaking in pieces of all these kingdoms together.
4. The stone kingdom fills the whole earth.

It is not peoples, nationalities or territories that are broken to pieces but "rule and authority" political powers, so that the Son of Man may be given dominion, glory and a kingdom, "that all peoples, nations and languages should serve him" after their oppressors are broken in pieces. Gen. xxii. 18; Psa. ii. 6 12; xcvi. 98; Isa. xxi. 5; Rev. xi. 15 18.

The Bible Teacher.

In this discussion it shall be our aim to point out what a Bible teacher should and should not be and do. Now all of us recognize the fact that it is an exceptionally easy matter to tell how work should be done, to see the mistakes of preachers, teachers and leaders of Sunday School and church work. That is, it is easy according to our own estimation, and yet at the same time what we think to be mistakes in others may not be mistakes according to the Testament standard. And sometimes the way to teach the fault-finder a lesson of value is to place the person in the exact position of the one with whom he is finding fault, and let him do the same work. We must remember that we are all fallible creatures. This being true, let us bear with each other. "Come let us reason together," would be a much better way than to stand off instead of "come," and to find fault with each other instead of "reasoning together."

So in these remarks, with our limited experience and our inability perhaps to see the entire ideal Bible teacher, we ask all readers to bear with our infirmities, and we would be greatly pleased to have other Bereans give objections or criticisms to what we may offer.

We think of a teacher as being capable to impart knowledge. While knowledge is essential to a successful teacher, yet it is a primary attribute, and lacks much of being the most essential qualification. How many of us have seen teachers who had a meagre amount of knowledge, but who had that something about them that seemed to draw us to them. There was something in them, that their very presence made us feel that they were our superior, that we must listen to them, that we must follow them, that we must do their bidding. This we shall term personality, and place it as the most essential qualification of any teacher. One may have this attribute and only a little knowledge, and still succeed, for any person possessing a strong personality has that within them which will enable them to acquire the needed knowledge.

We have often seen teachers who knew enough about the subject to be discussed but had no control of people, failing to command their attention and failing to get the hearers to have confidence in them. It is really very unpleasant to try to listen to some one when we feel that there is nothing back of what is being said—no life living it.

So we may say that a teacher must have knowledge and be able to impart it, the latter being done largely through the personality, but along with that, some methods should be carefully studied and considered.

Now let us notice of what the knowledge should consist. Certainly all of us would agree that the teacher who goes before a class without having made any preparation is guilty of condemnation, and yet, let each of us ask ourselves the question; Do we ever do this or see it done? We say such a one is guilty of condemnation. Yes, and if we notice the person who has charge of a class and undertakes to make it appear that he has prepared his lesson when he has not, he will invariably betray himself, and never fails to feel condemned. It shows an excessive weakness in one to admit that he has not prepared the lesson, because of busy times or some other worldly care, but we would much rather see this done than to see one try to make a sham by pretending to know the lesson when in reality he has not seen it until after entering the portals of the church.

I hope and trust that our Berean classes are blessed with teachers who are willing to sacrifice some time in preparation of the lesson. Think what has been sacrificed for us in the person of Jesus Christ and what a debt we owe. This debt we can not pay in money altogether, but must give our service and work for him and this of a necessity requires sacrifices on our part.

On taking up the recitation, the teacher should have tact and skill in governing the class. Attention should be had, but the teacher should not ask for it unless every other means has been used. But I would say, there must be attention if the class is a successful one. Now it may be a puzzle to some to know how to have every member interested at all times of the recitation. The teacher is able to do this only after careful, thoughtful preparation and a long continued study of human nature.

The first necessary is that the teacher have a thorough preparation of the lesson, and go to the class filled with the spirit and the good things learned in the preparation so that he or she is just bubbling over, so to speak, and can scarcely wait to begin the class work instead of waiting ten or twenty minutes so as to have that much less time to consume.

One or two spicy stories which bear on the lesson may be kept in reserve to be told at some time during the hour when some may be restless and listless and possibly may be even talking about some article of adornment, or about some future contemplated trip, or what they are going to do, get or see, etc.

This is a much better way than to ask some one to refrain from talking, or to cease disturbing the class. But if after every such means of getting interest fails and there are persons in the class who persist in making a disturbance, I believe that more violent means should be used. We should always do every thing with meekness, humbleness and kindness, but some times it is very necessary that firmness be used in the superlative degree in order that the good of the class may be perpetuated. Be sure you are doing right when you correct and then no apology on your part is needed, but in return, the offenders will honor you and think more of you, as a rule.

Again, an unexpected question may be asked of some apparently unconcerned person (without, of course, expecting an answer) and this will bring a sense of guilt to him.

It does not seem to us that calling on one individual of the class to answer ten or twenty questions in succession is fair to the individual called upon nor the remaining members of the class. Nor would we ask questions of members in the order in which they are seated. Rather ask questions in such a way that no one will know when their turn to answer a question will come.

In asking a question, it should be given in such a way as to expect an answer. Not as the following: Can you tell what Christ's mission in the world was? First, this question is not directed to any particular person and all remain quiet because no one was directly addressed. Second, the words "can you tell" imply that there is a doubt about being able to tell the answer. Again; who can answer the next question? This question implies that possibly not many in the class are capable of answering it, and such a question makes them feel thus, even if they are able to answer it. Once more, "Has any one made any preparation on the question we had left over?" This question implies that no doubt no one has studied it nor that the teacher even expected any one to.

Rather ask as the following: Brother B, tell us what Christ's mission in the world was. Now Brother B feels the duty and responsibility of answering that question, and will if he can. The second question should be; Sister C, please answer the next question. Third should be likewise, by calling on some special member to answer it.

Another serious fault in many teachers is preparing a list of questions to be used in class. Now we would not have any objections to the teacher preparing a line of thought for the recitation, in storing in his mind some special points which are to be brought out in the recitation, but no teacher can successfully teach and strictly adhere to a certain list of questions. If the teacher is filled with the Spirit, and likewise the class, neither knows before the class recitation what will happen in the class.

The person guilty of using a certain list of written questions either shows a marked limited amount of knowledge, or has not made much preparation. In the first case he might be excusable with a beginner, for all great teachers had to begin with a limited amount of knowledge. But we should early get away from that practice, or else it grows to be a habit which is difficult of dispensation.

All members of the class should participate in the recitation, and just as many times as possible. Various forms of review should be used by the teacher occasionally and he should be able to illustrate lessons with drawings, or by the use of objects.

The Bible teacher must be filled with the spirit of Christ. He must have a love for men. Not the earthly, passionate love, but the love of God, and he must earnestly seek to become a "fisher of men." No Bible teacher can succeed in the true sense and have for his motive the very low ideals such as getting a crowd together for Bible study, to show some other church what "we are doing," or to simply have a good time socially, (while sociability is necessary and delightful) or to teach a class for notoriety, or for self honor, or to show forth to the world how much he knows, etc.

Such a person usually does show how much he knows—always a small amount of real education—and sooner or later will be cut off as a cumberer of the ground. And why? Because there is no spirituality. And there can be none exercised where there is none. There is no air in a vacuum.

What every Bible class needs is a teacher who is in direct communication with a live wire from Jesus Christ. One who is earnestly seeking to know more and more of the great plan of salvation. One who is willing at any time to be scourged and buffeted and criticised of men, and ever willing to do his commands. Such a victor will come to the class bringing something, leaving something and taking something away.

We may be wrong in our understanding of what God's idea of a christian is but we believe he should be a person of prayer, and that every christian in charge of a Bible class should in conducting the class, have for a part of the program one or more prayers, and every christian in the class should be eligible to offer prayer. Now this, of course, is hard for some to begin, but listen, was it not hard when you were in the world, to give up and make a surrender to him?

Do you not remember how you said within yourself, "I cannot step out and make the start." And yet, when you got the consent of your mind, and you said, "I will," how easy it was! So it will be in beginning public prayer. It should not be your desire to offer a long elaborate prayer to be heard of men, but a brief statement of the desire of your heart to your Savior. We are not heard for our much speaking. Remember the publican. Private prayer should precede public prayer and should always be resorted to.

I make the statement fearlessly that the Bible class, conducted without devotional exercises and the more earnest side of life brought to our minds for food for the souls to feed upon, will sooner or later die. A certain medicine will cure certain diseases of the body. So is spirituality the balm and cure for disintegrating Bible classes. Lay aside foolishness and worldliness, and get near to God, and see what will happen.

Let us get truly converted. Now do not understand me to mean that a christian leader must wear a donkey-face and encase himself in a vinegar barrel. There is much room for the christian to be happy. Philippians iv 4-8.

To teach the Bible is a sacred work; to learn from a thoroughly trained, spirit filled teacher is a blessed privilege. May all Bible teachers in our Berean classes earnestly endeavor to attain unto the high Testament standard of perfection, and also all members.

I would be pleased to hear from some Berean on "The Duty of the Bible Class as Individuals."

WALTER C. RATLIFF.

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 38.

"Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity." Luke xiii. 12. "Daughter of Abraham, wouldst thou be loosed from thy spiritual bondage which has bowed thee, lo these many years, so that thou couldst in no wise lift up thyself. Come then at Jesus' call, and by faith feel his gracious hands laid upon thee, and hear his gracious words, "Woman thou art loosed from thine infirmity, and immediately lift up thyself and glorify God by assuming the spiritual privileges vouchsafed thee by thy heavenly Master. Be not dismayed that the rulers of the synagogue heed not thy wonderful deliverance, but, rather answer with indignation that Jesus thus honors thee. Still praise him, and let him answer for thee, Thou hypocrite.....ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond?"

In the name of my master, I ask the rulers of the synagogues of these last days if the daughters of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, nearly six thousand years, ought not to be loosed from their infirmities, so they can stand out and glorify God. What has man to fear in woman's normal state? Does he fear for his own dignity as woman is elevated to hers? As well fear for the air she breathes lest he have not enough. Yea, can man have his true dignity as long as woman is deprived of hers at his hand? When woman, being deceived, fell, did man, not deceived, maintain his integrity? Did they not fall together and can man rise without her?

As well the king of birds rise with one wing broken; they must rise together, if they rise at all.

He that loveth his wife loveth himself. Pray what is it to love her? Is it not to take pleasure in her development, as he takes pleasure in his own and to assist her in it just as far as her capabilities will allow? Are not her capabilities the same in kind as his own?

Can his aspirations be met in the common duties of life? Then how can hers be met in that which fails for him? To confine her to this measure is to keep her still in her bowed down condition so that she can in no wise lift up herself. For this injustice we see the abnormal development in woman's character all about us. She is a [illegible] fortunate plant, which by a careless foot, or dead weight has been crushed, and turned out of its way, but still lives, though bereft of its native beauty. Elder S. A. Chaplin says, "The helper provided for man was not a help in the modern kitchen-sense of the word. She was not created to be his slave, his drudge, but his corresponding opposite, the complementary hemisphere of the orb of humanity, his alter ego, one like himself, as the LXX happily translates."

All glory to Woman's Emancipator! She lost her acknowledged equality in the first Adam, but she regains it in the second Adam—the Lord Jesus Christ!

Woman, art thou aware of what has really been done for thee? Dost thou feel thy shackles loosed in Jesus? Art thou using thy liberty purchased at so great a price, even with the blood of the Emancipator? Art thou content to sit in thy bonds, even raising thy voice against thyself in thy sister who would be free to work for God?

Dost thou know that in the beginning thou hast equal dominion with man? As it is written—God created man in his own image.....male and female...and said, Let them have dominion, etc. Where are her bonds here? one flesh with man and having dominion with him over all created things in earth and air and sea. This was woman's primeval state at the hand of her Creator, and he pronounced his work good and very good. Is it not well pleasing to thee? Does it not meet thy highest aspirations? Will anything short of this fill the longings of thy soul? Not a word here of rule on the part of man, not a word of subjection on the part of woman.

All the glory to woman when her shackles fall, when Christ, her great Emancipator, sets her free. Then will she be free indeed.

Now comes to me the memory of our dear sister Mansfield. How she could pour on the ointment!

Go on my sisters; in God's name I bid you go on, in nothing terrified by your adversaries. Let men chide, even good men. Pour on the ointment till the whole house is filled with the sweet odor. No head so worthy as that of Jesus. Pour on the ointment though men call it a waste, even good men, yea, his disciples also; pour on the ointment, and then drop at his feet and bathe them with your tears and wipe them with the hairs of your head. Keep at the work Jesus has called you to do and leave it to him to answer for you.

As long as we can hear his voice amid the murmurings, saying, Let her alone, why trouble ye the woman, let us breast the storm. He is more than all that can be against us. As long as we can hear an inspired apostle say, Help those women which have labored with me in the Gospel, whose names are in the book of life, let us go on and labor in the gospel, or anywhere else that Jesus bids us labor, with mouth, or hands, or pen, and thus break our alabaster boxes of very precious ointment, and pour it on his head.

The Edenic conception of woman's relation to man is well expressed in Tennyson's "Princess:"

> She that out of Love
> The shining steps of Nature, shares with man
> His nights, his days, moves with him to one goal,
> She was
> To set herself to man
> Like perfect music unto noble words,
> And so these twain, upon the skirts of Time
> Sit side by side, full-summed in all their powers.

Thus Auntie Willard wrote of the liberty that has, and that will come to women where the gospel of Jesus goes.

AUNTIE WINCE.

Selections.

Danger of Delusion.

"Take heed that no man deceive you." Matt xxiv 4.

When Jesus sat upon the Mount of Olives, his disciples came to him privately, and asked him to tell them of the signs of his coming, and the end of the world, and he said unto them, "Take heed that no man deceive you. For many shall come in my name saying, 'I am Christ;' and shall deceive many. And many false prophets shall rise, and shall deceive many."

Jesus warned his disciples of the danger of being deceived by those who would come in his name, and teach false theories in regard to his second coming and the judgment of the world, and he told them that these false Christs and false prophets would show great signs and wonders; insomuch that, if it were possible, they would deceive the very elect. Matt xxiv 24.

Does Christ's warning to his disciples apply to his followers of the present time? It certainly does. St. Paul repeats the warning to the Thessalonians, and tells them not to be shaken in mind, or troubled, as though the day of Christ were at hand. He says, "Let no man deceive you by any means; for that day shall not come, except there come a falling away first, and that man of sin be revealed, the son of perdition. 2 Thess ii 3.

Some of the people at that time believed that the second personal coming of the Lord was then near at hand, but others believed in the conscious existence of the spirits of the dead, and thought the second coming of Christ and the judgment occured at the death of each one, and that his spirit or soul was at once taken to a place of happiness, or to a place of misery. This belief in the immortality of the soul caused some to err concerning the truth, and said the resurrection was past already. 2 Tim ii 18.

St. Paul said this deception and delusion is to those who are perishing, because they admitted not the truth in order that they might be saved. And on this account God will send to them an Energy of Delusion to their believing the falsehood; in order that all those might be judged who believed not the Truth, but approved the iniquity. 2 Thess ii 11, 13. (Diaglott.) I quote the Diaglott because it is translated a little plainer than the C. V. It is of vital importance that we should know what Truth is, that many will not admit the love of that they might be saved, and for that reason are influenced by strong delusion so that they believe the falsehood they prefer. "God is a God of truth" (Deut xxxii 4), and whatever He has asserted, promised, or revealed to man is truth.

Delusion is whatever has a tendency to divert man's attention from truth, and causes him to believe a falsehood. The great truth, that God by his inspired servants constantly impressed upon the minds of his people, was the certainty of absolute death either temporary or permanent, and eternal life only through his Son Jesus Christ at his coming. But the heathen would not believe this truth, but taught the conscious existence and transmigration of their spirits in various forms and places. God's servants taught that their future existence depended entirely upon a resurrection from the dead, except those who are living at the time of the second coming of Christ. Paul said that the Lord of lords and the King of kings only hath immortality (1 Tim vi 16), and that if there be no resurrection, even the dead saints are perished (1 Cor xv 18), which would not be the case if they were then conscious and happy in heaven.

Paul saw that the danger of the Christians at Corinth being contaminated with false doctrine by fellowship with heathen, and he warned the church, saying, "But I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtility, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ." 2 Cor xi 3.

The serpent beguiled Eve by causing her to believe that she would not surely die as God said she should if she disobeyed him.

How easy it is for any one to be beguiled and influenced to believe that which he would rather believe, regardless of who tells it.

A lady, who believed the serpent's lie that man does not really die, while in a conversation with another lady, who believed the God of truth, said that she would rather think her loved ones were with Christ, than to think that they were unconscious in the tomb. The wish was mother of the thought or belief.

So Eve, desiring to disobey God just that one time in order to satisfy her appetite and her desire for knowledge, would rather think that the serpent told the truth, that she would not surely die, and that she would be like the gods knowing good and evil, and therefore she was beguiled by the wily devil to believe the lie that she wanted to believe, and the world today ought to know the result. This same old enemy is deluding many Christian people at the present time by perverting the gospel of Christ. Paul said to the Galatians, "I marvel that ye are so soon removed from him that called you into the grace of Christ unto another gospel: which is not another; but there be some that trouble you, and would pervert the gospel of Christ. But though we or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed. Gal i 6 8.

The angel from heaven that perverts the gospel of Christ is that fallen angel, "that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceived the whole world; he was cast out into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him." Rev xii 9. Peter said, "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary, the devil as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour." 1 Peter v 8.

Some think that the devil is only connected with what is low and mean, but Paul says, "We wrestle against spiritual wickedness in high places." Eph vi 12. If the devil is transformed into an angel of light, we may expect to find his most delusive works connected with the most pious manifestations in the name of Jesus. Jesus said that many would claim that they had done wonderful works in his name, but he would say to them, "I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity." Matt vii 21,23. "The Lord knoweth them that are his" (2 Tim ii 19), and those who will not believe his Father can not be his, however pious and sincere they may be. Jesus said, "In vain, they do worship me, teaching for doctrine the commandments of men." Matt xv 9. We should be careful and search the Scriptures and see whether the things we hear are true, for Jesus and his apostles taught that those who follow and support false teachers are guilty of their evil deeds. See Matt xv 14, and 2 John x 11.

Ebenezer. 1. Sam 7, 12

The copy for this department of THE RESTITUTION is supplied by Brother Robert G. Huggins, of 10823 Lee Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. Please send all letters and communications intended for this section direct to him, and save delay.

[Just before going to press we get a batch of copy from Brother Huggins, and make room for a few items. —A. R. C.]

Some misled prophetic students are looking for the manifestation of the Man of Sin. We are looking for the coming of the Son of Man.

"God has permitted sin," says the thoughtless reasoner. Mr. Universalist, will you give us book, chapter and verse where this "permission" is given.

After the Bible Class closed Wednesday evening, June 29th, we had the pleasure of helping Wm. Ross, husband of Sister Ross, to put on Christ in baptism. Others are interested.

We have received from Wm. A. Lay, of Cincinnati, Ohio, a 52 page pamphlet called "The Age to Come" with a chart 19 by 25 inches. The price for both is 25 cents. The quantity is liberal for the price; about the quality we can say nothing, as we have not yet had time to examine either book or chart.

"I have read your book already," writes Brother P. V. Blakely, of Grand Rapids, Mich., "though not to study it very much as yet, but so far as I have gone with it it is worthy of much commendation. The one thing that suits me best, is the shortness and clearness of the explanations, not requiring the reading of much matter to get a little 'meat'."

June the 25th there was born to the Editor and wife, Russell Arno, an eight and one half pound baby boy. Mother and babe are doing nicely. From his strong husky voice we indulge the hope that another preacher of the gospel has been born. To this end we have dedicated him, and pray that in times to come he may be the means, as an instrument in the hands of God, of doing much good.

Bible School Report.

The Fifth Annual Bible School of Indiana, was held in Plymouth, June 13 to 18, inclusive. The enrollment was higher this year than at any previous time in the history of the school.

Brothers Lindsay and Williams were the teachers. Brother Lindsay dwelt on The First Principles of the Gospel. He began with Rom. i. 16, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation, to every one that believeth; to the Jew first and also to the Greek." This verse was committed by the students, as was also Mark xvi. 15, 16, which shows the importance of the gospel. Then in Gal. i. 6-9, the result of preaching any other gospel, and in 2 Cor. iv. 3, "But if our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost." Gal. iii. 8, shows that the promises made to Abraham was the gospel. Abraham upon accepting this gospel received the sign of circumcision as a seal of the righteousness of his faith. Rom. iv. Gal. iii. 16, shows that the seed of Abraham is Christ. The apostles taught for the gospel, the Kingdom and Christ. Christian circumcision is baptism, as shown in Col. ii. 9-12. Then in Gal. iii. 27-29, "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ, and if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." Many other texts were used in connection with these to bring out the points more clearly.

Brother Williams dwelt on the practical side of Christianity. He began with "Justification by Works, or The Christian Moral Standard," dwelling especially on "Faith Which Worketh by Love." Gal. v. 6. Other lessons were on "Sanctification," "The Helmet of Salvation," "The Sword of the Spirit" and "Prayer."

In addition to the teaching done by Brothers Lindsay and Williams, Sisters Emma Railsback and Evelyn Harsch each had a class. There being so many children it was thought best to have two divisions. Sister Harsch taking the primary class one hour each morning, and Sister Railsback the intermediate one hour in the afternoon.

Surely much good was accomplished at this School. The lessons were all so well presented that expressions from students showed that they were gathering valuable information.

The enrollment reached 111. The average attendance at each session was 60. Some could not attend the entire week but were glad to be there for a day or two, or even a single session. The average daily attendance this year was only one less than the enrollment last year. The managers would like to see a like increase next year.

At the dining hall 977 meals were served, almost double the number served last year. Donations were so liberal that a neat little sum remains in the treasury for the beginning of our work next year.

Brother Wince was not able to be with us. We sadly missed him, and to let him know that he was thought of a shower of postals was sent him, also a letter prepared by a committee appointed for that work. These were very much appreciated, as was shown by the return mail.

Six were baptized during the school. Two of them, Brothers Snodgrass and Howell, having applied for baptism at Antioch. Sisters Vanderwerle and Emigh of Burr Oak were baptized on Wednesday and Sister Switzer and daughter Edna of Plymouth on Saturday.

May the good work go on till Jesus comes.

LYDIA RAILSBACK, Sec'y.

God takes very good care of his creatures, especially his faithful children, who repose all their confidence in him and strive to do his will. At any rate he does not allow them to go unfed, even if he has to spread a special table and get an angel to serve, as he did in the case of Elijah, who was both hungry and discouraged. Poor fellow, he was cut off from court favor and fellowship, and was tried within an inch of his life by the prevailing wickedness of the people. Finally he sought the seclusion of the desert, where the rocky wilds afforded him rest, and God sent an angel, who brought him a drink and baked him a cake, and sent him on a special mission rejoicing.

Please, you who know you have not yet renewed, hasten—yes do please hurry, and send your subscription to us now. We are thinking of you each personally, and await each mail from your home with anxiety.

A Letter to A Friend

On the Covenants of Promise, and connection with the "One Hope, One Faith, One Baptism." This is what it claims to be—a letter written to a friend by Sister C. C. Woodruff, who died in 1855. She was the wife of our lamented Brother John O. Woodruff, who died a short time since. This letter was not at first written for publication, but after the death of the author, it was printed, and has since gone through a number of editions. Since the death of Brother Woodruff this tract has been out of print, but there were repeated requests for it, hence we have issued a new edition which is now ready for use. It makes a 32 page tract, is plain and so easy in style and convincing in argument, that it lives as a monument to the memory of its writer through all these years, and is yet full of good for all. Singly the price is 10 cents, 12 for a dollar, postpaid. Where larger quantities are taken that can be sent by express, a lower rate will gladly be made. Brothers and Sisters, if you cannot preach a series of sermons to your friend, have a copy of this letter sent to him, and you will have done the next best thing, as one can hardly read this little missive and not receive benefit. Send to us and have a supply always ready to hand out when there is opportunity. You will do good and be blessed in the work.

THE LAST CHANCE.

We have a number of books published by our late lamented Brother John O Woodruff. We have both kinds "Bible Themes on miscellaneous subjects," and "The Word of the Kingdom." During the last years of his life Brother Woodruff issued these books at great expense. Many were supplied through his generosity. The remainder ought to be out doing the good he desired they should, and to enable you to get one we will send them to you post paid for 75c each.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given below, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund is to be applied as the doners request. When left for the Publisher to decide, it will be used only for those who themselves state their circumstances, or whose case is presented by some trustworthy person.

Mrs H G Pier	1 00
Mrs N H Wolf	1 00
Miss E M Arthur	3 50

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

THE article on "Salvation. What is it?" which appeared in our issue Sept. 15, has been translated into German and printed in tract form, the size to send in an ordinary envelope. The cost is 2 cents each, 50 copies for 65 cents, or 90 copies for one dollar. It is printed in full in English so that those who do not read German can see exactly what they are handing to a German friend. Send all orders to B. Juergensen, Barberton, Ohio.

Notice.

The Church of the Blessed Hope, (Church of God) in Chicago, has secured th VanBuren Hall, Corner California ave and Madison st, for services every Sunday from 10:00 A. M. to 12:30 P. M. Order of services,—Bereans meet from 10:00 to 11:00 on 1st and 3rd Sunday and Adult Bible Class meets from 10:00 to 11:00 on 2nd and 4th Sunday of each Calendar month. Regular Church Services from 11:00 to 12:30 every Sunday. All are welcome.—R. W. THOMPSON, Sec'y., 303 N. Willow Ave. (Austin Station) Chicago.

IN our issue of April 6 was an article on Sanctification, and in issue of April 24 was one entitled Crucifixion of Self. In issue of May 4 appears a third article on Overcoming Faith. The author, Brother Joseph Williams has caused these articles to be put in tract form, envelope size, convenient for mailing, and will supply them at Five cents each, or free to those too poor to pay. Send orders to Joseph Williams, Hillsburg, Indiana, or to this office.

WHEN YOUR TIME IS OUT PLEASE RENEW.

LOOK RIGHT HERE!

We want to add a thousand new names to our list for the coming year. This will be an easy task if our friends will each help a little. There are many members of our Church who do not now take THE RESTITUTION, but who could be induced to do so if they once understood its mission and worth, and the benefit it would be to them.

In order to give a chance to each to see what our paper is, we will send it the next two months for only TEN CENTS. This will enable all to try it, and we feel that a number will continue if they have it for a short time on trial.

Brethren and Sisters, show the paper to some one not [illegible], tell them that Ten Cents will get it for the next two months. Make up a list o those you would like to see get it, and send Ten Cents for them. Just think, One Dollar will take THE RESTITUTION on trial into 10 homes for two months.

Let each one who loves the truth our paper teaches, take up this matter, and push it for a few days. The result of the effort may put stars in your crown.

THE BIBLE: ITS PRINCIPLES AND TEXTS

As indicated by the title, this book is divided into three sections: The first consists of a remarkable disquisition on "The Bible;" the second simplifies its "Principles" in formulated propositions; and the third expounds in a clear, impressive, and homiletic manner, particular "Texts." The knotty and perplexing texts of the Bible are untied and solved satisfactorily to the most fastidious and critical. More than one hundred and fifteen subjects of intense interest to every Bible student are formally discussed. Both simple and scholarly—the child is fascinated and taught; the scholar is entertained and instructed. Bible lovers, here is a feast for you. Throw open the door of you home; let The Bible—its Principles and Texts come in and bless you and your family. 309 pages, 5x7½ inches, durably and handsomely bound in whole cloth, with title embossed on back in gold. One copy, $1.10, two copies or more $1.00 each. Order from Robt. G. Huggins, 10623 Lee avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

If more convenient those who wish may order through this office.

IMPORTANT.

All persons addressing us should give their name, post office, and state, plainly and distinctly. We know a great many names and addresses, but we may not remember yours.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Indiana."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, post office money order, or express order, NOT by personal checks. Money sent in either of these ways is safe, and without risk of loss. Stamps stick together and are useless. Money even paper money is easily detected and is at the mercy of a dishonest clerk always. Money sent in a registered letter is not guaranteed by the government.

Always examine your money order and see that it is drawn in the name of "The Restitution," and that it is payable at "Plymouth, Ind." Look and see that the post master has written Ind. not Ill. or Pa. or Ohio.

When you wish your address changed give both old and new address.

In sending renewals always give the exact name in which it has previously been sent, and state if you wish the name changed, we will gladly do so. The reason why this is important can be readily seen. For instance, the paper is sent to Mrs. Susan Williams, and her husband George, gets a money order in his own name and send it, saying for us to send the paper for a year. We have no reason to suppose that Susan is his wife—he did not say she was—so we enter his name and send him the paper. Susan's paper goes delinquent, and afterwards when we notify her about it both become offended. So stupid in us—everybody knows Susan and George are husband and wife.

Get the last issue of the paper when ordering books and tracts, and order from that. If a work is advertised as supplied only by the author, send to him—please not to us.

SPECIAL TO AUTHORS.

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

An author frequently spends considerable of time and labor on an important subject, and when it is ready picks up an envelope that has to be strained to hold it, addresses it, puts on a single stamp and drops it in the box. He has labored hard to produce his finished work, then neglected three important points—he did not enclose it in an efficient wrapper, he failed to fully pay the postage, and neglected to put on his return address. A hint to the wise is enough.

SALVATION.

The above is the title of a tract of 44 pages issued by Brother John L. Wince. It contains the subject matter of a series of two articles that were published some months since in THE RESTITUTION. This tract is well written, is clear and convincing. It is a living question, vital to everyone. The sole object in the mind of Brother Wince is to do good—do his part in arousing his fellowmen to a sense of duty to God, and encouraging them to do it. The price is set at 10 cents single copy, or 12 for $1.00. Those not able to pay who desire a copy will be supplied free of cost on application Order from the Author at Pierceton, Indiana, or from this office as is most convenient.

Notice.

The discussion between myself and Elder John A. Cargile, one of the ablest Adventist preachers in the south, on the restoration of Israel, is now ready for distribution. It is a pamphlet of over one hundred pages, and contains the photo of each writer. The question discussed is, "The Scriptures teach, that the same Israel that has been scattered and dispersed among all nations will be restored to their own land." Dr. T. J. Daniel affirms, Elder John A. Cargile denies.

The price of this book is 15 cents. Address Mrs. Dr. Daniel, Magazine, Ark. Your loving brother.

Syriac New Testament.

A new edition of Murdock's Translation of the Syriac New Testament has just been issued by a Boston publishing house, and we have arranged to supply our readers with the work. The regular price is $3.50, and every Bible student should own this book. It is bound in half leather, and lies open in the hand when being used. The printing is clear and plain, and the paper excellent. We have so arranged with the publishers that we can supply this book for a limited time only at a reduced price, which will enable all who wish this valuable aid to the study of God's Word to possess it. We can offer it now at $2.00 post paid. All who wish to avail themselves of this low rate should do so at once.

SOMETHING NEW.

Brother J. L. Wince wrote a series of articles that were published in THE RESTITUTION some months ago, on the subject of the Resurrection. At the solicitation of some of the brethren, he has had the matter printed in tract form. It makes a very good appearance, and the ability of Brother Wince as a writer is so well known that no words of praise from us are necessary. The tract is now ready, and can be ordered from Brother J. L. Wince, Pierceton, Ind. or direct from this Office as you wish. The price is 10 cents single copies postpaid, or 12 for $1.00.

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall we do to be Saved?" The Foolishness of Preaching, and Salvation—what is it?

Each Lecture of 16 pages $1 per 100 post free: or an assortment of the whole, same price. Address W L Tomlinson 10837 Orville Ave, N E, Cleveland, O.

"A Bible Study of Hades, as compared with our modern ideas," is the title of a new tract just issued by Bro. W. H. Wilson. It is a critical study of the subject of Hell. It shows that the meaning attached to this word today is different from the meaning given to it years ago. It also shows how this change was made, and who made it. The price is 15 cents each, or 5 for 50 cents. Send for it to W. H. Wilson, 625 N. Willow Ave., Austin Sta. Chicago, Ill.

Scripture Searchers Assistant.

A very valuable help to all who are studying the Scriptures—a reprint of one of our beloved Brother Joblin's works. Treats of thirty different subjects, with about four hundred references. All should possess a copy for ready reference. Price by mail six cents, order from W L Tomlinson, 10837 Orville ave, Cleveland Ohio

The Elements of the Kingdom of God, is the title of an eighteen page tract by Brother T J Daniel of Magazine, Ark. He sets forth that a kingdom cannot exist without a King, his cabinet officers, territory, a capital city, subjects, laws. Brother Daniel will send this little tract to you at 10 cents each, or $1.00 a dozen. Send direct to him for them.

Poetry.

Teach Me the Truth.

Teach me the truth, Lord, though it put to flight
My cherished dreams and fondest fancy's play.
Give me to know the darkness from the light,
The night from day.

Teach me the truth, Lord, though my heart may break
The deceiving veil the falsehood for the true,
Help me to take my shattered life and make
Its actions new.

Teach me the truth, Lord, though my feet may fear
The rocky path that opens out to me;
Rough it may be, but let the way be clear
That leads to thee.

Teach me the truth, Lord, when false creeds decay,
When man-made dogmas vanish with the night,
Then, Lord, on thee my darkened soul shall stay,
Thou living light.

The Gospel the Power of God.

Paul in Corinthians states that, the Jews require a sign, and the Greeks seek after wisdom; but we preach Christ crucified, unto the Jew a stumbling block and unto the Greek foolishness. But unto them that are called both Jew and Greek, Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God. He also wrote to the church at Rome that the gospel is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believes. To the Jew first and also to the Gentile. Accepting these statements as coming from one whom Jehovah had prepared as a special messenger we ought to accept them. If we do we must reject all other gospels. This same apostle states that the gospel which he preached is not after man. Neither received I it of man, neither was I taught it but by the revelation of Jesus the Christ. To reject this gospel is to reject the means by which Jehovah purposes to save men, we are admonished to take heed how we hear and what we hear. Our honesty and sincerity will not save us if we reject the gospel of Christ which is the power of God and the wisdom of God. In this gospel is found Jehovah's purpose concerning the earth and man.

The prophet Isaiah declares (xlv 18) For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited. Those who reject the gospel concerning the earth reject salvation. God has promised to remove the curse that now rests upon the earth and give it to those who believe it and will live an upright and sincere life. The gospel preached by the churches today is that God will take the souls of men and women to heaven to remain during eternity. This is the gospel after man, and is not the power of God and the wisdom of God. The means employed are first the choosing out of the nations a people for his name. Second, He will organize a kingdom over which those chosen will rule with Christ in righteousness. Those nations that will accept his rule will be permitted to become subjects in his kingdom. If not they will be punished with an everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord and the glory of his power. During this period kings and princes will become subjects. The poor and weak of this age if only faithful will become kings and priests and shall rule over the earth. What a change. Dear brothers and sisters, is it possible to realize fully this promise? Today the adversary has power over us and rules us with a rod of iron. Then we will be associate with Christ in destroying all unrighteousness. The earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of God. Then there will be no disease nor death, for the enemy death will have been destroyed and universal peace will be established. His dominion will be from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth. We learn that the race was alienated through disobedience. We remain in this alienated condition if we do not accept Christ as the power of God and the wisdom of God. We remain alienated through the ignorance that is in us. Paul says, While the Ephesians were Gentiles after the flesh they were without Christ being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel and strangers to the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world. This text expresses the condition of all who are ignorant of these promises, without Christ, without hope, and without God in the world, could such hope for eternal life in the kingdom of God. Certainly not. The covenants of promise were those made with Abraham and David. To Abraham that, Thy seed shall possess the gates of the enemy and in thy seed shall all nations of the earth be blessed. To David that, I have made a covenant with my chosen. I have sworn unto David my servant, thy seed will I establish forever and build up thy throne to all generations. His seed shall endure forever, and his throne as the sun before me. As long as the sun shall remain so long will his seed remain. When Christ shall come again he will build up the tabernacle or kingdom of David which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof and I will set it up. This is the kingdom spoken of by the prophet Daniel. It shall never be destroyed, it shall never be left to other people. It shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms and it shall stand forever. Do you wish to become a part of his kingdom? If so, believe the gospel which is the power of God, and live a righteous life and you will be given a part in it.

Your brother striving for a place in it.

The Trial of Jesus.

Jesus and his disciples ate their last Passover in a sad frame of mind.

The time had come, in the purpose of God, for the antitypical lamb to be slain. All the Passovers had looked down through the centuries to this one. The hour had come, and the lamb was ready.

It was at this Passover that the Lord's Supper was instituted. As they were eating, Jesus took bread and blessed, and broke it, and gave it to his disciples and said, take, eat, this is my body; and he took the cup and gave thanks and gave it to them, saying, drink ye all of it, for this is my blood of the new testament which is shed for many, for the remission of sins. Matt xxvi: 26, 27, 28.

Another wave of sadness came over them, when the Lord told them, I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you, in my Father's kingdom; and when they had sung a hymn they went out into the Mount of Olives, Matt xxvi 26 30. How sad that hymn sounded out of the windows of that upper chamber, where the little company sat! It was in the Mount of Olives, that Jesus prayed for his disciples. (John xvii.) With the solemn impressions of this prayer in their hearts, they went over the brook Cedron, into the garden of Gethsemane. John xviii 1.

The trial of Jesus must be considered in two parts. The first consisting of that great struggle with himself, in the garden, testing his ability and willingness to endure the suffering and shame that awaited him, and Second, the trial for his life before Caiphas and Pilate. Though he had foretold his betrayal and suffering to his disciples, they seemed ignorant of the great sacrifice about to be made, and were indifferent to the anxiety of our Lord, growing out of it, and could not keep awake while he prayed to the Father.

This indifference on the part of his friends caused him to feel the awful solemnity of the hour of his trial. He began to be sore amazed, and very heavy, and said, my soul is exceeding sorrowful even unto death; tarry ye here, and watch with me. Matt xxvi; 37, 38. His sorrow was almost deep enough to cause death. In his distress, he fell upon his face and poured out his soul in these tender words: Abba, Father, all things are possible to thee; take away this cup from me, nevertheless not what I will, but what thou wilt. Mark xiv 36 And being in an agony, he prayed more earnestly; and his sweat was as it were, great drops of blood, falling to the ground. Luke xxii 44

This prayer was repeated three times, at the end of which, "an angel appeared unto him from heaven, strengthening him." Luke xxii 43 if the burden had not been greater than a mortal could bear, the angel would not have been sent to him. Crushed to earth in gloom and despair, he was obedient unto death when the angel came. It was in God's purpose that Jesus should suffer.

The names of all the saved were written in the Book of Life, of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world.

The blood of the Paschal lamb on the door-posts of the houses in Egypt, was a sign for the destroying angel to passover that house, and spare the firstborns in it; so the destroying angel will pass over the sins of all who have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the antitypical Lamb of God, and they shall be first borns from the dead. To this end he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth. He is brought as a lamb to the slaughter and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he openeth not his mouth.

Yet it pleased the Lord to bruise him; he hath brought him to grief; when thou shalt make his soul an offering for sin, he shall see his seed (people), he shall prolong his days, (rise from the dead) and the pleasure of the Lord shall prosper in his hand. Isa liii 7, 10. The angel comforted him by showing him the glory that shall be revealed.

Looking down to the kingdom he saw the the redeemed hosts in robes of white, with palms in their hands—he saw himself standing on Mount Zion, in the midst of the 144,000 faultless ones, and beyond them to that great multitude of all kindred, peoples, nations, and tongues, stand before the throne, and heard their thunderous voices, saying, "Salvation to our God which sitteth upon the throne and to the Lamb."

In this view he saw of the travail of his soul and was satisfied, and the joy that was set before him, and for it could endure the cross, despising the shame of it, and how through victory over death he would open the grave, and sit down on the right hand of the throne of God. Heb xii 2.

Rising from the earth at the close of his third prayer, comforted and strengthened by communion with the angel, a multitude with swords and staves came out to take him. They bound him and led him away to Annas first, who was the father-in law of Caiphas, the high priest. John xviii 13. We know nothing of the treatment Jesus received before Annas. They took him next into the house of Caiphas. Luke xxii 54. Here he was mocked, and smitten with vile hands; whose fierce hatred had no limit. They blindfolded him and asked him to prophecy who did it. Luke xxii 63, 64.

When morning came, the priests, elders, and scribes (Luke xxii 66) led him into their council saying, art thou the Christ? tell us. To this Jesus replied, "Hereafter shall the Son of man sit on the right hand of the power of God."

Then the whole multitude arose and led him to Pilate. Luke xxiii 1. Here they made charges against him, saying, We found this fellow perverting the nation, and forbidding to give tribute to Caesar, and saying, that he himself is Christ a king. Luke xxiii 2.

The kingship of Jesus, was the chief question before Pilate. His question, "Art thou the king of the Jews?" was significant as well as the answer: "To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness to the truth." John xviii 37.

Jesus had preached the gospel of the kingdom from Galilee to Jerusalem, and the people were greatly agitated on that subject, but they did not understand the time, that the kingdom should be set up. The multitude that followed him from Galilee believed "that the kingdom would immediately appear."

To instruct them on this point he gave them the parable of the nobleman going into a far country to receive a kingdom and return. Luke xix. This parable shows that a long interval of time would elapse before the kingdom would come. In bearing witness to the truth, he explained to Pilate, "My kingdom is not of this world; if my kingdom were of this world, then my servants would fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews, but now is my kingdom not from hence." John xviii 36. The word "world" in this passage is translated from the Greek word kosmos, and means order, regularity. His kingdom would not be set up under the then present order of things, but would come in its time, after the fourth monarchy had run its course and the "time of the Gentiles fulfilled." Luke xxi 24. The noble fortitude of Jesus won the love and sympathy of Pilate. He knew that for envy they had delivered him, and his wife told him of dreams she had concerning him, and told him to have nothing to do with that just man. Matt xxvii 19.

He seemed grieved that Jesus was silent when he asked the question; Whence art thou? and said, Speakest thou not to me? Knowest thou not that I have power to crucify thee, and have power to release thee? The innocent prisoner replied, "Thou couldst have no power at all against me except it were given thee from above," and to quiet Pilate's interest in his behalf, said, "He that delivered me unto thee hath the greater sin." And from thenceforth Pilate sought to release him, but the Jews met this show of mercy by saying, If you let this man go thou art not Caesar's friend; whosoever maketh himself a king, speaketh against Caesar. John xix 10, 11, 12. Four times Pilate said he found no fault in him, but the Jews accused him of stirring up the people, teaching throughout all Jewry, beginning from Galilee to this place. Luke xxiii 5. When Pilate found that Jesus was a Galilean, he sent him to Herod who was then in Jerusalem.

When Herod saw Jesus, he was exceeding glad for he was desirous to see him of a long season, because he had heard many things of him, and he hoped to have seen some miracle done by him. Luke xxiii 8. Herod questioned him in many words, but he answered him nothing. The chief priests and scribes were then accusing him. Herod feeling that his dignity was insulted by the silence of the doomed prisoner, set him at nought, and mocked him, and arrayed him in a gorgeous robe and sent him again to Pilate. Luke xxiii 11.

It was in Herod's court that they stripped him of his clothes and put a purple robe on him and a crown of thorns on his head. In this plight they led him back to Pilate. No greater humiliation ever came on any man It was a sight on which heaven and earth gazed. When he entered the judgment hall, Pilate cried out, "Behold the man!" These words were not spoken in derision but to call forth sympathy from the howling mob which cried out, "Crucify him! crucify him!" It is plain from the record that Pilate favored Jesus through the entire trial, but at every hint of letting him go the enraged mob called for his death. "Away with him! crucify him! His blood be upon us and our children." They preferred Barrabbas the robber, to Jesus the great teacher. They hated him without cause.

Pilate was weak; he wanted to be on the popular side; his closing speech in this great drama shows the judge overruled by the mob. After affirming that he found no fault in him, four different times he washed his hands in the presence of the multitude, saying: "I am innocent of the blood of this just person. See ye to it." Matt. xxvii. 24.

Speaking to them he said: "Ye have brought this man to me, as one that perverteth the people, and behold, I, having examined him before you, have found no fault in this man, touching the things whereof ye accuse him; no, nor yet Herod; for I sent you to him and lo, nothing worthy of death is done unto him." Luke xxiii. 13, 14.

This was his decision after weighing the evidence, but the mob were instant with loud voices requiring that he might be crucified, and the chief priests prevailed, and Pilate gave sentence that it should be as they required. Luke xxiii. 24. And they led him away to Calvary and crucified him.

While he suffered the agony of the slow, but painful death on the cross, the chief priests and scribes taunted him by saying: "He saved others himself he cannot save. If thou be the Christ come down from the cross." With a prayer of forgiveness in his heart, and on his lips, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do," his noble life went out.

Inspired witnesses tell us, that from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land unto the ninth hour, that the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom—that the rocks rent, and the earth quaked, and graves opened, and the bodies of the saints which slept arose and came out of the graves, after his resurrection, and went into the holy city and appeared unto many. Matt. xxvii. 46, 52, 53.

Kind reader, I have presented this picture of Christ's sufferings that you may see the strength of his character, the depth of his love, his endurance and patience under the most trying circumstances that ever fell to any one's lot to bear, in all the world's trials. He bore it without a murmur. He was faithful unto death.

Let us sit at his feet and study him. Though we cannot equal, let us imitate his example. Let us suffer with him that we may be glorified together.

"Rock of Ages cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in thee."

The Story of a Happy Christian Life.

SECOND SERIES. NUMBER 39.

In my last, I gave you an article on "Woman" from Auntie Willard's pen, that I am quite sure you found interesting, as it gives us a new idea of the healing of the infirm woman as being typical of the unbinding of all women from the boudage in which they have been held, not only in civilized lands but in all countries of the earth.

Her next was written March 7, 1891, and is entitled, "Many Infallible Proofs." She had just been reading a book by A. T. Pierson that bore this title, and the thoughts that follow were no doubt suggested thereby, she says, "If the Scriptures issue from the hand or mind of God, the seeker after the truth asks for his royal signature or seal. And prophecy claims to be exactly this; the solemn seal of God's own hand upon the sacred scroll, the appeal of God to fulfilled prophecy, being found all through the Bible. Deut xviii 21, 22; Isa xli 21-23; Jer xxviii 9; 2 Peter i 19-21.

To establish one prophecy is to carry the whole fortress of the enemy by storm, for it settles the inspiration of the Word of God. To establish one prophecy of Christ is to settle not only his authority as a teacher; but his divinity, for it puts God's seal and sanction on Christ's witness concerning himself. Mark his own appeal to his prophecies, John xiv 29, 'And now I have told you before it come to pass that when it is come to pass ye might believe.'

But first let us clearly understand that it is not commonly the object of prophetic prediction to inform us as to the details of the future; but rather, after an event has been fulfilled, to show that it all lay in the mind of God, and was a part of his eternal plan. John ii 20, 22; xii 16; xiv 29; xvi 4; xx 4; Luke xxiv 6 8; xviii 34.

This may explain the necessary obscurity of prophecy. It presents a lock, for which only subsequent history can supply the key. A prophecy thus unlocked by events, opens a door that no man can shut, introducing us by a miracle of utterance to the very presence of him to whom all the future is as the present, and compelling us to bow reverently to hear what he will speak."

There are no quotation marks enclosing these thoughts, and yet they may be Pierson's instead of Auntie Willard's; if so, the mistake is mine, anyhow they are instructive and well worthy of a place in our story. It would be a fine study to connect this thought of prophecy, with the seven-sealed book, that only the lion of the Tribe of Judah has been found worthy to open; no other of any order of beings, having the worthiness to redeem man's forfeited inheritance to which the book is the title deed, or to bring about by successive steps, the shaking and overthrow of the kingdoms of this world, and the establishment of the kingdom of God.

Dr. Lyman L. Willard moved a little before this time to Washington Territory, his address Jan. 22, 1890, being Davenport, Lincoln County, Wash., and later on in the same year, Conlee, Douglas Co. He had married a second wife and had adopted a little girl in the place of the little Jesse that died.

Mr. and Mrs. Roter were like fleas; one never knew where to find them. In 1890 they were in a hotel in Seattle, Wash.

March 27, 1891, brought Auntie Willard face to face with a tragedy that was enough to freeze the blood in one's veins. Annie S. Whiting, the dear adopted daughter, had it seems, left her mission work in the South, and had been connected for a time with a dear Sister Otis in Boston, though just when, or for how long a time I cannot make out, as her address throughout 1890 was 829 Prospect Place Brooklyn, New York. She was not with Miss Otis when the tragedy happened. But from some cause this lovely Christian girl suddenly lost her mental balance, and swallowing a dose of Prussic acid, ended her life. Twenty years before this, she had had the same kind of a fit of despondency, and had been strongly tempted to put herself out of existence, but had overcome the temptation and had gone happily on her way, working for the Master wherever he called her, but perhaps overtaxing both her mental and physical powers, something that God never requires at our hands.

Auntie Willard bore this trial as she bore all her trials. She says, "Since Annie's tragical death, I have been driven near to God, his Word has seemed a tremendous reality, as if God were speaking to me anew from its pages, and I have listened as I opened it for 'the still, small voice.'

'Deal courageously and the Lord shall be with the good,' and 'For that he himself hath suffered, being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted,' is what I heard, 'Death and the devil are to be destroyed, how I enjoy the thought!" etc.

Dear Restitution:

The Church at Eastport, Michigan, was much blessed by the presence of Bro. F. V. Blakely of Grand Rapids, who came Saturday afternoon July 2, remaining over Sunday. Brother Blakely delivered three most excellent sermons, giving much encouragement and exhorting all to work. And let us not be weary in well doing; for in due season we shall reap if we faint not. Gal iv 9.

CARRIE CHAMBERLIN, Sec.

We wish to avoid the labor and expense of mailing statements to our patrons. If each one who has not as yet paid for this year would send in his renewal at once, we will appreciate the favor.

THE Eighth Annual Bible School under the auspices of the Illinois State Conference of the Churches of God in Christ Jesus, is announced to be held at Oregon, Illinois, August 8 to 18, 1910. The teachers are to be the same as last year, the board and lodging are free, though any donation to the cause will be received. Students should bring note books, pencil and Bible. Any further information will be furnished by S. J. Lindsay, Oregon, Illinois, who should be at once notified if you are thinking of attending.

Unstable.—Subject to Change.

The Board of Managers who outline the International S. S. lessons, deem it wise to once each quarter, have a Temperance lesson. This goes out and is used in thousand of Sunday Schools throughout the world, and in classes in these schools teachers with the good of the children at heart, endeavor to instill into them principles that will go with them through life, and strengthen them against the evil tendency about them.

As teacher of a Sunday School class we have tried often to so guide the mind of the scholar that he will avoid even the temptation. We show how hard it is, once the evil habit is formed to break away. We tell of struggles that have been made by those who have been under the power of evil habit, and have been brought to see a better way, and really desire to live a right life, but are torn by appetite, and battle manfully to conquer. We warn our scholars that the only absolutely safe way is to avoid all association that will bring them in contact with their enemy. We show them how if they have been led away by wrong companions, they must avoid such in future. A reformed drunkard must keep away from the saloon. He cannot hang around with boon companions of other days, and listen to their vulgar jokes and ribald talk, and hope to keep from drinking again with them. His only safeguard is "touch not, taste not, handle not." He must flee from all influence that will lead him down again. He must not hope to "drink moderately." He must go away totally from where it is, and stay away. Only so is to be safe. Such principles concerning all evil doings are sought to be instilled into the minds of the youth, by this quarterly Temperence lesson.

We have in mind a young man who was a member in good standing in a religious body called a "church." He was honored by the body to which he belonged, but was not given absolute "say" as to anything, became dissatisfied, and hearing of another church left his own and joined himself to them. He soon found that he was not fully in accord with them, and after a few months published his withdrawal from them, and announced his allegiance to the first church to which he had belonged. A short time after he was thrown in company with the people he had lately left, and by them was persuaded to again renounce his first choice, and unite with them. When he first left the church of his youth, he had to submit to another baptism to get into the body of his choice. Leaving them he gives no account of being again baptized into his old church, and so far as we have the history it does not say he was again baptized into the faith he now holds, but we presume in order to be consistent this will be necessary.

When a boy or girl, a man or woman, reforms from a sinful, shameless life, to a righteous and good life; then after a season fall back into wicked ways, and later when a good influence is over them reform again; and again fall away, we call them vacillating, unstable, inconstant, wavering, changeable, irresolute—like to a reeling, staggering man. We think there is something wrong with them. That they have no mind, are unreliable. We cannot trust them, cannot put confidence in them. We can never be certain when they say a thing that they mean it. They have no steadiness of purpose. There is a feeling of doubt when they speak, they fluctuate in mind, and are inconstant in heart and empty of head.

How does it seem to you, brethren? Is there any likeness between the two?

Sunday School Lesson.

JULY 24, 1910.

The Transfiguration. Matthew xvii. 1-8, 14-20.

Golden Text—"This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him."—Matthew xvii. 5.

The time of this lesson is likely a week after our last lesson, and the place is supposed to be one of the spurs of Mt. Hermon.

In our last lesson we learned that Jesus told his disciples that it was necessary he should suffer and die and be raised again to life, and assurance was given of reward for faith and well doing. They did not fully comprehend all that was meant, and Peter was given a rebuke.

In this lesson the three disciples who are so often mentioned as specially near to Jesus, are to see a little further into the nature of the Christ, are to have further proof that he is the Messiah. There is a crisis coming, and the followers of Jesus must be prepared to stand the trial. Jesus is to go from them, and there must be no room for any doubt in their minds as to his being truly the Messiah—the Son of God.

There had been a week of teaching, and now these three favored ones are taken up into the mountain apart from the others. Luke says they went into the mountain to pray, and that as Jesus prayed "the fashion of his countenance was altered, and his raiment was white and glistering." The Diaglott says "white and dazzling."

Primarily transfigure means change the appearance of, but it also carries with it the idea of a change to an exalted or glorious condition. With his countenance changed from its natural appearance to shining as the sun, and his very raiment glistering with brightness—dazzling with radiance, no wonder his companions were astonished and fell on their faces.

With Jesus thus changed before them, there appeared also two men talking with him. They represented Moses and Elias, or Elijah. The question as to whether Moses and Elijah were really there in bodily form, need not worry in studying this lesson. By reading Luke's account we get an idea that will help us to understand the situation. Jesus had as we learned in our last lesson, given a hint of what was to occur. He was to go to Jerusalem, there suffer and die, be raised again, and later would leave them for a time to battle with the world without him. This had no doubt impressed their minds, and now as they are to learn further they have a season of prayer, for the purpose of getting strength and comfort from God for the trials that await. To encourage them there is given them a vision. Jesus is changed—his face is as the sun for brightness, the clothing that envelopes him is dazzling. They see Moses, the giver of the law, and Elijah the representative of the prophets of God. The Diaglott says "Who appearing in glory, spoke of his departure which was about to be consummated at Jerusalem."

What more natural than that these visitors should talk about this very subject that was uppermost in the minds of all, and that had prompted them to come to this place for prayer to get strength and help from God. What an impressive lesson! When Jesus began his teaching in parables—illustrations—it was decided as we went over the lesson that it was a most convincing way of impressing the mind, and now as these three men see the glory of God displayed, and witness this vision showing the union of living and dead, in the brightness that will be in the resurrection morning, we can get an idea as they did of the grandeur of that time. It was to be expected that the topic of conversation would be about the suffering and death and subsequent glorification of Jesus, and God thus chose to give these three disciples a glimpse of the splendor and glory that surrounds his throne.

Jesus needed strength for the trials he was to have, for what he must endure. How this scene must have encouraged and helped him! The leaders of the Jews were opposing him. He was to be accused by them, indeed they had accused him of breaking the law, and of other things. Here was Moses the law-giver talking with him, showing there was no antagonism between them. The Jews looked for a Messiah to come and deliver them and establish their kingdom again, but they failed to see the suffering and humiliation that should come first. Here was Elijah—a prophet of their own nation—who sanctioned the belief that Jesus had been trying to instill into his disciples. Thus Elijah shows the scholarship of the Jews to be at fault. Does Jesus need assurance of the resurrection? Here is Moses who had died, and now appears alive again. Here is Elijah showing the change to immortality. How could it help but inspire and encourage Jesus to press on and not falter. The prayer for strength and comfort is answered.

How were his three disciples affected by the vision?

Luke says they had become "heavy with sleep" as the long season of prayer continued, for we must remember that Jesus often spent a whole night in prayer. Yet they had resisted the drowsiness, and as the vision came were fully awake, and were rewarded by seeing this manifestation of God's glory.

While Jesus was speaking the picture changes. A cloud of brightness overshadows them, and from the cloud comes a voice—the voice of God speaks and tells them "This is his Son, the Beloved. Hear him." Thus does the Father put his sanction to the scene, and the glorious vision is finished, fittingly and impressively finished. Overcome the disciples fall on their faces, but Jesus touches them and they arise and lifting up their eyes, see only Jesus their companion of days before. They had heard the voice of God himself!

Peter is ever impetuous and wants to be doing, and seeing it was good to be there, he suggests that they build three tabernacles or booths—one for Jesus, one for Moses and one for Elias. It is said he did not know or comprehend what he said.

The disciples were told by Jesus not to tell of this vision until after his resurrection. It might lead to a misunderstanding. They could not as yet perhaps, fully grasp its meaning. It would lead to controversy, and the work would be hindered rather than aided.

The main thing in this transfiguration scene as far as concerns Jesus himself, was that he should be encouraged to press forward. So we can view it in the light of assurance to him of victory if he persevere. He must tread the wine-press alone, and his very blood must be poured out. Awful suffering was to be his lot, but a crown, a kingdom—a world redeemed—was to be the reward for steadfastness.

For the three disciples who were called to be witnesses with him there was much indeed. Rich blessings come in answer to prayer. They had seen Jesus the King in his beauty. The gates of the heavenly realm had been ajar and they were permitted a glimpse of the divine. A zephyr fanned by a breath o'er the River of Life had come to them, and they had heard a voice in greeting from the very throne of the Almighty. Could they have more or better assurance than this? She abounded, yet they had seen the glory of one able to subdue all evil. Sorrow and trial surrounded, yet they know of a power that could transform it all to joy and gladness. Here was hope, victory was sure. The vileness of the body could be changed and fashioned into his glorious body. The righteous shall shine forth as the sun. When he appears we will be like him. We who have borne the image of the earthy, shall bear that of the heavenly. The truth to be impressed on the disciples was that no matter how dark the way may seem, they must never lose their faith that he is the true Messiah—the Promised One. He may be called a blasphemer, a lawbreaker, a criminal even; yet they had seen his glory, and there could be no mistake.

Coming down from the mountain to where the other disciples are left they find a man who has a son who is a lunatic—crazy, possessed by an evil spirit. He foams at the mouth, has convulsions, falls in the fire or water, is bruised and sorely vexed. The man entreats Jesus on behalf of the boy. The followers of Jesus were unable to relieve him. They were powerless to help. Jesus says to bring him, when he comes rebukes the evil spirit, and cures the boy from that very hour.

The disciples are puzzled and disappointed at their lack of power, and ask Jesus why it was they could not cast out the bad spirit. Jesus explains to them that it was on account of their unbelief—or rather their "little faith." One reading says "Your sickly faith." The 21st verse should have been included in this lesson. Jesus tells his disciples that "This kind, however, goes out but by prayer and fasting." He had told them that if they had faith sufficient they might remove a mountain. Whether verse 21 refers to casting out this kind of evil spirit—demon—or whether it refers to this great faith coming as a result of prayer and fasting, is a question advanced pupils may discuss. Also the purpose of the transfiguration scene, and what is revealed by it concerning the Christ.

The transfiguration scene above all gave to Jesus and the three disciples with him assurance of the approval of God. The blessing—the victory—is promised and is sure to the overcomer of trials and temptations.

Have we the approval of God?

Report of Labor.

Near the middle of June, Mrs. Robison and myself left home to visit churches situated in the western and northwestern part of the state. By previous arrangements we were met at Delta, Ohio, by Brother Samuel Elton and conveyed to his home, where a warm welcome was given us by Sister Elton and their son Marion, who is one of the popular teachers of Fulton County. The next evening we began a meeting in a church of their neighborhood.

We remained here one week speaking to attentive audiences. Owing to the heat and farm work our attendance was not so large as we had hoped for. There is a small band (less than twenty) in this neighborhood who are in a waiting attitude. Brother Elton is their leader. We visited with Sister Reighard and Sister Wm. Elton and Brother and Sister Charles Elton. All enjoyed and attended the meetings very regularly. Sister Miller was in attendance most of the time. She was detained part of the time by circumstances unavoidable. Mr. Reighard and Mr. Miller did what they could to make the meeting a success.

On Friday morning, June 24, we were compelled to bid all a good by and leave for other places. Our destination was Springfield and Troy. We visited Friday eve and Saturday morning with Brother and Sister Kauffman, six miles west of Springfield, Ohio. They have been contending for the faith for nearly a half century. Their hope is brighter than it was years ago. Two of their daugters have been baptized into the sin-covering name.

On Saturday p. m. we left for Troy, where we were met by Miss Florence Westfall and taken to the home of her parents Brother and Sister Westfall. We were warmly welcomed by all the family. They have a beautiful country home and make all "of like precious faith" welcome. Brother and Sister William Eidemiller live four miles west of Brother Westfall's. Sisters Eidemiller and Westfall are Sisters in the flesh. It has been a custom for several years to have a meeting of the Springfield and Brush Creek churches at Brother and Sister Westfall's home. June 26th being the time set for the meeting this year, we were there to meet those of the churches and enjoy with them the pleasures of the day. Arrangements had been made to have two meetings. The morning meeting was a social one in which all could participate. A goodly number embraced the opportunity. All were spiritually strengthened and built up. At the close of the social meeting we broke bread. About thirty were present from Springfield and vicinity, and nearly twenty from the Brush Creek ecclesia. Dinner was provided in abundance. About seventy persons partook of the good things provided. Well-filled baskets came from all the churches.

At 2 p. m. all were called together for the meeting. By this time many had come from the neighborhood increasing our number. Your correspondent spoke concerning the promises made to the fathers showing that they centered in the Christ, the seed of Abraham and David to whom the promises were made. Mrs. Robison followed with the subject, "A Sure Foundation," showing that Christ is the Rock upon which to build.

The attendance and attention were all that could be expected. Much credit is due Brother and Sister Westfall and Brother and Sister Eidimiller for their efforts in making the meeting a grand success. I must say that among those who came from Springfield were Bro. and Sister Holman, Bro. and Sister Overholser and Bro. and Sister Beck. The ages of the above range from the 70's into the 80's. It means much when we think that they came nearly 30 miles, four of which was by carriage. Sister Pearson and husband came about 15 miles overland, both being aged. Mr. Pearson is a firm believer in the gospel, but as yet has never obeyed. We trust that he may not neglect this until Death may place his icy hands upon him.

The hour of parting came when many good bys were said with a husky voice and tear-dimmed eyes. May the Father bless them all, and if the Lord should delay his coming, may each and all meet again on the green lawn of Brother and Sister Westfall is our prayer.

It is with sorrow that we are called upon to record the death of our beloved friend and brother, Thomas H. Lindsay, of Oregon, Illinois, which occured in his home in that city, June 25, 1910.

Brother Lindsay was born in the eastern part of Ohio, on the opposite side of the Ohio River from Wheeling, West Virginia, May 18, 1841, and at the time of his death had reached the age of 69 years, 1 month and 7 days. At the age of four years he moved with his family to Muscatine, Iowa. It was not his lot to long enjoy the blessings of loving, parental care, and home training, for at the tender age of eight years he was left an orphan to undergo the sad experience that is too frequently the lot of the unfortunate child bound out to strangers.

When 18 years old, he determined to become his own guardian, and went to work on a farm near Mt. Morris, Illinois, where he remained until his marriage, January 5, 1865, to Miss Margaret E. Koontz, soon which time he has made his home near Adeline, Illinois, until three years ago, when he moved to Oregon, that he might spend his declining years in retirement and enjoy the privileges of the Church of God, of which he became a member in early life.

Brother Lindsay has ever made the Holy Scriptures his Guide and Monitor, and his greatest joy has consisted in forwarding, so far as he was able, the cause of his Master among men. Nor was he simply a believer, for throughout his entire experience he has manifested a desire to faithfully fulfill every duty to his God, his home, and the community in which he lived.

He is survived by his faithful wife and nine children. They are Elder Samuel J. Lindsay of Oregon, Illinois, Oliver S. of Algona, Iowa, Mrs. Margaret Jacobs and Mrs. Emma Icely of Leaf River, Illinois, George H. of Harper, Illinois, Charles T. of Orangeville, Illinois, and William H., Lewis E., and Lillie M., who are still at home.

The funeral was conducted from the Adeline Church and was largely attended by friends and brethren from Ashton, Oregon, Leaf River, Lanark, and other points in northern Illinois. The burial took place in the Adeline cemetery, the six sons of the deceased acting as pall bearers.

The writer spoke words of comfort to the bereaved, founded on our brother's hope and faith in the soon coming of the Master to raise to life and immortality those who sleep in Him.

G. ELDRED MARSH.

Married.

The writer was called upon to perform the ceremony uniting in marriage Mr. John Goeltz and Miss Claudia Leonia Baker, both of Aurora, Ill. The wedding took place June 29th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Andrew in Oregon, in the presence of a few friends and relatives. We extend to these worthy young people our best wishes for a long and happy life together.

To Whom the Promise?

Is it to passive goodness, mere piety, or to the active servant who strove for God's truth in the world, and does his will?

While it is true that righteousness is not obtained by works of merit, it is equally true that righteousness is not retained without works. James tells us that faith is nullified by idleness. "To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin." "Faith is made perfect by works." Even in conversion God makes it obligatory on the part of the seeker to not only believe in the heart, but confess with the mouth the Lord Jesus. Romans x. 9. Christians overcome now as formerly by the blood of the Lamb and the word of their testimony. Revelation xii. 11.

No Souls for Dogs.

"Do dogs have souls?"

This was a question put by a man in the audience at Cooper Union Sunday night to Dr. Lyman Abbott after the latter had explained his conception of immortality.

Dr. Abbott thought for a moment and then replied: "I don't believe that dogs have souls. There is a sharp distinction between animal life and human life. Where there is a life without faith and love such as a human being possesses, there can be no soul."

During the course of his address Dr. Abbott said that he believed in evolution, and told how through the ages the germ of life developed by a long process of growth into the human being.

"Then how do you reconcile evolution with the first chapter of Genesis?" asked another inquirer.

"I consider this chapter," replied the doctor, "a divine poem no more to be interpreted scientifically than Milton's 'Paradise Lost.'"

Then a youth arose in the audience and declared that as much of his time was spent on earth in work, he would like to know what were his prospects of work in the next world. Dr. Abbott confessed he did not know.

Dr. Abbott started in by saying that he thought immortality could not be scientifically demonstrated. The burden of proof, he said, was on those who would disprove it, anyway, as the presumptions were all the other way.

"When the soul gets too big for its integuments," he continued, "then comes death: the outworn integument drops and the spirit goes into some realm we cannot comprehend.

"There is no such thing as eternal sleep. They we call dead are living. Why was this germ of life developed? To make a graveyard? I do not believe so. There must be a larger fuller life after this one."

Asked whether he believed in the resurrection of the body, Dr. Abbott declared he believed the resurrection was merely the unspringing of the spirit from the body, in what form he could not say.

"I am sure I don't want my body," he exclaimed, "after I am dead. I want a better one." Then he continued:
